KEEL ON TRIAL.

Examination of Witnesses in Progress

At the resuming of court Friday afternoon the examination of testimony for the State began. After the witnesses were sworn the defense requested the court to have the important witnesses separated to prevent one hearing what the other testified to.

The first witness the State introduced was Willis Crandall, a brother of David Crandall, deceased, who testified as follows:

On Christmas morning all of us started rabbit hunting. Keel proposed wrestle with Butler, and Butler objected. Keel ran into Butler anyhow, and Butler threw him. Keel took out his knife and commenced cutting at Butler, put knife back in his pocket and struck Butler across back with gun. Keel then shot at Butler but Butler knocked the gun up so it was discharged in the air. Keel then snatched a gun out of David Crandall's hands and said "G-d-d-n you, I'll kill you too," and shot him. Keel was standing about three steps from Crandall when he shot him (Witness took a stick and showed position and distance parties were apart at time) of shooting. The lead struck Crandall in right side—he lived about 15 minutes after being shot. He fell instantly when shot.

Cross examined—I am 15 years old, was examined before Coroner. Butler threw Keel two or three times. Butler knocked gun up when Keel shot at him. I had taken a drink that morning. I never stated that I was so intoxicated that morning that I did not know what occurred. I was not tight. I have talked with Butler about the killing since it occurred, also with Wynne. About 7 o'clock when we started on the hunt. (He named the parties who were along.) Myself, Butler, Keel, Wynne, my brother Gus and Keel were present when David was killed. There had been some trouble between David and Keel before. We stopped at Keel's house that morning. Wynne carried Keel's gun. Keel took it when we got near Sheppard's. I went home right after shooting.

Re-direct examination—The trouble between David and Keel was about some cattle, it occurred about two months before the shooting.

Stanley Warren—Myself and Butler started rabbit hunting, on the way we met David and Willis Crandall, Wynne, Keel and a little boy. We went down near Sheppard's mill. Keel, Butler and David Crandall were walking close together, Keel said something about wrestling. Crandall said he didn't wrestle. Don't know what Butler said. Keel took hold of Butler and they fell. They got up and Butler threw him, when they rose from this fall Keel struck at Butler several times and said "Where is my gun?" I did not see him get gun and did not see him shoot, but heard it fire and when I looked around I saw Keel strike Butler across the back with gun, he then took out a knife and struck at Butler several times. Butler got around behind me and Keel went

THREE BUILDINGS BURNED.

Fire Bugs Destroy the Dancy Corner and Give the Town a Close Call—Engine Failed to Work.

The new fire bell had an opportunity Friday night of sounding its first alarm. It was about a quarter past 11 o'clock when the rapid clanging of the bell aroused our people and told them there was fire, and soon had them hurrying out to the street.

The fire was in the confection store of Morris Meyer and burning rapidly when the crowd arrived. The fire engine was promptly at the cistern and a line of hose run out, but owing to some trouble in the engine it would not work and could not throw water. Several efforts were made to fix the engine and get it to work but without avail. All this time the fire was gaining rapidly and it was apparent that the building could not be saved.

Realizing that something must be done to prevent a general conflagration the people and the hook and ladder company set to work with a will and did heroic service. Fortunately there was plenty of water in the water cistern, but there was difficulty in getting it out until a pump was put in.

From Morris Meyer's store the fire went to the old Dancy building and to L. Hooker & Co's. bar on the corner, totally destroying these. Everything in Meyer's store was lost, but Hooker & Co. saved most of their goods. Meyer had $900 on building and stock, but Hooker had no insurance on either.

The large double stores of J. B. Cherry & Co. across the street was badly damaged. The intense heat broke nearly all their front windows and charred the wood work. Their stock also sustained some damage from the heat and water.

Brown & Hooker's store next to Meyer's was also damaged and their stock suffered some. H. M. Hardee and W. H. Cox also sustained some damage in moving stock. J. A. Brady's building just across Fourth street from the fire was damaged some. At this writing a correct estimate of losses cannot be given.

It took good work to keep the fire confined to the Dancy corner and for awhile it looked like all the wooden buildings south of there would be lost, and the Cherry and Brown & Hooker stores had a narrow escape. The buildings between the stores of W. H. Cox and J. S. Tunstall caught several times from falling cinders but men stationed on the roofs saved them.

There is hardly a doubt that the fire was of incendiary origin. Several attempts were made during the last year to burn this property and this time when Night Watchman Daniel went to ring the alarm he found the bell ropes tied up out of reach.

