QUINERLY ITEMS.

Accident, Marriages, Death and Other Notes.

QUINERLY, N. C., Nov. 9, 1897.

Cotton 5 to 5 1/2 cents.

Dr. R. G. Maxwell, a phrenologist of some repute, of Duplin county, was here on the 8th inst.

James R. and Miss Sallie Whitfield, of Seven Springs, were guests of Dr.
W. C. Whitfield, their brother, a few days the past week.

Miss Adele Bright and Ray Taylor, of Crmondsville, were guests of Squire Brooks last Sunday.

Little Nannie, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Quinerly, died last Wednesday. Our sympathies are extended to the bereaved.

A double wedding is on the tapis for St. John's church (Episcopal) on the evening of the 17th inst.

A colored boy was here for treatment yesterday. The trouble was a cartridge and knife in the hands of the boy. The cartridge exploded and the ball went into his hand. Same old story.

Ask A. M. Moize what Dr. Maxwell told him about a future marriage.

We enjoyed some very nice music on the 8th inst., by R. L. Johnson with violin and H. C. Brooks with guitar.

Bryan Gardner of Grifton, passed through town on Tuesday enroute to the Washington fair.

Mrs. L. J. Chapman, has been quite sick this week. We are glad to note she is convalescent.

A prayer meeting service was organized at Salem Christian church on Sunday night last which promises to be quite interesting.

STATE NEWS.

Richard Croker, the Tammany chief of New York, is in Asheville recuperating his health.

Mr. Tobe Rouse, one of the numerous Federal prisoners in Kinston jail, is a justice of the peace, to which responsible office he was elected by Rep-Pops, last fall. He is in for three months for aiding moonshiners.—Kinston Free Press.

The Democrat says a lady of Sampson county sold a bale of cotton ten years old at Clinton a few days ago.
She grew the bale on her farm ten years ago when cotton was worth 11 cents. She held it for 12 cents and the price kept going down. She finally sold it at about 5 1/2 cents.

THE WEATHER PROPHETS.

Fellers prophesyin' snow—
Western blizzards, too.
(Course, these tellers allus know What the Lord'll do!)
When they tell me I'll be froze.
Then I hunt my summer cloz-!
'Long in spring they took an' said
All the signs wuz plain.
By the queer skies overhead—
Forty days o' rain!
But we had—ter all our fears—Dryest weather in ten years!
Then, in summer, we'd be dry—
"Not a drop 'ud fall!"
But the rain come from the sky
Like 'twould drown us all!
An' some weak, believin' tellers
Didn't have no rain-umbrellas!

Allas settin' on the fence Tellin' us God's will!
Ruther trust in Providence
An' take my chances still!
When they tell me I'll be froze,
Watch me hunt my summer cloz-!

A piano tuner must be a man of sound judgment.
Times are hard, and even the days are getting shorter.
In this cycle age it is meaningless to speak of a man's "walk in life."
It is about time for "J. Frost" to register his name upon our windows.
She—"He's fast. I understand."
He—"No. Slow." "You evidently don't know how he spends money."
Ah, but I know how he pays his debts.
Of course it was professional jealousy that prompted the first physician to cry "Poh! You! Why you can't keep a patient when you get one." And the other M. D. replied: "And you! You keep all yours, for you never cure one."

OVER THE COUNTRY.

Can Butler be so Low?

Can a man with an atom of decent blood in his veins read or hear of the cruel fate which overtook this innocent young girl while on her way to her daily avocation without every instinct crying for vengeance on the damnable fiend in human disguise who wrecked her young life? Do the white people of Rockingham rejoice that this young girl was outraged by this black beast? We cannot believe they do, but must believe it if we are to believe the words spoken by Marion Butler, United States Senator from North Carolina, in his speech the other day in this town. In that speech he said, as near as we can quote, "If colored men commit outrages the Democrats pretend to be terribly shocked in public, but when they get behind a wall they laugh until they grow fat, and if the outrages are not frequent enough they hire worthless negroes to commit them."

We wonder if the white people of Rockingham hired this negro to commit this unspeakable crime on this poor girl, and if they did not, what must they think of the man that represents the glorious old North State in the Senate chamber?—Rocky Mount Argonaut.

Origin of the Cake Walk

The cake walk proper had its origin among the French negroes of Louisiana more than a century ago. There is little doubt that it is an offshoot of some of the old French country dances. It resembles several of them in form. From New Orleans it spread over the entire South and thence North. It was found of convenience to the plantation negroes. They were not wedded by license, and it was seldom that the services of a preacher were called in. At a cake walk a man might legitimately show his preference for a woman, and thus publicly claim her for a wife. In effect the cake walk was not different from the old Scotch marriage, which required only public acknowledgment from the contracting parties. So this festival became in some sense a wooing, an acceptance or rejection and a ceremony. This explains its popularity with the blacks, outside of its beauties, with the accompaniment of music, which is competent at all times to command negro support.

