Tetter on the Hands.

For several years I was a sufferer from Tetter on my hands. It would come in little watery pimples, and the itching was almost more than I could stand. The skin was tender and the itching would swell so I could hardly bend my fingers. Sometimes my hands would become perfectly raw from the scratching or breaking of the pimples. When I was in this condition I tried one-half dozen bottles of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and some Wash in 1884, and by the time I took it my hands were cured, and I am now well of the trouble. It has since broken out a little at times, but not enough to inconvenience me or make me try more medicine. I am now well.

TODAYS WAR NEWS

Washington, Aug. 1—Advices come that two more islands in the Pacific, about 1,500 miles beyond Honolulu, have been taken by the American forces.

Reports are being received that the Spaniards are committing many outrages on Porto Rico. Miles will soon put a stop to this.

A cable message from Admiral Sampson says that the Maria Teresa, of Cervera's destroyed fleet, can be saved. The vessel was found in fairly good condition and she will be floated and taken to Guantanamo for repairs.

French Ambassador Cambon has been given full authority by the Spanish government to conduct the negotiations of peace with the American government. The terms agreed upon by this government are as follows:

Cuba to be free; Porto Rico to be ceded to the United States; one of the Ladrone islands (probably Guam) to be ceded to the United States as a coaling station, and, as an immediate step, all Spanish forces in the West Indies to be withdrawn, with the formal relinquishment by Spain of her sovereignty over any possessions among those islands. No war indemnity will be demanded. That Manila Bay, with the city and surrounding territory, should be retained in the possession of the United States at least for such a length of time as is necessary to devise and put in operation some plan for the future government of the entire group.

This has been submitted to Spain by the French Ambassador, and if that government agrees to it the war will speedily terminate.

Foul Play Suspected

The stomach of a man who died at Parmele, Pitt county, Wednesday last under very suspicious circumstances, was brought here yesterday to the State chemist for analysis.

The stomach was removed from the dead man the day after he died and sent here by the coroner of Pitt county. It was brought by a traveling man, who came to Raleigh on business.

The name of the man who died was Pepper. He entered a bar room in Parmele in company with a citizen of that place. Drinks were ordered. Within fifteen minutes of the time they were taken Pepper died in agonizing pain. Suspicion was aroused and foul play suspected. No arrests had been made Thursday last.—Raleigh Post.

It is amusing how things will get mixed up as they travel. The above is intended for a version of the suspected poisoning case at Parmele last week, the particulars of which were given in THE REFLECTOR. Of course our readers see the difference.

His Maiden Speech

Speaking of a recent political gathering which took place at Black Creek in Wilson county, the Wilson Times says:

After dinner Mr. Larry I. Moore, of Pitt county, the Democratic nominee for solicitor of this district, made a fiery speech. His speech produced a great deal of interest and showed people the difference in the abilities of the present prosecuting officer and the much superior ones of the next, as Mr. Moore will doubtless be elected. It was Mr. Moore's maiden speech. He will make a rousing campaign, and his opponent will either have to run or face music.

THE BALL STARTS,

Greenville Market Opens With 50,000 Pounds

The Greenville tobacco market starts its eighth season with flying colors, the opening break footing up nearly 50,000 pounds. This was a fine beginning, and considering the heavy rain of Sunday night it is really remarkable that so much tobacco was here. Nobody had any idea the opening break would be so large, and both the warehousemen and buyers were delighted with the way the weed came in.

The Planters warehouse had first sale, starting at 9 o'clock with 128 piles on the floor. The first man to open the season has the disadvantage of not knowing just how the prices are going to run, but Ola Forbes waded into it with a nerve and took his sale through in fine shape, giving everybody the best satisfaction. The new auctioneer, Mr. Donahoe, is a rattler, and as some of the boys said they "donohow" he says so, but he got there all the same. The Planters paid off with the spot cash and did not draw checks.

