OAKLEY ITEMS.

OAKLEY, N. C. March, 11th '98.
Esq. J. W. Page's entire family is sick with lagrippe.

Mr. W. A. James' family is sick with lagrippe.

Mrs. J. J. Rawls and daughter, Miss Mary, have been quite sick with lagrippe but are improving.

Our popular Dr. Warren is having his hands full. We learn he keeps four horses busy.

Our farmers are working soon and late, as they have done comparatively nothing until this week.

We learn Esq. Williams, of Oakley, had a little romance Tuesday. A messenger came after him to marry a couple, so he hooked up and went up to the county line of Martin and found them and brought them across the line in Pitt, and from his buggy made them one. They went on their way rejoicing. There was quite a crowd to witness the ceremony.

At the Opera House.

On next Thursday and Friday nights the people of Greenville will have the pleasure of listening to the Graphophone Grand, the wonder of this century at the Opera House. This machine is the only one in the South and can fill with music the largest hall in the State. The Charlotte Observer, of January 31, says of this machine:

The Grapho-Grand was heard in Charlotte for the first time by a highly pleased and appreciative audience, among which was a number of musical people. It was listened to with wonder and pleasure. The audience was favored with a variety of songs and recitations, reproductions from Sousa's Band concerts and the Bugle Calls of the Rough Riders at Santiago. The enunciation was remarkably distinct and the voices clear and full. But 54 of them have been made and this is the only one South of Baltimore. It is certainly a wonderful invention and the people of Charlotte are fortunate in that they will have an opportunity to hear it at the opera house again tonight.

Fair Warning.

Dr. J. Henry Odom, the eyespecalist of Atlanta, has been at Hotel Macon in Greenville since Jan 2nd, 1899. He now thanks the people for their liberal patronage and if there is a single person that he has treated and fitted glasses for who is not perfectly satisfied, call on him by Friday morning, March 17th, or any others who need glasses and wish to see him. He will leave Saturday morning for Williamston N. C., and will be there two weeks.

Long Suit Ended.

A suit of many years standing was disposed of in the Superior Court here last week. It was a suit for damages by W. G. Mizelle vs. L. A. McGowan and occupied three days of the court. The jury returned a verdict for the defendant. The case was tried once before with a similar verdict, but an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court and a new trial was then granted. The cost in the case amounted to several hundred dollars.

Peach and plum trees are blooming.

OVER THE COUNTRY.

The Texas Senate has rejected Governor Hogg's claim of $10,000 for collecting money due the State.

General Fitzhugh Lee has announced that he will not be a candidate for United States Senator to succeed Senator Martin.

Over 20,000 applications have been presented for the 100 second lieutenantancies in the army.

Died.

Mr. J. W. Suydam died Sunday evening about six o'clock, after an illness of several days. He was 59 years old and a painter by trade. "Tobe" Suydam, as he was familiarly known, lived in Greenville for twenty years or longer and had some warm friends here. He was married on his death bed about noon Saturday. The interment took place this afternoon in Cherry Hill cemetery.

Cuban Troops Number 48,000.

Havana, March 11.—Gen. Gomez has sent Governor General Brooke a statement of the number of men in the Cuban army. The total reaches 48,000—32,000 privates, 10,000 non-commissioned officers and the rest commissioned officers, from major generals to sub-lieutenants.

Thad Still Lamenting.

"Take up the white man's burden," said the fond father as he gathered his colicky offspring to his arms at 4 in the morning and paced the floor with him.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

Could'nt Fight Now.

If war was in progress now and Greenville should be besieged the town would fall an easy prey to the enemy. There would hardly be well arms enough to doguard duty.

Hope Fire Company meets tonight.

Court will adjourn this evening for the term.

There are arms in slings a plenty around town.

A Real Practical Test of True Love.

Under this heading Una Goldman writes to the New York Journal:

Why should a girl pledge her life on a mere chance?

She does not cannot know her lover when he makes his first appeal.

I have found a way of testing a man's love beyond doubt.

I became engaged to him on trial for two months.

If in that time he courts me for my wealth, or what my friends call my beauty, it is easy to tell.

I have not found one man yet that has stood the test, and I have been engaged seventeen times within three years.

Yet I give each one all the opportunity he could wish. I let him love me, as the absolutely engaged girl does.

The mask of formality is off and he is without restraint. Then I begin to read his character and measure his affection.

I can tell by the look in his eyes just how shallow or deep his love is.

I can see the first step in which he drops from complete devotion.

The next stage is temperate regard.

Then comes affection born of obligation.

The last stages—every girl knows them—are familiarity and careless greetings.

