Booker T. Washington's Advice.

Booker T. Washington, the negro orator, educator and student of sociological conditions, gives his people in North Carolina some good advice. A letter from him is attracting attention far and wide. It is written from Tuskegee, Ala., to "a prominent colored man in North Carolina," who asked "what should be done to allay the present conflict between the races," referring especially to this State, Prof. Washington said:

"I have been asking myself lately some rather serious questions, and I want to put one or two of them to you. Is there any reason why the negroes in the South should continue to oppose the Southern white man and his politics? Is not this the source of nearly all our troubles? Unconsciously we seem to have gotten the idea into our blood and bones that we are only acting in a manly way when we oppose Southern white men with our votes.

"In some way, by some method, we must bring the race to the point where it will cease to feel that the only way for it to succeed is to oppose everything suggested or put forth by the Southern white men.

"This I consider one of our real problems. I believe that there are thousands of white Democrats in North Carolina who are 50 per cent. better friends to the negro than Governor Russell, and I see no necessity in continuing to follow Governor Russell, who has no power to protect, or, if he has the power, does not exercise it, rather than these other white men, who can protect us if we cease to continually and forever oppose them."

This is good advice, but it will not be heeded. The Southern white man and the Southern white woman have been just as kindly disposed to the negro race since the emancipation of the race as during the slavery regime. The Southern Democrat has given the negro employment, paid him wages, gone his bail when he got into court, been solicitous as to his temporal and spiritual welfare, but when it came to politics the negro was on the other side. The race has always voted the Republican ticket en masse. The negro has fully paid the debt of gratitude he owed that party for his freedom. He has been used by it as a catspaw to pull political chestnuts from the ashes. In the South the negro has done the voting and the white Republican—rara avis, comparatively speaking—has held the offices. We are making no complaint of this. We are making no effort to change the state of affairs. We are simply stating the conditions. And thus it will always be, until the race as a whole, for whom Booker Washington is so admirably and strenuously laboring, catches up with him—and he is at least two centuries in the lead.—Charlotte Observer.

Discipline of the Woodpile.

Every human male man, who possesses a lingering taint of temper, should keep an axe and a woodpile handy, that he may rush out and work off his wrath when it waxes fierce. There is nothing in this vain old world that will send a man back to his appointed work with a wilted collar and a truer comprehension of himself than thirty minutes' wrestling with a full flavored axe. He can use it so fiercely on the wood. All the fury of his nature, all the hate he feels for his enemy, he can infuse into the axe-handle; and how the chips will fly! Not very artistically, probably, but they will fly. And presently it dawns upon the man that he is feeling more calm. Evidently he is experiencing a change of heart. He does not hate his enemy at all. He changes his stroke, and begins to chop on the Italian system of penmanship—the up strokes heavy and the down strokes light. He rather loves his enemy now. At last he puts all his failing strength into one terrific blow. He misses the tip with the axe and smites the chopping with the handle. A tingle as though he had swallowed an alarm clock goes from elbow to hip and back again, the axe drops from his powerless grasp, and a weak, limp, nerveless, perspiring, trembling, gasping thing, he staggers to the house, lies down on the first thing that looks like a lounge, and is ready to die. There isn't a fear or a fault in his heart. Death has no terrors, and life has no temptations for him. He has chopped out all his base nature, and he is just as ethereal and spiritual as he can be on this side of Jordan. It is a great medicine.—Burdette.

Adsum Was Out.

"I am looking for Mr. Adsum, the book-keeper," said the caller, a portly, dignified gentleman of majestic appearance.

"He is not in," replied the young man on the three-legged stool. "He is—"

"I see he's not in," interrupted the visitor. "This is about the hour he has been in the habit usually of coming in, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir; but—"

He sat down, picked up a newspaper, slowly unfolded it, and proceeded with leisurely dignity to read.

The young man on the three-legged stool wrote away in silence. Thus passed half an hour. The caller grew restive.

"By the way," he said, "how—er—long will it be before Mr. Adsum comes in?"

"I don't know," said the young man on the stool. "He went out about three weeks ago to another firm."—N. Y. Advertiser.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A PLEASANT, SIMPLE, SAFE BUT EFFECTUAL CURE FOR IT.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable.

The usual symptoms are a full or bloated sensation after eating, accompanied some times with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the lungs and heart and difficult breathing; headache, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out and languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate disease is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily and thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach.

To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanston the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids.

These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. N. J. Booher, of 2710 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom, passing back into the throat, reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me three years for catarrh of the stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I can not find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

Send for book, mailed free, on stomach troubles, by addressing the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. The tablets can be found at all drug stores.

LUCKY DEUCE OF SPADES.

Remarkable Run of Luck, but All For the Other Man.

One by one the old superstitions are being torn from us. People nowadays walk ostentatiously up ladders and suffer no evil consequences. Friday is quite a popular day for the commencement of a long journey, and sitting down at dinner is frequently unattended with untoward results. A deeply rooted superstition among card players is a belief in the lucky properties of the two of spades. The present writer's faith, however, was severely shaken by a phenomenal coincidence which occurred only a few days ago.

Sitting down to a game of whist, he thoroughly shuffled both packs of cards, and happened to notice that the two of spades was the bottom card of one of the packs.

"This ought to bring me luck," he remarked to his friends.

He then took up the second pack, and was astonished to find that the two of spades was also at the bottom of that. Words failed to express his amazement when, in drawing for partners and deal—the cards had been shuffled again—he once more drew the two of spades.

The odds against this triple event occurring must be enormous, but more was to follow. The deal fell to the writer, and the turn up card was the inevitable two of spades!

