JUST FOR FUN.

Christmas trees are getting ripe.
Thanksgiving day game—Roast wild turkey.
Pretty near time to stable your bike for the winter.
All the world loves a lover—except the gas manufacturer.
He—Well, your sister is married. Now it's your turn.
She—Oh, George! Ask papa.
Hoax—"Yes, Klumsee is a pretty fair athlete in his way." Joax—"You mean in his own way, don't you?"
Prison Missionary—"So, my poor man, your incarceration here is the result of hard drinking?" Convict—"No; it came easy to me."
Nell—"So he said I had a neck like a swan." Belle—"Well, he remarked that you probably did not need a hand-glass to arrange your back-hair."
Sport—"What are you crying about, you big stiff?" Billy the Bruiser—"Dat sportin' editor cut me ter de quick."
"How?" "He sed I wuz as brutal as a football player."
Visitor—"I want to interest you in my invention, which weaves carpets by wind-power. It ——" Capitalist—"How can a thing like that be new. It's an air-loom, isn't it?"
Wigwag, Jr.—"Pa, why do they call your elbow your funny-bone?" Wigwag, Sr.—"Well, my son, maybe it's because when you slip on a banana peel and land on your elbow it makes everybody else laugh."

STATE NEWS.

The Greensboro Telegram has enlarged to a seven column paper. It is a progressive paper.
The postoffice at Mocksville was broken into Monday night, and the safe blown open. The robbers got away with $300.
Mr. P. E. Smith tells the Scotland Neck Commonwealth that in 1863 there was no frost to mention until two days before Christmas, and cotton bloomed until that date.
Chairman Manty has called a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee in Raleigh on the 30th inst.
The number of outrages or attempted outrages reported in the State this year now rises to 30—5 by white men, the others by negroes.

ALFRED - FORBES.

Captain Leavitt Denies the Richmond Story.

On Tuesday we published the clipping below from the Richmond Dispatch and in justice to the parties concerned we reproduce the following from the Wilmington Messenger of the 10 inst.
Wilmington, N. C., November, 9, Editor Messenger:
On my arrival home from Virginia I was handed a copy of your issue of November 7th, in which you had copied the following from the Richmond Dispatch:
"The Rev. T. H. Leavitt, a North Carolina evangelist, who is conducting a revival in a church here, last night saw two young women smiling during service. Walking down the aisle to where they were he knelt and prayed that they would die immediately and go to hell. The Rev. S. C. Hatcher, who was present and who has attended the revivals, straightway left the church. He is said to have replied: 'I think it my duty to pray people out of hell, not to pray them in.'"
I beg to say to my friends that the above is absolutely false, and I take this opportunity of correcting a impression. The young ladies in question had behaved very unbecomingly during the evening, and I had stopped several times and looked toward them with a mute appeal for order. They persisted and I stopped and asked them quietly to refrain and brought the meeting to a close by asking the congregation to bow in prayer. As I looked toward I noticed that they were attracting the attention of many in the rear of the church and walked slowly down the aisle to where they were sitting, and after the pastor, who was praying, ceased, I engaged in a short prayer, asking God to save them if it were not too late, and if it was to please take them out of the way so that they would not hinder others. I closed by asking God to at least keep them away from the services, which prayer was answered.
The Rev. Mr. Hatcher did not leave the church until the meeting was formally dismissed. Thanking you for your kindness.
Yours,
T. H. LEAVITT,
Evangelist

P. S.—The Rev. S. C. Hatcher is a Methodist preacher, and not Dr. Hatcher of the Baptist church, some have thought.

GAMBLING IN COTTON.

How a Former Tar Heel Accounts for the Low Price.

John T. Roddey, a former citizen of this State and an operator on the New York Exchange, writes to the Atlanta Journal as follows:

No doubt the late civil war cost the South many lives and an immense amount of money, but in my opinion since the war the South has lost at least five times the amount through exchanges on cotton; in fact the amount of money lost by the Southern farmer and speculator during the past twenty five years, by having the price manipulated by professional speculators, will amount to many millions of dollars. I believe the average town in the South of 5,000 people has lost by speculation and having the price manipulated against the farmer from $250,000 to $1,000,000—and think of the number of towns!

A professional gambler in gambling only ruins the individual with whom he is gambling, but professional operators, in order to accomplish their ends, not only ruin the individual but also ruin many millions of individuals by effecting markets which effects them all, in order to make their profits. Supply and demand for spot cotton does not effect the price, but supply and demand for futures establishes the price.

For instance, every spot buyer simply asks how is the future market, and if the future market is 10 points lower, he immediately lowers his limit equal to the drop in futures, and every farmer that markets his cotton simply suffers from the drop speculators cause. In other words, spot buyers and mill men only have to break the future market in order to buy their spots at whatever price they care to fix, knowing absolutely that the average farmer must sell on account of his poverty at least a portion of his crop at whatever price they may fix.