Cake-walking has improved as do most things that are constantly practiced. It has lost its old significance in the South. Negroes now get married, when they marry at all, in the white folks' fashion. It has become, however, a pantomime dance. Properly performed, it is a beautiful one. The cake is not much of a prize, though the negro has a sweet tooth.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE TOWN OF NOGOOD.

My friend, have you heard of the town of Nogood,
On the banks of the River Slow,
Where blooms the Waitawhile flower fair,
Where the Sometimesorother scents the air,
And the soft Goeasy grow?

It lies in the valley of What'stheuse,
In the province of Leterslide;
Thatturedfeeling is native there,
It's the home of the reckless Idon'tcare,
Where the Giveitups abide.

The town is as old as the human race,
And it grows with the flight of years,
It is wrapped in the fog of idlers' dreams
Its streets are paved with discarded schemes
And sprinkled with useless tears.

The Collegebredfool and the Rich-man'sheir
Are plentiful there, no doubt;
The rest of its crowd are a motley crew
With every class except one in view—
The Foolkiller is barred out.

The town of Nogood is all hedged about
By the Mountains of Despair.
No sentinel stands on its gloomy walls,
No trumpet to battle and triumph calls,
For cowards alone are there.

My friend from the dead-alive town Nogood
If you would keep far away,
Just follow your duty through good and ill, Take this for your motto, "I can. I will."

And live up to it each day.
—William Edward Penny, in the New Haven Register.

The State Foots the Bill

Weldon, Nov. 8.—Wagons driven by convicts came into town this morning from the State farms without a guard except a convict on horseback. It is a fact that the convicts walk around in convict garbs and converse with whomsoever they please. One went into the telegraph office at Tillery and laid down upon the operator's table and when ordered out he refused to go until the operator threatened to get, or did get, his gun. It is also said that citizens go to the Halifax farm to foxhunt with the supervisor, who keeps a pack of hounds. They sometimes go to the farms with their teams, put them up at the expense of the State and hunt the night.—Charlotte Observer.

Snap Shots.

With congratulations from Queen Victoria and a pair of socks knit by Mrs. McKinley, little Grover is in a good way to get a head as big as his daddy's.

The Kansas clergyman who says he makes more by performing marriage ceremonies than he gets for preaching, doesn't regard marriage as a failure.

According to the latest literary gossip, Mark Twain has paid all his debts and is in a fair way to be rich again soon. This is probably an ad. for Mark's new book.

The story that an Iowa boy found $50,000 while digging bait was probably started by the rather of a boy who doesn't like to dig bait for the old man's fishing.

Have the people of North Carolina lost the second sober thought of wisdom in politics? We are afraid our people may require three lessons of sad experience before they learn wisdom. The lesson of '68, the lesson of '95 and the lesson of '97. The lesson of '68 closed their schools, the lesson of '95 made a free negro amalgamatic nist a greater man than Washington, and the lesson of '97 disgraced and ruined the State. Do they want further lessons of Republican and negro rule? Stand by the old State. She is beset on all sides by political wolves and plunderers. But the white men who are out of the ring have the power, and rescue is in their hands.—Elizabeth City Economist.

NOVEMBER FASHION CHAT.

This Column is for the Ladies

Bolting cloth is combined now with real Valenciennes edgings and insertions in beautiful designs for bridal sets.

Velveteen in a variety of shades is popular for gowns cut princess fashion.

The use of applique lace over mirror velvet for bodices is in favor, and is certainly effective.

The dress trimmings of the season that are really novel are a mixture of of the Second Empire, Louis XV, Louis XVI and early Victorian designs, thrown in with a few ideas of the present day. The result is charming in color and shape, and the crest is not extreme, even for the latest novelties.

Silk evening gowns show panels and fronts of mousseline with embroidery of silk, spangles, pearls, beads and jewels. Jet, pink and green are prominent effects, and the designs floral in character, are very much conventionalized.

In place of chiffon one observes net fronts embroidered with beads and spangles. Bands of silk applique flowers are another handsome garniture.

There's no getting around the fact that in the list of the season's fashionable garnitures braids take the lead. The most popular seems to be black patterns, next in favor being brown, dark green and navy blue.

Recent European models have furnished the ideas for the following garments, according to the New York Economist, for "the fashionable trade."

A tight fitting jacket, 27 inches long, is made of very fine dark green kersey, with an inner vest of Persian lamb, which fastens high in the neck in a stock effect. Below the stock is a double collar, inlaid with velvet to match the cloth. The lower collar has extending points about three inches in depth. At the wrists are turnover cuffs made of Persian lamb and cut V shape at the back. The garment is lined with taffeta of a dark rose shade.

A very swell tailor made costume is of royal purple velvet. It consists of skirt; blouse and cape. The cape has loose, open sleeves, which provide room for the blouse sleeves. The blouse and cape are handsomely embroidered in tinsel.

Persian lamb forms a rich coat, the sleeves of which are of dark blue velvet. It has an extra high receding collar, faced with chinchilla, while the revers, which are wide and pointed are also made of chinchilla. The garment is lined with dark blue taffeta.

If Mr. Pullman had only left Mrs. Pullman $3,000 a year, the boys might have had to hustle; but as it is they will "work" their mother for all the money they will need.

