ORIGINAL OBSERVATIONS.

Made by the Orange, Va., Observer.

The spirit of the times is brandy smash.

A letter may be registered but it cannot vote.

It doesn't kill a law to execute it by any means.

Not all who know their minds know their own hearts.

It doesn't require the services of a carpenter to file a petition.

If you can't possibly do anything tomorrow, do it today.

How can a good natured lawyer conduct a cross-examination.

The man who has the most to say always uses the fewest words.

Never turn a blessing round to see whether it has a dark side to it.

Some people are comfortable only when they know others are not.

"Competition is the life of trade"—and the death of most of the traders.

A man must look up and be hopeful—especially when he is trying to drink from a jug.

There is something in the sharpened air that greets us at the dawn reminds us that winter's very near and to put our flannels on.

Before you swear to love but one look far and near, don't fear or faint, take them all out in a hot sun, and see if it will start the paint.

ONE OF PITT'S BEST CITIZENS DEAD.

Mr. John Carroll died very suddenly at his home near Hadjock's Cross Roads, at 3 o'clock Friday morning, Oct. 22nd. He leaves one son, Mr. Frank Carroll, and one daughter, Mrs. Josephus Cox.

Mr. Carroll was one of the very best citizens in the county, and especially in his neighborhood both white and colored will feel his death a great loss to them as he was alike a kind friend to all who came to him for help. It was his pleasure to do his part in helping those who needed help and in every case where true charity was demanded he gave liberally. When the summons came he was found ready and waiting to go to his reward. A FRIEND.

Will Have Holiday.

The white public school for this township was taught today so that the pupils can have holiday on Wednesday the day of the big circus. Schools and circuses don't get well together on the same day, for the boys always want to see the animals.

A Colored Man Dead.

John Ben Johnson, a well known colored man of this town, died Friday night. There was not a colored man here who had more friends among the white people than John Ben. He was an excellent nurse for the sick, and could make himself useful in many ways.

Back Home.

Engineer George Smith was back at his post on the passenger train this morning, and wore his usual best smile. He had rather run his engine than to attend court anytime. In fact the passenger train never looks complete without the two clever Georges—Smith and Hawks—in their respective positions. Better railroad men never pulled a throttle or punched a ticket.

Look Out for the Fakirs.

The circus will be here Wednesday and a word of warning about fakirs and skin games may not be out of place. Nearly all the circuses nowadays advertise that no sharpers are allowed to operate where their aggregations exhibit, and while this advertising may be done in good faith in some instances, the sharpers are nevertheless always on hand, setting pitfalls for the unwary. So the only thing to do is to keep a sharp lookout, keep your money in your pocket or leave it at home, and don't go to betting on another man's game.

The convention of the Christian church meets next week at Pantego.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct 22, '97.

The administration can scarcely conceal the satisfaction it feels at the knockout blow administered to Senator Wolcott's international bimetallic commission by England, but it is striving to hide it for several good and sufficient reasons. It knows that it is already under suspicions of having given England a tip, and, what is more important, it knows that the votes of Senator Wolcott and the other five Senators—Carter, Pritchard, Shoup, Warren and Clarke—who remained in the Republican party, when other silver Republicans led by Senator Teller abandoned it, solely because of their belief that this administration would be able to accomplish something for silver through some sort of an international agreement, will be needed when the attempt to jam an administration financial bill through the Senate is made this winter. It remains to be seen whether their votes can be had. None of these men are fools. Their attitude towards the administration financial bill will probably depend largely upon whether Senator Wolcott has been cured of his international bimetallic hallucinations by the rebuff given him by the British government, and whether he sees through the game that has been played upon him and his silver colleagues and their constituents. Not only must the administration get these votes but it must also get those of the gold Democrats—Caffery, Gray, Lindsay and Smith—and then get the bill to a vote in the Senate, in order to pass it. And, as though this outlook was not a source of sufficient worry to Mr. McKinley, Czar Reed's friends are dropping mysterious hints that he may not deem it wise to allow the House to pass any financial legislation at the coming session of Congress.

