Best Even for Negro

The elimination of this class of citizens (ignorant negroes) from politics will be a God-send to them. It will loosen the bonds between them and those white leaders who play upon their ignorance and prejudice to lead them away from their true friends and against their own highest interests, and it will strengthen the bonds between them and the white neighbor upon whom they are dependent for industrial and commercial prosperity and progress. The colored citizen is on trial, not only before the people of the South, but before the world, not as a political element chiefly, but as an industrial factor. This comes near to his heart and his home. This is the sphere of his real interest, and whatever disentangles him on the non-essential side and gives him larger freedom on the essential side of his life and destiny is for his present and permanent good. Nothing in this regard will serve him better than this temporary elimination from politics. His elimination from politics does not mean his elimination from citizenship, except in regard to the voting function which he is the least capable of appreciation and least prepared to use for his own benefit and the good of the State. All other rights guaranteed to the best of our citizens are vouchsafed to him: Moreover, the provisions of this amendment are not such as to work a permanent or even temporary disablement of any class, but only a limitation of the right of franchise for a short period.—R. D. Gilmer, on the Constitutional Amendment.

Thanks to the Band.

Acme Council No. 16, Jr. O. U. A. M., by unanimous vote extended thanks to the Osceola Band for the excellent music furnished at the raising of the flag at the public school building, on Friday afternoon, and the lodge desires that public acknowledgment of the same be thus made.

Discretion in Business.

Discretion is the better part of business. The discreet merchant does not depend upon his powers of speech to attract custom, but relies upon the efficacy of well prepared advertisements, which speak convincingly to an ever increasing clientele. The merchant who advertises daily gives constant evidence of his discretion.—Philadelphia Record.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings in North Carolina.

The directors of the New Bern fair will ask the railroads to give a one cent rate. And the request ought to be granted.

Dr. R. H. Lewis, Secretary of the State Board of Health, says smallpox is rapidly spreading. He also says that local authorities are in many instances to blame for this.

A Great Book.

James Bullard, Colporter of the Watch-Tower Bible and Tract Society, of Allegheny, Pa., is in this section selling "The Plan of the Ages." This book is now in its 680th thousand and is recognized as the greatest aid to Bible study that has been published. Mr. Bullard will be in Greenville two weeks and will take pleasure in showing and explaining the merits of the book. Bill A. P. says: "This wonderful book makes no assertions that are not well sustained by the Scriptures. It is built up stone by stone, and upon every stone is a text, and it becomes a pyramid of God's love, and mercy, and wisdom."

They Missed.

Mails for Greenville got somewhat out-of-whack Monday. Not having any mails on Sundays the mails in transit on those days usually comes in on the noon freight train so that the mail train Monday evening often brings very little. On yesterday the noon freight, in keeping with its recent schedule, was several hours late, in fact did not come in until sometime after the evening mail train had arrived, and mail matter was correspondingly belated.

The Citizens Aided.

Capt. A. J. Griffin, Chief of the Fire Department, says the thanks of the department are due those citizens who went to the assistance of the hose squad when the fire alarm sounded Friday. As soon as the hose wagon started from the engine house several citizens ran up and gave the boys a helping hand, and Capt. Griffin says he never saw a line of hose strung out quicker. That was right on the part of the citizens, they should always be ready to help the firemen wherever they can.

TUESDAY, JANUARY, 30, 1900.

You have often heard the old expressions that doctors would not take their own medicine, and that people did not practice what they preach, and other kindred sayings. These are called to mind right now by an article we read in Monday's Tarboro Scouter. The paper told about a small fire in that town, which by timely discovery and faithful work of the fireman was put out, the damage being only about $100 "on which there is no insurance." And the occupant of the building was one of the oldest insurance agents in all this section, who has probably talked insurance to more people than any other one man. Of course it is none of our business, but all the same the item reminded us of the old sayings above referred to.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29, 1900.

Col. Bryan returned to Washington to attend the Gridiron Club dinner. He is delighted with the reception he has met with in the East, and says the republicans will be surprised when the votes are counted, if they really believe, as they pretend to, that all of the Eastern states will support Mr. McKinley and the present policy of the administration. He says he has found the democrats, everywhere he has been, preparing to put up a stiff fight this year, and encouraged to believe that they have a good chance to elect the next President.

sturdy opposition to the ship-subsidy job has frightened Mr. McKinley no little, and it is among the probabilities that the bill providing there for may be held over until the next session. This isn't because the Hanna-McKinley crowd have any idea of abandoning the job, but because they are beginning to be afraid that if it is jammed through before the Presidential election, it will defeat the republicans and elect a Democratic President and Congress.

