AUTOMATIC TOBACCO DRIER.

Mr. Mayo's Invention the Best Known to the Trade.

Mr. H. P. Strause has placed in his new factory here an Automatic Drier that is considered by all who have seen it to be the best yet offered the Tobacco trade. This Drier dries and orders from 20,000 to 30,000 pounds in 10 hours in the best manner. It is the simplest in construction, and requires less power and labor to manage than any other. There are no complications of steam pipes, belts, etc. to get out of order.

The insurance men have pronounced it as near fire proof as possible, thereby lessening the insurance on an entire plant.

The mode of drying is by hot air forced by a fan from a radiator over the tobacco and never used but once, thereby rendering the tobacco as near air flue cured as possible.

This Drier is the invention of Mr. D. C. Mayo, of Richmond, Va., who was for several years the leading manufacturer of that city, and who is known to the entire Tobacco trade of the United States by reputation as a tobacco manufacturer.

Mr. Mayo was the first manufacturer to introduce steam in the manufacture of tobacco in 1865 and thoroughly understands every detail. He is also putting up a machine in Wilson for drying stems.

Mr. Mayo showed a REFLECTOR reporter the working of this Drier in the Strause factory and its work is wonderful.

OVER THE COUNTRY.

One-fourth of the apple crop of Michigan was blown from the trees by Monday's storm.

The Ohio Coal Traffic Association and the Michigan railroads have agreed to increase coal freight rates.

THE WALLACE SHOW.

Delights the People of Pitt County.

Not every circus comes up to what is claimed for it, in fact but few do. But the Great Wallace Shows come fully up to expectation.

Since the flaming show bills were put up and the advertisements in the papers announced that the show would be here on the 29th, it has been the chief topic of conversation, and with the dawn of the day the people were pouring in from all directions, the crowd continuing to increase as the day grew older.

Generally speaking circus day is a holiday, for everybody who can comes to see all that is to be seen. They lined upon the streets in thousands to watch the magnificent parade go by and feast their eyes on the gorgeous costumes, fine horses and cages of wild animals, and hear the splendid music of the well trained bands. It was a great pageant.

Under the canvas people are equally delighted, everything moving with the precision and order of clock. Not a hitch or a jor in the performance. And such riding, acrobatic and bicycle feats that are wonderful to behold.

Greenville has never had a better circus than the Great Wallace Show.

The doors for the night performance will open at 7 o'clock, and the performance will not be cut in any particular. If you did not go today don't miss it tonight.

Nelson Acquitted.

The jury on the case of W. C. Nelson for murder in second degree, reached a decision at 10 o'clock Thursday night. Their verdict was "not guilty."

E. C. Knupp, the Press Agent of the Great Wallace Show, was around seeing the newspaper folks this morning. Like everybody else connected with the show he is the acme of cleverness.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1899.

The Nineteenth Century Ends at Midnight of Sunday, December 31, 1900.

"Hundreds of persons contend that the twentieth century will begin with January 1, 1900, while other hundreds contend with equal positiveness that the correct date is January 1, 1901," writes Edward Bok in the October Ladies' Home Journal. "The 1900 contingent argue that, of course, the new century begins with its numeral date, and go on to figure out very deftly that with the last day of the year 1899 the hundred years will have run their course. They argue that if the first year ended with December 31 of the year one, the nine teen hundredth year must, of course end with December 31, 1899, and that the first day of January, 1900, is, therefore, the first day of the new century. And, curiously enough, this latter figure is correct but only in a numeral sense. These statisticians overlook one very important fact, however; that it requires one hundred years to make a century, and it calls for no expert mathematician to figure it out that the full hundred years of the nineteenth century will not have run their course until twelve o'clock midnight of the thirty-first of December, 1900. Numerically, we close the nineteenth century with January 1, 1900. But, nevertheless, we must complete that entire year of 1900, and go through its three hundred and sixty-five days, before the actual nineteen hundred years shall have run their course."

Feats of Sleep-Walkers.

An account is given of an Irish gentleman who swam more than two miles down a river, got ashore, and was subsequently discovered sleeping by the road-side, altogether unconscious of the extraordinary feat he had accomplished.

Professor Fischnell of Yale writes of a young student of Wurtemberg who used to play hide-and-seek while fast asleep. His fellow-students knew of his propensity, and when he began walking threw bolsters after him, which he always clutched, jumping over bedsteads and other obstacles placed in his way. A gentleman was once discovered at 1 o'clock in the morning in a neighbor's garden engaged in prayer evidently under the impression that he was in church, but otherwise in a deep sleep.

