Old Weather Signs.

Thunder on Sunday is considered by the weather-wise the sign of the death of a great man; on Monday, the death of a woman; on Tuesday, if in early Summer, it foretells an abundance of grain; on Wednesday, warfare is threatened; on Thursday, an abundance of sheep and corn the farmer may reckon upon; on Friday, some great man will be murdered; on Saturday, a general pestilence and great mortality.

Friday's weather shows what may be expected on the following Sunday; that is if it rains on Friday noon, then it will rain on Sunday, but if Friday be clear, then Sunday will be fine as well.

The twelve days immediately following Christmas denote the weather for the coming twelve months—one day for a month. The day of the month the first snow-storm appears indicates the number of snow-storms the winter will bring. For example, the first snow-storm comes on November 29th—look out, then, for twenty-nine snow-storms.

There is an old saying—which originated, perhaps, for the benefit of school children—that there is only one Saturday in the year without sun during some portion of the day.

A gale moderating at sunset, will increase before midnight, but if it moderates after midnight the weather will improve.

No weather is ill,

If the wind is still.

If the full moon shall rise red, expect wind.

The sharper the blast the sooner it is past.

A light yellow sky at sunset presages wind.

When you see northern lights you may expect cold weather.

Hazy weather is thought to prognosticate frost in winter, snow in spring, fair weather in summer, and rain in autumn.

Storms that clear in the night will be followed by a rain storm.

If the ice on the trees melts and runs off rain will come next; while if the wind cracks off the ice snow will follow.

When the leaves of trees show their underside there will be rain.

When the perfume of flowers or the odor of fruit is unusually noticed rain may be expected.

When the sky is full of stars expect rain.

If a cat washes herself calmly and smoothly the weather will be fair. If she washes "against the grain" take your macintosh with you. If she lies with her back to the fire there will be a squall.

Cats with their tails up and hair apparently electrified indicate approaching wind.

If pigs are restless there will be windy weather. Pigs can see the wind.

The direction in which a loon flies in the morning will be the direction of the wind next day.

Magpies flying three or four together and uttering harsh cries predict windy weather.

Flocks of crows signify a cold summer.

When the owl nests look out for storm.

When the swallow flies low rain will come soon; when they fly high expect fine weather.

Six weeks from the time the first katy-did is heard there will be frost.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The New Postoffice

The corner store up town that is being fitted up for the postoffice is nearly ready for occupancy and Postmaster King will move in sometime this week. An entire new set of lock boxes and drawers have been put in, and they are very convenient. But the general delivery and money order department are entirely too small for the needs of the office and are so cramped together that people will be all in each other's way when at either of the windows.

COTTON.

Says the Durham Herald:

If the cotton crop is damaged a third and the farmer receives a third more for his cotton, it is of no more benefit than if he had raised a full crop and the price had remained the same. But then if the farmer is pleased we are not disposed to kick.

Commenting on this the Statesville Landmark says:

It is an interesting fact that while there has been much complaint of short crops, it is evident that had the season been a good one from start to finish and a full cotton crop raised, the staple would have sold for five cents or less.

Inasmuch as the crop has been cut short by Providence, cotton is now selling at about 7½ cents and there is a possibility that it will go to 8 or 10 before next spring. This can only mean that when a full crop of cotton is raised the supply in a measure exceeds the demand and low prices rule.

If there is a short crop the demand is active and prices rise. In other words, the planter receives as much or more for a short crop than he does for a full crop. This being so, would it not be wisdom for the planters to curtail the cotton crop every year? Instead of planting an immense crop and receiving low prices, could they not plant a small acreage, devote the time which would be required to raise a large crop of cotton to other crops, and still make more money? It certainly seems so.

Neither Luck Nor Chance.

"Luck" and "chance" are terms which do not enter into the calculations of the enterprising and energetic merchant. Being a progressive man, he is essentially practical. The competitive conditions with which he must contend require the exercise of good judgment, enterprise and foresight. In the management of his advertising those qualifications are especially requisite; and if he select as the medium through which to reach the public a trusted and influential newspaper he makes assurance doubly sure. There is neither luck nor chance in the right sort of advertising. It infallibly brings profitable results. —Philadelphia Record.