With all its numerous results England never fails to see that the interests of the humblest Englishman are protected in the most remote portion of the world. Knowing this, there is much interest felt in Washington in connection with what England will do about that correspondent of a London paper who starved to death in the streets of Havana, as a result of his having been robbed of everything he had, including his passport, and being unable to identify himself or communicate with friends at home and obtain assistance. There are portions of this story that seem incredible, but it an investigation shows its main points to be true, it is a good ten to one shot that England will speedily demand and get the fullest reparation from Spain.

There is an impression among prominent Democrats that Hon. Wm. R. Morrison will enter active politics again when his term as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission expires, and be a candidate for Congress from his old district, now represented by his old time political opponent, Jehu Baker. Mr. Morrison's many Democratic admirers would like to see him back in Congress, where he was once such a power.

Gamblers care nothing for men or political principles in an election; they bet their money to win, and the fact that they are gladly taking all the offers to bet against the regular Democratic candidate, and even giving of 3 to 1 to tempt betters, tells its own story, and the gamblers are not the only men who regard the election of Judge Van Wyck, the regular Democratic candidate for Mayor of New York city, as a certainty. One wager of even money has been made in Washington that Van Wyck will poll more votes than all the other candidates combined, which was a case of a man's backing his enthusiasm instead of his judgment. Needless to say he wasn't a professional gambler.

Secretary Gage did not deny the correctness of the statement published this week purporting to give the substance of the financial recommendations of his annual report to Congress—merely said that his report was not complete and was therefore not a subject for newspaper discussion. The three features of this statement were the issue of 2½ per cent gold bonds in sufficient quantity to refund the entire bonded debt of the country and to allow $200,000,000 to be converted into cash; to establish an issue and redemption bureau with which shall be deposited $325,000,000 in gold, to be used to redeem paper money, and to make various changes in the National banking law, including a reduction of the tax on circulation to a rate just enough to pay for supervision and the allowance of banks with $25,000 capital in towns of less than 4,000 inhabitants. These recommendations may be made or they may not be made by Secretary Gage, but there isn't the slightest hesitation in saying that they will never be favorably acted upon during the life of the present Congress by that body. Every time the gold bond idea has been before Congress it has been sat upon.

OCTOBER TIPS ON STYLE

This Column is for the Ladies

Bright colored cloth fabrics colored with rich decorations of heavy lace or appliques of braid, are the top notch of vogue, and are often used instead of velvet, for garniture, particularly upon cloth demi-toilettes.

A noticeable feature on some of the French gowns, imported since the openings, is that the waist and skirt are so garnitured as to look like one garment. This fashion should recommend itself to women inclined to embellishment.

Narrow silk fringes have been revived and are becoming quite the thing for bodice trimming. Some times they are used alone; quite often they are seen with fancy buttons.

The style of cut for skirts has narrowed down to the new circular model—the seven and nine gored shape for thin goods, as light wool, repped fabrics, gauzes and thin silks; and the three piece model, for the latest winter skirts of wide, heavy wools.

The buckles on full dress toilettes are of the costliest description. Some, while quite small, are made of gold and set with real gems.

The basque pieces this season lie quite flat and smooth. The ripple effect marks the bodice of several seasons ago, but to prevent a too plain look, there are all sorts of fancy ways of shaping the short lower edges.

The rumors about the coming of the overskirt are still in the air. Modistes still insist that, welcome or unwelcome, it is coming. In the meantime none have appeared on the street.

WHEN THE CIRCUS WAS IN TOWN.

Dar ain't no day lack show day, when de circus comes to town,
Wid all its spotted horses, its varmits an' its clowns;
Hit's long ways 'head of Christmas an' ef here de whole year roun',
I'd be a happy nigger while de circus wus in town.

