Barge Loads of Dead.

Galveston, Tex., Sept. 11, via Yacht Stella to Houston, Sept. 12.—The citizens of Galveston are straining every nerve to clear the ground and secure from beneath the debris the bodies of human beings and animals, and to get rid of them. It is a task of great magnitude and is attended with untold difficulties. There is a shortage of horses to haul the dead and there is a shortage of willing hands to perform the gruesome work. Yesterday morning it became apparent that it would be impossible to bury the dead even in trenches and arrangements were made to take them to sea. Barges and tugs were quickly made ready for the purpose, but it was difficult to get men to do the work. The city's firemen worked hard in bringing the bodies to the wharf, but outside of them there were few who helped. Soldiers and policemen were accordingly sent out and every able-bodied man they found was marched to the wharf front. The men were worked in relays and were supplied with stimulants to nerve them for their task.

At nightfall three barge loads, containing about 700 human bodies had been sent to sea, where they were sunk with weights. Darkness compelled suspension of the work until morning. Toward night great difficulty was experienced in handling the dead bodies of negroes, which are badly decomposed. No effort was made after 9 o'clock yesterday morning to place the bodies in morgues for identification, for it was imperative that the dead should be gotten to sea as soon as possible. Many of the bodies taken out are unidentified. They are placed on the barges as quickly as possible and lists are made while the barges are being towed to sea.

The one thing that every man feels sure of accumulating is age.

Vance's Religion.

We are glad that the speaker, Mr. R. H. Battle, on last Wednesday threw this side-light on the great life-drama of Vance: "Soon after the death of his first wife he became a communing member of the Presbyterian church in this city. He had long been a regular attendant upon its services. It can do no harm now for me to tell of the regret he expressed to me, soon after his return from his wife's burial, that he had not joined the Church in her lifetime. He had been influenced to stay out, he said, by the dishonest lives of some Church members he knew. He admitted it was not a sufficient reason; but he despised hypocrisy and was reluctant to put himself in such fellowship with some who were hypocrites. He had long been a prime favorite with religious ministers, worthy of their calling, and a few among them failed to find in him, if not a technical theologian, one as well versed in the Bible and the history of Christianity as themselves. He could not but be broad and catholic in his views, and opposed to sectarian bigotry. While in earlier years his higher conversation and occasional over-emphatic language led many to think otherwise, there was ever a strong religious element in him, and he had always a profound faith in an over-ruling Providence.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

Robbing The Dead.

Houston Texas, Sept. 12.—A reporter has telegraphed from Laporte the story of the robbery and mutilation of the dead in Galveston, and the death of the offenders. The ghouls were holding an orgie over the dead. The majority of the men were negroes, but there were also whites who took part in the desecration. Some of them were natives and some had been allowed to go from the mainland under the guise of "relief workers." Not only did they rob the dead but they mutilated bodies in order to secure their ghoulish booty. A party of ten negroes were returning from a looting expedition. They had stripped corpses of all valuables and the pockets of some of the looters were fairly bulging out with fingers of the dead which had been cut off because they were so swollen the rings could not be removed. Incensed at this desecration and mutilation of the dead the people shot down the looters and it was determined that all found in the act of robbing the dead shall be summarily shot.

During the robbing of the dead, not only were fingers cut off, but ears were stripped from heads in order to secure jewels of value. A few government troops who have survived are assisting in patrolling the city. Private citizens have also endeavored to prevent the robbing of the dead and on several occasions have killed the offenders. Singly and two and three the offenders were thus shot down until the total of those thus executed exceeds fully fifty.

Kruger's Flight to Neutral Territory.

Paris, Sept. 12.—High authorities here inform the Times that there is reason to believe that prior to crossing the frontier to Lorenzo Marquez, President Kruger received assurances from the Portuguese authorities that he would not be delivered to Great Britain. Nevertheless the news of his flight creates profound sympathy in France, where it is regarded as a sign that he has given up the fight.

Stand By Your Home Merchant

There are a number of people who live in these cities, who are in the habit of ordering what dry goods or clothing they may need from New York or Baltimore, laboring under the delusion that they can buy cheaper and better goods than they can purchase through home merchants.

The experience of experienced buyers, is that goods are higher, sold from the retail stores of big, northern cities, or purchased through agencies in these cities, than they are at our home stores. It may be a balm to conscious pride to say, "I bought this or that from Seigel, Cooper & Co., Macy, Ehrlich or Crawford, of New York, but it does not add one item of value to the goods. If you will stop to think for one moment, you must realize the fact that your small purchases will never enable you to acquire the experience in regard to the value of goods that a merchant has, and a gratifying vanity is all you will get for your trouble, and you may, and often do, find that you have paid entirely too much for your purchase.

Now, we take this view of the matter, every dollar spent with home merchants tends to strengthen their hands and tends to build up your city. The home merchant rents your stores, pays his tax, helps to support your municipal government, and last, but by no means least, does more to advertise your city than any other class of men. Now remember, when we speak of the merchant, we speak of the class that do advertise in their home papers, telling to the world who they are and what they are, attracting the attention of buyers and others to the city.

A live, progressive merchant, is one of the most valuable citizens a city can have, and it is the duty of the people to support them, and usually the masses do, but the wealthier classes often do not. We urge all of our people to stand by the home merchant the home manufacturer, and in fact, all home people.—Winston Journal.

Finds of Sporting Men.

While Alexander Lewis and his two sons were hunting in the vicinity of Temble, Ind., the dogs treed something in a hollow tree. The hunters came up, got their guns ready, and found the unknown animal to be an infant but two or three days old, and still alive. The child had evidently been abandoned to its fate. Mr. Lewis carried the little one to his home and there is every prospect that it will be successfully reared.

