A SERIOUS LOVE SPELL.

A young lady sings in our choir, Whose hair is the color of phoir, But her charm is unique,
She has such a fair chique, It is really a joy to be choir.
Whenever she looks down the aisle, She gives me a beautiful smaisle,
And of all her beaux
I am certain she sheaux She likes me the best all the whaisle.
Last Sunday she wore a new sacque, Low cut at the front and the bacque
And a lovely boquet Worn in such a cute wuet As only few girls have the knacque.
Some day, ere she grows too antique,
In marriage her hand I shall sique;
If she's not a coquette, Which I'd greatly regrette, She shall snare my six dollars a wique.

OVER THE COUNTRY.

Andrew Hosche, whose neck wa broken in a football game at Steinway, N. Y., last Sunday, is dead.

Unpaid employees of the Chicago & Southwestern Railroad, on a strike at Lebanon, Ind., have disabled trains and interfered with traffic.

A New York policeman caught a man robbing the contribution in one of the city churches, and the robber shot the officer dead in the church.

A Norfolk and Western passenger train was wrecked near Welch, Va.
The engineer was killed and the fireman los a hand. All the passengers esaped njury.

A Chicago man gave his six year old son an old "unloaded" pistol to play with. The boy was snapping the weapon when there was an explosion, and a cartridge pierced through his father's heart killing him instantly.

Echoes After the Circus

The crowd was quite orderly circus day, considering that there were so many people in town. Very few arrests were made.

The circus caliope performer "cali-oped" too much with the boys Wednesday night and the show train left him.

The vicious elephant that had to be punished so at Greensboro when the circus was there, was not taken off the car here but many people went around to look at the big brute.

The employees of the circus were paid off Wednesday evening. Everything about the show is conducted with the regularity of clock work and it was interesting to see the men answering to roll call and getting thier pay.

The circus gave another good performance last night. Of course the crowd was not near so large, but the prog.am was very little shorter than at the day performance. The train left about midnight for Kinston.

A Good Sale

Today H. F. Keel sold a barn of tobacco at the Eastern Warehouse. The 356 pounds were divided in seven lots and they brought $34, $20, $12.25, $11.25, $13.25, $10 and $9, an average of $13.35. That was a good sale or a straight barn of tobacco just as it run the stalk through, but good sales is what the Eastern Washouse is noted for.

Competition in the Pulpit

It has long been apparent that there are more physicians than can secure a paying practice, more lawyers than profitable clients, and more teachers than schools. It is now claimed that this overproduction has reached the pulpit, and that preachers far outnumber churches, and that the denominational colleges, theological seminaries and the various church societies for helping young men to an education are still swelling the army of young clergymen who are crowding the older ones out of their pulpits.

This over production of clergymen is not confined to any one of the Protestant denominations, although it is perhaps most conspicuous in the Congregationalist and Methodist bodies. Boston has a Congregational board of pastoral supply organized to find pastors for churches and churches for pastors, with the result that New England is overrun with clergymen without pulpits. The evil is quite as apparent in the Methodist Episcopal denomination. There is scarcely an annual conference held any more in which resolutions are not offered protesting against transfers from other conferences because there are too few churches to supply appointments for those already residing within conference bounds.—Philadelphia Times.

Is Amen Passing Away

It is to be feared that the amen is losing some of its popularity. It is not considered exactly "the thing" in some city congregations. We can almost see sometimes a shudder run over the congregation when an amen leaps red hot from the heart of some brother and explodes amid the frigid stillness of the formal service. Is the amen passing away? God forbid. Has the fact of its decadence any connection with the spiritual coldness of the Church? We fear that it has. Political gatherings, operas, lectures, etc., are not considered complete without the presence of the secular amens in the form of applause. Why should the sacred amen be considered out of place in God's sanctuary? It comes down to us through the hoary centuries under the sanction of Jehovah. It has been thrilled and illuminated by the Holy Ghost. It has a place among us. Its place is too often vacant. Let us revivify and reinstate the amen.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

A man must have a lot of bravery in his make-up to enable him to listen calmly to the whistling of bullets.

Owns Fabulous Wealth.