A young girl given to sleep-walking was in the habit of imitating the violin with her lips, giving the preliminary turning and scraping and flourishing with the utmost fidelity. It puzzled her physician a great deal until he learned that when an infant the girl lived in a room adjoining a fiddler, who often performed upon his instrument within her hearing.

COTTON TESTED BY FIRE.

Experiments at Lowell Show the Advantage of American Round-lap Bales.

The Roundlap bale of the American Cotton Co., the Lowry bale of the Planters' Compress Company, and an ordinary square cotton bale were subjected to a through-going fire test in Lowell, Mass., June 8th by the Associated Factory Mutual Fire Insurance Companies of the United States, for the purpose of determining the relative fire hazards of the several methods of baling cotton.

Two small frame houses, exactly alike and some distance apart had been erected on a vacant plot and the space beneath them filled with boards and cotton waste, over which ten gallons of coal oil were poured. In one building eight American Roundlap bales and one square bale were stored. In the other eight Lowry bales and one square bale. The torch was applied and the flames were permitted to burn one hour before being extinguished. It was as hot a blaze as cotton could well be subjected to. There was no test of the square bale, owing to the fact that when the superstructures collapsed, which they did a few minutes after being fired, one of the square bales fell away from the flames and then the other was removed.

It was evident and generally conceded that the American Roundlap bale stood the test much better than the Lowry bale. Nearly all the wires on the Lowry bales were burned off and the bales elongated from their original length of 3 feet 3 inches to 6 feet and over. This exposed the cotton in the Lowry bales to the flames which were eating into the bales at many points when the fire was put out. Two of the Lowry bales broke in two and were more badly burned than the others.

The American bales stood up splendidly under the severe ordeal. They neither unrolled nor extended in length, and only the outer surfaces exposed to the intense flame were burned. This latest test was only another triumph for the American Cotton Company's Roundlap bale.

The cotton saved from the fire will be carefully picked over and the salvage reclaimed will be weighed.

It was stated by underwriters present at the Lowell fire test that, at a secret test recently made as to the ability of the two different styles of round bales to withstand the action of water, after being submerged for some time the wires on the Lowry bales had burst and none of the Lowry cotton was recovered from the test. The American Company's bales came out intact and wet only on the exterior, which soon dried, leaving the cotton as good as ever.

Mayor Jones, of Toledo, O., has forbidden the city police to carry clubs, and is thinking of taking away their revolvers. To remonstrants Mayor Jones says he would not be afraid to patrol any district in the city without club or revolver, depending solely on the love and patriotism of the people behind him for protection. The Boston Transcript observes that Mayor Jones ought to remember that the people walking behind the dispenser of municipal offices have a good deal more love and patriotism than those who walk behind policemen.

Briefs from Billville.

Great influence has been brought to bear on us to enter the political race, but so far we have declined all offers. Whenever the sheriff sees us running he gets suspicious and takes after us.

Candidates are coming to be as thick and sociable as the measles, and some of them are just as much in demand.

There is no truth in the rumor that we threatened to burn one of the railroad bridges because the company refused us a free pass. We don't want to swim the river and walk to Atlanta, too.

Hickory nuts are ripe, but we will take cows and groceries on subscription.—Atlanta Constitution.

Changed Her Mind Too.

A young couple in a Lancashire village had been courting for several years. The young man one day said to the woman:

"Sall, I canna marry thee."

"How's that?" asked she.

"I've changed my mind," said he.

"Well, I'll tell you what we'll do," said she. "If folk know that it's thee as has given me up, I shanna be able to get another chap, but if they think that I've given you up then I can get another chap. So we'll have banns published, and when the wedding day comes the parson will say to thee, 'Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?' and thou must say, 'I will.' And when he says to me, 'Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?' I shall say, 'I winna.'"

The day came, and when the minister said, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" the man answered:

"I will."

Then the parson said to the woman:

"Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" And she said:

"I will."

"Why," said the young man furiously, "you said you would say, 'I winna.'"

"I know that," said the young woman, "but I've changed my mind since."

London Answers.