The Eastern warehouse had second sale with 119 piles on the floor. "Old Man Gus" felt and looked about seven years younger as he took hold to push the sales. Auctioneer Aiken was in fine trim and rattled away at a mile a minute gait as the buyers winked and blinked bids at him. It looked like an old time sale on the Eastern.

The Greenville warehouse had third sale with 112 piles. Leon Evans was right there to push sales, and some of the boys could hardly account for his being so happy. The new boy might have had something to do with it, but the prices Leon made the piles on his floor bring was enough to make anybody happy and the good feeling spread through the whole crowd. Auctioneer Bailey was just out of sight.

The Star warehouse had fourth sale with even 100 piles. Wiley Brown and J. G. Bowling run the sale and did it well, both of them using their chains freely in whooping up the boys. Auctioneer Timberlake was another new man and the crowd naturally gathered around to see what kind of music he made. When he gets wound up his face looks like a cyclone had struck it, and his tongue went as fast as rain pattering on the roof. He is a good one.

The new warehouse, the Farmers, had the closing sale with 102 piles. When the buyers gathered around they called on Olthus Joyner for a speech, but he told them just start the bids on that tobacco and he would do talking a plenty. They took the hint and the fun started, ex-Senator A. A. Forbes backing Joyner up in running the sale. George Hughes did his own auctioneering for the house and he fairly rolled the bids out in thirty-second notes.

All through from beginning to end the opening sale was a fine one. The prices were good, too, ranging from $5 to $18. The farmers generally were expressing themselves as well pleased and they were loud in their praise of the Greenville market.

Weddings ten cents Higher

The law requires each minister or magistrate after performing the marriage ceremony to return the license to the Register of Deeds with the certificate attached properly signed by the minister or magistrate. Under the war revenue act the Register is forbidden to register any license returned unless a ten cent revenue stamp is attached.

How the Spanish Semaphore Reported Cervera's Defeat

In Spain evil things seem to reverse the usual custom by traveling slowly. This peculiarity was especially noticeable in the case of the disaster to the Cervera fleet. Here, for instance, is about the way the news of the Schley victory reached Madrid. It came in easy stages and by cumulative approaches, and seemed as it were, to illustrate a new theory of evolutionary truth-telling.

1. It is understood that Admiral Cervera has taken his fleet from under the very noses of the Yankee pigs, and sailing through their midst has calmly and deliberately withdrawn to a port previously decided upon. The Yankees shrank back in terror when they saw his dignified approach, and quickly made room for him. He threw a few shells into them as he passed, one of which penetrated the flagship and killed 42 men. The brave admiral and his gallant ships will soon be heard from.

2. It is understood that Admiral Cervera's fleet left Santiago harbor on the 3d inst. Heavy cannonading was heard outside the entrance, and it is believed a naval battle is raging. At the present moment the Yankee ships are in full retreat.

3. Admiral Cervera's fleet turned westward from Santiago and stood well in toward shore. While the ships rapidly steamed ahead, the two torpedo boats lingered behind and kept the Yankee cowards at bay.

4. The torpedo boats, after inflicting incalculable damage on the enemy, were disabled.

5. It is stated that Admiral Cervera harassed the Yankees greatly by his masterly strategy in leading them on. At this hour he is rapidly advancing toward the Windward Passage, with the Yankee ships in close pursuit. It is believed he will soon have them where he wants them.

6. Seven sailors of the Vizcaya, who came ashore a few miles west of El Morro, report that Admiral Cervera's fleet, was giving the enemy much annoyance. The torpedo boats had been destroyed, after seriously damaging the Yankee battleships, and there is some reason to think that the entire Yankee fleet will be speedily bagged, notwithstanding the loss of the Vizcaya.

Admiral Cervera is on board a Yankee warship. No particulars are given as to how he effected its capture.

8. It is confidently believed that Admiral Cervera has seriously damaged the Yankees by running several of his boats aground. His presence on a Yankee warship however, seems to contradict this rumor.