Senator Scott, of West Virginia, is getting a little uneasy about his seat, notwithstanding the big republican majority in the Senate. The democrats are hot after Scott. Able arguments, showing the necessity for an investigation were made before the Senate Committee on Elections, by Judge J. H. Holt, and Mr. Frank L. Welles. They told the Committee that a very short investigation would show the illegality of Scott's election and that among the witnesses they would like summoned, was the governor of the State, who threatened to call out the militia to force the recognition of a rump legislature. Germany has made a formal protest against customs regulations of the United States, applicable to merchandise imported from Germany, and Secretary Hay has referred the protest to Congress, accompanied by a letter from Secretary Gage, saying that no changes in the regulations can be made without amendment of the Dingley tariff law.

The growing extravagance in public expenditures may well be regarded with alarm by the conservatives. It is not confined to any one branch of the government but may be found in all of them and if not checked will sooner or later lead to ruin. A member of the House committee on Naval Affairs, figures that the cost of educating each cadet at Annapolis, after the proposed new buildings there are completed, allowing legal interest on the money invested in the plant, will not be less than $15,000 a year.

The republican Senators have been compelled to change their programme on the gold standard bill. They had not intended to do any speaking, but under the taunts of Senator Jones, of Arkansas, Senator Allison announced that himself and other republicans would speak in defense of the bill. The action of the democratic caucus in deciding to offer a free coinage substitute for the gold standard bill, at the proper time, has been well received by democrats. While this substitute cannot pass, it will receive the votes of all the democrats who supported the Chicago platform, of all the populists and of all the silver republicans, and will spike a few republican guns.

The Roberts case may not end with the action of the House, as he has been advised to appeal to the courts, on the ground that the House violated the right of a sovereign state in declaring his seat vacant. Mr. Roberts admitted that he had been looking up the law and that he believed that he would have a good case on that ground, but declined to say whether he would go into court with it.

Pay Day in China.

New Year's is the national pay day in China. All accounts must be squared up at that time, and the man who can't raise money enough to pay his debts has to go into bankruptcy. The laws are such that the creditor can enter the debtor's house and take what he pleases if there is no settlement. To prevent such action families club together and all sorts of compromises are made. New Year's is a great day for pawnbrokers. Their shops are filled with people who want to pawn their best clothes before the new year. There are crowds also who want to pawn other things in order to get money to pay their debts. Pawnbrokers receive high rates of interest, in which they are protected by the government.

The Chinese paint the whole country red on New Year's day in more senses than one. Red is the color which with them denotes good luck and prosperity, and all the New Year's cards and invitations are on paper of that color. Every child gets its New Year's present wrapped in red paper, and red inscriptions are pasted over the doors of the houses.—London Mail.

The Grumbling Start.

A noted divine has declared that a husband's grumbling and scolding were often only his way of beginning a conversation, and he maintained that if a man were sulky the worse he was the more cheerful his wife should be. Certainly husband and wife should bear and forbear, he says, and the soft answer turneth away wrath more effectively by the domestic hearth than elsewhere. Then business is often worrying, and the husband coming home needs and usually deserves to find there all soothing and calming influences. But surely it should be mutual kindness. At times the man must take his turn in meeting irritability or low spirits with cheerfulness and kind, gentle consideration. As to the theory that the wisest and best course is for the wife of a sulky, tyrannical man always just to give in and crouch before the storm, he does not think that in either good policy or real kindness withmately is the way through.

SINGULAR DREAMING

TWO PECULIAR CASES OF BRAIN ACTIVITY IN SLEEP.

A Lawyer Who Solved a Knotty Problem He Could Not Master While Awake—An Exciting and Almost Tragic Railway Journey.

An Edinburgh lawyer, a confirmed somnambulist, went through a peculiar experience some little time ago. One evening, after dinner, he told his wife that he had a most difficult law case which would occupy him half the night to study out. For hours thereafter he grappled with its intricacies, but finally desisted, saying it would be impossible to make his brief until morning, since the case presented some difficulties that he had been unable to master.