Large American and European spinners never give themselves a moment's uneasiness about getting their supplies, in fact they simply reason that they will get together, sell thousands of bales of futures, which will put down the price, and as long as they continue to sell the lower the price will be, and when they get the price barely where the farmer can exist they then buy their spot cotton, realizing that over a million bales per month will be marketed at absolutely any price they may fix.

James Allen, a school teacher of Wheatland, Hickory county, Mo., kept several boys after school was dismissed on Thursday. They waylaid and assaulted him with stones afterwards, fracturing his skull. He died the following day.

A New Departure Decision.

Judge Brubaker, of Lancaster, Pa., who is said to be an excellent jurist, has just rendered a decision that will attract general attention. It was in the case of a will in which the testator sought to prevent litigation by declaring that any beneficiary who should contest should be disinherited. Such wills have frequently been probated in all parts of the country. One of the largest estates ever left by a decedent in this city was distributed under such a will. We do not know that any contest of such a will has ever been made, and the happy device of threatening disinheritance has seemed to be a good thing for everybody outside of the legal profession. In the case decided by Judge Brubaker the will in dispute charged one of the heirs with a note to the estate which he asserted had been paid during the lifetime of the testator; but, under the terms of the will, he was estopped from contest. Thus situated, he laid the matter before the court, and Judge Brubaker has rendered a decision to the effect that a will threatening disinheritance is not valid.

If this decision is sound it applies as well in other States as in Pennsylvania, for it is not based on statutory laws, but on general principles. And why should it not stand? Ought it to be possible for a threat to insure the unresisted probaton of a will made chiefly in the interest of one of the heirs and unjustly discriminating against others? The Philadelphia Bulletin pertinently inquires, "It threatens may be incorporated in a testament, what assurance can there be that vicious influences may not have dictated them—that is, interests outside of the parties involved?"—Washington Post.

The Mistake of the Life.

"I was sort of crowded out of politics," declared the man whose friends at one time quoted his stock as good for the Presidency of the United States. I had the theory of the game all right enough, but it was the effort to practice that gradually brought about my downfall. I lived in a community where there was a good deal of wealth and progressive culture. That meant social pretensions and an adoption of the popular fads as they appeared.

"I believed, and still believe, that the successful politician must be all things to all men. For this reason, I professed the most profound interest in golf, statermanship, yachting, diplomacy, base ball, music, bicycling, science, business, church matters, social functions, foot ball, good horses, belles, beaus, bores and everything else that any portion of the people might favor by adoption.

"The plain truth is that I knew something less than nothing about some of these subjects. I couldn't clearly define the difference between a home run and a catboat, or tell whether allegro was a term used in music or happened to be the name of some new sewing machine attachment. By looking wise and saying little I managed to gain favor as a good fellow and the patron of everything worth patronizing. While I was at the high tide of popularity there was a match game of foot ball arranged between two of the schools, and, just to add to the eclat of the occasion, I was chosen umpire. Instead of pleading illness or an imperative engagement, I was fool enough to accept. I wore a mask, danced around like a harlequin, and proved about as amusing as one to everybody but the boys. They became dangerously mad at my meaningless mixing of links, courts, loyes, wickets, wides, hard sports, time allowances and handicaps. I was ignominiously fired at the end of the first inning, and when the boys make their kick you have no place in politics.—Detroit Free Press.

Swapped Couples in Oklahoma.

A sensational case with a funny side is reported from El Reno. A couple arrived at the principal hotel and registered themselves as man and wife. In fact, they were elopers, one having run away from a wife and the other a husband. In the course of a week the injured husband and the injured wife arrived from Kentucky and caused the arrest of the pair. The deserted man and woman had never seen each other before, but while waiting for requisition papers from Kentucky they stopped at the same hotel and formed an acquaintance. Having common grief, they became interested in each other, and, on the day the requisition papers were to arrive, they astonished the officers by eloping on their own account, going to Texas, where they are now supposed to be. The first pair of elopers were released from jail, and the Kentucky officer returned home, after informing the local paper that he "hoped a rattlesnake would bite him if he ever traveled a thousand miles again to help a couple of men trade wives."—Kansas City Journal.

A Grandmother's Rules.

Somebody's grandmother has bequeathed to her descendants these admirable rules of conduct:

One is: Always look at the person to whom you speak. When you are addressed, look straight at the person who speaks to you. Do not forget this.

Another: Speak your words plainly; do not mumble nor mumble. If words are worth saying, they are worth pronouncing distinctly and clearly.

A third: Do not say disagreeable things. If you have nothing pleasant to say, keep silent.

A fourth: Think three times before you speak once.