After this the dealer felt justified in believing he was in for a good evening. As a matter of fact, he lost six rubbers in succession.—London Mail.

Children and Dolls.

Writing in The Contemporary Review, Professor Sully discusses the curious aspects in which children regard dolls. He says: Professor Hall has brought to light some curious preferences of children. He tells us, for example, that, whereas out of 845 children 191 preferred wax dolls, as many as 144 pronounced in favor of rag ones. Odd preferences are sometimes shown with regard to size. A lady writes me that she preferred 4 inch halfpenny dolls because there was so much more to be done with these in the way of putting on wigs made from doormats, inking in eyebrows, etc. On the other hand, another English lady tells me that her childish ambition was the possession of a big doll—"one that would fill my arms and take some of the cuddling that I wanted to bestow and which nobody seemed to want." This girl image is, so far as the uninitiated adult can divine, the true child's doll.

TETTER ON THE HANDS.

For several years I was a sufferer from tetter on my hands. It would come in little watery pimples and the itching was almost more than I could stand. The skin was tender and the itching would swell so I could hardly bend my fingers. Sometimes my hands would become perfectly raw from scratching or breaking of the pimples. When I was in this condition I tried one half dozen bottles of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy and some Wash in 1884, and by the time I took it my hands were cured, and I am now well of the trouble. It has since broken out a little at times, but not enough to inconvenience me or make me try more medicine. I am now well. MRS. M. E. KING, Burlington, N. C., May 27, 1896.

BE CURED OF GRIP!

The Wonderful Results Obtained in the Case of Supt. Davidson.

Now, what is the grip?
Can it be avoided or prevented?
And can it be cured?

Grip is characterized by a continued fever, by a tendency to inflammation of the membranes of the digestive and often the respiratory tracts, by pain in the muscles, and by debility.

The grip in individual cases varies from a slight indisposition to severe forms with grave symptoms—these variations depending wholly upon the health, age, temperament or nervous condition of the person. Those predisposed to rheumatism suffer great pain in the muscles; persons of nervous temperament become low spirited, often have hysteria, and, if not closely watched, have been known to commit suicide. Several cases of this sort have been reported this month in the newspapers. Headache is a constant symptom. The bowels are generally constipated. Whatever form the disease takes there is invariably extreme prostration. The danger to persons in previous healthful condition is slight.

It has been absolutely proven that there is one certain preventive of serious cases of grip; and that there is one remedy for persons suffering with it, or beginning to be convalescent from its attack.

The unexampled public demand for Paine's celery compound during the last two months—and the proprietors of this remedy have never known so great a call for it—has been due to its use by thousands of people for whom it has been prescribed by intelligent physicians, to restore the patient's vitality, to purify the blood of the enervating poison, to restore the nervous system to healthy action and to strengthen the vital organs.

A person will continue to suffer from the evil effects of grip for many months unless he attacks the disease by getting rid of the unnatural unhealthy poisons in the system supplying the body with new blood, arousing the healthful action of the kidneys, liver and digestive organs, and nourishing and upbuilding the over-exerted and debilitated nervous system. All this and just this Paine's celery compound will do. In the multitude of cases where it has been used, it has never failed.

A case well known in Chicago is cited. Mr. Frank E. Davidson, who is one of the most brilliant and best known engineers in the world, had just finished the plans for the great intercepting sewer system of Chicago, which is to divert the entire sewerage of the city from Lake Michigan, through the famous Chicago drainage canal, and down the Mississippi. Superintendent Davidson had worked for months on this scheme. He was well nigh exhausted and took to his bed with an attack of the grip. After a while the disease not having left him, he was advised to try Paine's celery compound. He was soon back at his office in the department of public works, a well man, and forthwith wrote a letter to the proprietors of the remedy, in which he says:

"I had been told by friends of the wonderful results obtained by them from the use of Paine's celery compound. After my severe attack of the grip I determined to try it. I have already found that my friends' reports were not at all exaggerated, and I wish to join most cheerfully with them in recommending the remedy to others."

Hundreds of grateful letters have been written to the proprietors of Paine's celery compound since the appearance of grip this year, telling of the perfect recoveries it has effected. The letters come from men and women of many conditions. Few persons are so poor they cannot afford to have this great remedy constantly in the house, and none are so prosperous that for their health's sake they can afford to be without it.

When so many men and women whose words carry the utmost weight in the communities in which they live testify as they do to the great benefit they have received from Paine's celery compound, there can be no hesitancy in trying it. A single trial is the test which is confidently invited.

A very subdued-looking boy of about thirteen years, with a long scratch on his nose and an air of general dejection came to his teacher in one of the Boston public schools, and handed her a note before taking his seat and becoming deeply absorbed in his book. The note read as follows:

"Miss B—: Please excuse James for not being there yesterday. He played troont, but I guess you don't need to lick him for it, as the boy he played troont with an' him fell out, and the boy licked him, and a man they sassed caught him an' licked him, an' the driver of a sled they hung on to licked him also. Then his pa licked him, an' I had to give him another one for sassing me for telling his pa, so you need not lick him until next time. I guess he thinks he better better keep in school hereafter."—Harper's Bazaar.

Base Ball.

Philadelphia 6, Washington 5.
Philadelphia, April 14.—The ball season opened here today with over 10,000 people in attendance and proved to be an auspicious occasion for the home team. Philadelphia won, but it was not an easy victory, as Washington played a fine fielding game, and had the home team not solved Killen's delivery in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings, a different story might be told. Attendance 10,768.

WINE OF CARDUI

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. L. ADDISON, M. D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."