He fell asleep from exhaustion almost as soon as he went to bed, but in a few minutes rose, and, seating himself at his desk, wrote furiously for an hour or more. Then, carefully folding and indorsing the sheets he had written upon, he put them away in a pigeonhole of his desk, after which, without speaking, he returned to his bed and slept soundly till late in the morning.

At breakfast he expressed some uncertainty as to his "finding a solution." His wife told him to look through his desk, which he did, discovering the paper he had written in the pigeonhole where he had hidden it. As he read it joy mingled with amazement showed plainly in his face, for the paper was a clearly reasoned, correctly phrased brief on the intricate case. With all the obscure points smoothed out! He had not the slightest recollection of having written the document.

Another extraordinary case is that of a young man who, an hour or so before starting on a railway journey, paid a visit to a steamer in which his parents were financially interested. In the course of the inspection he entered the little chamber in the bow of the vessel where the anchor chain is coiled and was impressed by the chamber's smallness and the cramped quarters it would afford a man sent down there to superintend the paying out of the chain. In due course the traveler went to the railway station and engaged a snug seat in the corner of a first class corridor and sleeping carriage. He had the compartment to himself. The train had not been long on its journey before the young man was sound asleep. But he imagined that he was awake and, moreover, that he was imprisoned in the little anchor chain compartment of the steamer. The vessel was under way, he thought, and moving more rapidly than he had ever known a steamer to move before.

His first idea was to go on deck at once, but he could not get out of the cell-like chamber. He could not stand erect even; the compartment was so little, as he found out at the cost of an imaginary bumped head when he attempted to rise. Then, to his surprise, he found that the room had a window, evidently a dead light, but square and unusually large. This he tried to raise, but, failing, determined to break it, thinking that he could seize the anchor chain and by its aid reach the deck.

There was only one way to smash the glass, and that was by striking it with his clinched fist. He knew that this would result in a cut hand probably, but he risked it all the same, for he felt certain now that the vessel was in a storm and likely to go down any moment, in which case he would be drowned like a rat in a trap.

Having smashed the glass, he found that the window was double, and he distinctly remembers breaking the outside pane, after which, with profusely bleeding hands, he carefully picked out the bits of glass remaining in the sashes, so that he could climb out.

After removing the last remaining fragment of glass from the sash he carefully thrust his head and arms out and began to feel for the chain. It was nowhere to be found. Then he pulled himself half way out of the window and reached upward.

To his great joy, he found he could reach over the edge of the deck; but, to his dismay, it was curved and smooth, offering no projection whatever by which he might pull himself up. That being the case, and not wishing to fall into the water and be drowned, he painfully drew back into the little chamber. However, he must certainly escape or be drowned, and after catching his breath he would make another attempt to reach the deck.

As he lay panting and frightened he accidentally reached in the direction away from the daylight. To his surprise he touched a swaying window blind, and the next moment he found himself lying on the floor of the corridor of the rushing train, with a window down through which he had evidently been trying to reach the deck of the imaginary steamer. The wonder was he did not lose his grip and fall on the line. It was his fear of being drowned that prevented him from being killed on the railway. The young fellow had a long and serious illness after his experience, and, strange to say, when he recovered his somnambulistic habit left him.—Washington Star.

THE MAN WHO WORKS.

And the Man Who Gets Through Things the Easiest Way He Can.

"The man that is so far advanced that he likes the work he is doing," said Mr. Stoggleton. "This reason to feel hopeful of himself. I suppose that the very great majority of us go through the work we have in hand the easiest way we can and get through it, skipping the hard places when possible and thinking we'll be glad when it's finished; but the next job will be just the same. There will be just about so many hard places in it, and then we'll be wishing just the same that we could get through that job."

"The fact appears to be that we are always trying to shirk the present job. We mean well in a feeble sort of way, and the next thing we tackle we are going to do right up to the handle, but when we strike that, when that becomes the present work, don't we try to shirk that too? We do, indeed. And that's what we don't through life—daily putting off our best endeavors till to-morrow. Kind of a miserable thing to do, isn't it?"

