CORBETT AND FITZSIMMONS.

Meet and "Give Their Experience" in the Recent Fight—Corbett Wants Another Fight—Fitzsimmons Declines—Says He Has Retired From the Ring.

San Francisco, March 23.—James I. Corbett and Robert Fitzsimmons will never meet in the prize ring for another championship battle. This question was practically decided this morning when the two pugilists met in the bar room of the Baldwin hotel and talked over the plans quietly and dispassionately. There were no threatening gestures and no loud talk.

Corbett waited all the morning for a meeting and when Bob arrived from Sacramento Jim asked him if he would take a drink. "I don't mind," said Bob. They walked to the barroom and both ordered "non-intoxicants." They were immediately surrounded by a curious crowd.

"How do you feel?" asked Corbett.

"I feel all right," answered Bob. "My arms a little sore and are stiff and my thumb is very sore. The doctor says it is broken."

"I injured my left thumb early in the game," said Corbett, "when I caught you on the forehead."

"Mine was hurt in the second round," said Bob, "when I swung on your head and landed too far around."

"I tell you, Bob, people told me you were slow and easy. I wish those men who told me had been in front of you on March 17th. You won and beat me fairly and squarely."

"Well," replied Fitzsimmons, "I can assure you that you are the cleverest man I ever met in my life."

"I want to fight you again," said Corbett.

"You must talk to my manager," answered Fitzsimmons.

Julian overheard the remark, replied that Bob had done enough fighting. "He has fought more than any man living during a space of seven years," said Julian, "and he will not fight again if I can rule. His wife wants him to retire, and he will do so."

"Then I am to understand that there is not another chance for me?" said Corbett.

"I don't think so," replied Julian.

"Well, all right," remarked Corbett in a very down-beated way, "but I should like to have one more try. You fought Maher twice, why not give me another chance?"

"Because I have retired," said Fitzsimmons, "and I am going to settle down."

The conversation then turned to past fights. Corbett showed his left hand, which was considerably swollen, and Fitzsimmons's right thumb is still bandaged.

The crowd had now become so thick that Corbett asked Bob and Julian to step to one side, to talk privately concerning a second fight, and they moved to one side and spoke in whispers. Their conversation was very short, and evidently disappointing to Corbett, judging from his looks.

STATE NEWS.

Hon. William L. Wilson will deliver the annual address at the commencement of the State University, June 1st.

Dr. Abner Alexander, of Tyrell county, has been elected superintendent of the Eastern Hospital, near Goldsboro.

Early in April sixty New Jersey editors will visit that portion of North Carolina along the line of the Seaboard Air Line railroad.

Greek O. Andrews, editor of the Press Visitor, is being mentioned as a candidate for Mayor in Raleigh at the coming election.

At Waynesville Kimsey Howell's left arm was caught in the machinery of a roller mill and torn almost from his body. It was amputated.

Victor Dockery, a son of Hon. O. H. Dockery, has been appointed steward of the penitentiary. The relations between Gov. Russell and the Dockery family seem to be more pleasant than they were six months ago.

The new State Board of Agriculture has elected J. M. Mewborne, of Lenoir county, Commissioner of Agriculture; J. L. Ramsey, editor of the Progressive Farmer, secretary of the agricultural department, and J. H. Young, colored, of Raleigh, chief fertilizer inspector.

A revival is in progress at Market Street M. E. church, and we are informed of a disgraceful occurrence at the meeting on Sunday night. It is stated that some young men sprinkled iodine around and ruined a young lady's dress with the horribly smelling stuff.—Wilmington Messenger.

The A. & N. C. Railroad.

Kinston, March 23.—The newly appointed directors of the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad met here today. Mr. Robert Hancock, of New Bern, was elected president and he was instructed to make formal demand for possession of the road at once. The directors did not give out much as to their intentions, but it is reported that Mr. F. C. Roberts is to be elected treasurer and secretary and that Mr. William Dunn will again be made superintendent. It is stated that Mr. Chadwick the retiring president, will turn over the road when demand is made, but under protest.—Wilmington Messenger.