In Yazoo county, Miss., a party of hunters killed a deer that had a human skull impaled on a prong of its horn, supposed to be that of a negro. The prong had entered the cavity occupied in life by the eye, and had grown up around the bone, showing the skull had not been put on recently. There are various conjectures as to how it got there, but the most prevalent opinion is that the animal was wounded and brought to bay by the negro and had killed the latter in the conflict which ensued, the prong entering the eye and piercing the brain. The body of the deer showed signs of wounds. He was about as large as a two-year-old calf.—Forest and Stream.

It begins to look as if some of the democratic papers that a few weeks ago were pushing for the amendment are already on the stool of repentance. Some people are very uncertain and so are some newspapers. It is a good way to have convictions and principles and to stand by them. No good and true democratic newspaper will favor fastening negro postmasters, school committeemen, and so on upon the Eastern counties, through the viciousness and long nursed hatred of the south by McKinley and black radicals, if negroes do flock into the north that has so recently given examples of its great fondness for Sambo and Dinah.—Wilmington Messenger.

Want to Come Back.

A lot of female cooks went to New York last spring and winter. Now some of them want to come back, but can't. A case was laid before Mayor Taylor today where a woman writes that she wants to come, but the people keep her from doing so. Her employees first wrote that she was no account and then when she secured another place they refused to let her depart. Fortunately for Mayor Taylor, but perhaps unfortunately for these people, his jurisdiction extends only to the corporation limits of Greensboro.—Greensboro Record.

New Horrors Added.

Galveston, Texas, September 11.—Galveston is under martial law, made necessary by the number of thieves who were preying upon the dead and dying. To add to the horror of the situation numerous reports have been received of criminal assaults upon white women by negroes.

Inability to bury the dead has forced those in authority, for the protection of the living, to load hundreds of bodies on boats and send them out to be lowered into the Gulf. Fresh water is the greatest need, with disinfectants and food next in order.

It is very evident that Holton and Pritchard and "the gang" are counting on a big effort to carry North Carolina by the consolidation of the 120,000 of 130,000 negro votes. They have nothing else to count on, and yet they talk hopefully of carrying the state for McKinley if they are not prevented by the "democratic machine." If the negroes vote, as they probably will, then the negro is still a very pronounced issue in North Carolina, and all the negro-philists in the state cannot make it otherwise appear. Wilmington Messenger.

WE NEED EACH OTHER.

"The eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee; nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you." 1 Cor. 12:21.

Having heard nothing from my family in four days, I went to a 'phone today. Bro. Smith was very kind, tried three times to get Ayden, and failed. My next chance was through the mail; but the post-office was nine miles away. A negro driving a wagon kindly promised to take my hastily written letter to G—. A few minutes later I wanted to mail a letter to Rev. W. A white man on a buggy took it. As I drove away I overtook a negro trying to lead a very fat, stubborn cow. I stepped out of my buggy and touched her with my whip and she galloped off to the end of her journey. As I drove by I saw her going to her stall and the negro walking off with the rope in his hand and a broad smile on his face.

A very dear friend of mine, the richest man in his town, was crossing a narrow stream in a little boat, with three of his children. The boat upset and the four were about to drown. A stout negro jumped in and tossed out the three children, one by one, and then saved the father, who told him to go up to his store and get the best suit of clothing the clerks could find.

The negroes need have no fear as to their future in the South. By the help of God the whites will govern the country for the good of both races.

WASHINGTON FIRE.

Largest in That Town Since the War—$200,000 Estimated Loss.

"The Yankees took Washington and burned the town." That was away back in the civil war, but there are some people who yet remember. From that day to this our neighbor town has had no such serious conflagration as visited it on Thursday afternoon.

The fire started about one o'clock, and for several hours raged fiercely. From the canning factory on Water street a distance of 200 yards to Market street, and then up Market street to Main is swept clear of buildings. It originated in Brabble's restaurant from a defective flue. The citizens and firemen there did valiant service but were unable to stop the conflagration. Many were prostrated with the intense heat.

About 2:30 o'clock Mayor Moyer received a message from Mayor Studdert asking for the assistance of the Greenville steamer and firemen. The firemen were summoned and had their engine and hose wagon at the depot and loaded for starting inside of half an hour after the message was received, but had to wait for the special train to arrive to take them to Washington. They got away at 4:40 and the run to Washington was made in forty minutes. About thirty-five men went along and when they started down the street at Washington the citizens greeted them with cheers.

Our boys went to work at once, and Chief A. J. Griffin says he never saw them or the engine work better. It was not long before the fire was under control and the danger that threatened the remainder of the town removed. They worked on until about 11 o'clock putting out the burning buildings. They left to return home about half past one o'clock, a large number of Washington people accompanying them to the depot. Mr. J. F. Taylor made a speech to the company, complimenting the men on their work and thanking them for the assistance rendered. Foreman W. F. Harding responded for the company.

The boys got back to Greenville about half past two, somewhat fatigued but very glad they were able to render our neighbors good service.

Died.

Thursday afternoon about half past two o'clock Mr. B. J. Wilson died at his home about one mile north of Greenville. He was about 62 years old. Mr. Wilson had been in poor health for some time, but seemed to be no worse than usual until a night or two before his death. He never married. He was an active member of Greenville Lodge of Masons, and was buried this afternoon with Masonic honors. The interment took place at the Brown graveyard, five miles from town.

Better Go Slow.

We hear some citizens complaining about fast driving on some of the streets, especially in the sections of the town where policemen are not expected to be met. First thing the fast drivers know Chief Smith is going to have some of them before Mayor Moyer.