"But occasionally you meet a man who puts in his best ticks every day and rejoices in the labor. He doesn't care a continental what the next day is going to bring to him—he can handle it, whatever it is. Just now he's engaged with today's labor, and he does that up thoroughly and completely and searches out the last nook and cranny. He isn't trying to see what he can pass by, but what he can root out, and he goes home satisfied with his work, and he's the one man in a thousand that leads all the rest, and his pay corresponds with his labors."—New York Sun.

Running It Aground

The Observer's Raleigh correspondence yesterday contained the following item:—"The social season here has been the gayest ever known, and as the number of people who regularly attend the interminable functions is limited, they have heavy work." The same is true of Charlotte and every other place. Society this season is nothing less than a heavy burden to society people themselves. Each entertainer striving to out-do the other, is leading to intemperance in society, to society intemperance. Do you catch the idea? Not conviviality, but simply carrying the "function" business to an extreme. And there is no satiety for society. What a low-necked, short-sleeved, V-backed, dress-suited Oliver Twist it is!—Charlotte Observer.

There are Others.

Since the new year came in THE REFLECTOR has been much gratified at the way old subscribers have been coming in to pay up and renew. We have also had the pleasure of entering many new names on the list. There are yet some others who have not responded to our request for a settlement, and we hope they will not keep us waiting on them. They have had the paper and they should come like men and pay for it.

The strongest minded woman, who rules her husband with a rod of iron, may be effectually squelched by a little dressmaker.

HOWDY DO.

Some Speak to Me, Some to You.

Mrs. W. B. James is quite sick. Edward Greene returned this morning from Kinston.

Presiding Elder F. A. Bishop returned Monday evening.

Harry Skinner returned Monday evening from Washington City.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Rountree returned this morning from a visit to Kinston.

S. Parker, of Pinetown, is spending a few days here looking after his lumber interests.

R. N. Harris, of Wilmington, who has been visiting H. A. White, left this morning.

H. P. Strause took the train this morning for Rocky Mount to attend the Pythian meeting.

Mrs. Almata Hcell, suffered another stroke of paralysis Saturday night and has since been speechless. Her condition is serious.

R. M. Moye, J. L. Fleming, H. A. White, J. N. Hart, Frank Wilson, O. E. Warrea, I. C. Gary, C. S. Forbes, W. H. Dail, G. J. Woodward, H. W. Holcomb and T. M. Hooker left about noon today on steamer Shiloh, enroute for Rocky Mount to attend the district meeting of the Knights of Pythias.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Morrill who have leased the Seven Springs Hotel, have arrived and taken charge of the hotel. The guests of the past two seasons, especially the young ladies, will miss ex-proprietor Smith's genial smile.—La-Grange Sentinel.

What Taxes North Carolina Towns Pay.

Henry Clay Brown, Secretary to the Corporation Commission, has compiled the rates of taxation per $100 in the various cities and towns of the State.

Wilmington leads all cities in the State in the rate of taxation, the amount being $1.75 per $100. Greensboro and Statesville come next with tax rates of $1.30, and Raleigh is third with a rate of $1.23½. The tax rate in Charlotte is only $1.00, and it is the same in Fayetteville.

In other places the tax rate is as follows: Henderson and Concord 90, Salisbury 85, Monroe 80, Elizabeth City 75, New Bern 72½, Warrenton 65, Goldsboro, Greenville and Rocky Mount 60, Wilson 33½, Wake Forest 25, Pittsboro 10, High Point 66½.—Fayetteville Observer.

A Smile in Each.

Even the most frugal people indulge in extravagant assertions.

The man who sings his own praise is always a soloist.

The industrious bunco man is always up and doing.

When a boarder praises the landlady's coffee it's a pretty good sign that he can't pay up.

Some men can preserve more dignity in patched shoes than other men can in high hats.

When a man is always complaining of bad times you may be pretty sure he carries a $3 watch.

Some people owe so much to themselves that they completely lose sight of what they owe other people.

NOTICE.

This is to state that the firm of Drs. O'Hagan & Laughinghouse has not been dissolved. The only change made is, that for the better convenience of our patrons we have established a down town office.

Dr. O'Hagan will occupy the old stand. Dr. Laughinghouse will occupy the new office situated on Fourth street, just behind Frank Wilson's clothing store in the Perkins block of buildings where the old post office used to be. DR. O'HAGAN & LAUGHINGHOUSE
