ROBINSON—FRANKLIN.

The Coming of the Grandest Show on Earth

Every one is on the "qui vive" over the fact that the great Robinson and Franklin Bros.' Shows are coming to Greenville, Wednesday, October 27th.

This biggest of all big shows has everywhere met with the most enthusiastic reception, and the press do not hesitate in proclaiming, it the most wonderful exhibition ever seen under canvas. In point of novelty or in the number of features, no other amusement enterprise can even approach it. It requires four massive trains of especially constructed cars to transport it from town to town, four of the most thoroughly equipped and handsomely decorated advertising cars ever built or brought into service to herald its coming and more than one thousand people employed, besides three hundred of the finest horses owned by any amusement institution. There are three rings, two elevated stages and a quarter mile hippodrome track all going at one time during the performance. The zoological display contains more rare wild beasts than any other two shows, and the largest water proof tents ever constructed are required to properly give this massive entertainment and accommodate the vast audiences which daily throng to see the many wonders contained in these shows that can be seen nowhere else on earth.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1897.

Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, is dead. He was 78 years old and the ablest editor of his day and generation. People abused him for his want of stability in politics, yet there was a strength and force about his writing that they could but admire. He made the Sun a great paper.

That is the way with monopoly. The Southern Tariff Association, that has most of the fire insurance companies united in a huge trust, tried to kill the Southern Stock Mutual Insurance Company, of Greensboro, by going into that city and cutting the rate 50 per cent. More than two hundred of the business men of Greensboro held a mass meeting and adopted strong resolutions pledging their support to the home company. Good for the Greensboro people! This action on the part of the Southern Tariff Association raises this question: If they can afford to mak a 50 per cent cut in rates in an effort to crush a company that will not join their trust, why can't they be made to reduce the robber rates they ordinarily charge? This is a matter the Legislature should take hold of. It looks like the State has just as much right to say what insurance rates shall be as to say what the rate for hauling passengers and freight shall be.

First Slaves Were White.
Down on the Hillsborough river, in Volusia county, Florida, there are the ruins of one of the oldest settlements in this country, and its history forms one of the most tragic episodes ever recorded in any place in the United States. The place is called New Smyrna, but there is nothing new or attractive about it except the orange trees, the palmettoes and green vines which nature distributes lavishly around. There is one class of people in the South who can never be induced to visit New Smyrna, and the very sound of the name makes them shrink and turn their heads aside in shame or anger.
In the streets of St. Augustine to day one occasionally catches a glimpse of a type of American beauty that fairly takes the breath away, and again he sees traces of that type in so many other places that he unhesitatingly attributes them all to the same source. There are only a few pure blooded Minorcan women left in this country, but the blood of these ancient slaves has mingled with that of our noble Southern families and perpetuated in a degree a beauty that is now rarely seen. What the Creole blood has done for so many women of New Orleans, the Minorcan blood has accomplished for the inhabitants of Florida. The wondrous eyes, the regular, classic features and the beautiful hair are all worthy of the Greek slave—their real ancestral prototype.

The story of the Florida Minorcans is interesting, dramatic, tragic. They were the first slaves brought to this country—and white slaves at that! They suffered the horrors of a slavery which was unregulated by law, and which would have made the scenes of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" commonplace. The existence of this white slave colony in the South was only nine years but in that length of time enough sorrow and misery were compressed to have filled a half a century.—Charlotte Observer.

About Well-Known People.
During the last twelve months the retiring lord mayor of London, Sir George Fandol Phillips, has raised $3,500,000 in charitable funds.
When Lord Wolsely starts upon a campaign, his luggage is always of the lightest, and consists of little more than a clean shirt and a toothbrush.
Benjamin Bissell, of Ballston Spa, N. Y., is entitled to the unique distinction of having voted for eighteen presidential candidates, not one of whom was elected.
At the recent gathering of Roger Williams's descendants in Providence, a movement was begun to raise a great monument to the founder of Rhode Island.

The London Echo gives a list of large landowners in Australia. One of them has 620,000 acres, another 1,200,000, a third 3,600,000, while the Union Bank owns no fewer than 7,800,000 acres.
The Prince of Wales does not take so much interest in his wardrobe as he did some years ago. He is still one of the best dressed men in the world, and his influence on men's fashions is as great as ever it was; but those who have charge of his wardrobe complain that he has lost his old enthusiasm on the subject of dress.
The world has lost sight of ex-U.S. Senator Jones, of Florida, until the announcement came a day or two ago that he had just died in an insane asylum in Detroit, Mich. He was at one time regarded as one of the ablest members of the Senate, but in 1885 became infatuated with a wealthy young woman of Detroit, became demented and followed her to that city, where he spent all the money he had in sending her costly bunches of flowers, without ever being able to see her. He lived at the lunch counter for some time, until he was finally sent to the asylum, where he died.—Wilmington Star.

Not So Heartless.
A sort of idea has long prevailed that showmen are altogether a rough, heartless and unfeeling set. A pretty little instance, which partly dispels this idea, occurred at Charlotte the other day, we are told, while the Robson-Franklin show was in that city.
A few years ago Keeper King was killed in Charlotte by the big elephant while the show was there. He was buried and a pretty monument was erected by the show people.
Being in Charlotte last week Mr. Robinson had the grave beautifully decorated with flowers, and standing around the tomb, the band played several appropriate selections.
A showman's life may be hard and a tough one, but the above shows that his heart is not always hard, and that he is capable of tender emotions.—Greensboro Telegram.