Worth Having.

The Easter number of The Ladies Home Journal is very attractive and brimful of helpful and entertaining reading. A leading feature is several articles appropriate to the Easter season, and in addition to this every department of the Journal is fully up to the standard. It would be a valuable publication if it contained nothing more than the helpful hints and practical suggestions on the every day problems of home life. Send 10 cents to Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia, for a copy.

It was cold enough for frost this morning but the wind kept it off.

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1897.

SIGHTS IN MEXICO.

Market Square—Narrow Streets and Quaint Buildings—Public Bath—Wealth and Poverty Mingle on the Plazas—How the Young People do their Courting.

After leaving the cathedrals, mentioned in our last article, we visited the market. This presented as busy a scene on Sunday as on week days, and afforded much interest. Thousands of people were gathered here buying and selling, some crying their wares, some ringing bells to attract attention, and nearly all making some kind of noise. The market house occupies the center of a square, and beside this being full of sellers the entire space out to the street, and even in the street, on every side contains stands, tables and counters full of something to sell, some of these being under awnings and others right out in the hot sun. Those who could not get stands had a blanket spread out on the street with their wares displayed on it. And every imaginable thing is offered for sale right on this market square. Some had full stocks of dry goods, some had groceries, some shoes, some clothing, some hats, some vegetables, some jewelry, some notions, some sugar cane, some fruits, some confections, some refreshments, some old junk, some live pigs, some pottery, some kindling wood, some coal, some peacocks, some pies—and the hardest looking pies we ever laid eyes on, too. Well, we might take a whole column naming things sold there and not mention half of them. It put the American city department store in the shade for variety.

As our party, now divided up into small squads for better taking in the sights, wended our way through and among this market crowd, we attracted as much attention and seemed objects of as great curiosity to the Mexicans as they were to us. They all wanted to sell us something, and when we would look at an article and ask quanto? (how much) they would jabber some Spanish at us and look amazed that we did not understand it. Now and then one who anticipated that we didn't know it all was thoughtful enough to show a coin representing the price. But our guide had warned us to be careful about making quick purchases, as they knew we were Americans and would double prices on us. When they found out we were on to their trick it was an easy matter to get things at our own price, so to speak. The market scenes and incidents were so interesting that many of us made several visits there before leaving Monterey. The streets of Monterey, as previously referred to, are very narrow, and on many of these the sidewalks are barely 3 feet wide. The houses are very quaint and of antique design. Except in the suburbs they are built of stone, solidly together, with no space or alleys between them. Most of them are only one story high, one seldom being seen above two stories. The walls are from two to four feet thick and even the floors and roofs are of stone or cement. The only wood used about a building is the shutters to doors and windows and the girders that support the roof or upper floor. Being thus constructed they are practically fire proof, and it is well this is so, for owing to the scarcity of water the city has no means of fighting fire. There are no porches to the houses but frequently where there are upper stories a balcony hangs over the sidewalk. All the windows are protected by strong iron gratings giving the appearance of a prison. The buildings are all very much alike and the only yard about any of them is in an open court between the rear wings.

The average Mexican is far behind the American in point of modesty. For instance, in the heart of Monterey is a public bath, where in the morning before the sun has become too hot hundreds of children of both sexes, some of them nearly grown, may be seen bathing together, the only covering to the bodies being a short garment about the waist. Even the most abbreviated bathing suits seen at our American seaside resorts puts the blush on those used in Mexico.

There are many beautiful places about Monterey, notably the plazas, several of them being conveniently located through the city. These may not be altogether so grand, but in appearance call to mind the many beautiful parks in Washington.

In the throngs at the cathedrals and about the market, and so far as they had been seen on the street in the morning part of the day, we had noticed that the women, with some exceptions, were still bonnetless. Commenting on this we asked a guide if this was the prevailing custom—if the women wore nothing but cloaks over their heads and if all the men wore sombreros. He replied, "Just wait until evening when the aristocracy comes out and you will see style in plenty." And so we did.

