THAT

TAILORS CAN GIVE THEM

They don't cost too much. They are ready to put on without a wrinkle. You have seen the browns, olives, green mixtures, plaids--the swell colorings of the of the season--we've got them here plenty as pie at a fair. We show the best.

OAKLEY ITEMS.

OAKLEY, N. C., June 14th, 1897.

Miss Jones, of Jamesville, is visiting Miss Mary Whitehurst.

Miss Mollie Williams and her sister, Miss Matilda, of Mildred, N. C., are spending sometime with their uncle, W. H. Williams.

We are glad to see our old friend, W. H. Williams, out again after his serious illness of last week.

Quite a number of our people attended the quarterly meeting at Briery Swamp, yesterday. They report quite a pleasant time.

The farmers of this section are pretty well up with their work.

BETHEL ITEMS.

BETHEL, N. C., June 14, '97.

Mrs. Bertha Hammond, of Conetoe, is visiting her sister Mrs. D. S. Harper.

Mrs. W. N. M. Hammond is visiting her parents at Greenville.

James I. Barnhill, of Tarboro, formerly of Bethel, spent Saturday night here.

G. W. Blount, of Williamston, spent Wednesday night and Thursday here.

J. R. Bell, of Mount Olive, was here Thursday.

Mrs. Levi Harris and daughter, of Mildred, who spent last week here, returned home Sunday.

Rev. B. B. Culbreth attended the commencement at Trinity college last week. He returned home Thursday accompanied by his son Marion.

Doctors R. J. Grimes and J. D. Bullock attended the meeting of the State Medical Society at Morehead City last week.

It was our pleasure with many other Bethelites to attend the closing exercises of Corey's High school at Grindool last Friday. The first feature was the opening song, about 3:30 P. M. after which B. M. Whitehurst in a few eloquent remarks introduced L. I. Moore, of Greenville who entertained the large audience for nearly an hour with an eloquent address. Immediately after the address there were some recitations by several young ladies. Adjournment was then had until night. The exercises were resumed at 8 P. M. consisting of songs, dialogues, &c. The entire program was very interesting and highly entertaining to the large crowd present. Prof. Corey is a young man of fine promise. This was his first session at Grindool and he made a fine impression as a teacher.

Killing Martins.

There was considerable shooting around the Court House about dark Monday evening. It was at the martin's chat roost about the front of the building, and many of them were killed.

When the World Will be Full.

When will the earth have all the people upon it that it can accommodate?

Well, according to Mr. Ravenstein, a well known statistician, who has estimated the matter, whereas the total population of the earth is now a little less than one billion five hundred millions, there is room on the earth for nearly six billion of inhabitants.

That is to say when the space on the earth available for the support of human beings is fully occupied it will be found capable of maintaining four and a half billions more of people than it now contains, or four times as many people as there are now in the world.

This seems at first glance to be very encouraging. But Mr. Ravenstein says it is not, because the human race is increasing in these days of civilization, peace and security, so much faster than it ever increased before, that the world will be full in a little over 180 years.—Ex.

Shirked the Trouble.

An amusing view of matrimony is that presented in a story told of two Scotchmen.

A country laird at his death left his property in equal shares to his two sons, who continued to live most contentedly together for many years. At last, however, one of them said to the other:

"Tam, we're getting to be auld men; you take a wife, and when I die you'll get my share o' the land."

"Na, na, Jeems," said the other, "you're the youngest and the maist lively; you take a wife, and when I die you'll get my share, mon."

"That's always the way wi' you, Tam," said the first brother, "when there's any fash or trouble I must take it all; you'll do naething."

Dry in Kansas.

Here is a drought story told by a traveling man: I was driving across the country to a little town in Western Kansas the other day when I met a farmer hauling a wagon load of water.

"Where do you get water?" said I.

"Up the road about seven miles," he replied.

"And you haul water seven miles for your family and stock?"

"Yep."

"Why in the name of sense don't you dig a well?"

"Because it's jest as far one way as the other, stranger."—Kansas City Journal.

The Firemen.

Hope Fire Company had a large meeting Monday night, about 25 members being present. A. J. Griffin, having been appointed by the Town Council as Chief of the fire department, tendered his resignation as second assistant Foreman and H. C. Hooker was elected in his stead.

TUESDAY, JUNE 15, 1897.

HENRY WYATT.

North Carolinians have long been proud to remember with honor Henry Wyatt, of Company A, First North Carolina Regiment, and to recall that through him North Carolina shed the first blood on the battle fields of Virginia, June 10, 1861. Now comes an intimation that he was not a native of North Carolina. Will some one tell the truth about it? Perhaps at this day the truth can be found only in Edgecombe, the county in which he enlisted.—The Charlotte Observer.

This question was discussed by several correspondents of ours some years ago. Our recollection is that it was shown that young Wyatt was a North Carolinian by birth, but had lived in Richmond several years. He was in North Carolina when the war broke out and there enlisted.

