Tetter on the Hands.

For several years I was a sufferer from Tetter on my hands. It would come in little watery pimples, and the itching was almost more than I could stand. The skin was tender and the itching would swell so I could hardly bend my fingers. Sometimes my hands would become perfectly raw from the scratching or breaking of the pimples. When I was in this condition I tried one-half dozen bottles of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and some Wash in 1884, and by the time I took it my hands were cured, and I am now well of the trouble. It has since broken out a little at times, but not enough to inconvenience me or make me try more medicine. I am now well.

WHITE MEN'S RALLY.

Two Fine Democratic Speeches.

Not since the days of the lamented Zeb Vance has Greenville had such Democratic speeches as those delivered here at the white men's rally on Wednesday, by Capt. Swift Galloway, of Snow Hill, and Hon. C. B. Aycock, of Goldsboro. Such an assemblage as met in the Court House indicates the interest that the people are taking in the issues that confront them today. That they are tired of corrupt administration under which we are living is manifest, and they are determined to come together and restore good government and white supremacy.

Hon. D. C. Moore, of Bethel, introduced Capt. Galloway, who spoke for an hour. He said good government could be looked for through no other source than the Democratic party. He referred to the promises of the Republican-Populist combination and showed how all of them had been broken. They promised to lower taxes, but no taxes have been lowered. They promised to reduce the salaries of public officers, and not a salary has been reduced. They promised to reduce the number of offices, but have been constantly increasing and multiplying them to make room for more pie hunters. They promised to raise the price of cotton and other farm products, while prices have almost steadily declined.

About the only reason the Populists could give for fusing with the Republicans was that they wanted a better election law. Do you think they got this? Make your own comparison and see the difference. Some say they left the Democratic party because of Cleveland's attitude on the money question. Then why did not they come back when the party repudiated Cleveland. The Democratic party is the true advocate of free silver and the very principles the Populists claim to espouse, then why do they not come back and help secure these instead of fusing with a party entirely at variance with these principles.

Capt. Galloway then took up the record of the fusion Legislature and showed how it was dominated by corporations and railroads and had been controlled by them. He also paid his respects to the corruption in the management of the penitentiary and the failure of any report to be made. His comparisons were strong and forcible and he was frequently applauded.

Hon. F. G. James introduced Mr. Aycock as the next Governor of North Carolina.

Mr. Aycock said that he did not aspire to be Governor, that there were far more pleasant things than being Governor, and the most honorable of all was to be a true, straightforward Democrat. There is no combination of parties that will give us good government. You need not look for it only through the Democratic party. The Democratic party is the custodian of the principle of free silver. He said the Democrats and Populists were agreed on the question of silver, and while both were working for the election of Bryan two years ago the Populists were at the same time fusing with the Republicans and supporting men directly opposed to free silver. He referred to the proposition recently made by the Populists to the Democrats and its refusal by the latter, and said he was forever opposed to the Democrats fusing with any party. (Great applause.) He believed in a firm declaration of principles and a straight fight for them.

The proposition embodied in the letters of Senator Butler, Senator

Jones and Mr. Bryan was to unify the people of all parties who believe in the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. That was the test. When that Populist committee in Raleigh approached the Democratic committee did it make free silver the test? Not at all. They said if you endorse the present system of county government, the present election law, this thing and that thing, and then favor free silver, we are ready to treat with you. Let me for one say that I don't favor the present system of county government. I don't favor any system that puts Greenville under the control of negro Councilmen.

Mr. Aycock then took a comparison of the Democratic and fusion administrations and showed the difference between them, using the report of the Populist Auditor and showed that with all the boasted economy of the fusionists, they had been spending over $100,000 a year more than the Democrats spent. He read the opinion of the Caucasian on the last fusion Legislature which said it was a "damnable disgrace to the State." He also read extracts from the Progressive Farmer showing the incompetence of the last Legislature and that the people's money was squandered to pay political reward.

He then referred to the fact of North Carolina, with a majority of white citizens being under the domination of a minority race. He said he did not so much blame the negroes for having an ambition to get on top and rule, but he did blame the million and a half white people for submitting to it. The Anglo Saxon race are the natural rulers, and the negro himself knows it is better for him and better for the State for white men to control its government. White men ought to rule and they will rule.

Said the speaker, I was recently going from one town to another and a young negro man was driving for me. I asked if he could tell me why he voted the Republican ticket? "Cause dat's my color," was his reply. Then I asked him what he thought a white man ought to do? The negro stammered that "seems to me, seh, dat he order vote de Democrat ticket, 'cause dat's his color." There you have the situation exactly. No one draws the color line so closely as the negro himself. Let a negro vote the Democratic ticket and his race cuts his acquaintance and has nothing more to do with him. The negroes are going to stand together and vote the same way. Can white men afford to do less? Any negro who votes the Democratic ticket is called "a sorry nigger," then what can you think of a white man who votes anything but the Democratic ticket?

