GENERAL ASSEMBLY

What The Law makers are Doing.

FRIDAY, 18.
SENATE.

Gov. Aycock made his first visit to the Senate since the inauguration. His presence was announced by the Sergeant-at-Arms and he was received with applause and invited to a seat.

Senator James presented a petition from the citizens of Pitt county asking that cotton weighers be provided for Greenville.

The bill designed to prohibit the sale of cigarettes in North Carolina was made the special order for 12 o'clock on Wednesday, 23rd.

Some of the new bills introduced were these:

By Travis: To provide four-months schools in every county in North Carolina.

By Stringfield: Providing for furnishing a roster to the Committee on Pensions.

HOUSE.

The House had a quiet day, most of the time being taken up in discussions.

Representative Winston, of Bertie, introduced a bill which provides that the counties shall lease farms for the purpose of working their convicts, and also making provision for them to work the public roads.

SATURDAY, 19.

This being Gen. R. E. Lee's birthday and a legal holiday, both houses adjourned early in honor of his memory.

A few bills of a minor character were introduced.

Insolent Beggar.

A man with a baby and a little girl has been begging in town Sunday and today. The children are to be pitied, but the man is deserving of no sympathy whatever. We have been told of instances where he was very insolent and very abusive to people who did not do for him what he wanted.

Leg Broken.

Mr. B. F. Jolley has a sleeping room in the second story of the Bernard building, on Third street. When leaving his room Sunday morning he missed his footing and fell down the stairway. The small bone in one leg was broken.

Men are measured now-a-days not by merit but by money.

THE CHIEF CAUSE OF CRIME.

In the year 1900 there were 8,275 murders in the United States and only 198 hangings. In Canada for the previous year there were only 25 indictments for murder. The population of this country is only about thirteen times as large as Canada, but the number of our murders is 330 times as large. A single one of our cities of the first rank furnishes a larger criminal list every year than the vast greater half of the continent to the north of us. The Canadians have a right to their boast that as compared with us they are a remarkably law-abiding people.

This showing which is so unfavorable to the United States is partly accounted for by the fact that Canada has no great cities as breeders of crime and is inhabited by a homogeneous people instead of a conglomeration of races and nations. The French live mostly to themselves in a single province; the Indians are mild and easily controlled; there has been little immigration of the foreigners and all kinds have flooded this country and there is no race problem such as ours.

But, as stated this can account only in part for the astonishing difference between the criminal records of the two countries. There must be some other and a weightier reason. This is doubt to be found in the certainty and promptness with which punishment is meted out to offenders by Canadian representatives of law and order. The guilty are not only not allowed to escape, they are not allowed to delay the processes of conviction and punishment. "There are no methods," says the Chicago Times Herald, "whereby Canadian criminals can have the proceedings tayed from month to month and from year to year or, after being convicted, appeal from one court to another until the witnesses die of old age or opportunities for corruption can be found. Nor does this swift method of treating with wrong doers in Canada leave the innocent unable to properly defend themselves. They have all the privileges and opportunities that our own laws extend to them. The intent to shield the guilty is lacking—that is all."

Of the twenty-five indictments for murder in 1899, only two were left without final action, while eleven of the indicted were hanged, nine acquitted and three confined as insane. The same policy would hang nearly 4,000 of our murderers for the year 1900 instead of only 119. It cannot be doubted that the weakness in our judicial system, or rather lack of firmness in the application of the system, which permits so many red-handed murderers to escape their just deserts, is the chief cause of the shocking record of growing crime in our country.—Macon, Ga., Telegraph.

"Where Ignorance Is Bliss."

With yellow fever lurking in the bite of the mosquito and dangerous microbes clinging to almost everything with which we come in contact, the average man faces death a dozen times a day and would have been much happier if he had never heard of such things—that is, if he believes them.—Durham Herald.

MONDAY, JANUARY 21, 1901.

We have long considered that if Virginia should adopt the plan of requiring the prepayment of the poll tax the great mass of negro voters would fail to pay up and so would disfranchise themselves, Louisiana's experience confirms us in this view, but, unfortunately, the whites of that state seems to be almost as indifferent as the blacks. We do not believe, however, that it would be so in Virginia. We believe that if the poll tax were required to be paid twelve months in advance of the election the great body of white men would protect their franchise, while the great body of negroes would be found delinquent on election day.—Richmond Times.

Divorces in North Carolina.

We see it stated that there were about five hundred divorces granted in North Carolina during the past year. This is a lamentable fact. The Legislature can perform a great public duty by enacting a more stringent divorce law. The evils incident to divorces are many, and when the marriage tie is regarded as of no permanent binding effect it will lose much of the sacredness which should attend it, and the home, the fountain head of society, Christianity and civilization, will be seriously threatened. Divorces are too easily obtained. The marriage union is unthoughtedly formed and as unceremoniously broken.—Shelby Star.

These Are the Tests.

Of dignity: Never to forget yourself.
Of unselfishness: Never to remember yourself.
Of a clerk: Not what he earns, but what he spends.
Of happiness: The art of forgetting actual unhappiness.
Of unhappiness: The habit of forgetting actual happiness.
Of a millionaire: Not what he spends, but what he earns.
Of beauty: Not that it is perfect, but that it always attracts.
Of a good comrade: How much you enjoy talking to him.
Of purity: Not what it has not seen but what it has not touched.
Of charm: Not how much you feel it; but how keenly you remember it.
Of a student: Not how much he knows but how much he wants to know.
Of a realist: Not that he never depicts ideally, but that he never depicts falsely.
Of a fine man: Not the harm that he does not do but the good that he does do.
Of fascination: Not how keenly you remember it, but how much else you forget.
Of the worst pessimism: Leading a poor life and preaching what you practice.