Candidates are not always able to carry out their ante-election promises even when they make an honest effort to do so. Mayor McCall, of Charlotte, was elected on a platform one of the planks of which declared for the early closing of the saloons. A few days ago he endeavored to carry out his promise by having an ordinance enacted compelling the saloons to close at 8 p. m., but the board of aldermen sat down on him by two-thirds majority. The saloon men will now doubtless have it in for the mayor because he tried to close them up at 8 p. m., while the folks who want them closed at that hour will probably feel aggrieved because the mayor didn't succeed in fulfilling his promise. The fewer promises a candidate makes the better for him, and if he can get along without promising anything at all it is better still. —Statesville Landmark.

A GLEAM OF PLEASURE.

Along the noisy city ways,
 And in this rattling city car,
 On this the dreariest of days,
 Perplexed with business fret and jar,

When suddenly a young, sweet face
 Looked on my pertulance and pain
 And lent it something of its grace
 And charmed it into peace again.

The day was just as bleak without,
 My neighbors just as cold within,
 And truth was just as full of doubt,
 The world was just as full of sin.

But in the light of that young smile
 The world grew pure, the heart grew warm,
 And sunshine gleamed a little while
 Across the darkness of the storm.

I did not care to seek her name,
 I only said: "God bless thy life,
 Thy sweet, young grace be still the same,
 Or happy maid or happy wife."
 —Philips Brooks.

Be Comfortable.

Devote your energies to being comfortable. Nothing will aid you so much as simplicity. Don't try to follow all the fads invented by fools. In the first place, get a comfortable place to live. Get a good cellar. Get a good cistern. Fix your water pipes so they won't freeze. Fix yourself so that you can be warm in winter and reasonably cool in summer. Have things "handy" around the house. Give up your membership in literary and card clubs and devote your attention to your own affairs. If you can't find enough to keep you busy, it is a sign you don't look very closely. —Arlington Globe.

OVER THE COUNTRY.

Andrew Carnegie will give a public library building to Canneaut, O.

Dwight L. Moody, the avangelist, is ill with a severe cold at Northfield, Mass.

Admiral Dewey has promised to visit Atlanta, Ga., not later than November 1.

The New England Beet Sugar Company will erect a $300,000 plant at North Judson, Ind.

The Evangelical Conference in session at St. Paul, Minn., has invited President McKinley to address its meeting.

The people of North Carolina will, in a few short months, be casting about for a suitable man for Governor of this great State. There are numbers of true and tried men all over the State and the people of this section would be delighted to honor all of them. But if there is one man among all these who, like Saul of old, stands head and shoulders above his fellows, that man is Chas. B. Aycock, of Goldsboro. In every campaign he has thrown himself into the hottest of the fight, and whenever there arose a Goliath in the ranks of the opposition, Aycock has been the David to do the business for him. If the wishes of the voters of this section have any weight in Democratic conventions that matchless campaigner and true, loyal North Carolinian, C. B. Aycock, will be the next Governor of this State. —Lexington Despatch.

The colored youth who was last week sentenced in Little Rock, Ark., to undergo 115 years imprisonment was given the comforting assurance by the presiding Judge that by good behavior he could secure a commutation of one month the first year, two the second, three in each of the next seven years, and thereafter six months each year. He would thus reduce the actual term of his imprisonment to the comparatively brief period of sixty years.

Wine Detecting by a Lock of Hair.

One recalls the method of discovering a thief by chewing rice, said to have been practiced in the east. But it is not necessary to go so far to find a more remarkable method of thief catching and not so well supported by sound reason. A lady in Paris is reported to have lost her purse in a dressmaker's establishment. She had all the young ladies of the establishment called in, so it is seriously reported, and demanded from each one a lock of her hair.

The tokens were then pinned to pieces of paper bearing the owner's names, and as the customer left the establishment she remarked: "My purse has been stolen, but as I do not wish to subject innocent girls to the humiliation of being searched I intend early tomorrow morning to submit your hair and handwritings to a somnambulist and clairvoyant, who will tell me which of you is the thief."

In the course of the evening the lady received an anonymous parcel containing intact her purse with its contents.

The Hug Pleased Him.