9. Admiral Cervera has abandoned his boats and transferred his flag to the nearest Yankee. There is great rejoicing.

10. It is rumored, though the source cannot be ascertained, that the Spanish fleet has been defeated, and that Admiral Cervera is a prisoner. No credence is placed in this absurd statement.

11. Admiral Cervera's fleet is destroyed and he is a prisoner. Later reports denying this impossible disaster are confidently expected.

12. The later reports don't come.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Pritchard Owns the Pops

It requires only most superficial knowledge of politics to see that the Republicans have set out in this campaign to control not only the nominations in their own party but also those in the Populist party. They reason that the Populists are numerically too weak to go it alone, and are forced to fuse with the Republicans. The Republicans on the other hand, are about equal in number to the Democrats, and without fusing they would have about an even chance of winning. But to reduce the chances of defeat they are willing to fuse with the Populists, provided they are allowed to name the candidates. No Populist will be put on the ticket unless permission to do so is first given by the Republicans, and it can be taken as a certainty that the Populist, who receives Republican endorsement this year, is known to be just as much a Republican as if he were so labeled. Pritchard is dictating and controlling the nominations in the Populist party and in fact running the party, just as perceptibly as he is the Republican party.—Newton Enterprise.

Where Spaniards Used to Torture Their Victims

The most interesting sight in St. Augustine is Fort Marion, as the old structure was rechristened after the Florida purchase, in honor of our revolutionary general, Marion.

Sergeant Brown, of the regular army, is in charge of this historic pile, says a St. Augustine letter in The New York Mail and Express. He will show you through the old casemates, each of them curious enough, and will reach his culmination of horror in the dungeons beneath the northwest bastion. Here, opening by a narrow passage from the central place of arms, is the place of punishment for prisoners. The walls still show the recesses into which were let six crosses. Before one of the crosses the hapless prisoner was hanged in chains, so arranged that he could neither sit nor stand while every movement was an agony, and while the cross, emblem of peace and love hung above him until he was ready to confess or die. It must have been a sacrilegious travesty of the crucifixion.

Until the year 1835 this large prison chamber of comparatively public imprisonment and torture was supposed to be the most thrilling relic of Spanish mediaeval barbarity. But in that year the moving of a cannon on the outside parapet above broke through a roof, and then were revealed two inner chambers. Investigation showed that these inner dungeons were connected with the larger prison chambers by a low, narrow tunnel, running through walls four feet thick. This tunnel, before the transfer of the old fort, had been blocked with masonry—perhaps to conceal from the new owners the testimony of atrocious cruelty, or perhaps the tunnel was blocked at a far earlier period.

The first of these dungeons, which you examine by lantern light, is about 7 feet by 20 and 15 feet high. Its length fitted it for the use of the rack and its seclusion prevented the groans and shrieks of the tortured from being heard, except, perhaps, as they might faintly reach through the tunnel the chained prisoners in the outer chamber to strike further terror to their fainting souls. There is a small passage for ventilation in the roof and it was this that after many years caused the break that led to the discovery of the torture chamber.

It is with a shuddering realization of the possibilities of Spanish ferocity when in unbridled power that one emerges from these dark, stone-walled dungeons and greets the outer sunshine with a gasp of relief.

Taxation in the Philippines

When one studies the system of taxation in the Philippines the wonder is, not that there is a revolution there, but that there have not been revolutions galore.

Probably the world has no parallel of such excessive taxation. The ingenuity of the Spaniard has spent itself in devising new methods of imposing taxes. He has reduced it now to so scientific a basis that at the end of the year the poor native finds himself indebted to the government after having had all his property confiscated, in other words the taxes are invariably greater than the value of his property.

Every native in the Philippines pays a poll tax. The men pay $20 per year and the women $15. The Chinese are subjects of special taxation. They pay $28 per year per head for the offense of being a Chinese.

