THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1898.

The following is from the Tuscaloosa, Ala., Chronicle, a paper edited by a colored man. It shows he has sense and the courage to speak out his convictions. He gives his race some sound advice that they would do well to heed. The Chronicle says:

"The white people of Alabama are getting closer and closer together. Democratic doctrines have practically absorbed the Populist party. The whites are almost solidly united. It is the duty of every sensible negro to fall in line with the best whites in all matters of business and politics. Blood is thicker than water. When white men divide and fall out the negro generally gets the bad end of the bargain. Keep in touch with the best people. Therein lies the hope and real substantial progress of the negro. The North Carolina negro expected aid from the McKinley administration, but it was the old story of 'forty acres and a mule.' Russell the Republican Governor of North Carolina, had an ague and left Mr. Coon to shift for himself. Whenever a white man of the South works against the Democratic party he has a wheel in his head and is a bad fellow for colored men to follow. No man has yet seen the time when a few disgruntled white men and ebony politicians could for any length of time contest any part of the South."

It has been no great while since many people of North Carolina were raving over the New York Journal and were singing the praise of that paper. They regarded it as a great paper and it had considerable patronage in this State. Now let those who have been so carried away over that yellow journal read the following comment it makes upon the recent race troubles in North Carolina, and see if they can longer patronize a paper that expresses such a vile slander against our State. The Journal says:

"The primary cause of the disturbance is not 'ineradicable' race prejudice, but greed, lust for office and abominable self-conceit. The negro of the South has developed wonderfully well during the few years since his emancipation, and in some instances he stands to day on a higher moral and mental plane than the poorer class of the white people. In spite of the obstacles that have been thrown in his way, he has persistently forged ahead, and wherever a helping hand has been extended his progress has been wondrously rapid. If this generation still finds him too weak to cope with the arrogance and brutality of his white neighbors in the next he will doubtless be able to assert his rights."

Clean Blood is Beauty.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Clean to-day to banish pimples, blotches, blackheads and that sickly, bilious complexion by taking Cascarets—beauty for cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed. 10c, 25c, 50c.

The Concealed-Weapon Law

It was stated in our Raleigh correspondence yesterday that Attorney General Walsler in his report to the Legislature will recommend that the carrying of concealed weapons be made a felony instead of a misdemeanor. If anything at all is done with that law it should, instead of being made more stringent, be repealed. Its practical results are exactly the contrary of those intended. It disarms the law-abiding citizen and leaves him at the mercy of the lawless. There is no person who is criminal at heart who pays the slightest heed to it, it restrains none of this class. But above and beyond that, it violates the spirit of our institutions. It is no more the business of the law to say that a man shall not carry a pistol in his pocket than it is to say that he shall not carry an Irish potato. It has the right to hold him responsible for its improper use, but it is not right to punish him for the mere having of it. His right to have it is a natural right and the law forbidding his carrying it is an unwarrantable invasion of his personal liberty. This liberty has been too far invaded when the citizen is forbidden to carry his pistol and doing so is a misdemeanor. The Legislature will hardly hear a suggestion that the offence be made a felony.—Charlotte Observer.

The Government Crediting the Claims of States on Old Accounts.

The Comptroller of the Treasury today settled the claim of Virginia for $3,000 for money expended in fitting out troops for the late war by giving the State credit for that amount on what it owes the national government. Virginia State bonds are held by the government to the amount of $593,000, which the State has long owed the government. Consequently when it presented the bill for $3,000 the Comptroller seized the opportunity to partly cancel the State's obligation by crediting it with that amount, leaving $590,000 still due. Other States owe money to the general government in sums running from a few thousand to a half million. Among them are North Carolina, Arkansas, South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee and Texas, the entire indebtedness, including that of Virginia, being $1,085,000. When these States send in their bills they will be paid in the same manner as Virginia.—Washington Dispatch, 21st.

To Fruit Growers.