Have you something to do that you find hard and would prefer not to do? Then listen to wise grandmother. Do the hard things first and get them over with. If you have done wrong, go and confess it. If your lesson is tough, master it. If the garden is to be weeded, weed it first and play afterward. Do first the thing you don't like to do, and then, with a clear conscience, try the rest.

Foreign countries are watching with interest the passing events in the United States just now. A year ago the free voters of our country engaged in a great political battle. The victory was won by the Republican party, which promised a return of prosperity to the country under the administration that was to be run according to a platform of the gold standard and a high tariff.
Recently that part of the country, the West, which is largely dependent on wheat as a money product of the farm, has been greatly improved by the advanced price of that product; while in the South, where cotton is largely the money product of the farm, the price has been so low, and is still so low, that there is great stagnation in business. And so the see-saw goes up and down;
a sure and unmistakable evidence that the interests of the different sections of our country differ as widely as do the products of those sections. The western farmer is happy over dollar wheat and the southern farmer is depressed over low prices of cotton and the rise in flour.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Wrong End Up.

M. Calino having taken a farm, he is very careful to instruct his assistants to take the proper and systematic course in all they do. "Be sure you begin your work at the bottom," is his favorite maxim, and he repeats it whenever he sets his men at work.

Lately he had occasion to dig a well on the place and put to this duty a couple of men experienced in that line of work.

"And be sure," he said to them as they got their picks and shovels ready, "that you begin your work at the bottom."

It was a still more curious reversal of things, perhaps, which led one of M. Calino's servants, a good woman, to come running to him one day
with the announcement:

"Quick, monsieur! Come here!
Your little Jean has fallen into the ditch, and he's into the mud up to his ankles!"

"Up to his ankles?" said Calino.

"Why, that's nothing."

"Oh, but I forgot to tell you,"

said the woman, "that he's in head first!"—Youth's Companion.

A Great Sign.

On a telegraph pole in the suburbs of a New England village was tacked this notice:

"Lost.—Between here and the postoffice, a real lady's hair switch black mixt with gray with shoestring tide around one end the above witch please return to the postmaster and git fifty cents with thanks of owner who needs it badly and will be thankful for the kindness of any Lady or gent who will return what cannot be of no use to them, but which is a needcessity to her."—Harper's Bazar.

The Mauser Pistol.

The mauser pistol utilizes the force of the recoil. The firing continues as long as the trigger is drawn back, while, if the trigger be released, the weapon remains loaded and cocked, ready for the next pull of the finger. Cartridges are fastened together in charges of ten, which can be quickly loaded into the magazine. It is also made for 20 cartridges. Eighty shots per minute can be fired successfully.
One of these ten shot pistols was fired 2,200 times without being cooled or cleared. It operated perfectly, and no appreciable wear on the parts was visible.

Counterfeiters at Work

It is evident that counterfeiters are at work in or near this city. And their spurious coins are being circulated quite freely. Saturday night a "bad" fifty cent piece was passed upon a gentleman and he has turned the name of the man who gave it to him over to a party who will try to work up a case. A number of small coins (bad five cent pieces) are being put in circulation by some one and if they don't "lie low" they are going to be caught at their work of making money.

Flat of Cotton Burned.

Intelligence reached here this morning that the flat of the Old Dominion Steamship Company loaded with cotton had burned down about eight miles up the Tar river. The particulars as we could gather them are that there were 168 bales of cotton on board and that it was entirely consumed. The fire started near the cabin and there is no solution as to the origin. We could not learn if there was any insurance.

NOVEMBER NOMENCLATURE.

About Folks the New Month Brings Along

E. W. Smith went to Kinston last night.

Benj. Norcem left this morning for Plymouth.

Mrs. O. Cuthrell returned to Kinston last evening.

James Brown, left this morning for the Washington fair.

H. P. Strause returned last night from a trip to Henderson.

We are glad to hear W. H. Smith is improving and hope he will be out soon.

Prof. J. R. Tingle, came up from Ayden this mornig to examine teachers today and to-morrow.

Evangelist Vaughan lectured in the Methodist church last night to a good congregation and it was well received.

The editor left this morning on a business trip to Washington and he will take a peep at the Fair.

W. S. Atkins, our clever manager of the Greenville telephone system left this morning on business and take in the Washington Fair.

A Runaway.

A blind horse belonging to a man from the country became frightened this morning and dashed off down Evans street and when near the bank he ran on the sidewalk in front of Alfred Forbes store and plunged headlong into one of the large plate glass windows, breaking two panes of glass and a great deal of goods that were displayed in the window. The window had a heavy wire screen in the lower half and it was bent considerably. The horse was cut about the mouth and head but not seriously. It is a wonder it did not kill him. The loss to Mr.
Forbes is from fifteen to twenty dollars

Musicales.

The ladies of the Episcopal Church propose to give for the benefit of that church in our city a series of Musicales at times and with programmes to be