The town had a close call for a disaster perhaps as great as the one that visited us in February of last year. Of course everybody thinks the fire could have been put out easily if the engine had worked. But it is too late to talk about that. The engine did not work, and what Greenville needs is a good steam fire engine that can be depended on to work when it is needed.

SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1897.
WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, April 2, 1897.
There is no limit to republican audacity. Not only was the McKinley tariff bill number 2 put through the House—forced through is nearer true—before an opportunity had been given members to go through even the farce of offering amendments to have them overruled by the chair, instead of being voted down by the members, to more than about one-sixth of the entire bill, but an amendment was forced down the throats of the republican members which is generally conceded to be unconstitutional, and to be in direct conflict with a decision handed down by the U. S. Supreme court since the Wilson tariff bill became a law. This amendment makes the duties which will finally be imposed by the bill go into effect April 1, although no one expects the bill to become a law for at least three months, and no one has any means of knowing how the duties will stand when the bill passes the Senate. This amendment is a bluff pure and simple, intended to frighten importers into stopping importations while the bill is pending in the Senate. It works the importers are a timid set, as there are no lawyers of any prominence who regard the amendment as worth the paper it is printed on.

Mr. McKinley is still daily wrestling with the office seekers, but he isn't making many appointments and the few that he is making are unsatisfactory to the rank and file. He has sprung a new dodge on the Senators and Representatives. When he gets ready to make a personal appointment he lets the Senators and Representatives from the same state know his intention, thus giving them the opportunity to save their prestige by adding their endorsement. It may be imagined that this sort of thing isn't pleasant to the Senators and Representatives, but they are afraid to kick at this stage of the games.

Representative "Champ" Clark, of Mo., made a semi-humorous speech on the tariff bill, just before the gag rule under which it was forced through the House stopped all talk, which contained some very serious ideas. For instance, he said: "If this is not a sectional bill, how does it happen that the Western farmers find their green hides not only on the fence, but on the free list, while the New England shoe manufacturer has a high tariff on his finished products? How does it happen that the cotton growers find their products on the free list while the cotton manufacturers have theirs on the protected list? I will tell you why. It was stated with brutal frankness by the gentleman from Indiana, the other day, that the Southern and Western people would have to vote the republican ticket or what is equivalent to that, vote for a high tariff, or else be debarred from the benefits of your tariff legislation." Mr. Clark's concluding words were: "We may be tools and leather-heads and all that sort of thing, but I tell you, gentlemen, the people living west of the Alleghany Mountains and south of the Potomac have got sense enough to know when they are sand-bagged and held up; and fools as we are, we have some rights that the New England highwayman ought to respect."

KEEL ON TRIAL.
To David Crandall, snatched David's gun from him and shot him down. After David fell I walked up close to him and said to Butler that I would go to Mr. Johnson's for a cart to carry David home. Keel was standing near when I left but was gone when I got back. Keel was three or four steps from Crandall when he shot him. He stepped back after taking the gun from Crandall. Crandall was carrying gun under his arm. Keel took gun by the stock. I saw knife Keel had, (one was shown) it is like that.

Cross examination—I was not examined at Magistrate's trial, was examined before Coroner, do not remember testimony I gave before Coroner, had not got over my excitement from the killing. I am no relation to Crandall. I was indicted about fifteen years ago for indecent exposure of person on public road and convicted. Was whipped about it previously. I have not told any one that Keel shot Crandall accidentally.

Dr. E. A. Moyer—I was special coroner to hold inquest over the body of David Crandall. Found wound on right breast about size of a dollar. Shot had not scattered, gun must have been held at right angle with body and the load entered horizontally. The wound was sufficient to cause death.

Cross examination—a gun within a foot of body will not produce as deep a wound as if further off. I think in this instance the gun was more than a foot off. William Crandall testified before me that Keel shot Crandall with Keel's gun. Warren testified that Keel snatched Crandall's gun and shot Crandall with it.

John Gurganus—I stopped to see R. L. Butler this morning. He is sick in bed, bad off, and is not able to attend this trial.

J. A. Lang—I am the Justice of the Peace who tried this case at preliminary hearing. (Testimony given by Butler was shown and identified, and was read as evidence. The substance of this testimony was that as they were going along Keel proposed to wrestle with Butler. But he declined, telling Keel he (Keel) would get mad. Keel took hold of Butler and Butler threw him. Keel was mad when he got up and commenced cutting at Butler, then got gun and fired at him. Butler knocked gun up. Keel then snatched gun from David Crandall and shot Crandall.

