EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. W. S. Chadwick, who has just retired as President of the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad, has made the best President that road ever had. Under his wise administration the road has been greatly improved and converted from a losing to a paying property. Mr. Chadwick has always been a successful business man and he conducted the road on business methods.

The Beaufort Herald, in speaking of the recent wreck off Hatteras and the loss of seventy-eight lives, makes a wise suggestion relative to the construction of an inland passage from Beaufort to Norfolk. It is well known that the treacherous shoals adjacent to Hatteras is the most dangerous section of the Atlantic coast, and the record of disasters there is much greater than anywhere else. The construction of this inland passage would enable vessels to avoid the dangerous trip over Hatteras shoals and the loss of much property and many lives be saved. Congress could make no wiser expenditure than in this direction. Every Atlantic State especially should be interested in it.

The Fashion in Spring Jackets.

"The sleeves of the new jackets," writes Isabel A. Mallon in the April Ladies' Home Journal, are decidedly smaller, the necessary fullness being immediately at the top.

"The revers are not exaggerated, the rather simple masculine coat collar and lapels being fancied, and these are very often faced with velvet.

"There are few ripple effects; instead the smart jacket—that is, the semi-fitted one—rests smoothly across the back and does not suggest too much fullness.

"Covert cloths are especially favored. The colors in vogue are fawn, tan, light and dark blue, reseda, cream white, black, as a matter of course, and all the innumerable grays.

"Braiding, especially with soutache, obtains very generally, and coats have designs arranged for them, the braiding being done by hand so that a wide effect is given to the shoulders, a narrow to the waist, and a broad to the hips. Short Empire coats entirely covered with braid, put on lengthwise, are seen.

"Small buttons of ivory, pearl and gilt are used, the ivory and the pearl being the round bullet shape, while the gold buttons are flat and suggestive of gold dollars. Large buttons, notably those showing the coloring and patterns, continue to be popular, but the newest jackets show the fly closing, with no attempt at placing buttons as if they were really used."

He's There Now.

The Hon. Harry Skinner is coming around right. Not long ago he was somewhat of a Democratic free-trader, but in the House last night he made a protection speech in support of the Dingley bill. We have hopes that he will see the way clear before long to get on the Republican platform with both feet. —Raleigh Tribune.

"WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT?"

A farmer friend from the country asked us what we thought of the future of the country. We could give no satisfactory answer. Thus far the prospects are gloomy enough. If asked what about the future of North Carolina we would have to reply, that it was dark and desperate if the plunderers and incompetents are to remain in charge of the State and destinies. There is a wide-spread conviction, and it is hourly growing, that unless the tax-payers and the men of character and patriotism get together and combine heartily, to turn out the set now ravaging and ruining North Carolina will get a complete set-back, and cease to make any advance in any direction. The last legislative body was so disgraceful, so utterly incapable, so indifferent to North Carolina and her multiplied interests, so reckless, so greedy, so vicious, that people of sense of all parties feel the shame and the disgust. An old and esteemed friend of many decades—venerable in years and intelligent—recently wrote to us (on 19th) about the condition of the State. He sees the danger and distress following the political power now in North Carolina, and like a true patriot he is deeply anxious to see a change. He writes in hope that the Democracy will arouse and be at work at once to help redeem the State. He says: "It will not do to give up, but we must resolve that the State shall be free from Republican domination." God speed the day! To save the State from misrule and extravagance and corruption the honest, faithful men—not politicians and office-seekers—in all the parties must resolve to relieve North Carolina of the rule and ruin gang. Nothing else will save the State and keep it on an upward grade of prosperity.