The richest woman in the world is said to be the Senora de Cousino, of Chili and Peru, who is a widow on the other side of 50. Her wealth sounds like that of the princess of the fairy tales beloved of our childhood, as report states that the Senora owns three palaces, a fleet of ships, silver mines in Chili, vineyards and a stock farm near Santiago, potteries which supply all South America with earthenware, coal mines of immense value, all the land, houses and public works at Lotta and nearly all the copper mines in Chili and Peru, and she is supposed to supply three fourths of Europe with copper. Her immense wealth is doubtless largely owing to her shrewdness, as though she inherited the greater part of it, she has doubled the original amount of her inheritance. The Senora de Cousino is tall, dark and handsome, so it is within the bounds of probability that she remains a widow from choice. Her annual income is no less than $8,000,000.—Philadelphia Record.

Spain's Losses in the Cuban War

The accuracy of the figures that were recently published in the Sun relative to the losses of the Spanish army in Cuba is confirmed by the statements of the Havana correspondent of the Diario de Barcelona, that the killed and wounded have numbered between 65,000 and 70,000 men, or about 20,000 a year. This is a record of losses that has hardly ever been equalled in any war of modern times; and, as we understand the record, it does not include the many thousands of invalid soldiers who have been shipped from Havana to Spain. It is a huge sacrifice to her pride that Spain has made. It is the price she has paid for Cuba without any assurance that she will retain possession of Cuba. She has dissipated her strength in an effort for which there is not any promise of success. She cast her sons and her treasure into a pit from which there is no deliverance. No wonder that we hear already a voice from Madrid asking, "Has Spain become a madhouse?"—New York Sun.

The New Reporter.

The newly-fledged reporter rushed hurriedly into the office and laid a manuscript before the city editor with the air of one who bears news of vital importance. After one withering glance at the youth the city editor turns his eagle eye upon the piece of news, which began: "At an early hour this morning Ben Williams, a young man 23 years of age, was shot and killed during a quarrel by Henry White, aged 27 years. Two bystanders, who witnessed the affair, James Dayton, aged 30, and Frank Tyson, aged 20 respectively, immediately informed policemen O'Hara and Donovan, who chased—" Wheeling around in his chair and facing his youthful victim, with a half-pitying, half-scornful look, the city editor thundered: "Now, why in the name of the nine gods at once didn't you get the ages of those two policemen?"—Washington Post.

As to Importing Eggs, Etc

Some things are imported into the United States from foreign countries which our own farmers should produce. During eight months of the present year we have bought from abroad over a million and a half eggs. During the same months of 1896 we bought about four and a half millions. With corn so abundant that we have no market for it, our farmers should have eggs to sell to the rest of the world after supplying this country. During the same eight months of 1897 we imported nearly a hundred and fifty million pounds of rice and rice meal, 7,300,000 pounds of cheese, 21,573 pounds of butter. These are a few of the items. All of them might have been raised at home.—Baltimore Sun.

Big Railroad Figures

There are over 450,000 miles of railway in operation in the world, and, according to Mr. Robert P. Porter, the century will close with over 500,000. Of the present number, just about one half are in this country. The cost of railroads all over the world, thus far, has been $36,685,000,000, and it is estimated that the street railways cost $2,500,000,000. The railroads employ almost 5,000,000 of people. These are big figures, but the railroads represent a vast interest in the world's wealth.—Baltimore American.

W. H. BERNARD.

A ROMANCE OF LONG AGO.

Peggy Hutchinson's Admirer of Noble Birth Whom Her Father Turned Away.

Among the thousands of documents stored in the statehouse in Boston are three letters and part of a journal that outline a romance of the days when Massachusetts was a province governed by Thomas Hutchinson. It is a story that has not been known to the world and not even to the personal friends of those interested. The characters in this romance are a titled lover, a father who refused his sanction to a proposed marriage and a New England maiden who died in ignorance of both the love and the lover's vain plea. Some letters are missing.