The sun had barely dropped sufficiently behind the mountains to cast a shadow over the city before Monterey seemed transformed into another place so far as population is concerned. The plaza in front of our hotel rapidly filled with handsomely dressed men and stylishly robed women that looked almost American. These promenaded the broad walks for hours, while the surrounding boulevards were gay with elegant equipages. There were now visible silk tiles and suits that would have done credit to any of our popular clothiers, hats that any of our milliners would have been delighted to furnish, and dresses the very acme of fashion. To entertain the crowd a splendid band occupied the position in the centre of the plaza and rendered popular airs. Such a contrast between this gorgeous display of wealth and the poverty of the thousands of people also numbered among the city's population! But, mind you, this plaza and delightful music was as much for the enjoyment of the poor as the rich, and the former was right there to get his full share of it. The sombrero and blanket were as much in evidence as the silk hat and dress coat, and the bonnetless maid seemed to get as much pleasure from the promenade as did her beautifully dressed sister. Those who wanted to rest occupied seats arranged for this purpose.

After supper we drew over to a seat on the plaza to be in closer touch with this panorama, and while sitting there a citizen, who spoke English quite fairly, explained some of the social customs of the people. He said that in Mexico parents were very guarded of their daughters and did not allow them the freedom of going out at will like they do in America. If a man stared at a lady in public enough to displease her she could cause his arrest and punishment for the offence. If a young man and young lady were seen out on the plaza together twice in the same month it was equivalent to a betrothal, at least the public looked upon them as being engaged. If a young man calls on a young lady they have to sit in the room with her parents and are allowed only 5 minutes private conversation. If they become engaged the limit is extended to 15 minutes, and if they get any further private conversation he must stand outside the window and talk to her through the bars.

All this may or may not be true, but that kind of custom, we thought, would not agree with the United States boy, even if his girl could stand it. Put Bob Moye, George Woodward, Jim Starkey, or a dozen others that could be named, to talking to their girls through iron bars, and they'd file the bars in two inside of a week.

It is a Mistake.
To work when you are not in a fit condition to do so.
To take off heavy underclothing out of season simply because you have become overheated.
To think that the more a person eats the healthier and stronger he will become.
To believe that children can do as much work as grown people, and that the more they study the more they learn.
To go to bed late at night and rise at daybreak and imagine that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained.
To imagine that if a little work or exercise is good violent or prolonged exercise is better.
To conclude that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in.
To sleep exposed to a direct draught at any season.
To think any nostrum or patent medicine is a specific for all the diseases that flesh is heir to.

SOME THOUGHTS ON SPRING.
Some thoughts on spring are not fit for publication.
Spring is the season of the year when poets and lovers get out of order.
If you have flannels, prepare to shed them in July.
The well-known poetical reference to spring as an "ethereal mildness" was promulgated before the introduction of either cycling or the Weather Bureau.
Spring, ghastly spring!
If the robin is really a sign of spring, he ought to be ashamed of himself.
In these days, blizzards and cycle shows are the only genuine harbingers of spring.
That tired feeling incidental to early spring rides is greatly aggravated by reading spring poetry in one column of a paper and weather reports in another.
In the spring, a rider's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of cough mixtures.
The most effete monarchy of modern times is the one presided over by the May Queen.
Spring by any other name would not be nearly so deceptive.
Possibly it is because spring is the youth of the year that it is disagreeably fresh.
"Sweet spring, full of sun and blowing roses"—sore throats and blowing noses.
Spring, gentle spring, get a thaw on yourself.
There are more people daily studying the Bible now than ever before. The Bible has a power that no other book ever has had or ever can have, and men in high positions study it and teach its truths. Occasionally we find a man who thinks it a mark of greatness to leave the everyday, practical side of Christianity to others. Such men are blinding themselves and stumbling in their own shadows. To be really great one must be good, and no one can be really good in desire and practice of life who does not try to conform his life to the teachings of the Bible.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Do you Want the COSMOPOLITAN
Here is an opportunity to get this excellent magazine for little money.
We will send the Cosmopolitan and the Eastern Reflector both one year for $1.75.
Or We will send the Cosmopolitan and The Daily Reflector, both, a whole year for $3.50.
If you want a good magazine and a good home paper, this is your chance. Compare the Cosmopolitan with the $4 magazines and it is the equal of any of them.
Send your orders to the Reflector.