An esteemed and patriotic friend encloses us a letter to him written on the 16th inst., by that progressive and patriotic citizen, Colonel Julian S. Carr, of Durham, with permission to make such extracts as may seem to us proper and judicious. The letter is in reply to one our friend had addressed to Colonel Carr. Evidently not a line was intended for any eye but his to whom it is written. But having the opportunity to reproduce a part, we do so in the hope that it will stimulate others to activity and help to set in motion impulses and influences that may do good to the democracy and through them to the State. Colonel Carr writes:

"Like yourself I am perplexed and sorely troubled over the present condition of affairs in North Carolina; for, like yourself, I dearly love old North Carolina, and my desire and purpose has been to do what lay in my power to elevate and develop our dear old State. But I find myself painfully distressed that our lines have fallen in evil places, and the 'Pie Hanging Brigade,' for a mess of pottage have bartered our good name until we are well nigh a byword and reproach among the sisterhood of States * * It may be that it is best that we tabernacle awhile in the Valley of Desolation. 'Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.' The untarnished, unbought, the incorruptible Democracy will yet redeem the State with such rich heritage, and lead a stricken people back to Buelah Land. Ignorance and vice can lead only for a season. Virtue and intelligence sooner or later must and will prevail * * For several reasons I prefer not to enter politics. My wish is to serve in private station; but I have sworn, "God willing," the State must and shall be redeemed * * We have seen the worst, for I am persuaded that an outraged and insulted people who love justice and respect virtue, will, when another opportunity presents itself, hurl from place and power, those who serve for pie and pelf. The part of the true man is to be up and doing, so I have drawn my blade and thrown away my scabbard, and sworn upon the naked blade, that North Carolina shall be free."

These are animating, stirring words. Let every genuine, true, loyal North Carolinian, born or adopted, resolve with Colonel Carr to strike for redemption and victory—to restore North Carolina to those who will govern in righteousness, and who for twenty years sought to place the State upon a high plane of prosperity, and bring peace and contentment to all. Let there be an united, enthusiastic, vigorous effort made for the restoration of all that is good and just and wise and benevolent and uplifting and noble.—Wilmington Messenger.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26, 1897.

Whether the administration will make any use of the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court sustaining the Sherman anti-trust law and including railway pools and agreements within its scope, is a question that many men in Congress are much interested in. It was maintained by Mr. Cleveland's two Attorney Generals—Olney and Harmon—that nothing could be done under the Sherman law because of the decisions of the courts against its validity. Now that the highest court has reversed those decisions and declared the law valid, there is an opportunity for this administration to clear itself of the charge of being too friendly to the trusts, by vigorously prosecuting them, if it isn't afraid to do so.

The McKinley tariff bill number two got some very hard knocks in the House this week, and the outside pressure was so heavy that Mr. Dingley was compelled to announce that the Ways and Means committee had decided to strike out that clause of the bill placing a duty on books and scientific instruments for educational institutions and add an amendment putting those articles on the free list, as they are at present. The democrats of the House made the most of the almost numberless unjust and unequal for discriminations made by the bill in favor of the few against the many, but the speech made by Representative McMillin naturally received the most attention, both from the opponents and friends of the bill, because of his position as the ranking democrat of the Ways and Means committee, and because on account of his long experience in tariff matters he had been requested by Representative Bailey to make the leading speech against the bill. In replying to Representative Dingley's statement that the increased burden of taxation imposed by the bill was on luxuries, Mr. McMillin said: "The claim that the increased burden is on luxuries is not sustained by the facts. Are coarse shawls and knit goods luxuries? And I beg with all deference to ask whether in the State of Maine a clean shirt has become such a rarity that it is classed with the luxuries? I ask him when, among Americans, the sugar that sweetens tea and coffee becomes a luxury—when gold chains become a luxury to farmers? Sir, not only is the bill itself blunder, but the different schedules average above those of the McKinley bill." Mr. McMillin also called attention to the fact that foreign governments are already preparing to resist this new assault upon commerce. He also reminded the republicans that a purchased verdict, such as they obtained last November, would not be allowed to stand.

