Are You Always Tired?

WINDSON, N. C., May 21, '97.

Five years ago I was completely run down from general debility. My liver didn't act, I had indigestion, I was just as nervous as I could be, and was always tired. The least exertion would bring on shortness of breath and it was a drag to me to keep up. A friend of mine who had been cured by using Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy told me to take it. I bought 1/2 dozen bottles and took it just because I knew I would have to try something. I suffered greatly from wakefulness, would lay awake often the greater part of the night, unable to rest or sleep. When I was on the second bottle I got so I could sleep, and when I had finished the six bottles I WAS WELL. Indigestion cured, that shortness of breath cured, and I feel like another person.
Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy is a wonderful medicine. It did me more good than anything I ever took in my life.

TODAY'S WAR NEWS.

Germany Meddling.

New York, July 13.—Despite all her protests to the contrary, it appears that Germany is beginning to meddle in the situation at the Philippines.
Information has been received here that the German cruiser Irene held up the insurgents and stopped them in attacking a town on Suba bay. Admiral Dewey sent the cruisers Raleigh and Concord there to shell the forts, and when the United States boats appeared on the scene the Irene left.
The garrison surrendered to our boats.

Vigorous Attack Ordered.

Washington, July 13.—The negotiations under flag of truce at Santiago for the last few days amounted to nothing save the delay in attacking the city for the time being. The dilly-dallying on the part of Spanish officials having become monotonous, President McKinley has ordered the army and navy to make a vigorous attack on Santiago and keep it up until the city surrenders.

The Spanish spies who were conducting a bureau at Montreal, having been kicked out of Canada sailed today for Europe.

During Tuesday's bombardment of Santiago the shells from our battleships were so destructive that Gen. Shafter had the bombardment stopped and begged the commander of the Spanish forces for humanity's sake to surrender the city and not have it wiped off the map by such destruction.

Will Have It.

St. Thomas, July, 12.—An attempt was made by the Danish government to prevent the Americans from using 8,- 000 tons of coal, the property of the United States. Governor Lederman, ruler of the islands, notified Consul Vanoorne, of the United States, that the American coal in the harbor was contraband of war and its use by the Americans would be contrary to neutrality laws. He further stated that the removal of the coal would be prevented by the Danish gunboat now lying in the harbor.

The American consul replied that the Americans would remove it by force, if necessary.

Lederman declared that he would call in the help of the warships of foreign powers in the harbor.

The matter was referred to Washington.

Disgrace to the Flag.

The conduct of many of the soldiers in Charleston is a shame and a disgrace to the country. The disgusting rowdying they have exhibited, the insulting conduct they have displayed towards the women, the criminality they have exercised are shocking.
They conduct themselves like beasts and no American can feel a pride in men of such character, however they may comport themselves in battle.

There have been some disgraceful scenes in the streets within the past few days, enough to sicken the people here with the volunteer army. Of course all the soldiers are not so, the disgraceful conduct is exhibited by a minority, we hope, of the troops, but there are enough rowdies to bring shame to the whole force. * * *

If the conduct of the regiments in Charleston is a fair sample of the spirit of the army at large, God help the Spaniards in Santiago and Havana!
There will be scenes enacted in the captured town that would shock Wey-ler himself.—Chleston Post.

CAPTAIN PHILIP

When the yellow and red flag was pulled down on the Almirante Oquendo the commander of the Texas gave the order to his men: "Don't cheer, because the poor devils are dying."

The victor looks over the shot-churned wave

At the riven ship of his foeman brave
And the men in their life blood lying;
And the joy of conquest leaves his eyes,

The lust of fame and of battle dies,

And he says: "Don't cheer; they're dying."

Cycles have passed since Bayard the brave—

Passed since Sydney the water gave,

On Zetphen's red sod lying;

But the knightly echo has lingered far—

It rang in the words of the Yankee

When he said: "Don't cheer; they are dying."

Why leap our hearts at our Hobson's name,

Or at his who battled his way to fame?