"See that man?" said the clerk of an up town hotel to me this evening as a handsome, middle aged man strolled through the lobby. "That is the president of the — Life Insurance company. He married his stenographer last spring. It was quite a romance. He and the girl and his office boy were coming down in the elevator in the insurance building one afternoon when the stenographer saw a mouse on the boy's shoulder. She threw her arms around the president's neck and screamed to him to protect her. The mouse cowered in a corner until the elevator reached the bottom floor and then escaped, the girl holding the president all the time. Well, he liked the sensation of being hugged by a pretty girl so much that he married her a few weeks afterward."

"And what became of the office boy?" I asked.

"Oh, he has a desk in the office at a good salary now and is in line to be president in due time," answered the clerk carelessly. —New York Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Nothing In It.

"I see from the papers that a man fell into the docks and was drowned," said Phillog.

"Couldn't swim, I suppose," said Wagster.

"That goes for nothing," said Phillog. "Look at me. When I was washed overboard, going to the Isle of Man, I couldn't swim a stroke, yet I kept myself afloat by keeping my head."

"Certainly, your head kept you up," remarked Wagster.

"They don't speak now." —Spare Moments.

Jerusalem is now nothing but a shadow of the magnificent city of ancient times. It is about three miles in circumference and is situated on a rocky mountain.

"While it cannot be denied that all men are liars," said the corn fed philosopher, "not all liars are men."

Advice to a Young Wife.

Never disturb a man when he is reading his paper.

Never ask a fat man for anything while pulling on his boots. Never speak to a man until he has had something good to eat.

Never discuss servants at table. When you want anything wait until your husband has had his breakfast, and then help him tenderly into his coat, and while behind him, smoothing his collar the right way, ask for it.

When he looks injured and plaintive examine his plate, there is sure to be a vacancy.

If he comes to breakfast on the eve of sob's ask not the reason, for he will answer that he had but one towel.

If he lies on the sofa after dinner and shakes the house with his snores accuse him not of sleeping, for he is "merely thinking with his eyes shut."

If he loses his handkerchief everywhere but at home let him have his own way about it—that the washerwoman is dishonest without your knowing it.

If you want him to do anything never tell him it is good for him, for he will not be "tied to a woman's apron strings."—Woman's Life.

FIRE AT PACTOLUS

Depot Robbed And Set on Fire.

Sunday morning about day break the Atlantic Coast Line depot at Pactolus was discovered on fire. Several people who were aroused hurried there, and by hard work they kept the fire confined to the office portion of the building and soon put it out. The interior of the office was badly damaged. An examination after the fire showed that the desks and drawers had been broken open and the contents taken, which leads to the conclusion that there was first a robbery and then the building was set on fire to cover up the first crime. It is said that about $1,800 in money, several express packages and a quantity of revenue stamps were taken.

This is the second fire at the Pactolus depot. A few years ago it was struck by lightning and destroyed.

A special lot of silverware from Henegen Bates at Mrs. M. D. Higgs'. Beautiful articles for bridal presents.

On Friday at Ayden a horse ran away with Mr. Joe Patrick breaking one knee and the instep of one foot.

The demand for dwelling houses is far in excess of the supply. This would make a good hotel pay all the better on the investment.

My silver from Henegen Bates has arrived. This lot was specially selected as suitable for bridal presents. MRS. M. D. HIGGS.

LOST—Pair of link cuff buttons and set of shirt studs, on separate cards, wrapped together in tissue paper. Finder please return to this office.

Got There With Only 10 Mules.

Manila, Oct. 6. The United States transport Sciam, which left San Francisco on August 19th, with upwards of 320 valuable mules, the coming of which had been anxiously awaited, as mules are in great demand for continuing the campaign, arrived this morning and reported that all but 10 of the animals had been lost in two severe typhoons, under peculiarly distressing conditions. The Sciam, which left Honolulu thirty-one days ago, encountered the typhoons early this week. One lasted forty hours. Most of the forage, which was on deck, was swept overboard, all the boats were mashed and the steamer rolled tremendously in the trough of the sea, although the officers made every effort to bring her about.

The mules were hurled from side to side and frightfully mangled and disembowelled. Their legs and necks were broken and the wretched animals fell in such a confused mass that the attendants were unable to relieve them. In the meantime, the deck load was washed off, the ship lightened and the rolling increased. When the storm abated the injured animals were killed and carcasses thrown overboard. When the Sciam arrived her propeller was high out of the water and the wreck of her boats were hanging from the davits.
