THE BOS'N'S STORY.

We borrowed some nails from the joiner's bench.
A hammer and cross saw, too,
And sadly reduced McCarthy's fence
As the good ship Rover grew.
Her lordly mast was the old pear tree,
Her flag was a pinafore gay,
And we built her and launched her and sailed
to Fiji
On a Saturday morning in May.

And all that summer, come rain or shine,
To the wide world's ends would we sail,
Loading with gems from the Kafir mine,
Harping the polar whale,
And the pirate and savage of cannibal climes
We slaughtered in many a row.
Oh, the gallant ship and the glorious times!
And where are my shipmates now?

The captain, a chief of renown is he,
Though dullards may fear or sneer,
When duty calls o'er the untried sea,
He is skillful and swift to steer.
Oh, stainless and strong, with the glad heart
of yore,
Sail forth on the shoreless tide,
Outward and godward forever more,
With the star gleam of truth for your guide!

The cabin boy, oh, his merry eyes
And the stir and the fun he made!
Ah, the coolies know where the sahib lies,
With a bullet hole in his head!
Wandered far from the track, you see,
Yet, kingily of heart and hand,
He went to the devil so gloriously
That the down hill road was grand.

And at work by his father's bench the mate
Looks out on the old time street,
Where grown folk pass with placid gait
And the children's lively feet.
"But the world is growing old," says he,
"We have no such boys today
As the madcap rogues who sailed with me
That holiday morning in May."
—Maggie Clark in New York Sun.

Your Husband's Mother.

"Bear anything before you permit yourself to complain to your husband of his mother's faults," writes Mrs. Burton Kingsland on "The Duty of the Daughter-in-law," in the February Ladies' Home Journal. "Say to your own soul, 'May God do so to me, and more also, if I ever do anything to rob a mother of a fraction of her child's love.' The sturdy toddler at your side may make you a mother-in-law some day, and as you sow now so you reap. Should you ever find it necessary to break through your rule of silence never speak while under irritation.

"Few attentions will please her more than to seek her to tell any bit of news that you may have heard. Aside from the fact that the average old person feels lively interest in the affairs of friends and neighbors, she will value more than all, the implied wish for her sympathy in seeking her to share your budget. Treat her with special honor and deference in the presence of your servants, your children and your friends. Their conduct will be modeled after your example. In imagination, put yourself often in her place. It will help you to be fair and kind. If you have already had unpleasant experience of your mother-in-law's presence in your home, if her peculiarities grate upon you, if she is intrusive, apt to interfere with your management of children or household, I can only repeat the same formula.—'Make her love you.' It may savor of the old copy-book precept, 'Be good and you will be happy,' but to overcome evil with good is the divine prescription, and nothing can resist Christlike methods. At least, the experiment is well worth the trial."

An Immense Hog.

Probably the largest live hog to be found in North Carolina is owned by Mr. J. C. Hedrick, of Silver Hill, Davidson county. Deputy Collector Thompson, who spent yesterday in Davidson, tells us that he saw this mammoth piece of hog flesh and that it measures ten feet around. From tip to tip it is eleven feet in length and weighs 900 pounds. This hog is now two years old and despite his weight he is able to get around with celerity when the occasion requires.—Salisbury World.

A passenger train locomotive struck a man near Chicago, Ill., and he was carried seven miles unconscious without being fatally injured.

STATE NEWS.

There is said to be a good deal of unpicked cotton yet on the State farms.

The postoffice at Mildred was robbed a few nights ago. The thief got only five or six dollars.

Judge Norwood decided at Waynesville that the Buncombe bonds of the Asheville and Spartanburg railroad were null and void.

The State Christian Endeavor convention will be held at High Point March 18th to 20th. Dr. Clark, of Boston, president of the United Unions, will be present.

It is stated that of the four women row in the North Carolina university, one will be graduated with the class of 1898—Miss Sallie Stockard. Miss Stockard will be the first woman who has ever enjoyed the distinction of receiving a diploma from the University of North Carolina.

Mr. James E. Burke, of this township, owns a goose that was hatched in 1860, and is therefore nearly thirty eight years old. During that time she has hatched 225 goslings and has not quit yet. As might be expected this old goose is a great pet in Mr. Burke's family. In the summer time when a thunder storm approaches this old goose brings her goslings up to the house for shelter.—Pittsboro Record.

Hancock to Russell.

Wednesday afternoon Hancock's a long expected letter in defense was received in Raleigh by the governor. It was sent to counsel there who gave it to the governor. It denies any improper relations with Miss Abbott or that any threats were ever made and says that so far as Hancock knows she is an absolutely virtuous woman. His letter is a column in length and says Miss Abbott is 19 years old and never lived in his house until last October. That she was housekeeper until soon after Christmas, when, after repeated requests to discontinue certain objectionable associations, he asked her to go to her mother's home; that she showed temper, and that the suit charging seduction was soon brought; that her mother's advisers in this matter are Hancock's political enemies; that the dropping of Miss Abbott's sister as teacher in Newbern's public schools has nothing to do with this matter; that no threat or effort was made to have Miss Abbott's father's name stricken from the pay rolls of the government.

I have taken the agency for the Wilmington Steam Laundry and solicit the patronage of those wanting good work. Shipments made every Wednesday morning, returned Saturday evening.

Found Crazy in the Woods.

Atlanta, Ga., January 27.—Miss Lee Miller, who disappeared from her home here three days ago, was found yesterday in a tract of woods, twenty miles from the city. She was crazed.

Several weeks ago, when compulsory vaccination was being performed on all persons here, Miss Miller refused to submit, declaring that it would incapacitate her and jeopardize the well being of those whom she supported by dressmaking. She was arrested and fined $25, in default of which she spent several hours in jail. Finally she was vaccinated under protest.

