TUESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1899.

A female crank all the way from Boston has been down to Charleston after the widow and five children of the negro postmaster of Lake City, S. C., who was lynched last year. She is going to take them back north and hold mass meetings with the colored family as the star attraction, and will stir up all the race prejudice possible.

Poor Dewey! It seems like they will not let him alone. They accused him of talking a little bit and saying that the next war of the United States would be with Germany, and now the busy fellows who get up the press dispatches are saying Austria has taken up the cudgel and demanded of George to know what he said it for. And Dewey is not bothering his head at all about it. If Austria knew a thing or two, what Dewey says or does is none of her business.

The longer we live the more firmly we are convinced that such epithets as "liar" and "coward" are a confession of weakness in the man who uses them. It is the man who is worsted in the argument who loses his temper and tries to raise a cloud of dust. We have seen men branded as liars for telling truth and have seen brute force resorted to for the purpose of stifling discussion, but we have lived long enough to see time prove who was the liar and the coward. If a statement is false the plain truth is the antidote for the poison; if it is true all the harsh and insulting epithets in the language cannot make it a lie.—Webster's Weekly.

Mr. H. A. London.

For fifteen or twenty years the law school at the University of North Carolina has ranked high among the law schools of the South. Since the resignation of Judge Shepherd we find this school without a head. It is a matter of supreme importance to our University and to the State that the high standard hitherto taken by the University Law Schools shall not be lowered; therefore, the greatest discretion should be used in selecting a man to conduct this school. The position is one of honor and influence and should command the best talent.

I do not know whether the man whom I recommend would accept the position if proffered him, but I do know that, should he be elected and accept the place, he would fill it with great credit to himself and honor to the University. The man to whom I refer is Hon. Henry A. London, of Pittsboro.

Mr. London is a graduate of the University and one of the loyal few who always return to the emment occasions. He studied law at Pittsboro, under the instruction of the lamented Manning, and has been a most successful lawyer for many years. He is a close student, learned in law, and admirably qualified for the position in question. I believe that his election to the chair of law at the University would meet with the hearty approval of the people of North Carolina.—W. S. SNIPES in Charlotte Observer.

BETTER PRICE FOR COTTON.

The New Roundlap Bale Worth $2.00 More to the Mill.

Mr. T. W. Pratt, President of the West Huntsville Cotton Mill, Huntsville, Alabama, who is known as one of the most progressive business men of Alabama, in addition to his cotton manufacturing interests is running what is said to be the largest cotton ginning plants in the world. Mr. Pratt has made a thorough investigation of the Roundlap bale in his mill, and recently published a letter, in which he said that cotton in this form was worth $2.00 a bale more to his mill than square bale cotton. Recently he telegraphed as follows:

"After two years experience with the Roundlap bale of the American Cotton Company as a manufacturer, I can positively state that my experience is that it can be sampled equally as well as the square bale; that it saves 8 per cent. in waste; that it unwinds to the core perfectly, and saves much labor in the opening-room. Mixed or false packed bales are never found. For the planter, ginner and manufacturer it is the greatest invention of the age."

THE SQUIRE'S DILEMMA.

He Adjourned the Case to Find Out Where He Was At.

A justice of the peace in one of the west end boroughs issued a warrant for the arrest of a west end woman for slander. Squire S. J. White happened to be present at the hearing. The prosecutor testified that the defendant had called her an "old virago" and that she had added, "I don't know what that means, but whatever it is that's what you are." The witness admitted that she did not know what the meaning of the word was, either, but she knew it had no good meaning or the other wouldn't have made use of it.

"No matter what it means," said the squire, who is an intensely patriotic American, "it's a foreign name, and she had no business calling you it. I'll fine her for it."

"Squire," whispered Squire White in his ear, "you have no jurisdiction in slander suits. They must be entered in court."

"Well, I'll hold her for court, then," the squire declared.

"But there's no law under which you can do that," he was told.

"Well, I'll hold her anyhow," he replied, "and test the constitutionality of the act."

"But there is no act," persisted Squire White.

"Get out of this office!" commanded the squire, turning on him. "Do you think I'm going to allow you to come in here and learn me the law?"

"You uns go, too," he said, turning to the women. "You're both released on your own recognizance until this court finds out what the damnation to do with this case."—Pittsburg News.

An Eye to Business.

A little boy named Peter at a public school saw his teacher faint and fall. In the general confusion it was impossible to keep so many curious heads cool, and the little ones flocked round the prostrate woman and her sympathizing colleagues. But this small boy kept both his color and his coolness. Standing on a bench and raising his hand, he exclaimed: "Please, teacher, can I run home and tell father to come? He makes coffins!"

Evolution.

A girl named plain "Mary" at her birth dropped the "r" when she grew up and became Miss May. As she began to shine in a social way she changed the "y" to "e" and signed her letters Mae. About a year ago she was married, and now she has dropped the "e," and it's just plain "Ma." That's evolution.—Rogersville (Tenn.) Review.

Hard Heads.

A duel among native Australians affords a droll study of physical endurance and natural courtesy. The affaire d'honneur is conducted on orthodox lines. Seconds are chosen and the place of meeting arranged, each party assuring the other that the remembrance of the insult or the casus belli can only be removed with a waddy stick, casually mentioning at the same time the design and weight of his own weapon.

The duel then proceeds somewhat on these lines: The aggrieved one bends forward, hands on knees, and invites his opponent to test the soundness of his club on his (the challenger's) head. Politeness does not demand that the vigor of the blow be modified by regrets or remorse, much less such a reply as, "Not at all, sir; after you."