That is the death of true love.

Then is the time to look your lover fairly in the eyes and ask him:

"Are you the same lover who engaged yourself to me two months ago?"

I have not found one who could answer that with a sincere, passionate, soulful "Yes!"

I can tell when the warmth has gone out of his kiss.

I see with a heartache when the look of noble inspiration changes to one of baser passion.

I shrink away when the honest thrill has ceased to magnetize the arms that clasp me.

I do not believe there is a man living who can deceive an engaged girl for two months.

In the cold formalities of social acquaintanceship he may be a master in artful deceit.

But in the heart to heart communion with his affianced bride he will betray his true nature.

I have not been too critical. Indeed, I have had some delicious seasons of love-making.

"What's the use of kicking about the inequality of things," yelled the man on the front platform of the street car. "All things right themselves in time. Take ice, for example. The rich man has his in summer; the poor man gets it in winter. Some men have their roasts here on earth; others will roast after they have quit it. And there's beer. The rich can have beer with every meal; the poor man has his bier when he is dead." And then we all went into the tunnel.

One married couple in Hooper's Creek township, this county, are following the injunction to "replenish the earth." They have been married five years and during that time seven children have been born to them—two pairs of twins and triplets once.—Hendersonville Hutler.

The position of cotton weigher in the town of Monroe must be a fat job. There are seventeen candidates for the place with more expected to enter the race. There are sixteen candidates for Mayor of the same town.

An Old-Fashioned Maid.

She can peel and boil potatoes, make a salad of tomatoes, but she doesn't know a Latin noun from Greek.

And so well she cooks a chicken that your appetite 'twould quicken but she cannot tell what's modern from antique.

She knows how to set a table and make order out of Babel, but she doesn't know Euripides from Kant.

Once at making pie I caught her—Jove! an expert must have taught her—but she doesn't know true eloquence from rant.

She has a firm conviction one ought only to read fiction, and she doesn't care for science, not a bit.

And the way she makes her bonnets wear is worth a thousand sonnets, but she doesn't yearn for "culture," not a whit.

She can make her wraps and dresses and a fellow fast confesses that there's not another maiden half so sweet.

She's immersed in home completely, where she keeps all things so neatly, but from Browning not a line can she repeat.

Well, in fact she's just a woman, gentle, loving, and human, and her faults she is quite willing to admit, 'Twere foolish to have tarried, so we went off and were married, and I tell you I am mighty glad of it.—Ex.

The dollar is indeed almighty. It is the Archimedean lever that lifts the illbred man into select society and places the ignorant saphire in the U. S. Senate; it makes presidents of stuffed prophets, governors of intellectual geese, philosophers of fools and gilds inamy with supernatural glory. It wrecks the altars of innocence and pollutes the face of the people; breaks the sword of justice and binds the goddess of liberty with chains of gold. It is the lord of the land, the uncrowned king of the commonwealth.—Orange, Va., Observer.

A produce wagon from the mountains of Rutherford camped in town Sunday, having on board a 6-spurred rooster. There were three well-developed spurs on each leg right where the spurs belong.—Gastonia Gazette.

Wm. Powell, the negro with the smallpox at Conaritsa, had hardly recovered before his wife and seven children were taken with it. They live four miles from Aulander, and a half a mile from Conaritsa church. All, however, are now about well, and their house has long been quarantined, their provisions being sent to a certain place where one of the occupants would come and get them and return immediately. Dr. Harrell will endeavor to have the home, furniture, etc., burned and the county replace them. It should be done. We have since learned that one of the victims died with the disease.—Windsor Ledger.

There is a good deal of smallpox in the eastern part of the State and we see in THE REFLECTOR that the Greenville town council has adopted an ordinance making vaccination compulsory and that it is creating quite a flutter, being condemned by some and commended by others. It's hard but it's right. A man may be willing to have smallpox himself but he has no right, by reason of refusal to be vaccinated, to give it to others. The lot of a municipal administration which has to enforce vaccination is not a happy one, but when an epidemic of smallpox threatens a community vaccination should be enforced just the same.—Charlotte Observer.

THE OLD WAY.

OF TREATING DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION BY DIETING A DANGEROUS AND USELESS ONE.

We say the old way, but really it is a very common one at present time and many dyspeptics and physicians as well consider the first step to take in attempting to cure indigestion is to diet, either by selecting certain foods and rejecting others or to greatly diminish the quantity usually taken, in other words, the starvation plan is by many supposed to be the first essential.

The almost certain failure of the starvation cure for dyspepsia has been proven time and again, but still the moment dyspepsia makes its appearance a course of dieting is at once advised.