Senators and Representatives have had an excellent opportunity to observe the sublime cheek and impudence of the individual who bobbed up in the late campaign as "Cousin Osborne," and who has secured the position of Consul General to London, one of the best paying positions at the disposal of his cousin, Mr. McKinley. It seems that in seeking and obtaining this position "Cousin Osborne" had overlooked an order of Secretary Olney, issued last October, regulating consular fees, which has resulted in reducing the income of Consul General to London from $30,000 to $40,000 a year to about $12,000. When "Cousin Osborne" found this out he was indignant, although there are people who say that the reduced income of the office is about six or seven times as much as he has ever been able to earn in private life. Be that as it may, "Cousin Osborne" applied to Mr. McKinley to have that order of Secretary Olney's set aside and the old scale of consular fees resumed, but Mr. McKinley feared the scandal that would follow such action on his part, and said he would not do it unless Congress directed it to be done. This week "Cousin Osborne" has been personally canvassing Senators and Representatives to get their support for what would be practically making him a present of something like $25,000 a year. He hasn't received much encouragement.

The civil service law which stands between the republicans and the offices, was very viciously attacked by Senator Gallinger and others in the debate which preceded the adoption without a dissenting vote of Senator Allen's resolution for an investigation of the methods pursued by the Civil Service Commission, and the end is not yet. Senator Corman was the only democrat who took part in the debate, and he merely took advantage of the opportunity to good-naturedly nag the republicans a little about their anxiety to get at the offices. If it comes to a direct vote of the repeal of the present civil service law, there are plenty of democrats who will vote "aye," although they know that it would mean the replacing of every democrat in a Federal office by a republican. A bill to repeal has been introduced.

Dear, You're so Tall.

The short girl has many advantages over the tall one. She has to go through life looking up, and nothing is so becoming to eyes as that. Her lashes show more and she shows her hair. There are curves of cheek, chin and throat that look their prettiest to a man that must glance down at them.

A small girl is more easily held and more easily kissed. It is nicer to have to lift her face up by the chin, and it is more epicurean and satisfactory to reach down to the upturned lips.

It is comfortable, when you hold a girl on your knee, to have her head just come to your shoulder instead of having it hang over—surplus, as it were. Everything about a small girl is likely to be a provocation—the unexpectedly tiny hand, the distracting morsels of feet, the little head, the little nose.

A small girl can be fascinating even in a temper. She can be so delicious when she pouts, and none of these moods sits well on a big woman. Then, too, the man in love is inclined to pet names, and he wants to call his girl "Birdy," whether she weighs 200 or not. Yet he is insensible to the appropriateness of the title when given to a real little thing.

A man likes to feel big by comparison at least. A really large man does not object to seeming almost a giant beside the girl of his heart, and it is almost necessary to the short man's vanity that he shall seem big to the little creature he is going to marry.

It is very fetching to have one's girl say, "Please, dear, my neck gets so tired; you're so tall." Don't you know what that means? Well, get a bit of a girl and you will find out. On the whole, the small girl has the best of it.—Kansas City Star.

An ode I sing to gentle spring; I sing the lowing of the kine, There's garlic in the butter, and The poet is on the back beer sign.

The Origin of Mr. and Mrs.

In earlier times the ordinary man was simply William or John; that is to say, he had only a Christian name without any kind of "handle" before it or surname after it.

Some means of distinguishing one John or William from another John or William became necessary. Nicknames derived from a man's trade or his dwelling place, or from some personal peculiarity, were tacked on to his Christian name, and plain John became John Smith. As yet there were no "Misters" in the land.

Some John Smith accumulated more wealth than the bulk of his fellows—became, perhaps, a landed proprietor or an employer of hired labor. Then he began to be called in the Norman-French of the day the "maistre" of this place or that, of these workmen or of those.

In time the "maistre," or "maister," as it soon became, got tacked on before his name, and he became Maister Smith and his wife was Maistress Smith.

Gradually the sense of possession was lost sight of, and the title was conferred upon any kind—by mere possession of wealth, or holding some position of more or less consideration and importance.
