MUNFORD

REV. J. L. WINFIELD DEAD.

He Passes Away Tuesday

The REFLECTOR regrets exceedingly to hear of the death of Rev. J. L. Winfield, which occurred at his home in Washington on Tuesday. Mr. Winfield was one of the most prominent ministers of the Christian church in this State and was editor of the Watch Tower, the organ of his denomination. He was held in high esteem by his church and among the people, and his death will prove a loss. This writer knew Mr. Winfield well, having had intimate business relations with him during the three years that he had the mechanical work of the Watch Tower done in the REFLECTOR office, prior to his last moving to Washington. He was always prompt in his dealings, exceedingly pleasant and courteous in his manner, and was a true, warm hearted friend.

JUST FOR FUN.

The dumb but succulent clam is taking a much needed rest.

There is some talk of mounting the college football teams on bicycles.

You may go to Klondike or stay home. In either case you may take your pick.

A downtown man can't help being profane every time he mentions his name. It is Hugo Tell.

Hobson—"Our choir has a new member. He's a dry goods clerk." Wigwag—"A counter tenor, I suppose."

"That's the handsomest bureau I ever laid my eyes on," remarked the old maid as she carefully put aside her glass optic before retiring.

"There's something about that girl of mine that I don't like," said the young man when he saw another fellow's arm around her waist.

Nell—"He called me a peach." Belle—"Yes, and afterwards he asked me if I had noticed what miserable things this year's peaches were."

He—"I understand Scribbler has made a big hit with his novel. I didn't know he was clever." She—"He isn't clever, he's shrewd. His character don't talk about anything but bicycles."

The Butt End of a Goat

A prominent Odd Fellow went home from lodge Tuesday night, wearing a black eye. The only explanation his wife could get was that he was helping to hold the goat for a preacher to ride and the goat butted him.

HON. E. W. TIMBERLAKE.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:—The people of Pitt county are highly pleased at the dignified bearing and courteous, firm and decided manner in which Judge Timberlake has dispensed justice since the present session of the court began.

It is the universal opinion of all who have come under the court observation that he is a fitting and highly proper man for the place he so eminently fills. Not having been a politician before he came upon the bench—he has many of the highest qualifications that go to make up and adorn the judicial ermine. No Judge has ever been upon the bench in Pitt county that will go away carrying more of the genuine good will of the people than will he, and no Judge has ever done more business in a more pleasant, easy, dignified and satisfactory manner, than has been done by him at the present term. Justice, mercy, dignity and kindness has characterized his administration of the law. It has been the pleasure of the writer to hear many, very many expressions of his splendid manner and uprightness as a Judge and a high toned, honorable gentleman. The State and the district have just cause to feel proud of him as an officer who sits upon the rights, liberties and lives of her citizens, and the people of Pitt county rejoice that he will return again in December to try the crowded civil docket that confronts him, and which is a menace to litigation and the adjustment of the rights of the people. All say he is a splendid Judge.

The Autumnal Textiles are in radiant profusion on our counters. No store in the South ever exhibited so much exclusiveness and elegance. There are gorgeous groups of stuffs from Paris, Vienna, Picardy, Roubaix, Glouchau, Gera, Bradford, Leeds, Glasgow and other famous trans-Atlantic manufacturing cities. We selected the best that the makers of France, Germany, Austria, England and Scotland have produced, and you are invited to examine them while they are yet in their exquisite state of freshness and beauty. There are multitudes of plain makes in mono-colors, and an aggregation of fancy effects in multi-colors showing designs and combinations that are too kaleidoscopic for any advertising pen to describe. Price is no object with us.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1897.

The price of cotton is very discouraging to the farmers, especially in the face of a small crop. The staple is now lower by fully a cent in the pound than it was a year ago. This goes to show that there is nothing in a Republican administration favorable to the people of the South. Just now we are having to pay nearly double price for flour and get a much lower price for cotton. All the promises made by the Republicans when campaigning stand for nought, and nothing is heard now of the 13 cents for cotton that a North Carolina Congressman was reported two campaigns ago as saying the people would get when he and his crowd got in.

McKinley says the dissatisfaction in the South at the appointment of negro postmasters will not prevent him appointing more when competent ones can be found. There are negroes in the north and west fully as competent as in the South, and the fact that negroes are appointed to federal office only in the South shows that it is intended to humiliate the white people of the South.—Kinston Free Press.

