

LAST CROP BULLETIN.

The last crop bulletin to be issued this season was gotten out Tuesday. It reviews the crop condition for the week ending Monday, September 24. It is as follows:

Splendid weather for gathering crops and for other farm work prevailed during the week ending Monday, September 24, 1900. The temperature was much lower—in fact, a few degrees below the normal during the first half of the week, though rising slightly above normal the latter portion. The mornings of the 18th and 19th were very cool, and light frost was reported to have occurred at high altitudes in the mountain districts. The weather remained very dry in many counties, while in others beneficial showers occurred both at the beginning and the end of the week. The amount of the sunshine was abundant. While the absence of rain is causing further delay in fall plowing, a general or heavy rain would not be beneficial on account of the possible injury to open cotton, with which the fields are now dotted.

Picking cotton made fairly good headway during the week under the favorable weather conditions. In many counties the crop is now all open, and over three-fourths gathered. Some correspondents express the opinion that all the cotton will be picked by the middle of October. All previous reports of a very short crop have been confirmed. Fodder pulling is over and farmers are housing the corn crop. Cutting the last tobacco in northwestern counties is advancing rapidly, but no improvement is reported in the late curings. Peanuts are nearly all harvested in the south and are ready to dig in the north portions. The crop is short. Peas, sweet potatoes and fall gardens were somewhat benefited by the rains of the week. Turnips are doing well. Many turnips were sown during the week and have come up nicely. A good deal of plowing was done where the soil was moist enough, and some wheat, rye and oats have been seeded, but this work is far behind the average for the season. Souppernong grapes are ripe.

N. B.—As the weather conditions can have no further material influence on the yield of crops, this is the last of the crop bulletin for 1900. In consequence, however, of the special importance this season of information concerning the harvesting of the cotton crop, correspondents where cotton is grown are kindly requested to continue their weekly reports to this office during October, 1900, for the benefit of the cotton region bulletin published at New Orleans, La. The section director takes the opportunity to convey to correspondents the thanks of the chief of the bureau, and to state his own appreciation of their valuable services during the past season. The names of crop correspondents will appear in the annual report for 1900, copies of which will be sent to all.

When a woman gets married she doesn't think so much about the past she is leaving behind as she does about the presents she is going to get.

FALL OPENING.

Magnificent Display of New Goods.

The custom of making special displays of the season's new goods has become an attractive feature with some of our business houses, and they afford much pleasure to the trading public, especially to the ladies. Greenville is abreast with the times in this respect, some of our dealers making displays that would do credit to a large city establishment.

Take the firm of J. B. Cherry & Co. for instance. A look in their store just now will astonish you. To say it is beautiful does not begin to express their display, and a designer in a city store could not have made it with more taste and artistic blending of colors and fabrics. The very newest in quality and style is shown. Their store is a credit to the town.

And the milliners, you will not find a more up-to-date town anywhere than Greenville is in this line. Mrs. M. D. Higgs, the Misses Lewin and Mrs. M. A. Leggett all have special display of new fall styles now on. Each one of them has a display of special merit that shows the highest work in the millinery art. A large number of ladies have been out to these splendid openings.

Superior Court.

The following cases were disposed of:
Annie Dixon, murder by poisoning, not guilty.
Sam Cobb, burglary, guilty. Sentenced to 18 months in penitentiary.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings in North Carolina.

The Governor refused to commute the death sentence of Chancy Davis, who was convicted of burning the Battle residence in Edgecombe county. He will be hanged at Tarboro tomorrow.

The Tarboro Southerner says Rev. J. B. Morton is sick. His Greenville friends sympathize with him and wish he may have a speedy recovery.

Two boys near Charlotte were bitten by a mad dog Tuesday.

In the wrecking of a freight train on the Carolina & Northern railroad (narrow gauge) near Lenoir, the engineer and fireman, both lost their lives.

BLACK JACK ITEMS.

BLACK JACK, N. C., Sept. 28. L. H. White is very sick.

Many people from here attended services at Gum Swamp last Saturday and Sunday.

Johnie Tucker, accompanied by sister, Miss Pattie, attended services at Great Swamp on Saturday and Sunday last.

Dr. Nicholson, of Washington, visited the home of L. H. White, yesterday.

Yearly meeting at Pleasant Hill last Sunday conducted by Rev. Burroughs was very much enjoyed by a large crowd.

Miss Maggie Simpson, of Vanceboro, is visiting her many friends in Black Jack.

FALL ANNOUNCEMENT.

The fall season is again upon us. How fast the seasons come and go. It seems but a few days since we were advertising our spring and summer goods and now it is time to talk our winter wear and heavy clothing.

Before the hurry and rush of Fall business commences we want to say a word or two to our friends and we take this method of doing so. First, for favors of the past we wish to thank our patrons one and all. Never has a store tried harder to please its customers, and we realize that our efforts have been appreciated. No pains have been spared and nothing has been left undone to give our patrons the best clothing obtainable, for the lowest prices possible. That we always have what we advertise, and that we always do as we advertise, every customer of this store knows full well. The United States troops have been called off at Pekin. The war in China is considered practically over and peace negotiations will now be in order.

The great storm that recently visited Galveston, Texas, was bad enough, but another blow has struck portions of the State in a cloud burst that occurred a few days ago. The loss of property and life was large.

Those who have been reading the proceedings of the courts, and observed the many cases in which judgment was suspended upon payment of costs, will find a marked contrast in an article from the Monroe Journal that appears elsewhere in this issue.