The descent of the club is reminding of the conundrum, "Should an irresistible force come in contact with an immovable mass, what is the result?" In this case a little local warmth is generated. It is now the other fellow's turn, and the game proceeds as before, varied by mutual requests to hit a little harder. Either combatant leaves the field without a stain on his character and tasting the quintessence of satisfied honor should his opponent's club be broken over his head.

He Couldn't Reach It.

The following anecdote concerning the famous lecture on "The Holy Land," which, it is said, ex-Governor Oglesby never succeeded in delivering as he prepared it, is related in Franc B. Wilkie's pamphlet on the life of the governor:

He had been invited to deliver this lecture at a country town in Illinois and accepted. A large crowd gathered to hear him, and he was greeted with loud applause as he stepped forward to lecture. He was only to speak for one hour and said in beginning he would preface his lecture with a few remarks on his experience in Europe. At the end of 2 1/2 hours he was still talking about Europe, and because the people seemed so delighted he announced that he would deliver the lecture the next evening.

The same people came back, re-enforced by many more, and at the end of another two hours he stopped without having said anything about the Holy Land, except to announce that as his subject. The third night there was a monster gathering, and Governor Oglesby, after finishing up Europe, started to say a few words about Egypt and the Nile before beginning his lecture. At last he looked at his watch and, with a look of astonishment, turned to one of his friends on the platform and said:

"Well, here it is 11 o'clock, and I'll be hanged if I've got to the Holy Land yet!"—Chicago Tribune.

Spilled Ink.

When ink has been spilled, the first thing to do is to remove as much of the liquid as possible with a damp cloth. Then dip a clean rag into some skimmed milk and sponge the stain. The cloth and milk must be clean for each application. A little benzine or ammonia will remove any grease which the milk may make.

Madrid's Slums.

Madrid abounds in slums, which are even greater eyesores than those of Whitechapel. There are labyrinths of narrow old streets, bordered by the most uninviting hovels, and from the squalor of these abodes spring the components of the ferocious mobs which are the bane of the city.

The Chinese are very fond of foreign song birds. Forty years ago, when canaries were first introduced to that country, a pair cost $12; now they have multiplied to such an extent that a pair can be bought for 75 cents.

It is estimated that there are 240,000 women domestic servants in London, and that 10,000 of these are always out of situations or changing their places.

CONSTIPATION

"I have gone 14 days at a time without a movement of the bowels, not being able to move them except by using hot water injections. Chronic constipation for seven years placed me in this terrible condition; during that time I did everything I heard of but never found any relief; such was my case until I began using CASCARETS. I now have from one to three passages a day, and if I was rich I would give $100.00 for each movement; it is such a relief."

A Land of Many Thirsts.
The Egyptian never travels without his goolah. He fills it with filtered water and in the morning can command a pint or more of water cooled by evaporation through the unglazed clay. This precious fluid he does not waste on unsatisfied thirst. Taking off the long white wrap and the piece of cloth that covers his head during sleep, the native pours the water over his head, neck and hands. The European, with all his instinct for cleanliness, seeks first to relieve his overmastering thirst.

There are in Egypt as many thirsts as plagues, but the dust thirst is the worst. Every pore is sealed; the throat is a lump of dry clay, and one feels what it must be to be a mummy.—London Standard.

Her First Thought.
Mildred—Have you ever thought that your last moment had come? What an awful feeling it is that comes over one at such a time!
Gertrude—Yes, I had that experience once when I was out riding with a fellow and his horse started to run away. It seemed as if we would certainly be dashed to pieces.

Mildred—And what was the first thing you thought of when death seemed to stare you in the face?
Gertrude—A hole in the toe of my left stocking. I have never since then run the risk of being found dead in such a condition.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Power of Deep Sea Waves.
In a high gale, mile long waves, 200 feet from trough to trough and 40 feet high, ran along the sea at 20 miles an hour with a weight of 60,000 pounds for every foot of their length. Upon these a 600 foot ship, such as the New York or the Paris, will rise like a floating leaf, but if the ill fated ship drifts upon a lee shore blows of 100,000 tons, delivered with remorseful fury, crush it like an eggshell.

"Let us try to make our lives like songs, brave, cheery, tender and true, that shall sing themselves into other lives and so help to lighten burdens and cares."

It takes 72,000 tons of paper to make the postal cards used in the United States each year.

An Executor Absconds.

Hickory and vicinity have been very much interested since the first of last week over the disappearance of Mr. D. E. Whitener. He was executor of Henry Hawn and later of the widow of Henry Hawn. He had collected something like $1,000 or $1,500 belonging to the estate, and some of the parties interested having insisted on his giving bond, he promised to come to Newton on Tuesday of last week and give bond. On Monday night he took the vestibule train for the West. Whether he took the money with him or spent it before he left is not known. But he wrote to Mr. Joan Yoder, of this place, from Knoxville, to whom he owed an account, that he had only $100 with him. Proceedings to attach his property have been begun.—Newton Enterprise.

Sam Jones on Bob Ingersoll.

"Ingersoll began by doubting. Then he denied. Then he denounced. He wound up by doubting whether his doubts were doubts or not. Peace to his ashes! I did not gang with him while he lived, and I will not abuse him now that he is dead. But if he could get back to this country and fill the engagements he made while alive, I would like a front seat to hear what he has to say now, with the experience of the past few days added to his original lectures."

The Most Effective Agency.

A well known writer, referring to the illimitable progress of mankind, says: "Progress is the end for which man was destined. To this end, then, it is his duty to direct all his inquiries, all the productions of his genius and taste—in short, all the modes of his activity." To no class of people are these truths more applicable than to business men. Progress is necessarily their watchword, and in order to go forward they must utilize all the available and proper means at their command. There are many agencies which make for the merchant's success, but long experience has shown that a regular use of the advertising columns of a sound and popular newspaper is the most effective of them all.—Philadelphia Record.