Our peach and apple crop is often lost by mild weather in February and March forcing the buds into blooms and then coming a late frost destroying the crop. An experiment has been tried by white washing the trees during these months with lime, and the experiment has proven successful to a large extent. It is a principle of philosophy that white reflects rather than absorbs the sun's rays, and hence the white washing prevents to a certain extent the heat of the sun from acting upon the trees, and thus prolongs the time of blossoming. It is an experiment worthy of trying. A good thick coat of lime washing may save an entire crop of peaches and apples, and the expense would be very little. And in addition to that, if, during the winter when snows come, large quantities of snow be piled and packed about the roots of the trees, and covered with leaves or straw, it would keep the ground about the trees colder much later in the spring. With both these experiments, there is no doubt that the blooming period could be kept back until all dangers of frosts were entirely past. Let our people try it.—The Chronicle.

Now we find Richmond, Virginia, full of aspirations to become a shipbuilding center. President Trigg, of the Richmond Locomotive Works, secured contracts for a million dollars worth of torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers. He has already organized a $300,000 stock company to equip a shipbuilding plant in which to build these vessels, and it is hoped that it will become the nucleus of a great shipbuilding plant capable of constructing the largest and most powerful ships of war and of commerce.

They Say.

That when a woman weeps scalding tears, she is boiling over with rage.
That a gossip is a woman who can make five by putting two and two together.
That man is a slave to the almighty dollar, and woman to the 98-cent bargain column.
That some women are so timid that they are always several years shy when it comes their age.
That the first thing a man does in the morning is to feel for his pocketbook, and the first thing a woman does is to look in the mirror.
That most men have two objects in life—one is to become rich, and the other richer.
That some men are like phonographs; they talk a great deal and never say anything original.
That some men are not satisfied to remain at the bottom of the ladder; they try to get further down.
That if the hairs of our head are numbered, the bald-headed contingent will bless the man who can supply the back numbers.
That love is a disease that most people take just as often as they are exposed.
That when a young man proposes, the girl should always lose her self-possession.
That girls admire a drooping mustache, especially when it happens to droop their way.

TONSILITIS

CAN BE CURED BY USING

Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

For a long time my son was troubled with some bronchial disease, which every time he took cold, settled in his throat and produced something like tonsillitis. The tonsils would enlarge and swell so that he had great trouble to swallow anything, and could take no solid food. Last spring he took half dozen bottles of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, and gargled his throat with the wash, and it cured him. He has never had a spell since. MRS. J. STINSON

A CITY NIGHT.

Come, let us forth and wander the rich, the murmuring night. The sky blue dusk of summer trembles above the street. On either side uprising glimmer houses pale. But me the turbulent bubble and voice of crowds delight. For me the wheels make music, the mingled cries are sweet. Motion and laughter call; we hear, we will not fall.

For see, in secret vista, with soft, retiring stars. With clustered suns, that stare upon the throng below. With pendant dazzling moons, that cast a noonday white. The full streets beckon. Come, for toll has burst his bars. And idle eyes rejoice, and feet unhalting go. Oh, let us out and wander the gay and golden night.

THE MYSTERY OF DREAMS.

What Can Flit Through a Man's Brain in One Minute.

It is very certain that the majority of dreams are only of momentary duration, though extended occasionally to the length of a minute.

In proof of this Dr. Sholz tells the following story from his experience: "After excessive bodily fatigue and a day of mental strain of a not disagreeable kind I betook myself to bed after I had wound my watch and placed it on the night table. Then I lay down beside a burning lamp. Soon I found myself on the high sea on board a well known ship. I was again young and stood on the lookout. I heard the roar of water, and golden clouds floated around me. How long I stood so I did not know, but it seemed a very long time.

"Then the scene changed. I was in the country, and my long lost parents came to greet me. They sent me to church, where the loud organ sounded. I was delighted, but at the same time wondered to see my wife and children there. The priest mounted the pulpit and preached, but I could not understand what he said for the sound of the organ, which continued to play. I took my son by the hand, and with him ascended the church tower, but again the scene changed. Instead of being near my son I stood near an early known but long dead officer. I ought to explain that I was an army surgeon during the maneuvers. I was wondering why the major should look so young, when quite close to my ears a cannon sounded.

"Terrified, I was hurrying off, when I woke up and noticed that the supposed cannon shot had its cause in the opening of the bedroom door, through some one entering. It was as if I had lived through an eternity in my dream, but when I looked at my watch I saw that since I had fallen asleep not more than one minute had elapsed—a much shorter time than it takes to relate the occurrence."—St. Louis Republic.