The one great overwhelming passion of the Philippine native is to spend as much of his time as possible at cock fights. All cock fights pay $2 each, to the tax collector. A man must pay $1 per month to own a fighting cock.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MODEL DAIRY FARM.

MILK FOR DELICATE STOMACHS.

Methods Employed in a DeKalb, Ill., Farm for Producing Pure Milk.

DeKalb county, Illinois, has a model dairy farm, which has attracted considerable attention from different sections of the country. The entire milk output of the farm is utilized for the requirements of nursing mothers and invalids. The methods and processes by which absolutely pure milk is produced are said to be different from those of any dairy in the United States. Last fall a delegation of physicians from Vermont visited the farm in order to acquaint themselves with the plan followed and authorities from other sections of the country have been likewise interested.

The farm embraces 360 acres, four miles southwest of DeKalb. Here is kept a herd of 100 crossed Jersey, Holstein and Durham cows.

The first precaution taken on this farm is to be sure that a cow is free from disease. Before she is permitted to run with the herd she is treated for tuberculosis.

They are pastured as long as there is grass, after which they are fed on selected dry food. This consists mostly of ensilage, by which term is known a mixture of corn ground up fine with the cob, husk and stalk and then stored in silos. The ensilage is dampened as it is packed and it said to form the most nutritious of cow foods.

The cows are milked at 3 o'clock in the morning and at 3 in the afternoon. Each cow upon being stabled is curried. The man who does this work is not allowed to do any milking. He is followed by another employe carrying a pail of water and a huge sponge with which he thoroughly cleanses the udder of each cow, after which she is ready to be milked. The milkers are all dressed in spotlessly clean uniforms of white duck and no one is allowed to begin milking until he has washed his hands and donned his uniform. The milkers carry two pails, into one of which the first three or four spoonfuls of milk are forced. This is rejected from the food supply. The remainder of the milking is turned into the other bucket, which has been constructed after a special design. The top of the pail is provided with a straining contrivance made of two layers of muslin, between which has been placed a layer of fine cotton batting. The milk passes through this strainer into the bottom of the pail, from which it is poured through another strainer of fine wire, fixed into the top of an eight-gallon can a row of which stands outside the barn waiting to be filled as the milking of the herd progresses.

Each cow in the stable is numbered and as she is milked the product is weighed and the amount in pounds is credited to her on a daily sheet prepared for the purpose. Each cow is charged with the number of pounds of food she consumes.

The big cans into which the milk has been strained are carried to the separating room, where, by machinery, the milk and cream are separated in order to ascertain the per cent. of fats and also to further cleanse the product. The milk is then run into the cream again and afterward cooled. The milk is then bottled in quart bottles, which are sealed with the date on which the product is bottled, indicated in the cap. The bottles are placed in a box, covered with a thick layer of cracked ice and in this condition the milk is received and delivered in Chicago.

One thousand pounds of milk is taken from this herd at a single milking and the whole of it is consumed by Chicago babes and invalids.

Our Butter in Europe.

Europe has thrown back on the hands of American exporters a few lots of butter recently shipped across the Atlantic. The return of this creates a ripple, but must in no wise discourage the efforts to build up our foreign trade to large proportions. One lot came back because originally shipped in packages objectionable to the English trade; another lot of cheap butter, which probably should have been kept at home, is returned for a better market. But there is a lesson in the incident. In order to greatly extend the foreign outlet for one of our greatest staples, the keenest discernment must be observed, all the way from producing the milk and converting it into butter, to the final placing of the product on the European markets. Butter from our western creameries will yet secure a permanent foothold abroad.

Caught a Turkey.

We learn that Mr. M. H. Jackson and another man connected with the lumber road near Centre Bluff, went down to the river a few days ago and saw a wild turkey gobbler swimming across the stream. They jumped into a canoe and pursued the turkey and caught him just before he reached shore. The turkey could not fly up from the water and made a hard effort to reach shore.