Hit jes' puts a kind o' feelin' all in a feller's bones
Dat makes him feel lak spendin' jes' ev'ry cent he owns
To get inside dat circus—an' it's inside I'll be boun'

You'll allus fin' dis pusson when de circus is in town,
How well I's rickollec'in'—long sens niggers wuz sot free,
Old Master come aroun' one day an' say—says he to me:

"I want you all to promise that the fact'ry shan't shet down,
But you'll all keep on a-workin' when the circus comes to town."

An' he lowed pore bucks an' niggers wuz all de sort what went
An' spent their time an' money inside a circus tent;
An' he low'd ef ev'rybody wuz lack him de circus' groun'

Would look lonesome as er graveyard when de circus come to town.
Well, mos' de niggers promist dat dey sho'ly wouldn't go
An' fool away der money a messin' wit dat show;

But I jes' sorter mumbled an' it mought a sorter soun'
Mos' lak some sich a promise 'fore de circus come to town.

But 'twarn't a plum shore promise kase I know'd I couldn't stick—Hain't never mist a circus but wunst when I was sick;
An' shore enough, nex' mornin' when dey come purradin' roun'

I clean forgot old Marster, kase de circus wus in town.
I know'n he wouldn't miss me kase I'd seed him go away—
An' hearn' him tell Ole Mistis he'll be gone all ef dat day—

So I made lack he done tole me go chop wood for Parson Brown,
An' sneaked off to de circus dat wuz showin' down in town.

My conscience sorter bit me, yit sum-pin' seemed to say:
"I'd never miss dis circus—dere ain't one ever' day,"
An' while I felt oneasy an' as sneakin' as a houn',

I marched into dat circus big as any man in town.
But 'fore I'd got good sot down I mos' nearly had a chill,
Fer right dar sot Ole Master a laffin' fit to kill;

I pear'd I didn't see him, but when he 'gin to frown
Den I know'd he know'd I seed him when de circus wus in town.

Musn't Kill the Neighbor's Chickens
Quite a peculiar and amusing case is published in the last volume of the North Carolina Supreme Court Reports. It is an indictment against a man for "cruelty to animals"—for killing his neighbor's chickens which were in his garden scratching up his peas. The defendant was convicted before a justice of the peace, and on appeal to the Superior Court was convicted there, and on appeal to the Supreme Court his conviction was affirmed.
It seems foolish for a man to incur so much cost in fighting so frivolous a case, but we suppose his "blood was up" and that he was fighting mad.
The opinion of the Supreme Court, delivered by Judge Clark, is quite a long and able one, as well as humorous.
The court declares that a man has no more right to kill his neighbor's chickens, which are scratching up his garden, than he has to kill his cattle that might be trespassing in his field.
His only remedy is "to impound" them till damage is paid. That is, catch them (without hurting them) and keep them until the owner pays for whatever damage they may have done.

Diving For a Wife.
In many of the Greek islands diving for sponges forms a considerable part of the occupation of the inhabitants. A visitor to this unfrequented region describes the following rather startling custom. He says: "Him-ia, which is a little island directly opposite Rhodes, is worthy of notice on account of the singular method by which the Greek inhabitants of the island get their living. On the bottom of the sea in this locality the common sponge is found in greater abundance than in any other part of the Mediterranean.
"The natives make it a trade to gather these, and their income from this source is far from contemptible.
Their goods are always in demand among the Turks, who use an incredible number of sponges in the ablutions prescribed by the Mohammedan ritual. A girl in this island is not permitted to marry until she has brought up a certain number of sponges and given a proof of her skill by taking them from a certain depth. But in certain of the islands this custom is reversed. The father of a marriageable daughter bestows her on the best diver among her suitors. He who can stay longest in the water and bring up the biggest cargo of sponges marries the maid."
—Boston Post.