MATRIMONIAL AGENCIES THAT SWINDLE TRUSTING INNOCENTS.

They Advertise All Sorts of Brilliant Opportunities, but Usually Intro duce Unsuspecting Women to Un scrupulous Adventurers—Photo graphs of Handsome Swains and Beauteous Maidens Are the Usual Baits, but the Originals Are Sel dom in Evidence—What Can Be Done to Abolish the Evil?

Special.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—One would im agine that it was hardly necessary now-a-days to warn the public against professional marriage-mongers. When ever the veil that covers the operations of these gentlemen has been lifted it has been made clear to the dullest com prehension that bunkum is the basis of the business and that really serious swindles are its common accessories. But exposures and warnings have not stopped the supply of dupes, and these mischief-making agencies are still pocketing the savings of servant girls and the spare cash of hard-working young men who ought to know better. The recent prosecutions for "missing word" frauds and other bogus compe titions show that 20,000, or, perhaps, 50,000, fools are always standing ready to part with their money. They appear to rely upon such theories as that a man who is not publicly branded as an imposter must be honest, that a man who advertises extensively must be wealthy, that whatever appears in print must be true, that an enthusias tic testimonial must be genuine and unsolicited.

None of these stupid notions will hold water for a moment. It is no easy task to reveal a rogue's character and car eer to the general public. The law of libel is so severe that a newspaper is generally unable to publish a sentence until it has in its possession a long chain of well-corroborated evidence. In the vast majority of cases the victims o a skillful trickster take no steps to protect others, thinking that they will thus avoid adding to the unpleasant ness of publicity. They say to them selves, "We have been fooled, but why should we let the world know what fools we are?"

Victims Don't Complain.

When the victimization is the out come of their matrimonial schemes, they are more horrified than ever at the idea of attracting public comment to their ambitious aspirations. The dry goods clerk who wanted to find a lady with $25,000 a year and the dressmaker who thought that the photograph of her pretty face had beguiled the fancy of a Wall street broker are naturally not inclined to amuse their friends with a recital of their disappointing experi ences. The agents of the marriage market know all this beforehand, and thus it happens that a course of de ceit and blatant humbug may be car ried on for months and years without the interference of press or police.

To place confidence in the simple dis play of wealth is equally senseless. Matrimonial agencies, like bogus loan offices, have often proved gold mines to their unscrupulous promoters. The fees of the foolish soon suffice for splendid offices, the costly upholstery of which causes the caller to believe that he is dealing with people in the front rank of the business world. A staff of frock coated clerks are there to show the ten derest sympathy for the husband-seek ing shop girl or governess. Lifelong happiness is on sale for a small fee. Who can wonder if they are dazzled by the inviting prospect and part with their hard-won earnings in response to the honey-toned suggestions of the cunning rascals?

Cheap Game to Run.

At this game a big show can be made with little expenditure. Most of the advertisements are evolved in the mar riage agent's office, from the marriage agent's fertile brain. When a genuine advertisement does come in, it is proba bly from some forlorn maiden who has been waiting for years for a mate. The result—if there is any result—of her subscriptions to the agency will be an introduction to some worthless adven turer, who will borrow whatever money she may be possessed of and then fly away after a fresh quarry.

At these offices a part of the stock-in-trade is a collection of highly orna mental photographs—handsome fellows with curly black hair and drooping mustaches, doll-faced beauties with those charms of face and form which the photographer has touched up with such consummate skill. If the custo mer thinks that a choice is offered from these specimens it will prove a delusion, for the best of them are not on the books of the firm at all. The others are probably dissolute persons, with whom marriage would be a dire ful catastrophe.

Diamond Cut Diamond.

Perhaps the most amusing element in such negotiations is the frequent in troduction of one adventurer to an other. Each is overjoyed at the oppor tunity of acquiring the fortune attrib uted to the other. If they wed they cannot be long in discovering how ab surdly they have worked at cross pur poses. Mutual hatred follows, and mis erable reproaches—and appropriate punishment for their mercenary enter prises.

How are these agencies ultimately to be disestablished? It can only be done by multiplying the genuine opportuni ties for the young of both sexes to meet one another at sociable functions. It ought not to be difficult to get some public-spirited people to organize and superintend something similar to the institution which the Salvationists have planned. A committee of sensi ble women could be trusted to produce a workable scheme. If the existing agencies were success ful in the slightest degree in bringing about happy marriages, we should be fore now have heard of some of them. But the only marriage that ever came into prominence as an outcome of the advertising system was one that had its termination in a disgraceful divorce case.

Quince.

Today Mr. Frank Johnston showed us a quince weighing 1 3/4 pounds that was raised on his place just east of town. About ten years ago the late Miss Harriett Yellowley on returning from a visit to Mississippi brought a large quince home with her. She gave some of the seed to Mr. Johnston, but said she had no idea the fruit would grow here. Mr Johnston planted the seed and a tree came up. The tree bore this year for the first time and matured a few fine specimens of the fruit.