Our flag in the far East flying?

The nation's spirit these deeds reveal—

But none the less does the spirit peal

In the words: "Don't cheer; they're dying."

Stop My Paper.

After you get angry and stop your paper, just poke your finger into water, pull it out, and look at the hole. Then you will know how sadly you are missed. A man who thinks a paper cannot thrive without his support, ought to go off and stay awhile. When he comes back, half his friends will not know he has gone and the other half will not care, while the world at large kept no account of his movements.
You will find things you cannot endorse in every paper. The "Book of Books" is often very plain and hits some hard raps, but if you were to get mad and burn your Bible, the hundreds of presses would still go on printing it. So when you stop your paper and call the editor names, the paper will still be published, and what is more, you will read it on the sly.—

Pressure of the Sea.

There are spoils in the ocean where the water is five miles deep. If it is true that the pressure of the water on any body in the water is one pound to the square inch for every two feet of the depth anything at the bottom of one of the "five mile holes" would have a pressure about it of 13,200 feet to every square inch.

Duties for "Stay-at-Homes"

Since only an inconsiderable fraction of the American people is needed for military service, a few suggestions are in order for vast majority to whom the privilege has not been given of serving in the field.

They can refrain from hasty ill-tempered criticism of the government. Each criticism is not only unjust and ungenerous, but it sometimes throws serious embarrassments in the way of the government in carrying out its plans.

They can pay their additional taxes cheerfully and help in other ways to supply the needed sinews of war.

They can attend more strictly than ever to their own occupations; they can be prudent, vigilant, and energetic in these lines, and thus help keep the business interests of the country vigorous and healthy.

They can attend more scrupulously than ever to their civic and political duties, and thus prevent the country from suffering not only from the inevitable misfortunes of war, but also from the still greater misfortune of the rule of corrupt and inefficient men in legislatures, municipalities, and other places of power.

They can contribute promptly and generously, as opportunity offers, of time and means to the various funds used for the care of sick and wounded soldiers.

They can see that the families of those who have been called to the front do not suffer from want or neglect.

They can be patriotic, patient, and prayerful.—Leslie's Weekly

Can This be True?

A pathetic story, showing the private and unofficial character of one whom we are inclined to regard as a fiend incarnate, is told by a lady who resides in Washington, and whose husband until recently was an officer in the Spanish army.

During the regime of General Weyler in Cuba this gentleman was attached to a raiding column which went out into Havana province and succeeded in massacring the families of a number of Cubans who were with the forces in the field. In the course of the butchery the officers of the expedition were attracted to a bright little Cuban boy 3 or 4 years, and they concluded to spare him and take him back to Havana with them.

On the way, becoming friendly with his captors, he lisped out a little patriotic song, in which Weyler's name was handled with more vigor than politeness, and the officers thought it such a good joke that they would let the captain general enjoy it, too. So, one evening, a few days after the chief officers of the column took the little fellow up to the palace and got him to sing his song for the benefit of the great man. The latter was unable to appreciate the humor of the situation, and began to look black, as was his wont when anything did not please him.

And this is the man who is more than likely to be military dictator of Spain within a week or so. Why does he not come over to Cuba again.—Washington Times.

A lady in Missouri wrote to Champ Clark asking him to pass a pension claim. He wrote back, occasionally a Republican Congressman gets one through for the rich widow of some officer, but for a Democrat to get one allowed for some poor worthy woman or man is impossible.

They Don't Go.

A drummer was here the other day with a line of shoes. One brand was named "Spanish Calf." The merchant to whom he was trying to sell his goods told him it was no use to show them, that he would not buy them at any price, for as soon as a customer saw the name there would be no trade.

Some time ago Phoenix had some kind of Spanish grapes, but he could not sell them and many of them rotted on his hands. There is nothing like being loyal. "Don't patronize the enemy" was the slogan during the last war.—Greensboro Record.

