Toads and Frogs.

Some traits of "The Mediaeval Toad" were recounted in a paper written by Mrs. Frances M. Butler of Snow Hill, Md., and read by Mrs. John C. Wrenshall at the monthly meeting of the Baltimore Folklore Society. In the time of Shakespeare, it stated, the toad was credited with secreting a poisonous venom while in hiding which it spat out indiscriminately at man and beast. The cattle plague in England and many mysterious human deaths were attributed to the work of the toad. The spider was supposed to equal the toad in venom, but in these days toads eat spiders with apparent impunity.

The American toad Mrs. Butler stated, is larger, not so dark, and more agile than its English brother. Toads are imported into England from Austria, packed in moss and sold at £3 or £4 a hundred.

In physic the toad, or part of it, has always been credited with great powers. For instance, the right eye of a frog wrapped in russet cloth hung around the neck was supposed to cure the right eye of the wearer of bleariness. The same was true of the left eye of the frog for the left eye of the wearer. A toad, dead or alive, placed at the back of the neck was supposed to stop nose bleed. Dried and powdered, the frog was supposed to be an irresistible love philter.

It is related of the American Indians that they believed that a council of the gods was held for producing light at night. The whippoorwill made the moon out of a large frog, and the coldness of the moon is attributed to the frog's natural coldness.

Another tradition related of savage tribes is that the toad quarreled with the woodpecker and caused the Deluge. It is said that they disputed over honey which the toad was induced to climb a tree in order to obtain. Then the woodpecker knocked the toad out of the tree, and in revenge the toad drank up all the water on earth, leaving the birds dry and thirsty. In a subsequent quarrel the toad incautiously lanced about and burst, and the water covered the earth in a flood.

In Maryland the bite of a toad is considered poisonous, if not deadly. An old superstition is that handling toads will cause warts to grow on the hands.—Baltimore Sun.

Robbed by Highwaymen.

M. M. Perry, who has a stall in the Raleigh market, was held up and robbed by highwaymen early yesterday morning near Rocky Mount. Mr. Perry was returning from Nashville, where he had sold a number of horses Tuesday, and started out to walk from Rocky Mount to South Rocky Mount, intending to board a train at the latter place for Raleigh. When about midway between the two towns he was stopped by three masked men, who, at the point of their pistols, relieved him of a large sum of money—between $600 and $800.—Raleigh Post.

His Father Dead.

Thursday afternoon Mr. Hugh W. Holcombe received a telegram from Danville announcing the death of his father. He left at once through the country for Tarboro to catch a night train there for Danville.

At the Opera House.

The Lehr & Williams Comedy Co., comprising 18 people will open a week's engagement next Monday, Feb'y 12th, in repertoire at popular prices: 15, 25 and 35 cents. Each reserved seat bought before 6 P. M. Monday entitles the holder to bring a lady free. The seats went on sale this morning and up to 4 P. M. 80 had been taken and the advance man, Mr. Brause had to phone his manager for more tickets, as they were going fast.

Big Crowd But Ordinary Show

Alba Heywood gave his entertainment here Thursday night and was greeted by the largest audience that has assembled in the present opera house. Not a reserved seat was left unsold and many extras were put in. Heywood's impersonations, Ulrich's cello solo and Miss Monroe's violin playing were good, but on the whole the entertainment fell far below expectation and was entirely too short to be worth the price. It is a much overrated company.

Here's a Danger.

With towns all around us getting factories and Greenville not getting any it is not hard to see where this town will be the loser. People naturally seek towns in which factories are operated, for advantages of business are better there. So the danger that confronts Greenville is that if the town will try to go on without factories some of the people already here may be taken from us to the towns that have factories.

Some men will exercise for hours with Indian clubs and dumbbells, and kick like steers if asked to carry up a scuttleful of coal.

Had The Same Husband.

Mrs. Missouri Brown, of Woodford S. C., finds the matrimonial relations of her two daughters so complicated that she has written Governor McSweeney for assistance. These daughters, within ten years, married the same man, who in that interval, also wedded a girl in North Carolina.

In 1889 Charles Furtick married her eldest daughter, Illinois, and after living together for a year separated. Furtick then went to Bristow, N. C., and married a Miss Huskind.

Last year, under the name of W. W. Furtick and much changed in appearance, Mrs. Brown says, her son-in-law returned to Woodford. She did not know him, and he paid court to her youngest daughter, Frances.

Mrs. Furtick No. 1 was then living in the country and did not see her husband. Francis was only a child when Furtick married her sister and had no recollection of him. On October 23 last they were married.

It was some weeks before Mrs. Brown had her suspicions aroused and then only because of information that reached her about wife No. 2, in North Carolina. She wrote to the father of Miss Huskind, and called the eldest daughter the first wife into consultation. As a result the two women swore out a warrant for Furtick's arrest for bigamy. Furtick got away.—Columbia Dispatch, to Philadelphia Record.

Capital Indefinitely Multiplied.

The man who doubles his money every time he invests it is usually thought to be doing a satisfactory business; but what must be thought of the more fortunate individual who indefinitely multiplies the capital he invests? He does not woo fickle Fortune, but deals only with a material certainty. He is the man who advertises. Every dollar expended in advertising brings many scores of dollars in profit to the investor.—Philadelphia Record.

Startling Instances.

Last week a delinquent subscriber said he would pay up if he lived. He died. Another said: "I will see you to-morrow." He's blind. Still another said: "I'll pay you this week or go to the devil." He's gone. There are hundreds who ought to take warning of these procrastinators and pay up now.—Nindley (S. D.) Slope.