She has been acting queerly ever since, and when she left home friends were alarmed for her safety. For three days a search was made, until at last she was discovered at McDonough out of her mind and nearly dead from exposure and exhaustion. She was brought back home, and when she was sufficiently composed, told of her wanderings through muddy swamps and low lack of nourishment had nearly killed her.

Physicians are doing everything possible for her. They fear that if she regains her health it will be at the expense of her mind, which they say is crippled seriously by the strain to which she has been subjected.—The Baltimore Sun.

Devious Definitions.

Dust.—Mud with the juice squeezed out.

Irony.—The caustic wit or the laundry.

Tangent.—A "gent" who runs a tanyard.

Jawbone.—The original bone of contention.

Conchologist.—A man who opens oysters in the market.

Vanity.—A magic glass that makes a chamois look like an oil painting.

Banana-christ.—A person who scatters banana skins around promiscuously.

Conservatism.—The half way place where antagonists meet and talk and settle nothing.

Dr.—The meaning depends altogether upon whether it is placed before or after a man's name.

Busy Times Around the Wharf.

Thursday was an unusually busy day around the wharf, and things looked like Greenville was a shipping point right. During the day there were four steamers, one gas boat and one oyster boat to arrive. All of them came with full loads.

The New York Post-Office pays an annual net profit of nearly $5,000,000.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1898.

Poor little King of Spain! At twelve years of age, when a boy ought to be playing marbles or spinning tops or roller-skating, he is blasphemously "betrothed" to a girl three years older than himself, the daughter of a reprobate and probable suicide!

Congressman Harry Skinner has introduced a resolution in Congress to provide for the commemoration of the landing of Sir Walter Raleigh's colony on Roanoke Island, North Carolina, 1584.

Here is a new wrinkle in the discussion of the proposition to amend the Constitution so as to require the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

No one need be surprised at the many scandals disgracing our good old state under the administration of Gov. Russell. Nothing else was, or could have been, expected.

No one doubts, certainly no one can deny, that Russell's nomination as the Republican candidate was obtained by fraud and bribery.

fraudulently secured his nomination. And of course these men, being utterly unscrupulous and unprincipled in defrauding their fellow Republicans in packing political conventions, did not hesitate to perpetrate all kinds of scandals when appointed to office.

And yet all this "reform"! — Pittsboro Record.

The Latest Thing in Purse

An Eastern newspaper avers that the very, very latest thing is to have a purse made of the same material as the street dress. And not only that, but the purse must be mounted with a gold clasp, and have the initials of the owner in gold letters upon it.

Innocent Man's Life Saved

Baltimore, Jan. 26.—Angelo Carbone is in a cell at Sing Sing, New York, awaiting the execution of a death sentence for the murder of Notalio Brogno, in New York, while the guilty man is in a cell at the central police station, in this city.

The guilty man has confessed his crime and has surrendered to the detective who arrested him, the knife with which the murder was committed. The real murderer is Alexander Claramello. He was arrested early this morning by Detective Jos. Petrosino, an Italian member of the New York police force.

The Migration of Cotton-Spinning.

A few figures given to The World by the Governor of North Carolina illustrate the industry of cotton spinning and weaving is migrating from New England to the South.

In 1886 North Carolina had 80 cotton mills; in 1897 it had 1,010.

In 1886 it had 4,071 looms. In 1897 it had 24,517 looms.

In 1886 it had 199,433 spindles. Now it has 1,044,385 spindles.

North Carolina is only one of the cotton-growing States in which the spinning and weaving industry is increasing at this rate. The others are not far behind, and some of them show an even greater increase.

With abundant water-power, with cheap coal, with extraordinarily cheap labor, and with the cotton fields at their very doors, the Southern cotton mills will assuredly "take the business."

But they have not taken it yet. Their competition is only in coarser yarns and the ruder fabrics. Until they learn to do the finer work and very greatly multiply their mills their competition will afford to good excuse for the cutting of the meagre wages paid in New England, as the bosses there contend that it does.

Italian Longevity

Supported by the newspaper Don Chisciotti, a subscription has been opened, the result of which is to be divided between those who on January 1, 1900, will have seen three centuries—that is to say, those who, having at that time at least 100 years and two days, can boast of having lived in the eighteenth, nineteenth, and twentieth think that for this purpose comparatively little will be required, or that if a large sum be collected it will be divided among very few people. However, this is a mistake, as, according to statistics, there are now in Italy from 200 to 300 people whose ages exceeds 100 years.

Uncleanly Middle Ages.

Lord Playfair has recalled the fact that Queen Elizabeth used to write her lord mayor scolding letters because he allowed the city to grow too fast; it actually contained at the time 160,000 people, who, as the queen wrote, "became heaped together, and in a sort smothered," and accordingly she forbade any more houses to be built within three miles of London and Westminster.

Those poor middle ages are suffering from the modern specialist as from the sciolist, the dirty ages Lord Payfair would have them called. And yet they built cathedrals that we cannot even restore becomingly, and gave us chivalry and an ideal of woman's purity that is still transforming life.

Just at this time, when the holiday rush has become a memory and spring trade is yet an anticipation, many merchants are apt to permit a relaxation of vigor in the conduct of their advertising campaigns.

A wise farmer never sows his seed carelessly because the harvest-time is some months distant, nor will a wise merchant advertise carelessly merely because his business season is not yet at hand.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant Simple, but Safe Efficacious Cure for it. Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing; headache, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

According to Dr. Harlanston the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Distaste, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.