"FROM FROST TO FLOWERS."
California or Mexico?
Both are such desirable objective points for a Winter trip that it's perhaps hard for you to decide where to go.
Let us Help You to a Decision.
A trip via New Orleans and the Southern Pacific to either Mexico or the Pacific Coast is one you will never forget.
It's a Transition from Frost to Flowers.
And the service is so luxurious that people who have tested "Sun-Sea-Land" call it incomparable.
If you are Thinking of Going, Write Us.
We have a book entitled "Through Storyland to Sunset Seas," a handsome volume of 205 pages, fully illustrated, which we will send on receipt of 10 cents in stamps to cover postage. We also have a delightful little guide to Mexico, which we will send on receipt of 4 cents to cover cost of mailing.
You Really Ought to Read them Both.
Shall we put you down for a copy? If so, or if you want any special information, it will be cheerfully furnished by addressing,
S. F. B. MORSE,
General Passenger and Ticket Agent,
NEW ORLEANS.

When bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure constipation.

Postage stamps may not be egotistical but they often get stuck on themselves.

Just try a 10c. box of cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

The dissecting room may not be conducive to merrymaking, but that is where the students always go to cut up.

Butter Milk Soap, Electra Silican Enameline, German Peas, California Lima Beans, Dried Peaches, Hominy Flakes, at S. M. Schultz.

Shirt Waist Silks just received and they are beautiful and cheap. A lovely line of Mousseline de Soir and Chiffon also just in. Call and see them at M. S. J. S. Tunstall & Co's., opposite REFLECTOR office.

HAND-CRAYON Portraits!

WIND SHIFTS.

Blows Some This Way and Some That.

Brocke French is in town.

R. B. Smith, of Ayden, was here today.

Mrs. R. M. Starkey is visiting in the country.

Mrs. J. W. Quinerly, of Centerville, spent today here.

H. W. Whichard and his mother, Mrs. W. R. Whichard, spent today in town.

Mrs. W. M. King left Wednesday evening for a visit to relatives at Goldsboro and Wilson.

Will Perkins returned Wednesday evening from Wilmington where he had been to stand a civil service examination.

The recent pleasant days have brought out the tennis players on the court near the cemetery.

A beautiful line of Chiffon and Gauze Ribbon just received at Mrs. Georgia James.

J. F. King has just received a bus to use in connection with his livery. This makes four now in service here.

B. F. Metzger, of Norfolk was here yesterday introducing Old Cuba Tobacco, which the chewers say is fine.

W. J. Gibson is in town representing the Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada, and we learn doing good work. Bentley Harris is assisting him.

There will be no prayer meeting service in Baptist church tonight, but all the members of the choir are requested to meet at the church for practice.

I have just returned from the northern markets with a beautiful line of Millinery. Be sure and see my stock before purchasing.

MRS. GEORGIA JAMES

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church will give a Past and Present Century party at Germania Hall Tuesday evening March 30th, a splendid supper, etc. The waiters and tables will be dressed in past and present style.

Honesty of purpose and conscientious performance of duty, carry one much further, in the long run, than flashes of genius even, unaccompanied by sincere motives. It is the plodding man of rugged honesty that sticks and stays and succeeds the most grandly.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Mr. J. A. Andrews has had a beautiful monument placed at the grave of his wife, in Cherry Hill Cemetery. It is of pure white marble, the tablet being covered by a scroll bearing the inscription. On the summit are two doves and near the base a broken rose. The monument was furnished by J. C. Lanier & Co., and is among the handsomest in the cemetery.
