A dispatch this morning announces the death of Col. A. H. Belo, of Galveston, Texas, at Asheville yesterday. Immediately after the civil war, in which he had served he went from Salem, his birthplace, to Texas. He married there and some years later bought The Galveston News. It was a profitable investment and he established at Dallas its counterpart, The Dallas News. Except as to local news they were substantially the same paper, the editorial and general news matter in each being identical each day. These papers are distributed practically all over Texas every day by special trains chartered for the purpose and run out of Galveston and Dallas early every morning. These are the only Southern papers thus circulated, Col. Belo being the only Southern publisher able to stand this expense to reach his clientele. He has made a conspicuous success of journalism in Texas and dies a very wealthy man.—Charlotte Observer.

A Pennsylvania mail carrier who walked 10 miles every day and received the munificent sum of 29 cents as his compensation has resigned his position. He feels that it is unfair for the government to expect him to do such work for the small remuneration when Gen. Miles is paid $11,000 a year for simply having a good time. On the face of the thing it does appear a trifle unjust.—Washington Post.

We do not blame the fellow for resigning, not because of his envy of Gen Miles, but because of the meagre sum he received for his labor. The United States government is able, willing and does pay a reasonable sum for the carrying of the mails. The Pennsylvania man must have gotten his job from a mail contractor, one of those fellows who bid in a job lot of mail contracts, and then sublet them to some poor fellow at a price which will hardly feed the horse that pulls the mail pouch. There should be some way fixed to get rid of the middleman in this mail contracting system.—Kinston Free Press.

The only man who can truthfully say he has never forgotten to mail his wife's letters is the one who never had a wife.

North Carolina First.

It is a great pity that our good State has been so careless in preserving her own glorious history. Virginia furnishes a good example of State pride in which we are so sadly deficient. In the great struggle for Southern independence how small a part North Carolina plays in history. And yet she was the bravest and the best of all! She was "first at Bethel and last at Appomattox." No other State furnished so many soldiers in proportion to population and none stood more bravely by the Southern cross! But how fragmentary the matchless record of North Carolina in that tragic time! Some day it will be gathered up, as much of it as can be found, and, the world will be thrilled with the wondrous story of the heroism of her sons and daughters. As it was in the war between the States, so it was in the period of the Revolution. In that great struggle she led all the States of the Union. Her sons shed the first blood, held the first convention bidding defiance to King George and renouncing allegiance to the crown, wrote the first declaration of independence, and burned all the bridges behind her without asking the aid or consent of any of her sisters. These and many other great events in the history of North Carolina will be emphasized at the Guilford Battle Ground, near Greensboro, on the fourth of next July. A splendid monument to our heroes will be unveiled that day which should have been erected a hundred years ago. On four sides of the monument, near its base, on bronze tablets, the proud record of our State during the years 1771 to 1776 will be inscribed. It is enough to thrill any North Carolinian through and through to read this matchless story. The State is deeply indebted to Judge David Schenck and Maj. J. M. Morehead, of Greensboro, for this labor of love. Many citizens have contributed to make this Battle Ground a center of historic interest, but these two have led in the good work. A museum of rare and valuable relics and papers has been gathered, and altogether the Battle Ground is becoming not only a beautiful but a very sacred place. Anybody who can help in a work so worthy should be glad to be of service.—Charity and Children.

MONDAY, APRIL 22, 1901.

Colorado is certainly up to date in its women's suffrage methods. One of the fair sex out there was recently arrested for repeating.

One reason why the Senate will not recommend a resolution for the direct election of Senators, may be found in the fact that neither Senator Hanna nor others of his ilk would stand any show of winning in a contest before the people.

Those who know, say that there is no seaport in the world where a knowledge of English will not enable one to supply every want. English is certainly the language of the sea, and that means that it is the coming language of the world.

The British are slowly but surely yielding in South Africa. The latest step is to recall Sir Alfred Milner, who was one of the arch mischief makers who brought on the war. Yet the British now have 250,000 men in the field, 60,000 of whom are mounted, while the Boers have not more than 10,000. It is David and Goliath over again.

The scandals at Manila have taken the same line that those at Havana did. At first, the man who exposed them was punished by expulsion, and his charges were denounced as false; then the frauds were admitted, but were said to be small; now the administration pats itself on the back and declares that its zeal in running them down is unequalled in history.

STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN (?) NOW.

A Washington City correspondent sent the following bit of news to the North Carolina papers of Saturday:

Mr. Harry Skinner, former Congressman from the first North Carolina district, heartily approves of Senator McLaurin's Charlotte speech, but takes exception to his advocating his principles "within the party." "He should go over, bag and baggage, to the Republicans." "A considerable element of the best men of the South," he said, "believe in the policies which President McKinley's administration represents. They believe with the administration on all the important questions of the hour, and I think they ought to stand with it. Conditions ought to be and can be such as to enable the men of the South who believe as the Republican party believes to become Republicans. The progressive business element of the South, men who are in sympathy with the national policy of the Republican party, cannot be influenced by Federal patronage, but respectability of association is essential to identification with the Republican party. The Federal appointments in the South should be made from among the best people of the community, from the conservative business element of the old Democratic party, where Republicans are not available. The class of men in the South whose views of national public policy coincide with the policies of the administration is not composed of men who want Federal office, their interest in patronage being merely a desire that the Federal authority should be represented by the best class of citizens."