William Jennings Bryan's regiment of Nebraska infantry, has been ordered to join General Fitzhugh Lee's corps at Jacksonville.

There is some talk of putting General on the lecture platform to work out the war indemnity.

Santiago is a boom-town just at present.

"Goose-Cutting." Another game, that of "goose-cutting," has been added to the long list in vogue at social gatherings. The hostess provides a well-drawn outline of a goose, which is usually of red cloth, or, if made of paper, is colored red or black. This is merely for the purpose of distinctness. Two pairs of scissors are provided and a number of sheets of plain brown paper. Each gentleman invites a lady to cut a goose with him and in turn these couples are seated back to back in two chairs in the centre of the room.

Fire Furniture. The record of fires in buildings professionally fireproof shows the need of drastic regulations of their furniture. Brick walls, iron beams and stone floors may be little better than nothing without restrictions regarding the inflammability of the property stowed in them.

Scientific Cooking. "People have an idea," said the expert cook, "that when we speak of scientific cookery we are talking of something very difficult, but it is only the application of the simplest principles. Scientific cookery can only be obtained by careful experiment, careful observation, and careful record. When we cook as we would make chemical experiments we shall have perfect cooking—we shall be sure then that a loaf of bread will always be good. There is as much training of the mind from the practice of exact cookery as from the study of mathematics."

In the city of Chicago a well known book worm, Mr. John H. Wrenn, possesses what is said to be one of the three known copies of the first edition of Gray's "Elegy," which he purchased from an old collector of rare books in London, who valued it at eighty pounds. The first edition, though of excessive rarity, is not so rare but that ten copies have been sold publicly and privately in the last ten years. "One of three known copies" sounds attractive enough, but it is not quite true. The best copy of the first "Elegy" sold at auction in this country was Foote's, which, in 1895, sold for $270. It would bring more to-day, probably. Frederickson's copy, bound with the "Odes," had the title soiled and the leaf, in addition, had a hole in a blank portion. At the sale a year ago $160 was paid for the two. The highest price the book has brought at auction is the seventy-four pounds, ten shillings, it fetched in London on January 23, 1897. That it is very rare will be seen when it is stated that that copy was the first sold that had come into an auction room since December 12, 1893, when a copy sold for seventy-four pounds. In December, 1892, a copy fetched forty-eight pounds in London, and in May of the same year one brought fifty-nine pounds. In American libraries, public and private, there are perhaps from six to a dozen copies of the first edition of the "Elegy." Mr. Wrenn's is one of the number.

The origin of the first edition of Gray's "Elegy" is given at length in Gray's letter to his friend, Horace Walpole, dated from Cambridge, February 11, 1751, wherein he states: "Yesterday I had the misfortune of receiving a letter from certain gentlemen (as their bookseller expresses it) who have taken the magazine of magazines into their hands. They tell me that an ingenious poem called 'Reflections in a Country Churchyard,' has been communicated to them, which they are printing forthwith; that they are informed that the excellent author of it is I, by name, and that they beg not only his indulgence, but the honor of his correspondence, etc. As I am not at all disposed to be either so indulgent or so correspondent as they desire, I have but one way left to escape the honor they would inflict upon me, and therefore am obliged to desire you would make Dodsley print it immediately (which may be done in less than a week's time) from your copy, but without my name, in what form is most convenient for him, but on his best paper and character. He must correct the press himself and print it without any interval between the stanzas, because the sense is in some places continued beyond them, and the title must be 'Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard.' If he would add a line or two to say that it came into his hands by accident, I should like it better."

Dodsley's edition duly appeared a few days after the above note was written. It is entitled, "An Elegy Wrote in a Country Churchyard, London. Printed for R. Dodsley, in Pall Mall, and sold by M. Cooper, in Paternoster Row, 1751. Price, sixpence, 4 to six leaves." The reader will observe one error, "wrote" for "written," which is a mere trifle compared with other errors made by Dodsley in his various publications of Gray's writings. The title page has an ugly black border, composed of skulls, cross-bones, hour-glasses, spades, etc., doubtless very suggestive to Dodsley.

