NEEDS TO BE ENLARGED.

Or Inconvenience May Follow.

The railroad people usually know their business better than other people can tell them, but at the same time people on the outside can sometimes see when a mistake is made or about to be made. There are some excellent improvements now going on around the depot that everybody is glad to see, but it is plain to a close observer that in the midst of these improvements one mistake is about to be made. The plan is laid out for a new baggage room, only 12x16 feet, near the passenger depot. A baggage room that size will be entirely too small for the needs of this station and will not begin to hold the large amount of baggage handled here. THE REFLECTOR reporter is about the depot twice a day and has several times noticed the quantity of baggage being transferred. Wednesday morning we counted twenty large trunks besides many smaller pieces, and it often occurs that the number is even greater than this. Any one can see that a room 12x16 will not accommodate so much baggage, and it would be wise to make the room larger while it is being built instead of having to enlarge it later.

A Million Dollar Deed.

There was recorded in Halifax a few days ago a deed whose figures stood $1,952,672.50. It was a deed executed Nov. 21, 1898, by the Petersburg Railroad Company to the Richmond and Petersburg Railroad Company. It had upon it $2,000 worth of revenue stamps—40 stamps of $50 each. The deed had to be recorded in every county through which the railroad runs.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 5, 1899.

No doubt the Republican Lieutenant Governor presiding over the Democratic Senate will have something akin to a lonesome feeling.

The House of Representatives certainly reflected credit upon itself in selecting Hon. H. G. Connor for Speaker. Judge Connor served nearly two terms on the Superior Court bench and impressed every one with his ability, dignity and impartiality. He will fill the position of Speaker of the House with honor to himself and the State. He had able competitors for the Speakership in the person of Hon. Lee S. Overman, of Rowan, and Hon. Locke Craig, of Buncombe, and may well feel honored in being chosen over two such men on the first ballot. Excellent selections were also made for other officers of the House and also of the Senate.

Cut Down The Fees.

The Legislature when it meets is expected to do much more than it, or any other Legislature, can do. But one thing it can do, and that is reduce some of the fees now paid to our officers. This is wherein our fusion legislators most signally failed to do their duty and to fulfill their oft-repeated promises.

Everybody remembers one of the favorite campaign cries of the so-called "reformers" was the promise to "reduce all fees and salaries to correspond with the low prices of farm products." They complained loudly that our public officials were receiving as much for their work as they ever did, while the farmers were not receiving over half as much for their work. But when these pretended "reformers" got the power to keep their promise they signally failed to do so, and did not reduce any fees or salaries.

Now, while the members of our Democratic Legislature did not make any such promise in the last campaign, yet we would impress upon them the propriety of carefully considering the fees allowed all our public officers and reducing all that seem proper to reduce. And there is no doubt that many fees ought to be reduced. A special committee on the reduction of fees and salaries ought to be appointed by the Legislature and our present fee-bills carefully scanned so that proper reductions may be made.—Chatham Record.

The Wife and Her Husband's Business.

"It is a cause of amazement to me that a man can go on, year in and year out, toiling for a family whose members show no interest in his work further than to spend the money he makes, and who look upon him as the family mint," writes Frances Evans in the January Ladies' Home Journal. "My firm belief is that had he, in the first flush of married life, talked over his business and ambitions with his wife, she would have become interested in both, first for his sake, and afterward for her own and their children's. Think of the gulf that lies between a man and woman united in marriage when he never speaks at home of the affairs which absorb his entire day! Mutual interests will bind people together indissolubly even when indifference, that dangerous bridge of sighs, has swallowed up affection."

He Wanted Pay.

A man came in from some distance in the country this morning who reported to the clerk of the Superior Court that he had been summoned by a deputy sheriff to attend court as a juror.

He was told that Court was on the first Monday in last month. He said that was all right, but he had been summoned to appear on the first Monday in January and said he was prepared to swear to it and to prove it. He said he did not know when the courts were held and was particular to ask when he should come.