We believe Wyatt was not the first Confederate soldier killed by the Federal troops in Virginia; but we think it has been established that he was first soldier killed, in this State in line of battle. He had near relatives and many dear friends in Richmond, and his body is buried in Holly wood Cemetery here.

We write from memory—not a safe thing to do where a historical point is involved, but we venture to do it, rather than search our files for many years past.—Richmond Dispatch.

Perhaps the REFLECTOR can give these brethren some light upon this question, not of its own knowledge but from people familiar with the circumstances.

Henry Wyatt was not a native of North Carolina, but was born in the city of Richmond, Va. His father, John Wyatt, came to Greenville from Richmond some years before the war, and engaged work at the coach shops of James Nelson, then located on the corner of Pitt and Third streets. Finding that he could get permanent work he sent back to Richmond after his son Henry, then a little boy about 4 years old. The two went to live with a woman known as Miss Cloudy who had a house on Pitt street about 100 yards south of Fifth street, the place now owned by Daniel Foreman's children.

Henry Wyatt grew up in Greenville, and was nearly grown when the war came on. When companies were being organized here he wanted to join one of them but his father objected because of his age. Young Wyatt then ran away and went to Tarboro where he joined a company.

This is the history of Henry Wyatt as told us by people who knew him well. His father died at the Pitt county poor house some years ago.

A new way to pay old church debts has been developed in New Orleans. It is novel, modern and ought to do the business. Ten churches of the colored brethren have placed the financial obligations in the hands of a regularly organized corporation called "The Church Debt Liquidating Company," and this company will undertake to pay up all the debts of its patrons by means of entertainments and "other sources."

House as Wide as His Baby.

Joseph Richardson, an eccentric millionaire, died here today. He made his fortune in railroad building and was closely associated with the Vanderbilts and Goulds. He constructed large sections of the Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain and Mexican Central Railroads. He came as a poor boy from England. Mr. Richardson's fortune has been estimated at $20,000,000.

He dressed more like a tramp than a wealthy man and lived and died in a stone house which was only five feet wide and three stories high. It was built because the surrounding property owners refused to meet Richardson's terms for the narrow lot. He afterwards refused fabulous sums for the little piece of ground on which his house stood, amid the tall buildings on the best part of Lexington avenue.

He will be buried in a coffin he selected 32 years ago. It is composed of one-inch plank. His greatest boast was, "I am a workman. I want no fuss either in life or death. I die, if my coffin is too large, fill in the empty space with sawdust.—New York Dispatch.

A Household Necessity.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the most wonderful medical discovery of the age, pleasant and refreshing to the taste, acts gently and positively on kidneys, liver and bowels, cleansing the entire system, dispel colds, cures headache, fever, habitual constipation and biliousness. Please buy and try a box of C. C. C pay 10, 25, 50 cents. Sold and guaranteed to cure by all druggists.

Trinity Has a Future.

Dr. Kilgore, in speaking of the things accomplished at Trinity during the year, yesterday, among other things, spoke of the increasing prosperity of Trinity College and her bright outlook for the future. He stated that during the past year gifts to the amount of $140,000 have been donated to Trinity College, the most notable of which, of course, was the gift of $100,000 from Mr. Washington Duke, with the condition that the doors of Trinity be thrown open to women, entitling them to all the privileges and advantages enjoyed by the young men.

He referred to the fact that the trustees have complied with this condition and that now Trinity College stands in every sense a co-educational institution of learning, ready to give young women all that it gives young men.—Winston Journal.

Writing the Editor.

In conversation recently with the editor of one of the English magazines Mr. Munsey learned that it is the custom with the English people to keep themselves in close touch with the publications they subscribe to. That is to say, they write to the publisher with a frequency and frankness that the American public never dreams of. These letters from readers expressing their opinions of the various departments and articles—commenting on stories and verse, on authors and artists—furnish suggestions to the editor that enable him to interpret the public taste more accurately than it is possible for him to do without them.—Boston Globe.

It is said of a Hartford City (Ind.) man that the only present he ever made to his wife was on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, when he gave her four yards of cotton cloth with which to make him a shirt.

Bit Off a Snake's Head and Chewed It.

A gentleman from Vance township was in our office a few days ago and related the following remarkable bit of news. A little grandchild of Mr. Hugh Helms, who lives in Mecklenburg county, not far from the Union county line, pulled up and onion a few days ago, and bit off the head and a small portion of the stem. The child's grandmother, discovered blood in its mouth, made examination, and to her horror found that the child had bitten off a small snake's head and was chewing it with the onion. The stem of the onion was very large and hollow and had been broken off some distance from the top and the snake had crawled into the hollow of the stem.—Monroe Enquirer.

Snatches Back His Crown.

Ingalls is now a journalist. As I looked at him I recalled what a great French writer said of the journalist; "Whoever has been a newspaper man will ever be one; that horoscope is as sure and certain as that of drunkards. Whoever has tasted that feverish busy and relatively lazy and independent life; whoever has exercised that sovereignty which criticises intellect, art, talent, fame, virtue, absurdity, and even truth: whoever has occupied that tribune erected by his own hands, fulfilled the functions of that magistracy to which he is self-appointed—in short.—Savoyard in Courier-Journal.