Lincoln, Nebraska, trots out the cheekiest embezzler on record. He was formerly Republican State Auditor, and got away with $280,328 of the State's money. He admits taking the money, but insists that it should have been paid to the State Treasurer instead of to him, and that it is a matter he has to settle with the insurance companies who paid the fees embezzled, and not with the State. They paid the money to the wrong man. They certainly did pay it to the wrong man.—Wilmington Star.

The country newspaper man's real friends are those who pay every year. His best friends are those who pay at the beginning of each subscription year; or, if that is inconvenient, when the time of receiving it is half out; or, if any are unfortunate and have not the money then, before the year closes. The city newspaper's friends are all real, for the publisher thereof will send no papers unless he gets his pay in advance. That's the difference between having friends who will trust you; and confidence should not be abused.—Press and Printer.

The Pittsburg Times estimates that the strike in that district has involved a loss to the miners during the eight weeks of its continuance of $2,500,000, and that altogether it has cost the people of the Pittsburg district—coal miners, operators and the whole commercial world interested—not less than $5,000,000 to $7,000,000. It is too soon to fully measure the cost of the strike in the middle coal field, though its terrible cost in human life has been very nearly summed up; but if to the loss of wages be added the trade losses, the destruction of property and the pay of the deputies and militia it will be seen that the total cost of mining strikes in this State since mid-summer will foot up the proportions of a great catastrophe. Viewing the question in a purely economic sense the query arises: Can the State do nothing to cut down this great waste? Are there no better remedies for industrial wars than contests of endurance? If there be, why not preferably spend a part of the millions now wasted in a test of methods more in consonance with the laws of civilization and humanity?—Philadelphia Record.

Otho Will a Tale Unfold.

Winston, Sept. 27.—S. Otho Wilson, of the North Carolina railroad commission, who was turned down by Gov. Russell a few days ago, came here today and made a contract with Stewart Bros. to publish his paper, "The Hayseeder," which will be revived next week. The editorial office will be in Raleigh. Mr. Wilson says his paper will be red hot. He claims to know a great deal about the status of affairs in the political arena of North Carolina, and he proposes now that the dear people shall have the benefit of it. He says that one of the first duties he will perform with the columns of the "Hayseeder" will be to kill Senator Butler with the charges that have been made against him (Butler) by Governor Russell, and also to kill Gov. Russell with the charges made against him (Russell) by Senator Butler. All this red hot "shot and shell" which Mr. Wilson has stored away for his arch allied enemies' destruction is composed of things told him by Russell and Butler before they became such affectionate political bed-fellows.—Charlotte Observer.

Damage to Kentucky Tobacco

Cincinnati, Sept. 25.—A special to the Commercial Tribune, from Louisville, Ky., says: The extent of the damage caused to the tobacco crop in Kentucky by frost is greater than was at first supposed. In the weekly review of the leaf tobacco market which the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Association has just issued an estimate of the burley crop is made. This review is prepared by Mr. Henry Glover, president of the association, a trade authority whose responsibility is universally recognized. Mr. Glover also mentions, in a general way, the damage by frost. He puts the burley crop at only 50 per cent. of last year's crop, which was very much below the average. He estimates that only 30 per cent. of the crop was uncut Monday, and that one-third of this was more or less frosted. Some of this was killed and some was only blackened. Tobacco in the low grounds was generally killed, but on the uplands it was unharmed. The lowland tobacco was the best of the crop. Some warehouse men think 40 per cent. of the crop was uncut when the frost came.

SNAP SHOTS.

A man with an alcohol-tinted nose seldom deserts his colors.

It's the biggest kind of an insult to offer a small sum of money as a bribe.

The Klondike liar isn't confining his efforts to describing gold discoveries.

Times never get so good that the fellow who doesn't intend to work can find a steady job.

Science has done much to lessen the percentage of death from yellow fever, by improved methods of treatment, but it has not been able to lessen the fright in the vicinity of a case of the disease.

The Connecticut widow who wept for four years on the grave of another man, believing it that of her dead husband, is probably quite disgusted enough to entertain a proposal of marriage from the right man.

Most Too Scary of Burglars

Asheville, Sept. 25.—Last night, Mrs. McMinn, living on Vance street, feeling ill, arose and started through the hallway for some object, when her brother, Fred Johnson, hearing the noise and supposing that it was a burglar, opened the door to his room and fired into the hall. The bullet struck Mrs. McMinn in the mouth, knocking out several teeth, and ranging downward, lodged. The wound is not considered dangerous.—Charlotte Observer.

Society the Best Teacher of Etiquette

The best book of etiquette is that great one, the best society. If you feel awkward or uncertain watch those people whose manners show that they are conversant with all that is best. In imitating them you will not be apt to make mistakes. The average American girl is quick at recognizing her mistakes and seldom repeats one after she realizes her error. She is kind of heart and sympathetic, and because of her quick wit and these two virtues she will always be a gentlewoman in the best sense of the word.—October Ladies' Home Journal.