An Englishman, writing of the Paris Exposition, says that such expositions do not pay exhibitors. He takes the position that "the same amount of money expended in advertising the wares in the accredited and recognized organs of the trade, or in the personal solicitation of orders, would be likely to result in three or four times the volume of new business that is ever likely to accrue from participating in the mammoth exhibition in a foreign land

Insurance for bathers is the newest enterprise in the insurance line in England. The company which devises the scheme is placing penny in the slot machines along the beach at all popular watering places. Upon dropping in a copper the bather receives a life insurance policy good for twenty-four hours.

A Renewed Appeal.

Galveston, Sept. 25.—Mayor Jones and others of the relief committee have issued a long appeal to the American people; asking for funds to relieve the distress still existing at Galveston. The appeal is endorsed by Governor Sayers and Miss Barton. It says:

"The munificent contributions sent to the Governor and directly to the relief committee are perhaps sufficient to defray the expenses of removing the wreckage and disposing of the dead bodies and meeting the most urgent sanitary requirements. The homeless will still be without shelter when this is done.

"Some kind of homes, be they ever so humble, must be provided for the 10,000 people who are now huddled in ruined houses, public places and improvised camps, to the end that they may not become paupers, but may set up their households wherein repose all that is best and noble in American life. We believe that the well-to-do and the charitable people of this nation will not be content to merely appease hunger and bind bruises, but will in every way contribute to the restoration of this people to a place of self support and self respect. It is for this purpose that we make this further appeal."

An Example Worthy of Emulation.

There is much favorable comment on the workings of the term of court held here last week. Of course Solicitor J. L. Webb gave satisfaction. He has always done so and our people know him. Judge Shaw, who presided, was prompt and resolute in the discharge of duty, and before the end of the week his name became a terror to those who dreaded justice. One thing noticeable in Judge Shaw's court was that the bunco game of submitting, paying costs and dodging justice didn't work. Fines were imposed and collected, the sum of $950 in fines being turned over to Treasurer McNeeley. Mr. McNeeley says that in twelve years that he has been treasurer, or from December 1, 1888, to and including August, 1900, the sum total of all the fines of all the courts during that time has only amounted to $1,016.33. It would be better for our country, better for the preservation of law and justice if we had more men of Judge Shaw's stamp wearing the judicial cloth.—Monroe Journal.

The late Worth Bagley, an ensign in the navy, was the first American officer to lose his life in the Spanish-American war. The particulars of his tragic and heroic death are well known to readers of The Post.

The government has done a graceful thing in recognition of his bravery and death by naming after him one of its new torpedo boats. This is not only a graceful act, but a distinguished compliment—one never before paid one whose rank was no higher.

Yesterday the new vessel bearing the name of Worth Bagley was moved from the stays into the water, and christened with becoming ceremonies. Mrs. Josephus Daniels, sister of the dead hero, performing the act of christening. May the career of the new vessel be a brilliant one, and like him for whom it is named, bear itself well in every discharge of duty. All North Carolinians specially will watch the future of the little vessel with great interest not unmingled with pride.—Raleigh Post.

A very wise and thoughtful man one who is a close student of passing events remarked recently that there is too much antagonism between the people in the towns and cities and people in the country. The city and town people do not take as much interest in the country people as they formerly did; and this in turn has caused the country people to feel indifferent towards town people.

By some means the country people in some places have come to entertain the belief that the town people are "down on them," and the town people have also come to believe that the country people do not entertain the best of feelings towards them.

This is all wrong. The city and town and country are mutually dependent upon each other. When country thrives the town and city thrive; and what is in the main helpful to one is also helpful to the other. The very best of feeling ought to prevail between the people in the country and the people in the towns and cities. This can be maintained by the proper treatment on all sides. Let us all do our best to keep up the best of feeling, for in this is happiness and prosperity for all.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Familiarity with the prevailing standards of etiquette gives a young man a distinct advantage, and he who is sure that he knows is at ease and conforms automatically to social requirements. None can be perfect in deportment who has to stop to consider how things ought to be done. If a man be a gentleman at heart the outward polish is easily acquired—between manners and morals the tie is intimate. A true gentleman is simple, unpretending, natural. He is courteous and considerate, and has the personal dignity that comes of self-respect, not self-consciousness. He treats every woman as a lady, speaks well of others and recognizes hospitality as a mutual obligation.—October Ladies Home Journal.

An Important Work for the Press.

The press of North Carolina can do nothing better than to constantly demand better schools. We turned our columns over to the campaign committees and published everything referring to the amendment, knowing full well that an amended constitution meant an educational advancement; that the fight would not stop at disfranchising thousands of blacks. Instead of cussing each other out of the party it might be well for the press to remember the work lying ahead and lay to with the same earnestness as a few months ago. The amended constitution makes a new era—the beginning of citizenship under new conditions—and we cannot afford to quibble because we don't all think alike.—Concord Tribune.

We publish elsewhere the announcement of Governor Jarvis of his candidacy for the senate. It is just like the man throughout, plain dignified, honest, and will have effect. No one can read it without admiration for the straightforward, patriotic gentlemen who wrote it. And there is not a county in the state in which many will not be found—old soldiers and those acquainted with the State's history for the past thirty years, who will renew their confidence in the old hero and statesman by their votes.—Raleigh Post.

Run the Track.

The blood hounds belonging to Mr. W. C. Hines that were taken to the store of Mr. G. M. Tucker, Wednesday morning, to trail the robbers who broke in his store did a nice piece of work. The dogs soon found the trail and began running it. A short distance from the store they came across some goods that had been dropped by the thief and they seemed to get a fresh scent from this. The dogs followed on without interruption for a course of two or three miles and went right up to the door of a colored man where they stopped and would go no further. They were taken back a part of the course as a test and put on the track again and went right back to the same house. Mr. Tucker says he never saw dogs trail anything better than these did. No arrest has been made yet, but we understand some strong evidence is being developed.