THE REFLECTOR has given only a brief synopsis of the speeches, touching here and there on what was said. Both were good, and since the days of Vance no such speech has been delivered in Pitt county as Mr. Aycock's. In fact he is by many called "the second Zeb Vance." His speech was sound and convincing and held the closest attention. Some men who had strayed off in the past were heard to say after the speech that they could never again vote anything but a Democratic ticket, that they were white men and would show themselves such. There was much enthusiasm during the speeches.

I wish to announce that I have not found my spectacles that were taken from my work on April 8th, 98. The report is false saying I have found them, any one giving me any information concerning them will be liberally rewarded. MRS. M. L. PILLET, Washington, N. C.

News Reading 't Dawson

Claude Smith tells a novel story about the way the news of the blowing up of the Maine was received in Dawson City. An enterprising Yankee got hold of the first copy of a newspaper containing the account. He made arrangements for getting the news abroad in this business-like fashion:

Renting vacant saloon building, he caused bulletins to be issued giving an inkling of the character of the news that had been received, most judiciously received, and announcing that the full account would be read in public in the mammoth one story log ed place next the Blue Ruin Dive, on Brimstone street; admission two pennyweights of gold, ranging in value from $1 to $1.75.

At the appointed time the miners gathered to hear the news and 200 or more of them tossed their gold dust into the doorkeeper's scales and crowded inside. The reading was satisfactory, if the news was not, and there was no grumbling about the investment. No less than $300, and probably much more, was realized from the idea. The reader was a liberal sort of chap, and he read the other news in the paper merely as a courtesy to the assembly.

This practice grew as the nation neared war, and after the war began, and it is a frequent occurrence for a public reading of important news to be given in Dawson at so much per head for admission. And the cooped up men pay for nothing more liberally war news. Their liberality in this matter is sometimes taken advantage of, and stale stuff palmed off for news, and even the Dawson City public, and is strongly disposed to resent the swindle.—Portland Oregonian.

Japan has a better educational system than North Carolina—ten times better. That kingdom has children. We will have such a system not many years hence. It seems afar off; but when the people have been aroused, it will come with a mighty swing.—Biblical Recorder.

Hold Up the Chairman's Hands

From outward appearances Chairman Simmons and his assistants are beginning the work of the campaign in behalf of the Democratic party in a very systematic manner. They announce that they have a definite plan of action, a plan which there is reason to believe is far reaching, and it is to be hoped that in carrying it out they will have the active support of all Democrats. It is of the utmost importance, in every point of view, that North Carolina should be relieved of the incubus of misgovernment which fusion has put upon her. The reign of corruption, extravagance and incompetency which prevails is not only intolerable in its immediate results, but it affords a spectacle which cannot but have an evil effect upon the youth of the State. The case is one which rises above politics; the peace and prosperity of all the people and the good name and future well-being of the Commonwealth are involved in the contest of this year. There is no safety for our people, no hope for the future, apart from the success of the Democratic party. Let us hope, therefore, that this party will be wise in its nominations and in all respects demean itself during the campaign as to arouse the enthusiasm of its own voters and command the respect of its enemies.
Its chosen officers deserve to have their hands held up by all good party men, and we hope that Chairman Simmons will have the cordial cooperation of the party in every county, in the earnest and single hearted effort which he is making and will make to pull us out of the Slough of Despair into which we have unhappily fallen.—Charlotte Observer.

Falsely Accused of Cowardice

Because his comrades taunted him with cowardice, William Mc Comas, a private in Company D, Second United States Regular Infantry, a survivor of the battle of Santiago, committed suicide by leaping from a steamer at the government wharf at Fort Monroe.
The rash act was committed several days ago, but nothing was known of it until today, when the body was washed ashore and a lady recognized it as that of a man she had seen leap into the water.

McComas was accidentally shot in the hand, suffering the loss of two fingers, afterward he was in the battle of Santiago, and as his nude body lay in the dead house today those who taunted him with having shot his fingers off to escape duty, saw by the terrible wound in his chest made by a Mauser bullet how cruelly they had been mistaken.

On the way up from Santiago the report became noised about that McComas' wound was purposely made and the thing so preyed upon his mind that shortly after his arrival at the field hospital here, he took his life.—Norfolk Dispatch, July 30th.