No Pay Dirt There

A very ragged and very unwholesome looking tramp stopped at the back door of a small house in Avondale, and addressing himself to the housewife who appeared in response to his knock he said: "Madam, perhaps you have heard of the great gold strike on the Klondike river?"

"I don't believe I have. Only strike I've heard of is the one about coal."

"You don't know, then, madam, that the gold fairly sticks to one's clothes, and it can be taken out with a curry comb?"

"I don't believe any such thing." "Nevertheless, it is quite true. A man who lies down to sleep on the round wakes in the morning with chunks of gold stuck to his coat like burrs."

The woman looked at him very coldly.

"Yes, ma'am. I suppose that these clothes of mine, if assayed properly, would yield about $12,000."

The women remained silent.

"But what madam, is gold to me—little dabs of it like that? I have made my pile up there and am independent. I don't need to bother about such little things. What I was going to say is that, feeling a large sympathy for striving folks, I would be willing to trade you this coat and these trousers for your husband's Sunday suit, allowing you the benefit of whatever ore you find in assaying."—The Chicago Record.

He Wanted to Be Exclusive

The patent official bowed politely from his place at his desk as the visitor in clothes of clerical cut and a smooth face greeted him with a subdued "good morning, sir."

"Good morning," responded the official with a cheerful, hundred and fifty dollar a month manner. "Is there anything we can do for you this morning?"

"I don't know, really, sir," crooned
the caller softly. "To know if you can, is the object of my visit this morning, sir."

"Very well, state your case, and if we can do anything for you, you may rest assured it will be done."

The visitor cleared his throat pretty much as if he were going to deliver a sermon.

"I think," he said slowly and with hesitation, "if I mistake not, that I saw a statement in some one of the public prints to the effect that this office would not issue a patent on Sunday. Is that true, sir?"

"Quite true. It does not."

"Why is that, sir, if I may ask?"

"It is against the rules of the office
as all I know."

"Will it issue one on any other day
of the seven, sir?"

"Certainly it will. That is what it is here for."

"Oh, thank you, how nice!" twittered the visitor, taking a large madras handkerchief from his coat-tail pocket, shaking it out and wiping his brow
with it. "That being the case, if you will be kind enough to let me have one on Tuesday, sir, you will do me a great personal favor. You see, sir, Tuesday is my birthday, and I want a patent on it so no one can use it for birthday purposes, sir, except myself."

STATE NEWS.

There were fifty-five applicants before the Supreme Court on Monday for license to practice law. Every one of the class passed without a single failure among them.

Two of the inmates of the Soldiers' Home had a quarrel and a fight a day or two ago. One struck the other and nearly broke his arm with a stick. Both were immediately dismissed.

Several Mecklenburg county farmers are holding their cotton in the seed and say they will not have it ginned until the price is better.

In the Wake county chaingang there are now forty-two men. Last Sunday the request was made that all who had been accustomed to gamble stand up. Thirty-eight stood up. Forty said they were habitual drinkers.

Fire at Hines Bros' Mills

At a few minutes to 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the fuel room of Hines Bros' Lumber Mills was discovered in a bright blaze. It is not known how it caught. This room is constructed of brick and iron, and inside was a seething mass of flames of the sawdust and chips. The splendid fire department of the finely equipped mills saved the day. In a few minutes three large streams of water were being thrown on the fire from the large donkey pump on the premises. It was a terrible fire but was under control within fifteen minutes and was put out in half an hour. The damage is very slight.—Kinston Free Press.

A New Definition.

A little Georgia school girl was asked for a composition on "The Confederate Veteran." A few days thereafter she handed in the following:

"The Confederate Veteran is one that fought and bled and died for his country. He is sometimes on one leg and sometimes on two. The State builds a home and sells the home before he can get in it. My pa says he is a veteran. He was wounded by having a leg sawed off in a confederate saw mill while making coffins to bury soldiers in. The state don't help my pa much, and he says damn the state."—Augusta Chronicle.

Died

Robert Wilson, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ricks, aged 6 months and 11 days, died at 9 o'clock this morning at their home in South Greenville. It was their only child and our people sympathize with the bereaved parents in the sorrow that has visited their home. May they receive comfort from Him who said "Suffer little children to come unto me."

The burial takes place Thursday morning at the Taft grove 7 miles east of town, services being held at the residence about 8 o'clock, just before leaving for the country with the remains.
