WINTERVILLE DEPARTMENT.

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, Sept. 21, '99
Work is progressing rapidly on W. L. House's new house.

The Misses Wesson will have a nice house when it is completed.

Regular preaching services here today and Sunday by Eld. W. L. Bilbro, pastor.

Miss Bessie Garris, of near Ayden, is here visiting the Misses Wesson this week.

A new kiln of brick is being set at the brick-yard, and will soon have more ready for the market.

B. F. Manning & Co. are paying 6½ cents of cotton. Bring your cotton here and be convinced that our prices are now tip top all the time.

A. G. Cox has had some chills which have kept him in bed several days, but we hope he will be able to get out again in a day or so.

T. M. Beachman, who moved from here to Washington a short while ago, has been down here two or three days looking after some business.

The people of the place seem to be inclined to utilize a lot of the trash scattered over town for fuel. This cleaning up adds much to the looks of the place.

The next session of the Winterville Academy opens Monday Oct. 2. Students should start the first day if possible. Those entitled to the free school can go their number of days any time during the session.

J. L. JACKSON, Prin.
MISS ROSA COX, Asst.

On the show papers you only see pictures, but we show the real thing itself in the way of wagons, carts, coffins, &c. Come examine for yourself and be convinced before buying elsewhere.

A. G. COX MFG. CO.

The Republicans have the power to pass whatever Legislation they want against the trusts at the coming sessions of Congress. They have control of both Houses and the Presidency, and if they mean to act at all, can just as well act now as in a year's time. But it is not likely that they will do anything.

Superior Court.

The following cases have been disposed of since last report:

George Mitchell, assault with deadly weapon, pleads guilty, sentenced to work public roads of Edgecombe county for three months.

Oscar Tucker, larceny, guilty, sentenced to work roads of Edgecombe county for four months.

Starlin Brown and Jane Faircloth, fornication, guilty, Brown sentenced to work public roads of Edgecombe five months. Jane Faircloth sentenced six months in jail, term to begin January 1st.

F. Bell, larceny, guilty, sentenced to work roads of Edgecombe county six months.

Henry Rhoden, assault with deadly weapon pleads guilty, sentenced to work roads of Edgecombe county five months.

Berry Lucas, assault with attempt, not guilty.

Simon Hooks, carrying concealed weapon, guilty.

Wm. Stanley Price and Bettie Price, slander, guilty.

Know How to Handle Crowds.

The handling of big crowds has been reduced to a science by the Great Wallace Shows. It provides more than one ticket wagon, has several entrances and plenty of employes to assist its patrons in seeing its wonders and getting seats that are satisfactory. The arrangement of its rings and stages is such that no seat is bad. Nor does this circus reserve nearly all the space; only about one-fifth of the seats are extra. Although thousands see the show daily, they are handled so perfectly as to avoid all jostling. At Greenville on Friday Sept. 29.

Governor Johnston, of Alabama, has just granted a unique pardon to John Boston, a negro of Russell county. Boston was serving a term for stealing chickens, and the Governor granted him a pardon upon condition that for twelve months he should not buy, steal or eat another chicken or any portion thereof.

AROUND THE WORLD.

Letters From Lyman A. Cotten On His Travels.

We reached Port Said on June 17th and left there the same day. It has the reputation of being the worst place in the world, and from all I saw of it, I think it lives up to its reputation. The people are a lot of lying, cheating, thieving, dirty savages. Men and women alike are attired in bloomers, and the married women have their faces covered with heavy veils, held on with metal noses. Why the married women cover their faces, instead of the single ones I did not earn. I cannot understand how any of them get married if their lovers are allowed to see their faces beforehand. However, tastes differ. Perhaps the husbands make them cover their faces, not so much to keep other people from seeing them, as to spare themselves from gazing on them. Among the delights of Port Said, not the least among them either, rank the sand storms. One occurred while we were there. The sky suddenly turned a yellow hue and a few gusts of hot wind were felt. Looking across the desert we saw what appeared like a sand bank coming. It was a sand-cloud. Soon it arrived and we could scarcely see anything for the sand. Even the sun seemed to hide his face for fear of getting it pelted with sand. Of course we saw it under cover and it proved to be a short one, only a shower so to speak, as it lasted only a few hours. This was quite long enough for me, but sometimes they last for two or three days.

The trip through the Suez Canal was interesting, but bare of beauty as it runs through a desert most of the way. Occasionally we saw a caravan, or a body of gay and festive Arabs roaming as free as the wind, especially free as to the clothes they had on, or more correctly did not have on.