Here the State rested and court adjourned to Saturday A. M.

When court met this morning counsel for the defense were not ready to proceed with their testimony and Judge Robinson ordered a recess of an hour to allow them time for further consultation. At 10 o'clock the trial was resumed.

The defense first put on Stanley Warren, who had been introduced for the State. Witness said he had not told J. R. Mobley and others that the killing was purely accidental.

James S. Wynne—I live in Martin county about 2 miles from Pitt line. I was with the parties on the hunt Christmas morning. (He named the parties who were present) I started with them from Keel's house. All drank egg nog and ate breakfast at Keel's. When down near Sheppard's, Butler and Keel had a wrestle. Keel threw Butler first and Butler cursed and struck at him. Keel took a gun from Willis Crandall and David Crandall caught hold of the muzzle of it. They tussled over the gun and it fired off and David Crandall was killed. Keel held gun by stock. I was badly excited. I never heard any words pass. I left at once. Willis Crandall left before me and I overtook him on the road. Keel cried after he had killed Crandall. I stopped to wait for Keel and he overtook me. Stanley Warren was there when I left. On Monday following Warren and John Gurganus met me in road and tried to get me to go to Butler's with them. They told me if I did not tell them where Keel was and where Butler's gun was they would have me indicted. Butler had lost his gun and they accused me of stealing it.

Cross examined—I am related to Keel. I never went to see Butler, have not seen him since the trouble. It was Gurganus who made the threats, Warren made none. I never saw Keel try to shoot Butler, only one gun was fired there. I never saw Keel strike or cut at Butler. I left as soon as the gun fired. I told Gurganus afterward that Butler threw Keel and that Keel cut at him. I told this because I was frightened. I never saw Keel after the day of killing until he was here in jail. I talked with him in jail.

Dr. E. A. Moyer—He read evidence given in by Butler before Coroner's inquest, also the evidence of Stanley Warren.

Never Forgave His Daughter,
James Martin, a well-to-do farmer residing near Lebanon, Ind., recently died, leaving a will by which he disinherited his only daughter, the result of a disagreement about a valentine fifty years ago. It was a few days before St. Valentine's day fifty years ago when the daughter asked her father for a new dress. He refused to buy it for her. The girl took her father's refusal much to heart. On St. Valentine's day Mr. Martin received a valentine addressed in his daughter's handwriting.

It was a rough caricature representing a miser counting and gloating over his money. He at once took his daughter to task for what he considered an insult. She denied that she sent the cartoon. There lived in the neighborhood another farmer who had treated a niece living with him brutally. Martin's daughter said that she and this girl had each purchased a valentine, and that she (Miss Martin) had bought one entitled "The Honest Farmer," while the other girl had purchased the caricature to send to her harsh uncle. In addressing the envelopes the valentines, she said, became mixed.

But, in spite of explanations, Mr. Martin would not believe his daughter and from that day he never spoke to her. She soon married, and lived on a farm adjoining, and although the old man was on the most intimate terms with the husband and children, he never noticed her. He died the other day, leaving an estate valued at $45,000. By his will he left the widow $30,000 and to his son-in-law the remainder, provided he survived his wife, the farmer's own daughter. If the son-in-law died first, then the money was to be divided among his three children. To his daughter Mr. Martin "bequeathed a package to be found in his trunk, tied with a green ribbon and sealed with green wax." When this was opened it was found to be the unfortunate valentine that had caused the estrangement of the farmer from his daughter half a century ago.

"Polk Miller is the humorist the country has been looking for. I know of no one who can more aptly depict the real negro character or more faithfully render the true negro dialect. There is a live 'nigger' hidden somewhere in Polk Miller's Banjo and you look for him to jump out and go to dancing when Miller strikes a string."—Joel Chandler Harris, "Uncle Remus," Etc.

Polk Miller will appear in Greenville Friday, April 9th, at the Court House. Reserved seats 35 cents on sale at Wooten's drug store and at the door.

Our New Summer DRESS - GOODS.

Novelty. Variety. Values.

This Spring we were prompted to lay in a line of Summer Dress Goods surpassing in magnitude, beauty and value any we ever bought before. Our foresight in buying while materials were low in price and while manufacturing was dull, gave us the goods at prices much less than value.

We are able to offer new stylish, desirable summer goods at prices not to be equaled. We have provided such materials that may be worn with comfort not only in the spring, but throughout the entire summer, and the styles and general character of these materials excel anything heretofore displayed, and the prices are exceedingly low