The first document in the story is a letter to Governor Hutchinson, dated April 6, 1771. The writer was William, son of Lord Fitzwilliam, and in this letter he recites his love for the governor's daughter, telling his story with old time courtesy.
He says: "I have had the honor of seeing Miss Hutchinson, but have never spoken to her. I need not tell you I admire her when I say that I wish to call her mine." The lover pleads for the father's consent to visit the daughter "as the most honorable method of proceeding to getting acquainted with her." Governor Hutchinson's methodical reply in duplicate, in his own cramped handwriting, is preserved. In it he says:

"In my station I should, from respect to my Lord Fitzwilliam, think it my duty to do all in my power to discourage his son from so unequal a match with any person in the province, and I should most certainly be highly criminal if I should countenance or encourage a match with my own daughter. I trust you will think this a sufficient reason for my not acceding to your proposal, and I sincerely wish you happy in a person more suited to your birth and rank, and who may be approved of by your honorable parent."

At this point there is a gap in the story. The young man evidently wrote a second time, but neither the second letter nor the governor's reply is in the archives. It is certain, though, that the governor did not relent, and in a third letter the young man craved a personal interview, as the ship to which he was attached, the Boston, was to sail that day, not, as he says, "that I shall desire you to give me the least encouragement with regard to my former letter, but as I think it necessary to wait on you." There is no record of the interview, but it must have been a sad one if held, for the governor was a kind hearted man and a devoted husband, who never forgot to celebrate as the happiest day of his life the anniversary of his wedding.

The beautiful Miss Hutchinson for whose hand the young man was suing was the governor's second daughter, Margaret, of whom the father always speaks in his letters and journals as "Peggy." Peggy was but 17 years old when the letters were written, and she died of consumption at Chelsea, England, when she was 23. The delicate beauty which young William admired so much arose partly from her consumptive tendencies. For several years the family was in England.
According to the father's journal, he called upon the queen on Aug.
28, 1777. "The queen asked where I had been," he writes, "and I told her I had been six months in the country with my sick daughter. The queen expressed the hope that she would soon recover." But Peggy died on the 21st of the following month. Almost on that same date her father wrote in his diary that her majesty's ship the Boston was again on the Massachusetts coast.
There is nothing in any of the governor's journals to show that Peggy was ever told of young Fitzwilliam's love for her and nothing to show that the young man ever saw the girl of his early love after the father had crushed hope out of his heart.

His First Client.

"My first client," said M. Chaix d'Est Auge at the dinner table of a prosperous bourgeois, "was the greatest scoundrel unhung—a bad egg any way you took him. But I got him off. He was the black sheep of a good family, and his conviction would have made a great scandal." Toward the close of the dinner a pompous, important personage entered, and as the host was about to introduce him to the advocate he said: "Oh, I need no introduction to M. d'Est Auge! I was his first client."—New York Tribune.

There is one woman in Montgomery, Pa., who will be cautious about warring in the future Miss Eliza Tilt was walking along the streets of that town Saturday, and yawned so hard that her jaws became unlocked. She thought her false teeth had wedged between the jaws, and after removing the teeth and finding to relief she ran screaming through the street. It required the combined services of a doctor and two men to get her jaws back in place.

There were some very disorderly colored people around the depot last night. They cursed and brandished pistols and came very near having a fight.

There were many people from down the road at the circus here Wednesday. The evening train had three coaches and folks were packed in them almost as thick as sardines in a box.

"Swing Yer Partners"

Sing a song o' fall time—
Better time than spring!
Don't keer ter yer mockin' birds When all the fiddles sing!

Sing a song o' fall time—
Summer's dead an' gone; Shake them rosy apples down,
An' tilt the jimmyjohn!

Sing a song o' fall time—Love's a game o' chance, But all the gals are smilin' sweet.

Briefs From Billville.

The autumn days are so still that you can hear a bill collector's footsteps a quarter of a mile away.

It seems that the yellow fever not only covers the ground, but fills the doctor's bill.

Only one suspicious case in Billville, and he was caught before he got away with the bank's funds.

Billville has quarantined against Montgomery. It's a godsend to our merchants, as they owe big bills there.

No trains stop at Billville now. Fact is, we've "held up" so many of them that they know better. — Atlanta Constitution.