Queer Kinds of Spectacles.
Spectacles, to enable the user to see objects near at hand or at a distance, are made in a variety of forms. In a common form the glasses are in two parts, joined at the center, the upper halves being of a power suited to distance and the lower halves to reading. Sometimes a piece is cut out of the glass and a piece of a different power is put in its place. Sometimes the variation is made by cementing a wafer of glass over a part of the spectacle glasses, and sometimes by grinding away a part of the spectacle glasses.
There are made also spectacles with crescent shaped glasses, the upper part of the glass being cut out entirely; the wearer reads through the glasses and looks over them to see at a distance. There are spectacles called clerical glasses, that are like glasses with the upper halves cut off; the wearer looks down through the glasses to read, and he can see over them without effort when he looks at the congregation.—New

LITTLE REFLECTIONS

Caught of the Small Things That Occur.

Choice Irish Potatoes at D. S. Smith's.

There was a large crowd in town today and the merchants were busy.

The Register of Deeds issued four marriage licenses this week, only one for white.

The Raleigh papers say pickpocket got in some of their work among the fair crowd.

Don't pull down your gun for another week. You can hunt birds when November comes in.

The cooler weather increases the demand for winter goods and the merchants smile correspondingly.

On Thursday and Friday next, round trip tickets from Greenville to the Rocky Mount fair will be sold for $1.60.

The merchants who advertise are the ones who most desire your trade and will give you bargains in order to secure it.

Senator Pritchard and Congressman White have split a difference over the Kinston postoffice. The latter wants a negro to have it.

They are all coming to the circus, is the way we hear people talk on the streets today. Let us remind you to bring a dollar for the REFLECTOR when you come.

The Way to Tell.

If you want to know who are the live, wide-awake and enterprising business men in any town consult the advertising columns of the local newspaper. If you patronize the stores that advertise you will always feel assured of a cordial and liberal treatment. —Morganton Herald.

THEY MOVE FASTER.

But We Catch Their Names.

W. T. Brickell and wife went to Weldon today.

Chas. Skinner returned this morning from Kinston.

Rev. N. M. Watson returned from Ayden this morning.

H. A. White returned Friday evening from Greensboro.

Mrs. J. J. Laughinghouse, of Grimesland, is visiting her father, Dr. C. J. O'Hagan.

W. O. Little came in from Danville, a few days ago, to visit his parents in this county.

Mrs. Holcombe, who has been visiting her son, H. W. Holcombe, returned to Danville today.

Sheriff W. H. Harrington, Dr. R. L. Carr, M. H. Quinerly, E. M. Cheek, J. H. Cory and H. T. King returned Friday evening from the State fair.

JUST FOR FUN.

The man who puts up window shades must use his eyes of course, and yet he's a blind man.

She—"What sort of views has Col. Talklotz on the Cuban war?" Reporter—"Interviews, mostly."

"I thought you didn't use tobacco." "I don't." "Yet you say you smoke?" "Yes, hams. I'm a pork packer."

Wiggins—"What makes Bjones look so sad?" Higgins—"He's just heard the perfection of the chainless wheel, and his wife and four children ride."

Strange Companions.

We have often read and heard of strange companionships between different members of the animal and fowl kingdoms, and today one was witnessed. When the editor went home to dinner he saw a cat and a rooster playing together in the yard. The rooster did not seem to take altogether as much fancy to the relationship as did the cat, but the latter appeared particularly fond of the new companion and took much delight in rubbing against the breast and sides of the rooster.

Cards are out for the marriage of Mr. John L. Barrett, of Farmville, to Miss Estelle Wooten, of Greene county, at Tabernacle M. E. church, on Wednesday, Nov. 3 d.

NO CURE—NO PAY.

That is the way all druggists sell GROVES TASTELESS CHILL TONIC for Chills, Fever and all forms of Malaria. It is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. Children love it. Adults prefer it to bitter, nauseating Tonics. Price, 50c.

Notice.

Let Us Fit You Up in a Dress Suit

When you go home tell your wife you bought a Sunday-go-to-meeting Suit down at

RICKS AND TAFT'S

and will go to church with her next Sunday. She will love you more and you will wonder why you had not thought of that before. Incidentally it will save your business suit and look much better. English and French worsted, granites and tricots ready to wear in five minutes, without a wrinkle, and stay that way, too.