THE SPEED OF A SHIP

METHODS BY WHICH ITS KNOTS PER HOUR ARE MEASURED.

An Interesting Description of the Mechanism and Use of the Log, With a Truthful Red Sea Shark Story Attachment.

"How do you ascertain the speed of a vessel?" is a question frequently addressed to naval men, and an explanation will therefore probably be of interest to many readers. There are several methods, the commonest and most ancient being by the use of the "log." This instrument consists of three parts—the logship, the line and the marks. The logship is a piece of wood about half an inch thick and shaped like a quadrant, with a piece of lead let in round the circular edge to make it float perpendicularly in the water. It is hung by lines at each angle, the three lines being joined together about two feet from the logship. Two of the lines are securely fixed to the ship and the other has a bone peg at the end, which, being pushed into a hole in the ship, temporarily fastens it there.

From the point of juncture of the three lines a sufficient length is measured, generally about 100 feet, to take the logship well clear of the ship's wash. This is called the "stray line" and is marked with a piece of bunting. From the bunting is measured 47 feet 3 inches, and the line marked here with a piece of leather. Then another 47 feet 3 inches is measured off and marked with two knots, then another space the same length, and marked with three knots, and so on as far as seven knots. Halfway between each batch of knots one single knot is made. The log line is then ready for use.

The space between the knots is found from the simple little rule of three sum: As 3,600 seconds (number of seconds in an hour), 28 seconds (length of sand-glass), 6,080 feet (number of feet in a nautical mile); length of line required—which works out to 47 feet 3 inches.

To use the log four persons are required—two men to hold the reel on which the line is wound; the quartermaster, to hold the glass, and the midshipman of the watch, to heave the log. The last named puts the peg firmly in the logship and then gathers three or four coils of line in his hand, sufficient to admit of the logship being thrown well clear of the ship. He asks, "Clear glass, quartermaster?"

"Clear glass, sir!" comes the reply, and overboard go the logship and line, the reel rapidly revolving. Presently the middy feels the piece of bunting passing through his hand, and he gives the order, "Turn." The quartermaster turns the glass and watches the sand while one "reeler" holds the reel well over his head, so as to give the line fair play. When the sand has run out, "Stop!" cries the quartermaster.

The midshipman grasps the line, assisted by the other reeler, and looks for the nearest knot, finding a single one close to his hand. Then the line is hauled in, and four knots appear, which signify that the ship is going four and a half knots through the water. The jerk of the line draws the peg from the logship, which now floats on its flat side and is easily hauled in. When a ship is going over four knots, a 14 second glass is used, the speed being double that shown by the knots on the line.

Another method in use is the patent log. This is altogether mechanical and consists of a long cylinder with clockwork inside it and four fins on the outside. It is towed astern of the ship by a line made fast to a swivel in the head of it. As it is dragged through the water the four fins make it revolve, actuating the clockwork inside, which registers on a series of dials the number of knots run. This log has to be hauled in every time one wants to read it, but there is another kind where the fan is towed astern and the dial is a fixture in the ship. This is called a "cherub."

These logs are not always accurate, and are constantly verified when near land by cross bearings—that is, the bearings of two well known points are taken, and the position so obtained is marked on the chart, the time of observation being noted and the reading on the patent log. After an interval has elapsed the position of the ship is again taken by cross bearings, when the straight line joining the two places on the chart will show the direction of the course steered and its length the distance run. A comparison with the readings by patent log will give the error of the machine.

To finish here is a patent log yarn, as told by an old seaman. I give it in his own words: "When in the Crocodile in the Red sea, just after taking the reading one night at 8 o'clock, the quartermaster reported, 'Shark taken the patent log, sir!' I got another one over at once. At 9:30 next morning we stopped for half an hour. To amuse the ladies I tried for and caught a shark. On opening him we found our patent log and," he added gravely, "strange to say, it registered the same as the one in use. The line had jammed between his teeth, the fan working all the time he followed the ship. He had swum just 122 7/10 miles."—Navy and Army Illustrated.

In 1768 27,000,000 feet of line was shipped from Boston and sent to England, to say nothing of the "cherubs" which were sent to other countries.
