WASHINGTON FAIR.

Very Good Exhibits—Pitt County in the Lead—Too much Gambling Allowed.

Our neighbor town, Washington, has just held its second annual fair. The editor spent a short while in the grounds, Thursday afternoon, and while not expecting to see very much, taking into consideration that the enterprise is yet in its infancy we were somewhat surprised to find the fair as good as it was.

The exhibits were not very large but many of them were excellent. One department was devoted to Confederate relics, and contained bills and postage stamps of various denominations that were in use during the war period; portraits of several of the Generals, that of Major General Bryan Grimes being prominent among them; uniforms, flags and weapons used by the soldiers; trophies and souvenirs from several battle fields, and also a number of relics of the wars of 1812 and the Revolution.

Next to this was a department devoted to antiques. This contained an interesting display of old articles in crockery, silver ware, jewelry, wearing apparel, &c, that were owned by noted families of Beaufort county during the last century and have been handed down through each succeeding generation and preserved until now. The history of some of these articles could be traced back through a hundred and fifty years.

The art and fancy work departments each had very creditable exhibits. Only a few farm products were exhibited but these were very fine.

By far the most attractive exhibit at the fair was made by Mr. Allen Warren from Riverside Nurseries, of Greenville. This display filled a large part of the building and contained hundreds of specimens of fruits, vegetables, flowers, evergreens, ornamental and fruit trees. It reflected great credit upon Riverside Nurseries and Pitt county.

Miss Laurie Stocks, of Black Jack, Pitt county, made a good tobacco exhibit. Beside some fine specimens of leaf tobacco, there was a beaver and an exact miniature warehouse both made of tobacco. These were very creditable to the skill of Miss Stocks.

There was plenty of good horse racing and numerous side shows on the grounds, but as these afforded no attraction to us we pass them by except to say that they were there for all who wanted to enjoy them.

The objectionable and worst feature of the fair, and we are sorry to say most fairs are afflicted that way, was the presence of the fakirs. These slick-lipped and oily tongued gentry were there in great number, almost an army of them, and at every turn plied their gambling schemes and robbed those who were silly enough to allow themselves to be taken in by them. However, we have no sympathy for the man who throws away his money on these things, he goes into it with the intention of robbing the gambler but of course gets robbed himself. All the same such fakirs should not be allowed in fair grounds, and the managers of the Washington fair should hereafter exclude them if they want their enterprise to meet with public favor.

The bloomer costume, paradoxical as it may seem, grows in favor, and yet it is cut short in its career.

Magistrate—"What's the charge against the prisoner?" Officer—"He's a coal dealer and sold weight." "Well, as this is your first offense I'll let you go; but see that you mend your weighs."

Nell—"Yes; he takes me to the theatre, buys me flowers and candy, and all that sort of thing." Belle—"Yes you don't care for him; why do you play with the man's affections?" Nell—"Play? I call it working them."

STATE NEWS.

Where the Negro Loses.

The greatest drawback to the progress—moral, religious, educational and industrial—of the Negro race is politics. His worst enemy is the Negro politician; his next worst is the Caucasian who buys his vote with the promise of office. If the negro would keep out of politics, he could count on more friends and fewer false leaders. But there are politicians of their own race and of the white race who persist—in truth with no less base a motive than to rise to office—in encouraging the colored people to aspire to political preferment.
Recently one of their organs was demanding that a Negro candidate for Governor be nominated.
It has long ceased to be a startling thing to see them in Congress, Legislatures, post offices and clerical positions. Those who get these places gain a little money; but what does the race gain? It gains nothing good whatever; it loses the friendship of the very class of people who would help it. But somehow the Negro has gotten the idea that he can be lifted up only one way, namely, into office. Can they expect the white people to desire to educate them, if by their education they shall straightway seek to be made rulers over their benefactors; and to do this, shall yield themselves as instruments into the hands of politicians of the baser sort? The Negro needs education, not office; religious elevation, not political preferment; moral enlightenment not social equality; and the sooner he recognizes this the better. Any set of men, or combination of men, white or black, that in a single instance offers Negroes offices in order to get votes for themselves, are inimical to the interests of both races.
The black races were not made to rule; they never have ruled; their history is a cipher except in places and periods in which they have come into contact with the other races. And every time they seek to rule they drive away those who would help them.
Men may talk about religion and brotherhood and all that; but if the white people must educate the colored people at the expense of making congressmen, legislators and postmasters of them, then they may stay right where they are. The sensible colored man will perceive the truth of this, and instead of political preferment will seek industrial, educational and religious advancement, and will cease to be the tool of demagogues who would destroy the nation if they could only get into office by it. The negro who loves his people will strive to get them out of politics and keep them out, and so will the white man who would be a benefactor to the colored man. But the demagogues, white and black, who want votes, and care nothing for the Negro or anybody else, will flatter him upon his political powers and fire in him a false and covetous ambition for office, and say never a word about his moral and religious and intellectual advancement.
Our colored friends may not approve these words; but it will do them good to think about them, and this is all we seek.—Biblical Recorder.

Historic Tree Stump.

The stump of the tree to which Israel Putnam was once tied in the French and Indian war is still standing in the little village of Crown Point, a town in the upper part of this state. It was in the course of a skirmish near Wood creek, at the time of the French invasion in August, 1758, that he was captured by the Indians and tied to this tree. While the flames were searing his flesh he was saved by Captain Molang, a French officer, who rushed through the crowd, scattered the firebrands, cuffed and upbraided the Indians and released their victims. Putnam was taken to Montreal and presently freed by exchange. A great many strangers who go to the town and hear the story chip off pieces of the stump as relics. The tree is about 3 feet in diameter. New York Tribune.
Fluency.

"Dobbins seems to be a rather fluent talker."

"Fluent? Why, that man prepared a vitascope lecture, but it was a failure because the pictures couldn't

THE CHAMPION CYCLIST

Without an Equal in America

Greenville people have a treat in store for them in the exhibition bicycle ride by Will Wynne, of Raleigh, in the Planters Warehouse on Tuesday night, 16th. He has never yet been beaten in any trick riding and has rode against many famous riders, winning the contest over every one of them. This entitles him to the championship of America.

Mr. Wynne has given exhibitions in Boston, Portland, Wilkesbarre, Washington, Norfolk, Charleston, Savannah, Memphis, Atlanta and other large cities, and the papers of those cities pronounced it the best riding ever seen. He rode down the chute at the Atlanta Exposition, and down the steps of the Custom House at Norfolk, feats no other rider has ever been able to equal.

Don't miss this exhibition. You may never have another opportunity to witness such riding.

Will Observe Thanksgiving Day

Thursday, 25th, is Thanksgiving Day. It is some days off yet, but THE REFLECTOR calls attention to it now that the people over the county may know that business in Greenville will be suspended on that day. Our business men have adopted the commendable custom of closing up their places and observing Thanksgiving Day, and we feel safe in saying they will not now change a custom of several years standing. Until the custom became a fixture the REFLECTOR used to get the names of all who would close up and publish them in advance, but is no longer necessary when the observance of the day has become general.

While speaking about Thanksgiving, we will announce also that the Baptist and Methodist churches will have union services that day. In the morning Rev. N. M. Watson, pastor of the Methodist church, will preach in the Baptist church, and at night a service devoted to music and addresses will be held in the Methodist church, Rev. A. W. Setzer, pastor of the Baptist church and others being down for short addresses. The choirs of the two churches are practicing together on special music for both services.