A Masonic Apron 150 Years Old

Mr. A. G. Hankins, of Wilmington, has shown the Messenger a most interesting and valuable relic: It was a master Mason's apron at least 150 years old. The front part of the apron was made of a fine and beautiful piece of white silk and the emblems were most artistically wrought upon it.

The silk in some places has split from old age and the old relic requires careful handling. The back is a piece of brown linen and it is remarkably well preserved. The old relic was handed down to Mrs. Hankins by her father, Colonel Josiah Thomas, of Smithfield, Va.—Wilmington Messenger.

HOW DRINK AFFECTS.

I will, kind reader, your attention claim, To show how drink affects the human frame.
 It swells the liver to enormous size,
 And gives the toper jaundiced face and eyes.
 The stomach also gets diseased by drink,
 Its coatings thicken and its foldings shrink;
 The gastric fluid soon its strength doth lose,
 And bilious toppers solid food refuse, Till tremors strong their feeble members seize, Relax their nerves and lead to heart disease.
 But most of all does drink affect the brain And often ends by making man insane.
 What would old Socrates and Plato say Could they return to enjoy the light of day And see us, Christians, Nature's gifts abuse, Indulge the beastly appetites, and lose,
 For vile indulgence, health and wealth and life, Exchanging peace and happiness for strife?

TRUE MORAL STRENGTH.

No Manliness in Adhering to Virtues Which Are in Harmony With the Disposition.

It is not only unmanly, says Charles Follen Palmer in "Inebriety," but mean-spirited, for the intemperate man to declare that, although he is weak on the one point of getting drunk, he is especially strong on other temptations; that, although he gives away to inebriety, he does not do so in other vices, such as gambling, lying, stealing, taking undue advantages of another in a bargain, scandal-mongering, bearing false witness, adultery and the like. He deceives himself and attempts to deceive others when he says so, for he knows that he does not exercise any strong force of moral resistance to these, and that the reason he does not yield to them is because he has no strong tendencies or inclinations in such directions. If they possessed one-half the power over him that drink does, he would yield to every one of them. There is no manliness in adhering to virtues which are in harmony with the disposition—no moral advancement whatever; for it might be harder to gamble than not to gamble, to take advantage of another than not to do so, to commit adultery than to subdue the prudent fear of consequences, to steal than not to steal.

The truth is that he will exhibit greater moral strength in fighting against his one great temptation, drink, than in any other direction, and it is in this one direction that his restoration to the full stature of man is to come.

The temperance zealot, lacking the appetite or desire for liquor, may be much less the man, as far as drink goes, than the inebriate who resists his craving for drink five times out of ten; and so it is with every virtue in the calendar. We are only strengthened, developed, and made rightful claimants and possessors of the title and dignity of manhood by our successful fightings with every form of weakness.

A large number of men and women go through life with the credit of being manly men and moral women, who have never had the temptation sufficiently strong and potent for a kitten not to resist on the score of impropriety, and who yet fall to resist even these.

Crime and Drink.

I think it would astonish many persons, says the Lord Chief Justice of England, if they knew how large a proportion of crime is traceable, directly or indirectly, to drink. I am almost afraid to name the proportion, but my own impression is, derived from constant experience in every county in England, that more than one-half of the crimes that are brought before us are to be ascribed to the influence of drink—sometimes the influence of drink upon the guilty person, sometimes the influence of drink upon the victim. The condition of the victim tempts the criminal into crime.

Effect of Music on Hair.

An English statistician has recently been engaged in an original task, that of studying the influence of music on the hair. The investigator establishes, in the first place, that the proportion of bald persons is 11 per cent. for the liberal professions in general, with the exception of physicians, who appear to hold the record for baldness, which is 30 per cent. Musical composers do not form an exception to the rule and baldness is as frequent among them as in the other professions. The cornet-a-piston and the French horn act with surprising surety and rapidity; but the trombone is the depilatory instrument par excellence. It will clear the hair from one's head in five years. It is what the author calls "baldness of the fanfares," which rages with special violence among regimental bands.

J. C. Lanier for Register of Deeds

GRINDOOL, N. C. Aug. 3rd 1898.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

The time is approaching when the Democracy of Pitt county will be called upon to nominate candidates for the various county offices, and it should be the desire of all to nominate the strongest and best men in the party. After carefully surveying the field, I have selected a man for Register of Deeds, who, if the convention will nominate, I feel sure will lead us to victory. He is a Democrat and a gentleman in every particular, and one whom ought not to be brought against and is well known throughout the county and would faithfully discharge the duties of the office. The gentleman to whom I refer is J. C. Lanier, of Greenville. We respectfully submit his name to the coming Democratic convention of Pitt county.