All this is radically wrong. It is foolish and unscientific to recommend dieting or starvation to a man suffering from dyspepsia, because indigestion itself starves every organ and every nerve and fibre in the body.

What the dyspeptic wants is abundant nutrition, which means plenty of good, wholesome, well cooked food and something to assist the weak stomach to digest it. This is exactly the purpose for which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are adapted and this is the method by which they cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, in other words the patient eats plenty of wholesome food and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest it for him. In this way the system is nourished and the overworked stomach rested, because the tablets will digest the food whether the stomach works or not.

One of these tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat or eggs.

Your druggist will tell you that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the purest and safest remedy for stomach troubles and every trial makes one more friend for this excellent preparation. Sold at 50c. for full sized package at all drug stores.

The Phenomenon of Walking.

At a small party the other evening those present were asked to name the most common and at the same time the most complicated action in the human phenomena. Various answers were given, showing all degrees of observation and thought. Not one, however, hit upon the answer that the questioner had in mind, which was walking. What action is more common, and yet how difficult of analysis! How many persons outside of some special courses in physics at the universities can explain the phenomenon? Let somebody try.

"Walking," once said Dr. Holmes, "is a perpetual falling, with a perpetual self recovery. It is a most complex, violent and perilous operation, which we divest of its extreme danger only by continual practice from a very early period of life. We find how complex it is when we attempt to analyze it. We learn how violent it is when we walk against a post or a door in the dark. We discover how dangerous it is when we slip or trip and come down, perhaps breaking or dislocating our limbs, or overlook the last step of a flight of stairs and discover with what headlong violence we have been hurling ourselves forward."

All this is very true, as we all know to our sorrow; still the genial Autocrat has not explained the phenomenon.—New York Times.

From Bad to Worse.

Several ladies and gentlemen were riding down town in a cable car. They were mostly strangers to one another, but the conversation became general.

One of the ladies had been at the opera the night before, and was loud in her expressions of disapproval.

"Worse than all," she went on, "that Mme. Schroeder is much too old for her part. Her singing is becoming unbearable. Don't you think so, too?" she asked, turning to the gentleman next to her.

"Wouldn't you rather tell this to Mme. Schroeder herself? She is sitting beside you," he replied coldly.

After the general silence which followed the remark, the critical lady turned to the singer with many confused apologies.

"It is that horrid critic Schmiedet who has influenced my judgment concerning your singing. I believe it is he who is always writing against you. He must be a most disagreeable and pedantic person."

"Had you not better tell all this to Mr. Schmiedet himself?" calmly inquired Mme. Schroeder. "He is sitting next to me."—New York World.

A man endowed with great perfection without good breeding is like one who has his pockets full of gold, but always wants change for his ordinary occasions.—Steele.

Experience is a Good Teacher.

Salisbury, N. C., Dec. 4, '98
From my own experience I have found Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy the best medicine known for building up the health in general. The greatest remedy in the world for dyspepsia, eczema, aches and pains and breaking up colds. Nine years ago I suffered with a chronic cold, which resulted in a bronchial affection and repeated serious troubles of the throat which were alarming. I was affected with something like croup and again laryngitis. I tried Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, and am free of all those troubles and have been ever since and feel confident the Remedy has made the cure. I have kept it in my family for years and have always found it invaluable for old and young. The extraordinary effect of this grand remedy is sure to be realized by all who give it a fair test.

Sincerely,
MRS. M. E. RAMSAY.

On Landing Troops.

In landing troops on a hostile shore a great deal more has to be provided than the vessels to carry it. There are people who discuss an invasion, and who seem to have an idea that the matter is limited to crowding a number of soldiers on a ship and directing them to be landed at a certain place. There is no consideration of how they are to get on shore with their arms, guns and ammunition; that merchant ships have only a few boats, and that artillery cannot be transferred from ship to beach without any previous preparation. When we consider that, notwithstanding the support and resources of a large combined fleet and the presence of transports, more than a month of hard work was required before an army of 60,000 men could be landed in the Crimea, we are justified in doubting those who assert that the invasion of our shores with 150,000 or 200,000 men is not only within the bounds of possibility, but by no means so difficult an undertaking as is often stated.—"Wilmot's Life of Vice Admiral Lord Lyons."

Lakes That Change Color.

It is well known that the water of many lakes exhibits characteristic colors. The lake of Geneva, at the western end of Switzerland, is blue, while the lake of Constance, at the eastern end of Switzerland, is green. Blueness implies purity, since the natural color of water is blue. A green lake has its water slightly clouded with impurities, which may be exceedingly fine particles, apparently invisible. Professor Spring of the University of Lege says that green lakes have been completely colorless and clear, and that the color is due to the presence of iron. Red is complementary to green, and the result of the mixture of the two colors is brown.