"I never can tell a story and have it come out all right," said a little woman plaintively the other day. "I thought I had such a good one not long ago. I was walking along and heard one street boy say to another, 'Oh, you go buy 10 cents' worth of potash.' 'What for?' says No. 2. 'For 10 cents,' yelled the other, and ran off giggling.

"I thought it was pretty good, and I'd try it on Charlie at supper. But when I told him to go buy 10 cents' worth of potash he never said a word, and I knew another joke had fallen flat and kept still. But the worst was later. He put on his hat and vanished after supper, coming back in a minute with a little parcel that he handed to me.

"What's that?" asked I. "Why, the potash you said you wanted," answered he, and I nearly had hysterics on the spot. Did you ever hear anything so perfectly awful? I won't ever try to get off anything funny again."

And the little woman sighed as she walked away.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

If the Prussian conscription were applied in India, England would have 2,500,000 regular soldiers actually in barracks, with 800,000 recruits coming up every year.

The cheapest animal to raise is the sheep, and with the growing appetite for tender lamb and mutton in this country it is one of the most profitable.

Some Notes.

Admiral Dewey arrived in New York harbor before Sampson had a chance to get at him. This is not the first time that the Navy Department's pet admiral was caught napping.

The name of Tom Reed's new law firm sounds like it is one of the biggest legal shows on earth. It is Reed, Simpson, Thatcher and Barnum.

Admiral Sempson was to have met Dewey in person, when he arrived off the coast, and escorted him to New York. But Dewey came when he was not expected, and, as in the case of Admiral Cervera, Sempson was not there to receive him.

It may be as the republicans intimate, that the signers of the Declaration of Independence were a pack of old fogies, whose principles are now completely out of date but the republicans will find out next year that the majority of voters don't.

Dr. Parkhurst says that man is merely a gorilla with a conscience. It would, therefore, seem to be in order to label the Dr. as Exhibit A.

It was in June a year ago, that Admiral Dewey in an official dispatch to the Navy Department, said that the Filipinos were much better qualified for self-government than the Cubans, and he was well acquainted with both. In an interview in the New York Evening Post upon his arrival at New York, the Admiral said that he had not changed his views.

The Scientific American gets the twentieth century business straight. It seems a little singular that there should have been any controversy over it, but there was. The American says: "The nineteenth century closes with the year 1900. Immediately after midnight, therefore, of December 31, 1900, is when the twentieth century begins; in other words, it begins with the first second of the first hour of the first day of January, 1901." The same paper observes that the twentieth century will have the greatest number of leap years possible for a century—twenty-four—and that February will three times have five Sundays.—Winston Sentinel.

Entering and Leaving Cars.
If passengers would go out of cars at the front end and always go in at the rear it would prevent considerable confusion at way stations, both large and small, and at large stations it would often save some time, says the Railroad Gazette. A newspaper in New England has lately preached the railroads a little sermon on this subject, and the alacrity with which other newspapers, both in New England and elsewhere, have copied the sermon indicates that the subject is one in which some people are interested. The chief difficulty with this rule is that there must be many exceptions to it. At least one careful and enterprising superintendent, Abram Firth, of Boston, tried it more than twenty-five years ago, but gave it up because passengers took such delight in having their own way. The Long Island road is cited by the newspapers mentioned as carrying out this practice now. Superintendent Potter informs us that the rule has been in force for two years, and with good results, but at terminals, as well as at suburban stations, where there are 50 or 150 passengers to get out of a train and only half a dozen to get on, it has to be ignored.

A special lot of silverware from Henegen Bates at Mrs. M. D. Higgs'. Beautiful articles for bridal presents.

Getting out the paper so much sooner today makes us short on local matter. But the circus will will make up for it all.

A traveling man was heard to remark yesterday that Greenville stood very much in her own light by not having a hotel.

THE REFLECTOR boys and a circus are inseparable. They worked last night to get the paper out and take in the show today.

The cemetery is certainly in a deplorable condition and ought to be cleaned out. The work was started some time ago but stopped.

My silver from Henegen Bates has arrived. This lot was specially selected as suitable for bridal presents. MRS. M. D. HIGGS.

We notice that during the last few days Tarboro, Concord and Charlotte have been paying more for cotton than the price in New York. Those places have cotton factories, hence the difference.

I have just received another lot of beautiful silver, from Henegen Bates, suitable for bridal presents. Part of goods can be seen at store of J. B. Cherry & Co., and some at home of Mrs. F. G. James. MRS. J. B. CHERRY.