Mason's and Dixon's Line Vanishing.
Fraternal sentiments have largely taken the place of sectional prejudice and naturally as the result of this gratifying change our brethen of the north are beginning to appreciate more fully the extraordinary resources and possibilities of the South. With the utmost confidence in the general quality of her climate and the enriching fertility of her soil, the South extends a cordial invitation to restless and dissatisfied spirits in all sections to come into her midst and aid her in developing her marvelous resources.—Atlanta Constitution.
Some Raise Cotton.
The New York Tribune has a glowing editorial on "The Farmer's Good Fortune." The whole essay is about wheat. The Tribune should remember that all farmers are not wheat growers. Cotton is a pretty big agricultural item.—Augusta Chronicle.

10,000 Kisses in Ten Hours

The Monchener Nachrichten, of Berlin, records the experience of a young German who undertook to es tablish a kissing record. He gained his sweetheart's consent; the terms being that he should take 10,000 kiss es from her lips in ten hours, with a brief interval for refreshment every half hour. Umpires were appointed and the attempt to make the record began. The young man scored 2,000 kisses in the first hour, and 1,000 in the second. He had reached 750 in the third hour, when his lips were paralyzed and he became unconscious.

SUBSTANCE OR SHADOW.

The Telltale Mirror as Testimony In an Important Case at Law.

"What is and what is not testi mony," remarked the attorney who goes 20 miles out on the railroad ev ery evening to sleep, "is not always determined by Chitty, as I can testi fy after an experience I had not long ago. I was spending a week with a friend who keeps a moun tain resort in Virginia, and during my visit the room of one of the guests was robbed of jewelry amounting to $40 or $50. Several servants were suspected, but the theft could not be fixed upon any one of them until I happened upon the laundryman who came to get the linen of the guests on that floor, mine among the number. This man was thoroughly reliable and of some means, which he had saved during many years of work about the hotel.

"I was interested in the case, and when I mentioned it to my laundry man he looked surprised and asked if he could not have a private talk with me on the subject. He gave me such information that I felt safe in having a colored chambermaid ar rested for the theft, the prosecuting attorney, of course, taking the lead in the action. The girl denied steal ing the jewelry, but we stood ready to prove what we had charged and the case came promptly to trial be fore a magistrate.

"Our side did not have much show until I called the laundryman. He was duly sworn and testified that on the day of the stealing he had stop ped in front of the door of the room in which the theft was committed, thinking it was a room where he was to call for clothes. In getting close enough to see the number on the door, his attention in some way was attracted to the large transom over the door, which was set open at an angle reflecting the interior of the room. The transom was of one large pane of glass, with a piece of dark silk over the inside, making it to all intents and purposes a mirror.

"In this mirror he had distinctly seen the reflection of the figure of the prisoner, Mary French, whom he had known since her childhood.
She was standing at a bureau or dresser looking at and handling some jewelry which had been left there. After a few moments he saw her take in her hand a breastpin of gold and move away about her work in the room; at least he could hear her moving about sweeping, though he could no longer see her, as she had got where the glass did not re flect her. The laundryman's son, a lad of 16, testified to very nearly the same facts, as he had been standing by the side of his father.

"The pin thus described as having been taken was the pin which was lost, and the evidence seemed sure to convict, but the magistrate was very cautious. The laundryman tes tified further that he had not men tioned it because he had not heard of the robbery until I spoke of it and he had not cared to make any trouble at first because he supposed the girl might have been only going to put the pin in a safe place.

"This kind of testimony was, in my opinion, good enough to convict in any court, but his honor, the squire, looked wise and refused to admit it on the ground that the wit ness had not seen the prisoner take the pin nor had he seen the prison er at all. It was her reflection, and as he had not seen her and had so testified then, of course, not having seen her, his testimony as to what she had done during the time of her reflection was not competent, and he

This weather will probably cause the price of cotton to advance some.

NEW GOODS--Fresh Butter and Jamaica Oranges at S. M. Schultz.

The weather today put a damper on tobacco sales. Farmers could not bring it to market.

November 2nd to 6th the colored State fair will be held at Raleigh, John Marable and Ed. Latham, of Greenville are on the list of assistant marshals.

A Boy Run Over.

A few days ago a little five year old son of Mr. C. T. Savage went to run across the street at Grimesland, and someone riding by on horseback at the time ran over the little fellow. The boy was knocked down on his face and the horse stepped on his back. He was taken up and carried to a physician, but it could not be ascertained from first examination whether he had received any internal injury. It was a narrow escape from instant death for the little fellow.

Ship's Load of Cotton Ablaze

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 18.--The British steamship Mayfield, which put into this port with 7900 bales of cotton in her hold afire, two weeks since, was ready to sail today when it was discovered that the fire had broken out afresh and is still burning.

About the Monument.

Several persons have asked where will the Confederate Monument be placed? In order to settle that matter now and for all future time I will state that it will be erected on the Court House square as the most public place; where it will be seen by everybody when they come to town. We earnestly ask all those who are collecting or will aid in this cause to hasten the work as fast as they can as we want the amount raised at least by January 1st, 1898. There are some on the list of committee who have already raised more than ten dollars. We hope every one of the committee will do as well.

NO CURE--NO PAY.

That is the way all druggists sell GROVES TASTELESS CHILL TONIC for Chills, Fever and all forms of Malaria. It is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. Children love it. Adults prefer it to bitter, nauseating Tonics. Price, 50c.