In a letter to Walpole, Gray has the following suggestive note: "Nurse Dodsley has given it a pinch or two in the cradle, that (I doubt) it will bear the marks of as long as it lives." This "pinch or two in the cradle" doubtless refers to the black border on the sixth page, as well as a few inaccuracies in the printed text. The poem is printed without any interval between the stanzas, and is prefaced by the following advertisement, prefaced by the editor: "The following poem came into my hands by accident, if the general approbation with which this little piece has been spread may be called by so slight a term as accident. It is this approbation which makes it unnecessary for me to make any apology to the author; as he cannot but feel some satisfaction in having pleased so many readers already, I flatter myself he will forgive me communicating that pleasure to many more."

The publication of the poem was an instantaneous success. Gray was astonished at its popularity. Dodsley printed four editions in eight weeks, and in all no less than eleven editions were issued. The fact is authenticated in the handwriting of Gray on the margin of his MS. of the poem, which is now in possession of the Master Fellows of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge. The following notice of the poem appeared in the leading review of the day, the Monthly Review, and is in itself a curiosity in criticism: "An Elegy Wrote in a Country Churchyard, 4 to, Dodsley. Seven pages. The excellence of this little piece amply compensates for its want of quantity."

Queen Victoria's Boudoir.

The Queen's boudoir in Windsor Castle is shown only to a few favored visitors. Its state has remained unaltered since Her Majesty's widowhood. On the door is inscribed: "Every article in this room my deeply lamented husband selected for me in the twenty-fourth year of my reign." The Queen's bridal wreath, with the first bouquet Prince Albert presented to her, lies withered within a glass case, and on every side are evidences of the thoughtful devotion of the Prince Consort to his wife.

NEVER IMITATED IN QUALITY.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

Pitt Rifles to be Reorganized

Elsewhere will be seen a call of 2nd Lieut. J. R. Corey for a meeting of the members of Company H, Pitt Rifles to meet on Saturday next, the 16th, at the Armory, for the purpose of reorganizing and recruiting the company to its full limit. We are glad to see Lieut. Corey and the other members taking the matter under consideration. While some of the officers and members are now volunteers in the United States army, there are a large number who from circumstances and conditions peculiarly their own, could not enlist as United States soldiers, yet they are of the very best men, many of them, in the community, and could be relied on if an emergency or necessity called them forth in the protection of the homes property and lives of the citizens of the State. We think we voice the sentiment of the community that there is a necessity for a well organized and fully equipped military company in Pitt county. It is hoped there will be a full attendance of the members and that a sufficient number of recruits may join the company, to make it such a company of citizen soldiers that the whole community may justly feel proud of, and under whose protection every citizen will feel safe.

We are sure the citizens of the town and community will give their aid and assistance in sustaining a first class military company for the county of Pitt.

Party.

Walter and Durwood Wilson gave a party Tuesday evening, at the home of their father, Mr. W. B. Wilson, in South Greenville, complimentary to their cousins, little Misses Pattie Barden, of Plymouth, and Adelaide Peck, of Newbern. There was a large gathering of the young folks and they spent a most delightful evening, one which most of them will never forget. The house was decorated in national colors and beautifully illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

Opera House.

Mr. J. J. Perkins is preparing to build a stables and opera house on the lot near his residence on Fourth street. The opera house will fill a long felt need here and we hope it will be completed in time for the coming season.

Will Rush It.

A number of laborers came in Tuesday evening to work on the Stause building. It will be hurried to completion. H. C. Linticum, of Henderson, has charge of the construction force.

Will Preach Next Sunday

Rev. J. B. Jackson, of Winterville will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening, in place of the pastor, Rev. A. W. Deizer, who is absent. Before entering Wake Forest College, from which he graduated, Mr. Jackson was a student of Greenville Male Academy, and he has a large number of friends here who will be glad of an opportunity of hearing him.
