Go and List.

Tax listing time is about half out, but not near half the people have yet listed their taxes. When they all know it is a matter that must be attended to, it is strange that people will put it off to the very last minute, some even waiting until they are assessed with double tax for their neglect. Go on and attend to this matter.

Buried.

The remains of little Lena Rivers Harris, who died in Rocky Mount, Sunday morning, arrived on the passenger train Monday evening and were interred in Cherry Hill Cemetery. Services were conducted at the grave by Rev. N. M. Watson. The pall bearers were Messrs. A. C. Holloman, J. B. Jarvis, N. H. Whitfield and H. W. Holcombe.

Case of Rapid Appreciation.

A southern editor, who appears to have a close acquaintance with Atlanta journalism and intimate knowledge of Atlanta newspaper history, in an article concerning recent events, says: "The sale of the Atlanta Journal, for about $300,000, is striking evidence of what afternoon journalism has accomplished. Ten years ago the Journal was a small paper, completely overshadowed by the Constitution, which occupied, as now, the morning field. Now the two papers are on equality.—Newspaperdom.

Grand Lodge Meeting.

Quite a large number of colored people from various sections of the State arrived here Monday evening to attend the meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Good Samaritans and Daughters of Samaria. Others came in on this morning's train.

HEARD AND SEEN IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, N. C., June 11. A gentleman from near Pinetown informs me that the Roanoke Railroad and Lumber Co., are extending their road to Washington and that they expect to be here during the year. I also was told that the "Great Eastern Railroad Co." had made sale of bonds and that work would be renewed soon.

A. S. Kelly has returned from Panacea, where he has been for some weeks.

Lumber business has gone radical, and the outlook for laborers in the mills and log woods is not very promising.

Strawberry shipping is over for this season, about 30 cars shipped from here.

Potato men look and feel dull, bottom has dropped out.

S. H. Williams and H. B. Mayo left on Friday for northern potato markets.

Miss Katie Stilley, the daughter of ex-Register of Deeds O. K. Stilley, returned from Louisburg Female school on Thursday.

The Populists met here on Saturday in convention, expecting to hear Marion Butler and Cy Thompson, but neither materialized.

"Mollasses" is advertised here. Messrs. James and George Spencer have begun to build a residence (each) on East 2nd street.

The Sunday school observed children's day at the Christian church on Sunday 10th inst.

W. G. Bishop, late of Juniper Bay, Hyde county, has accepted a position with the Eureka Lumber Co.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Short left on Monday for Richmond, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Phillips are back from Boston, where they attended a Christian Science meeting. JIM NASTIC.

TUESDAY, JUNE 12, 1900.

To him that hath shall be given. The papers tell that a few days ago a son of the late Robert Bonner, of The New York Ledger, in looking through one of his father's old magazines, found $70,000 between the leaves. The son did not need it, otherwise he would not have found it, the old man had had no use for it, otherwise it would not have been there. We hear much of the caprices of Fortune, but it doesn't seem to be so capricious after all. On the contrary, it has a pretty steady habit of emptying its cornucopia in front of doors where the horn of plenty has already been, and of denying itself to those households where it would do the most good. The $70,000 which young Mr. Bonner has just found is about as much to him as 70 cents is to the average citizen which is another way of saying that if the average citizen were to come into this much money he would forthwith throw away his old clothes and start off for a night with the boys.—Charlotte Observer.

An Inheritance Tax.

Much of the injury done to the principle of just taxation by the United States Supreme Court decision a few years ago declaring unconstitutional the graduated income tax, has been remedied by a recent decision of the court, sustaining the inheritance tax which was imposed to raise revenue for the Spanish war. Thus, while the growing wealth of an individual is taxed in no other way save by the regular property assessment, when the individual dies, all legacies, save to husband and wife, have to pay a tax to the government, graduated according to the amount of legacy. This is well. Property that has escaped taxation by fraud in the life-time of the decedent, or has grown to such enormous proportions by the special favors of government, must pay for this special protection. This is a valued source of revenue in England and more or less in seventeen States of our Union. It is likely to come in all States, so that between the national government and the States the vast accumulations of the rich will be made to bear some burdens in return for the great rights they enjoy.

This decision is one of the great triumphs of the decade in common justice. It is a fitting crown with which to close the century.—N. C. Baptist.

The observations of the United States Weather Bureau show that rain falls more frequently between 3 o'clock and 8 o'clock in the morning than at any other time during the day.

OUR RALEIGH LETTER.

Legislature in Session—After a "Recess" of Fifteen Months the General Assembly Meets Again at Raleigh.

Special Correspondent of Reflector.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 12th, 1900.

At the time this letter is dated the General Assembly of North Carolina is about to reassemble in adjourned session, according to agreement when the "recess" was taken in March, 1899, fifteen months ago. For several days the law-makers have been arriving here, and today the "rear guard" are expected to come in numbers sufficient to more than furnish the necessary quorum in each branch of the Legislature. I have noted so far, however, the absence of Republican faces, and the physiognomy of fusion Pops has not beamed upon me to an overwhelming extent.