A Plague of Cats.

Some town between this and Wilmington has been playing Lincolnton a dirty trick. On numerous occasions recently when box cars on the Carolina Central were opened here numbers of cats jumped out, until that part of the town in the neighborhood of the station has been over-run and deviled to death by them.

The rat supply having proven inadequate the young chickens are now being killed and eaten by the stray cats. These cats are evidently the surplus gathered up and shipped off from other towns.—Lincoln Journal.

Just try a 10c box of cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

Husband and Wife, Both Drummers' Travel Together.

There was a traveling man and his wife in town today. The gentleman traveled for one house and his wife for another. They carried lines that do not conflict and travel together all the time. The lady sells infant's shoes, but the reporter was unable to learn what line her husband carries.

This is something new in the traveling line, and does away with the time worn excuse of the unmarried drummer who puts his best girl off because he is not able leave the road, and could not bear to leave his wife if he had one.—Winston Journal.

One Man's Views.

A newspaper likes to be quoted, not because of the publicity, but because it is an evidence that its editor has been able to say something worthy of the consideration of the public. Next to this is the pleasure of seeing yourself quoted without credit being given. This is an evidence that you have been able to say something worth stealing, and it is the highest form of compliment that one newspaper man can pay to another.—York (Neb.) Republican.

When bilious or constive, eat a Cascar, candy cathartic, cure constipation.

Judge Parker of the Lexington, Ky., Circuit, holds that a newspaper has the right to publish matter that is really libelous, provided its publisher can show that he had reasonable grounds for believing his information was correct and came from an absolutely truthful source. Under this ruling recovery of damages for libel will be next to impossible.—Press and Printer.

Diving For a Wife.

In many of the Greek islands diving for sponges forms a considerable part of the occupation of the inhabitants. A visitor to this unfrequented region describes the following rather startling custom. He says: "Himnia, which is a little island directly opposite Rhodes, is worthy of notice on account of the singular method by which the Greek inhabitants of the island get their living. On the bottom of the sea in this locality the common sponge is found in greater abundance than in any other part of the Mediterranean.

"The natives make it a trade to gather these, and their income from this source is far from contemptible. Their goods are always in demand among the Turks, who use an incredible number of sponges in the ablutions prescribed by the Mohammedan ritual. A girl in this island is not permitted to marry until she has brought up a certain number of sponges and given a proof of her skill by taking them from a certain depth. But in certain of the islands this custom is reversed. The father of a marriageable daughter bestows her on the best diver among her suitors. He who can stay longest in the water and bring up the biggest cargo of sponges marries the maid."—Boston Post.

With the temperature in the nineties its a lazy man who will not walk over to the shady side of the street.

W. R. Parker throws cold talk at you today in what he has to say about ice. You are interested in his kind of talk.

The amateur yachtsman who goes out sailing should bear in mind that there are a good many points to learn about tacking.

You should always keep a careful eye on the advertising columns of the REFLECTOR. There are frequent changes in the ads that it will pay you to keep up with.

Ask any of my customers and they will tell you the work done by Wilmington Steam Laundry is unsurpassed. Next shipment goes forward Wednesday morning, returns promptly Saturday evening.

C. B. WHIGHARD, Agent.

Same Here.

Our 'phone bell rang this morning and on answering found we were talking to the REFLECTOR office, Greenville. Mr. William Burch, the popular foreman of the REFLECTOR greeted us, although 25 miles distant. The REFLECTOR and its popular editor and foreman have our best wishes. Our esteemed contemporary is always a welcome visitor to our sanctum.—Washington Messenger.

JUNE SWEETS.

No Sour Ones Named in This List.

H. D. Sheppard left this morning.

R. L. Davis, of Farmville, was here today.

The woman lawyer is a fee male.

The ball player who hits too many balls at night hits the least the next day.

Green is the latest colors in shoes. It won't do for wearers of them to be sticking their feet at cows.

That was a jolly party which left for Morehead today and Capt. White was about the spryest looking young fellow among them.

Two Days Orders.

Talking about job work, the REFLECTOR office has booked twenty-five jobs yesterday and today, representing in amount about $85. Perhaps this does not argue that people know where to get their job printing.

Their Tune is Changed.

"The gold democrats," says The Washington Post, "are slipping back into the party in large numbers, and they are not saying a word about the value of the metal in a silver dollar." Yes; a great many of these gold democrats were deceived into believing that fair prices and good wages mean "unsound" currency, but they are now waking up to the fact that sound prices and prosperity are much more important to the people than dear money.—Atlanta Constitution.

IT'S SUMMER NOW.

The weather tells you that, and I want to tell you my Ice House is ready to turnish you with the wherewithal to keep cool. Car load of ice just in and I will have a full supply at all times.