He said he had made a mistake in believing in silver at 16 to 1 and now repudiates it. "I believe," he said, "that the best interests of the South will be served by those men of the South who are in sympathy with the policies represented by the Republican party, allying themselves politically with the administration and aiding the President in the fulfillment of his good intentions toward the South. Under conditions at present existing the Federal office-holding class is not all we desire or would suggest, but the fault is not so much that of McKinley as that of the better element of the South, who think and know better, but who persistently refuse to lend him a helping word or hand, and who are alert to criticize, condemn and denounce any good man who may desire to accept a position under McKinley."

"A very considerable proportion of the men of affairs in the South—men of the very best social position, highest business integrity and the largest material interest—believe in sound money, moderate protection, national improvement, a reasonable ship subsidy and in expansion. Their conviction on these subjects makes them Republicans, whether they acknowledge it or not. I believe that they can serve the best interests of their section and of the country by openly acknowledging themselves what they are and by co-operating effectively with the Republican party."

"The President can make it easier for them to associate themselves with the party to which they properly belong by exercising the utmost care to give the Federal service in the South high standing. Nothing is to be gained through the distribution of patronage, but much is to be accomplished by putting none but men of high character in Federal positions. A great many of our people realize that the Republican party is constructive, not destructive, and is a safe guardian of those principles which encourage industry, development and progress."

"The difficult thing to accomplish, but which I now believe is on the verge of accomplishment, is to bring into closer association with the Republican party those men of the South who really believe in its principles. The fact is that today the Southern men who believe substantially as McKinley does are the representative men of that section, both socially and commercially. They need the courage to associate themselves with the party of their principles, and to be encouraged in doing so by the improvement in the recognized personnel of that party in the South. Of course, the President cannot do everything himself, but must have the assistance and co-operation of those Southern people whose honest convictions draw them towards him."

The Charlotte Observer, commenting on the above says:

And so Col. Harry Skinner, of Pitt, has openly identified himself with the Republican party. It does not seem so very long since this gentleman was hippodroming the State in company with Mr. Marion Butler and others of the pure in heart, conveying to the people the information that they were paupers and that there was no salvation for them except through 16 to 1, the sub-Treasury and the government ownership of railroads. Now he says he was mistaken about 16 to 1, and inferentially about the other two heresies upon which he then laid so much emphasis. Col. Skinner's conversion was not as sudden as that of Saul on his way to Damascus, but it appears to be quite as effective. God forbid that we should suggest that the United States district attorneyship for the eastern district of North Carolina has had anything to do with it.

The Observer has a neat way of making a suggestion that goes pretty straight to the mark. It was either the district attorneyship or "something better" that the Colonel is after, and hence his visits to Washington and his declarations there in the hearing of President McKinley.

This last step of Col. Skinner need occasion no surprise whatever. It is exactly what THE REFLECTOR said would come when he first came out with his Populist declarations. With him it is not a matter of principal at all, and never has been, but is simply a hunt for office. With others in his way, he thought anything for him in the Democratic party was too far in the future, so he caught up the Populistic cry and got pap for awhile. That fount having run dry, he is now running after the Republican band wagon begging to be allowed to climb in.

Harry Skinner is not at heart a Republican, and this will be found out if McKinley does not give him a job.

Mr. Wu to a Young Lady.

Minister Wu knows how to outwit the women, as is evident from what he said to a Charlotte young lady yesterday afternoon at the reception. The fair one asked: "Mr. Wu are all the men in China as nice as you are?" The shrewd gentleman answered: "I shall answer your question by asking one. Are all the young women of Charlotte as sweet as you are?" At this juncture the curtain fell and the young lady passed on.—Charlotte Observer.

THE SUNNY SOUTH

Fifty Cents a Year Less Than a Penny a Number

THE SOUTH'S LITERARY WEEKLY

Published at Atlanta, Ga.

After a career of more or less activity in the Southern field for over a quarter of a century The Sunny South has again become a weekly, better and more readable than at any time in its history. It contains serial stories from the best known authors the world over. It is devoted to Southern readers and Southern writers and is their own story paper. Short stories, sketches, incidents of war and of peace, anecdotes at home and abroad, poems, ideas, fashions, hints for home keepers, everything of interest to old and young will appear in its excellent weekly make up.

The two great serials, "TRISTRAM OF BLENT," by ANTHONY HOPE (now in progress with full synopsis to cover former installments), and "Rosalynde's Lovers," by Maurice Thompson, to begin April 27th, will be read with absorbing interest throughout the whole South. This is your opportunity, and only 50 cents for a full year of it. Think of it! 50 cents.

Subscription price is only fifty cents a year. No agents' commission. The paper is its own best offer and argument to the subscriber. One sample copy free to you and to your six neighbors whose names and addresses you send on a postal card, provided you send at once. A club of five at 50 cents each, accompanied by the full amount $2.50 net to us, entitles the sender to The Sunny South a whole year free.

The Sunny South is your old friend in a new form, always improving, every issue to excel the last one. The South's literary paper is here at last. Order it to-day.

The Sunny South in combination with the greatest of all Southern Weekly NEWSPAPERS—The Atlanta Weekly Constitution—both for only $1.25 a year. Remit that amount to The Sunny South, and get these two great papers—One Literary; the other News.