He was turned over to Sheriff Hoskins, as it was one of his deputies who summoned him. His name was on the December list, but he failed to appear and nothing was done about it.—Greensboro Record.

To those who live in communities where all can find employment all the time, it sometimes seems strange that people should anywhere be forced to beg for employment. And few of the persons in any community who find constant employment at the hands of others fully appreciate the fact that where they have a mind to labor they can do so and receive pay for it. In the large cities many persons who are cold and hungry in these winter days would be glad, indeed, to have the opportunity to labor every day for food and only a little more. The possibility of constant employment for those who are dependent on their labor, is a privilege which many laborers do not properly appreciate.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Has A Remedy Been Found.

The trusts are about to take the country. Hardly a week passes that the formation of a new one isn't announced. The people are entirely at their mercy in the absence, as at present, of legal restraints, either as to the price they choose to exact for their products or the quality of it. We mentioned in the last issue of The Landmark the inferior quality of the kerosene oil which is now being sold in this town, but the Standard Oil Company controls this product and if complaint were made to it, it would perhaps snap its fingers in the face of the customer and ask him, "What are you going to do about it?" He isn't going to do anything at all because he can't; he will use Standard Oil kerosene or he won't use any at all. So with hundreds of other articles, some of them the very necessities of life. The subject is suggested by reading the decision of a local court in Missouri last week which goes very nearly to the root of the trust evil. It is, in brief, that an organization formed upon any article, for the purpose of controlling its price, cannot, under the laws of Missouri, collect a debt. That is taking a pretty strong hold, and some objections may be found to this method of dealing with the trusts, on the grounds of morals, but it may be justified as a matter of fighting the devil with fire. If this Missouri decision will stick, every State in the Union might well adopt the Missouri anti-trust law, and by its application these iniquitous organizations would at last be reached and broken up, for even a trust cannot hope to do a spot cash business when the creditor did not have to pay, would be entirely too risky.—Statesville Landmark.

Few Class Distinctions in Siberia.
There is not much caste or class distinction in Siberia, and the few social rules are lax. The Russian Siberians mingle freely with the native tribes, and their customs and habits have, in consequence, been considerably modified. I have often seen groups of boys playing on the street where the Kirghiz or Bariat boys were mixed indiscriminately with the Russians. From their dress or language it was impossible to distinguish them, for both costume and language were a strange mixture. Only the peculiar features of the native or the more slovenly appearance of the Russian would betray the slightest difference. It is an old saying that you "scratch a Russian and find a Tartar." It might be more appropriately said—at least, of the Russian peasant—that you scrape the dirt off a Russian and find a clean Tartar, for the latter are decidedly the more cleanly.—St. Nicholas.

STUCK IN THE SNOW.

Dangers of Traveling by Sledge in Siberia in Winter.

Traveling by sledge in Siberia in winter has its perils, as the experience of Mr. Robert L. Jefferson and his friends goes to illustrate. The incident is told in "Roughing It In Siberia."

We had chartered six sorry looking horses to drag us on to the next stage. It was night when we started. The driver, mandrin drunk, had to be helped to his seat, and we set off along the narrow roadway at the usual gallop, which, however, soon dwindled into a mere shuffle through the snow. We had gone to sleep, and some hours after our departure Gaskell woke me and said he thought something was wrong.

The sledge was at a standstill, and our shouts to the yemshik brought no response. Black darkness prevailed. I huddled out of the sledge, so benumbed that I could scarcely move. I felt along the sledge, sinking to my knees in the snow.

The driver's perch was empty, and just then I stumbled over one of the horses, which was lying buried up to its neck. It was clear that the driver had fallen from his seat, and that the horses had wandered from the track. The poor beasts were stuck fast, and a closer inspection showed one of them to be dead, literally frozen to death. If we would save ourselves from the same fate, prompt action was necessary.