How to Felling Big Trees.

The chopper approaches the tree with a plumb line. If the top does not lean more than two feet in the case of a large tree or more than four in the case of a small one, he considers that he can fell it in any direction he may desire. He then views the ground and selects the most promising "lay out," and the undercut is made exactly facing it. The "undercut" usually extends about one-third through, and then the tree is sawed in from the back to meet it. When the two cuts are within six inches of meeting, the saw is removed, and the tree is wedged up until the top passes the center of gravity, when it falls by its own weight, easily breaking the strip of wood remaining.

MEXICO'S SIGN LANGUAGE.

Gestures With a Meaning Understood by Every Tribe.

Mexico is a land of many tongues, but above the Indian dialects and Spanish there is one universal language—the language of signs. It is the most expressive of all—the Mexican eye and hand are eloquent members. It is capable of infinite variation. Its shadings and suggestions are beyond all translation. But there are certain gestures that have a fixed meaning, a significance well understood by every nation and every tribe from Guatemala to Texas.

A general upward movement of the body, shoulders shrugged, eyebrows raised, lips pouted and palms outspread, varies in meaning from "I don't know and I don't care" to a most respectful, "Really, sir, I do not understand you."

The index finger moved rapidly from right to left generally before the face means "No more" or simply "No." To move the right hand palm outward from the body toward another person means "Just wait; I'll be even with you yet."

The index finger on the temple moved with a boring twist means "He's drunk."

The right hand held to the lips, three fingers doubled, thumb and little finger erect, varies from "He drinks" to "Have one with me."

To move the open hand over the cheek in imitation of a razor has reference to the idiom "playing the barber" and means "to flatter."

All four fingers and the thumb held points together and moved toward the mouth means "to eat."

The right hand held before the face, the two middle fingers moving rapidly, is a familiar salutation.—"Modern Mexico."

FELLING BIG TREES.

The Methods by Which the Woodsman Brings Them Down.

The chopper approaches the tree with a plumb line. If the top does not lean more than two feet in the case of a large tree or more than four in the case of a small one, he considers that he can fell it in any direction he may desire. He then views the ground and selects the most promising "lay out," and the undercut is made exactly facing it. The "undercut" usually extends about one-third through, and then the tree is sawed in from the back to meet it. When the two cuts are within six inches of meeting, the saw is removed, and the tree is wedged up until the top passes the center of gravity, when it falls by its own weight, easily breaking the strip of wood remaining.

Where the surface of the ground is such that it is necessary for the butt and the top to strike the ground simultaneously, the stump is snubbed off at the undercut, which provides a slanting surface, so that the butt has no place to rest and perforce slides to the ground.

If the tree needs to be rolled off to one side, half the undercut is slanted, and a pile of chips is placed on the flat surface of the other half. The result never fails to manifest the efficacy of this device. Again, by leaving one side of the uncut wood between the undercut and the saw cut thicker than the other, the tree may be drawn considerably away from its natural course.

Eggs and Germs.

It was formerly thought that an egg must be safe eating whatever the surroundings, since its shell covered completely the part eaten, but it has now been shown unmistakably that germs of disease can even find their way through an eggshell. For instance, the typhus bacillus and the cholera bacillus have both been found to make their way through an unbroken eggshell in about 16 hours and locate themselves in the nutrient contents.

This is a clear indication, therefore, that the greatest care should be exercised in the storage and handling of eggs, since they may thus be made vehicles for most deadly poisons. Doubtless the immunity from such evils which we enjoy in our use of eggs as food is due to the fact that we generally cook them in a high temperature before we eat them and thus deal death to the germs and safety to ourselves.—Good Words.

A Xantippe Outwitted.

An Englishman of Lymington had the misfortune to live in a continuous quarrel with his wife, who was a modern Xantippe and threatened in case she survived him to dance over his grave. It was her lot to outlive him, but it was not so easy to carry out her threat. The husband had the precaution to make an injunction in his will requiring his body to be buried in the sea, near his residence, and without ceremony. The injunction was complied with.

Thou-ing.

To persons of lesser rank one saith "You," without thou-ing anybody, be it not some little child, and that thou wert much more aged and that the custome itself amongst the meer courtseous and better bred were to speak in such manner. What concerneth familiar friends, amongst them the custome doth comport in certain places that they "Thou" one another more freely, in other places one's more reserved.—"Youths' Behavior," 1653.