Out of the canal into the Gulf of Suez, where it was hot and with rocky barren shores. The morning after we entered the gulf I saw from a distance Mt. Sinai, which you may be sure aroused a train of thought. I am very glad to have seen it. Soon we passed from the Gulf of Suez into the Red Sea, which is well expressed by the old figure of speech "out of the frying pan into the fire." I have been curious to know why it was called the Red Sea, but now I feel like it must have been because it is red.

The superlative of hot without a qualifying adjective does not express it, nor can I describe the hotness thereof. It was morning, hotter during the day, and hottest of all at night. Days we endured it, and I feel quite like I had passed through the "fiery furnace," and let us hope it has refined the gold of my nature.

This morning we passed out through the Strait of Bab-el Mandeb and are now in the Gulf of Aden where it is a little less hot, but not to say cooler. We did not stop at Aden as the Captain received a cablegram from Washington at Port Said telling him to hurry on, so we will not stop again until we reach the island of Ceylon. After that there will be only one more stop before getting to Manila. I will have arrived at Manila before you get this letter, where I hope to read some letters as well as write them. I will mail this at Colombo, on the island of Ceylon, and another letter at Singapore, then at Manila. It is hard to realize that I am so far from the States. I think of you all very often, and send a great deal of love. Your devoted son,
LYMAN COTTEN.

U. S. S. GLACIER,
INDIAN OCEAN, July 6, '99.

MY DEAR MOTHER:

When I last wrote home we had just passed through the Red Sea and were still fanning ourselves in the hope of getting cool. Soon after we struck the Indian Ocean we had a change of weather. We ran into the Southwest Monsoon and for three days we had a lively time and the Glacier demonstrated her ability to roll. For three days we rolled so heavily that we could scarcely sleep and at one time it looked as though we would have to run up to Bombay to get out of it, but finally it moderated so we could resume our course. We reached Colombo, on the island of Ceylon, on July 1st. We found that the Olympia had left there only two days before, and so we were disappointed in our hope of meeting our great Admiral Dewey. Colombo is by far the nicest and most interesting place I have yet seen. It has about two hundred thousand inhabitants and many of them are Englishmen of wealth and refinement. The luxuriance and beauty of the trees and flowers are almost beyond imagination, being so near the equator. The streets are all nicely paved and kept clean. The weather is always warm and the natives wear very few clothes. The men wear a small cloth around their loins, while the women wear more, but even they are not burdened with their costumes. Shoes seem to be quite dispensed with. The method of travel charmed me. They use a small two wheeled vehicle which looks like a small top buggy, called a jinriksha. You get in and a coolie or native gets between the shafts and away you go at a surprising speed. They go quite as fast as the average horse and the riding is much more comfortable. One native will take a man as far as fifty miles in one day and if only for one hour as much as seven or eight miles. If it rains you raise the top and draw up the rubber lap cloth and thus keep perfectly dry. As the coolie only has on a small cloth around his loins he does not mind the rain. One outfit especially attracted my attention. It was a new jinriksha and was pulled by a coolie as black as ink, and his body fairly glistened, while around his loins he had a red cloth and fancy turban on his head. I could only compare him to a fine black (thoroughbred horse, thus gayly caparisoned. The natives were quite a surprise to me. They seem clean and more intelligent than I expected. They vary in color from brown to jet black and many had charming smiles but could not be called pretty by our standard of beauty. Few of the men seem to be over five feet six in height, while the women are about five feet. You probably know that Ceylon is noted for its tea and precious stones. The latter are found in great abundance in the mountains and I have never seen so many beautiful stones and they are very cheap. Ivory and ebony ornaments are also made in great abundance. In the outskirts of the city there is a magnificent hotel and everything about the city is nice. I failed to mention that all the natives have long black hair, worn either loose, or in a knot on the back of the head, and those of a certain caste wear in their hair a large tortoise shell comb around which they coil their turbans when they go out. It usually rains two or three times a day at this season of the year, but the showers last only a few minutes and they have a fine breeze all the time.

WINE OF CARDUI

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for falling of the womb and it entirely cured her."

J. B. Cherry & Co.

Its a Treat.
Music will draw people, when it is a good article. And that accounts for so many people gathering along the street on their practice nights and listening to the music of the Osceola Band. The band meets twice a week and the practice is so convenient that many people can get the benefit of the good music.

Back in Town.
W. L. Cobb has taken a position at the grocery store of R. A. Tyson. He was in Greenville for a long time but for the last three years has been staying on his farm. We are glad to have him back in town again. He says he will be glad to have all his old friends and those who were his former customers call on him at his new place.

Daughters of The Confederacy.
The Singletary Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy will meet at the residence of Mrs. Robt J. Cobb, Tuesday, Sept. 26th, at 4 P. M. A full attendance of its members is desired as business of importance is to be transacted. Applications for membership from ladies of Greenville and Pitt county will be gladly received.