The other horses were nearly succumbing. They lay flat on their stomachs and nibbled at the snow. We cut the dead animal adrift, and, using the spare rope as whips, we stood on either side of the living and lashed them till our arms ached. At length they moved, and by pushing and pulling we got the sledge turned. Then, step by step, with much floundering and many falls, we began to retrace our way.

All this in pitch darkness in a raw, cold wind and in momentary expectation of one or all of the horses dropping dead.

It was a terrible experience, but we regained the road and finally reached the village.

RILEY'S JOKES.

The Hoosier Poet Talks Interestingly to a Reporter.

The Hoosier Poet was busy when the Tales of the Town man called upon him.

"Glad you came in," he said. "Not that I've been—but that's General New's story. General New of the Indianapolis Journal called on General Grant during the latter's first term and found the president warrior laughing heartily. Of course New looked as though he wanted to know the reason, and the general told him. He said he'd just had a call from an old friend who lived in Galena, Ills., one of his early day acquaintances, who said he'd been in Washington for two or three days, but had been so busy that he was unable to call upon his old friend, the president, any sooner, and he apologized for the delay. General Grant looked at him in his comical fashion and gravely said:

"Well, John, I haven't been lonesome!"

"You see, the visit occurred at a time when the president was being harassed to death by callers from all directions, who had driven him nearly to distraction.

"A man who travels a good deal comes to know towns because of certain points that are usually entirely personal with him. Sometimes a bad hotel, sometimes an extremely early train, will stamp a characteristic on a town. I remember that my old friend Bill Nye was once chatting with Senator Shirley of Maine and remarked upon the fact that he (Nye) was born at Shirley, in the senator's state, adding that the town had doubtless been named for one of the senator's ancestors.

"I didn't know," said the senator, "that there was such a town in Maine as Shirley."

"I didn't know it either," said Nye, "until I was born there!"

And the poet went on with his writing.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

History of the Spanish War

By Dr. ALBERT SHAW,

Editor of the REVIEW OF REVIEWS,

AND A LONG LIST OF NOTABLE CONTRIBUTORS.

Over 1,200 Pages and 500 Valuable Illustrations.

Three Beautiful Volumes in Half Morocco.

See special offer at bottom of this advertisement.

This Magnificent Edition for only ONE DOLLAR DOWN.

To the readers of this paper we make the following proposition to become members of the Review of Reviews History Club, and obtain the three volumes of

Our War in Two Hemispheres,

By ALBERT SHAW,

Editor of the "American Monthly Review of Reviews" and author of "Municipal Government in Great Britain," etc., and a number of prominent contributors.

EVERY American teacher possessing a library, and many that do not possess one, will be interested in the announcement of the history of the late war with Spain, now published by the REVIEW OF REVIEWS COMPANY. Much of the narrative was written by Dr. Albert Shaw during the actual fighting of the summer. This has been revised and amplified by him in the light of the official reports and documents, which have only become available after hostilities ceased. A free quotation from the critical Congressional debates and other public utterances at crucial periods aids in making this work what it is, the standard reference history of this decisive and successful struggle. But it is much more than a lively and comprehensive narrative. It goes back to the years of struggle in Cuba which prepared the way for the war; it discusses energetically all problems which confronted the United States after the war as to the Philippines, Cuba, and Porto Rico; and as a whole it forms a broadly conceived picture of the year which has seen America brought face to face with new world duties.

The important special and technical matters of the war period, generally dismissed by the historian with only slight and often insufficient discussion, are fully and authentically dealt with in contributed chapters, written by men who had unusual opportunities for studying their subjects. Thus, the lessons which the war has for us as to the relative efficiency of rifles and machine guns are in a carefully written chapter by Lieut. John H. Parker, of the United States army; the military movements of the Santiago and Porto Rican campaigns are analyzed by the editor of the Army and Navy Journal; the battle with Cervera is described by the novelist, Winston Churchill, who is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy; the actual condition of Cuba before the war and the facts which caused the war are described by eye-witnesses, Murat Halstead and Stephen Bonsal.