Of a woman's power: Not how exclusively you think of her when she is there but how often you think of her when she is not there.
Of virtue: Not what it does not do but what it does not want to do.

Words To Think Over.

To do God's work we must do it His way.
The rays of happiness, like those of light, are colorless when unbroken.
Too much sensibility creates unhappiness; too much insensibility creates crime.
There are thousands of people who live on the cold, dark side of life. What they need is light and love.
No matter in what land the Christian is, or under what sky, he turns his eyes heavenward, he looks homeward—to the bliss and rest above.
More than half of the unhappiness of the world comes from a perverse unwillingness to look on the bright side so long as a dark side can be discovered.
The christian who works as hard as if everything depended on himself and as unconcernedly as though everything depended upon God, has a nearly perfect working theory.

Kent and Burr.

James Kent, whose famous "Commentaries on American Law" is classed with Blackstone as the greatest textbook on law, was a great admirer of Alexander Hamilton, and when the great Federalist was killed by Aaron Burr in a duel he became the implacable enemy of the latter. One day long afterward when in New York the judge saw Burr on the opposite side of Nassau street. He went across the street as fast as his years would permit and, brandishing his cane in Burr's face, shouted:
"You're a scoundrel, sir, a scoundrel, a scoundrel!"
Burr proved equal to the emergency. He raised his hat and bowed to the ground and then said in his calmest professional tone, "The opinions of the learned chancellor are always entitled to the highest consideration."—Argonaut.

Working the Head of the Family.

It's a wise boy who knows how to work his father, and in this precious age most boys are wise. Louis' father works in Omaha, but Louis himself lives with his grandma in western Nebraska. Like most boys do, Louis writes to his fond father only when he wants money or something new in wearing apparel. Last week he wrote, enumerating a number of articles he needed. Among other things he wrote:
"Please send me some stockings. You better send bicycle stockings because they last longer than the other kind. Are you going to send me a bicycle on my birthday to wear with my bicycle stockings?"—Omaha World-Herald.

The Obstacle.

Oldhamme—Young man, have an ideal. Have an ideal, I say, and hug it to your bosom at all times and places.
Youngdogge—She won't let me.—Harper's Bazar.

The Better Man.

A safe man is often better for the long pull than the brilliant man. The latter flashes and is gone, while the other stands by you.

Could Take a Hint.

It was late, but he still lingered. "I have been trying to think," the young woman remarked after a pause in the conversation, "of the motto of the state of Maine."
"Driggs," said young Spoonamore, reaching for his hat, "and I will go, but it will always be a consolation," he added, with a profound bow, "to know, Miss de Muir, that you once called me 'dearlie!'"—Chicago Tribune.

Exercise Enough.

"I thought your wife was going to join our physical culture class this year, Mr. Smythers?"
"She did intend to, but we've got a girl who has been over from Sweden only six weeks, and my wife has to talk to her by making signs."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Take away my first letter, take away my second letter, take away all my letters, and I am still the same. What am I? The postman.

The rose was an emblem of immortality among the Syrians, and the Chinese planted it over graves.

DINNER TO THE VETERANS.

The Singletary Chapter of The Daughters of the Confederacy, as required by their constitution gave a delightful reception and dinner to the veterans on Saturday the 19th, the birth day of Gen. R. E. Lee.

Pitt county furnished, we believe, a larger number of soldiers (about 3,000) for the war between the States, when we estimate its population, than any county in the State. Wyatt, the first martyr to the cause, lived here the greater portion of his short but eventful life.

About 40 veterans, most of them battle scarred, partook of the nicely prepared repast. About eight members of the Chapter were present with willing and eager hands ministering to these beloved heroes of our lost cause, many of them disabled by wounds in early youth and all growing old in the rough battle of life.

The weather was fair, though cold, and the day was one which seemed to be much enjoyed both by the old soldiers and the members of the Chapter who were present.

The Chapter desires especially to thank Capt. R. L. Carr—worthy of the days of 61 to 65, though born some 15 years later—for personal services, and also to him and his company for the free use of the armory, and to Mr. E. B. Ficklen, Mr. C. T. Munford and the editor of THE REFLECTOR for services rendered. A MEMBER.

MUNFORD'S BIG NEW STORE.

Well may the good people of Greenville and surrounding country be thankful and proud of their Big Store and the wonderful bargains that come from that great institution. For the third time this season has the buyer been north, picking and scouring the New York, Boston and Philadelphia markets and quickly snapped up all the "Juicy Plums." This was securing a leading manufacturer's fall shipment of fine clothing for men and boys intended for a clothier in Galveston, Tex., but which was countermanded on account of the flood. The result is, we can offer mens and boys highest grade clothing at just one-half the old time clothier's price. They will be ready and placed on the tables on

Four Car Loads of Merchandise Bought

Our Popular Store.

We leave it to you if there is not a snap, vim or go, about this business not perceptible in any other business in Greenville. It is no secret. The "old foggy" dry goods and clothiers are sleeping, waiting for you to come in and pay them their 50 per cent. profit. Will you do it? Or will you trade with a live, hustling, progressive concern that is working like a Trojan and making your dollar buy two dollars worth. We have doubled the business since we are in our new building already, and now want to tripple it.

Holiday Goods.

Over 2 car loads of fancy goods suitable for Christmas presents. The entire store presents a big Bazaar. Everything you can think of is right here. And the