If they had their way there would be no extra session, you can rely upon it. They know too well what it will mean and accomplish towards disproving and dispelling the falsehoods and fears they have spread and conjured up in the minds of some of the illiterate and ignorant white voters. They know and too sensibly feel that this body of Democratic patriots will remove every valid objection, however remote, that any white man can honestly entertain to the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment; and they know that then the few who may feel some lingering fear of its effects, having the last obstacle of doubt or objection removed, will fall in line and aid the balance of their honest and self-respecting brethren to create White Rule in North Carolina thereafter and make negro domination in politics an impossibility for all time to come.

NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN.

Considerable interest has been manifested by prominent party men and workers of late concerning the election of the North Carolina member of the Democratic National Committee. This selection will be made as usual during the National Convention, by the delegates from this State to that convention—this year at Kansas City on July 4. It is neither the intention nor the desire of this writer to "take sides" with regard to any contest over this important "honor" (if, indeed, there should be a contest), but it must be plain to every Democrat, who hopes for the election of our national ticket this year, that too much care and wisdom and sound judgment cannot be exercised in this matter by our delegation. I do not know how many aspirants there will be, nor whether there will be more than one. But I have just learned of one, viz., Major E. J. Hale of Fayetteville, one of the four delegates-at-large, and who, by the way, received the highest vote in the recent State Convention.

The mutual friend who informed me of Major Hale's aspiration makes the following statement to me—and I violate no confidence in reproducing it:

"It is the custom to accord to the delegate who has received the highest vote in the State Convention his choice of the positions in the gift of the delegation. The reason is obvious. Such a vote by the highest party authority is the supreme expression of the party's confidence. I heard a leading Democrat say that Mr. Hale would make the ideal national committeeman at this juncture, because, after winning the August election, we shall be obliged to re-unite Vance's democracy in order to carry the State for Bryan in November. It will be remembered that the late Mr. D. A. Covington said at the Convention of '98 that Senator Vance had said to him, shortly before his death, that he looked to Mr. Hale to take up, after his life was ended, the work of reuniting the real Democracy of North Carolina—the work upon which he was expending all his energies, and in the prosecution of which he died. It is universally conceded that for this now indispensable task no one stands more eminently fit than Major Hale."

ANENT TWO UNIVERSITY PRESIDENTS.

If all elections or appointments to positions of trust were met with such universal approval as the selection of Drs. Venable and Vann to preside over the University of North Carolina and the Baptist Female University of Raleigh, respectively, we would all be happier than we sometimes are. Dr. Venable has been identified with the institution over which he is now called to preside too long to need an introduction to North Carolina people. And yet he is a comparative young man and the young men are particularly pleased at his election.

Dr. R. T. Vann, at present of Scotland Neck Baptist church, is not only talented and well qualified for the new office, but his is a most remarkable personality otherwise. He has neither hands nor arms (both being severed from his body by accident in early life), and yet the small portion of the limbs left (vulgarly called "stumps," although I know no better word to use) have been educated to perform many offices for him which one would think impossible. For instance, he is one of the best shots with a gun in the State, and annually takes much delight in hunting birds. His friends here declare he will make a great success as president of the "B. F. U."

LLEWXAM

Advertise All the Year Round.

Hot weather does not compel nor induce the public to deny themselves any of the necessaries, comforts or luxuries of life. In the hottest days of summer they have wants that must be satisfied, and then, as in other seasons, they purchase where they are invited to deal. It therefore behooves the wise merchant to advertise liberally all the year 'round, without regard to climatic phenomena.—Philadelphia Record.

The Sign of Success.

It is not the size of the store but the amount of business transacted in it that makes the successful commercial enterprise. The small mercantile establishment which advertises gets much custom, while the large non-advertising house is visited by few purchasers; for advertising is the life of trade.—Philadelphia Record.

Bishop Turner, colored, of Georgia, does not think the movement for the organization of a negro national party will amount to anything. Yes it will. It will give some of the swell darkeys a chance to pose, and get their names in the papers.—Wilmington Star.

Wednesday a 70-year-old citizen of north Iredell sent to town to get a tomb-stone for his wife's grave. By the same messenger he sent also for license to get him a new wife.

Dogwood is now used as a substitute for ebony in the making of dark piano keys.

No Pay for Trusts.

In some of the Western States anti-Trust legislation includes a refusal to illegal combinations of power to collect debts or enforce contracts. The Court of final resort in Missouri decided last year that the National Lead Company, being a combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade, could not recover payment for goods sold to a dealer in that State.

A similar decision has just been handed down by an Arkansas Court in a case involving a bill of $20 for ice furnished by an Ice Trust. It was held that since the ice dealers regulated and controlled the price their contracts with customers were void in law. Under such an enactment and such judicial ruling it would be practically impossible for a combination controlling output or prices to sell goods on credit. The debtor might pay or not, at his pleasure; and although some way might be found to evade the law, the risk of loss would be vastly enhanced.

In view of the somewhat narrow limitations of State powers over industrial combinations, and the uncertainty of relief from paralyzing monopoly by methods of Federal legislation, the Missouri and Arkansas device of invalidating the contracts and outlawing the bills of Trust combinations should attract public attention wherever anti-Trust sentiment is dominant. It is of no use to deny charters to the Trusts; they take refuge in the two or three States which harbor them gladly. Sheltered by the broad provisions of the Federal Constitution, and aided by every agency of modern commercial and industrial enterprise, they have successfully defied all attempts of the States to interfere with the course of monopoly. But if the rule adopted in Missouri and Arkansas legal practice should generally prevail the Trusts would perish of financial strangulation.—Philadelphia Record.