The illustration of the book is especially valuable in the hundreds of portraits, pictures of the navies, photographed scenes of the war, and the entertaining cartoons reproduced from the Spanish, French, German, and English papers, as well as from the American.

HE COWED THE BULLY.

Harold Frederic's Encounter With a Lordly Prussian Lieutenant.

Harold Frederic's self confidence and power of dominating strangers stood him in good stead in one of his first visits—if not his very first visit—to Berlin. The incident as he related it seemed natural enough to an American not brought up in awe of a military caste, but to those who knew Germany it was almost surprising that he came through it with his life. He had been paying some formal diplomatic calls, and in the evening dropped in at the Cafe Bauer in the unwonted glory of a frock coat and a tall silk hat. This hat was carefully hung on a hat stand, and Frederic sat down to read an English newspaper just arrived.

Enter a particularly fine specimen of the lieutenant, booted and spurred and sworded and epauletted. He brushed against the hat stand, knocked Frederic's hat over into the sawdust and swaggered to his seat without so much as looking around. The slight to the hat was more than Frederic could endure.

In a towering passion he went to the lieutenant, stood over him and pointed to the object on the floor. "Pick up that hat, sir!" he roared. The officer stared amazed; the waiters were paralyzed with terror at hearing one so much more than human so addressed by a civilian. "Pick up that hat!" repeated Frederic in a tone more menacing than before. And the lieutenant did what he was told. He was as irresistibly dominated by the courage and force of the man as a schoolboy before his master, or perhaps he thought Frederic carried the customary west American revolver.—Saturday Review.

The Danger of Disease.

The danger from a case of diphtheria in New York at any season of the year is far greater than the danger from a case of yellow fever in the same place. Still persons who would shun a street where a case of yellow fever existed would deliberately enter the apartment of a person suffering from diphtheria. A serious outbreak of typhoid fever creates but little consternation, and the presence in our midst of innumerable cases of tuberculosis, a disease which is responsible for an incredible number of deaths, is looked upon with indifference by the public. The misconception in regard to the danger from this class of diseases often renders the efforts of health officials ineffectual.—Alvah H. Doty, M. D., in North American Review.

A gentleman remarked recently that had a stranger or an outsider come to North Carolina, and made the cures among our people that Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy had made, the people would have been stirred as never before. Read this and suppose a case:

Eleven years ago I had a child that was delicate from birth, and for six months she was under constant care of the best physician we had in our town. But his medicine seemed powerless to control the bowel trouble, which had become chronic dysentery. She also suffered from some aggravated blood trouble, which caused large sores and risings to break out on her body. Oft time there would be as many as 20 or 25. We had several doctors to treat her at different times, but nothing reached her case. They would lance these risings, but as soon as one was cured another broke out, and the doctors gave me no hope of her cure. After she had led a life of agony and suffering for six months, I was inspired to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. There was a change for the better in twenty-four hours, it seemed to check the bowels at once, and after using a few bottles my child was entirely cured, and has never since had any sign of trouble and is now in perfect health. A few years after this I had two sores to break out on my ankle, and strange to say I did not think of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I was under the treatment of doctors for three years, but the sores continued to get worse until they had eaten to the bone. I then thought of trying Mrs. Joe Person's Wash and did so, and it is almost useless to say it soon made a cure.

I wish I could speak so that every man, woman and child, in North Carolina could hear, that I might tell them what Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and Wash did for me and mine. I advised one of my friends who had been a terrible sufferer for a long time, with nurses sore mouth. She used the Remedy and Wash, and it soon made a cure.

I have recommended it to ever so many of my friends, for indigestion and other ailments, and I have never known it to fail to cure yet. There is no medicine equal to it.
