LETTER FROM DR. WALLACE.

Another Former Citizen Writes of Old Times in Greenville.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 11, 1901.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

In your issue of October 8th is a letter from one, T. C. Davis, I desire to know; for he does not seem to live in Greenville, where he lives. I was very interested in regard to what he said of Miss Sallie Ann Jones, and reading a list of her students, all of whom I went to school with to that venerable lady, of to me blessed memory.

I regretted that my name was not mentioned among the list, not that it would be any particular honor to me, but about all the common school education I received was at her school—I may say all, until I went to Wake Forest College where I graduated in 1850.

I trust I may say without vanity, that I have been of some consequence in life, and have enjoyed my share of respect of my fellowmen both in North Carolina and in Texas, where I have lived for nearly half a hundred years. Of whatever (little or much) consequence I may have been, I attribute it to the early instruction derived from Miss Jones.

It is therefore that I regret especially, as I was always a favorite with her, both in childhood and manhood, that my name and my brother's, Col. Warren Wallace, were not mentioned in the list of her students. I think I was at school with your correspondent, T. C. Davis. I was with one Davis by the name of Tom.

All the places he mentioned are perfectly familiar to my youthful memory, and almost every single name. If your correspondent is the one I knew, I would like to hear from you.

This letter is written by the hand of another, a grown granddaughter. I am seventy-six years old and am too nervous and tremble to write.

You can make any disposition of this letter you desire.

There may be some persons still living in Greenville, but I know of none who I have any reason to suppose are, but Mrs. S. A. Cherry, Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Perkins, a first cousin of mine, and Dr. Brown.

Dr. Charles O'Hagan who has died, I believe, in the last year—requiescat in pace—was my honored friend whom I had not seen since I met him in the American Medical Association in Richmond in '81.

Begging your pardon for this intrusion, if it be one, I am

Very respectfully yours,
DR. D. E. WALLACE.

THE REFLECTOR wishes to assure Dr. Wallace that his letter is no intrusion, but on the contrary is much appreciated, and as he gave permission to make such disposition of it as desired, we take the privilege of publishing it in full, knowing there are many of our readers who will be delighted to read what he has to say.

Answering his question, we will say that Mr. T. C. Davis, our correspondent to whom he refers, is now a resident of Wilson, N. C., and is no doubt the same "Tom"

P'S --AND-- Q'S

We are at this writing, and have been for some time attending right to our P's and Q's in order to be able to show our patrons a line of that's different—that is different in style, in make and in price, from the suits nearly every store has.

Our spread is ready and you are invited in to see it. Every style that fashion has smiled upon is here, and every suit—as it comes to us goes to you, at a bargain.

THE SWELL DRESSER comes here for his swell suit.

THE CONSERVATIVE MAN comes here for his well made—good looking, conservative suit.

THE MAN WHO CONSIDERS PRICE comes here to get the most for his money and NONE go away dissatisfied.

FRANK WILSON,

CLOTHIER, FURNISHER, HATTER.

Davis with whom he went to school in those long ago years.

As Dr. Wallace inquires if any of his school mates of those days are now living, we know it will interest him if we print the names of those on the old school roll who are still here. Those yet living in Greenville are:

Sally Ann Johnston (now Mrs. S. A. Cherry); Louis Lawrence; Penny Cherry (now Mrs. P. E. Dancy); Violet Jordan (now Mrs. V. H. Whichard); Martha Ann Harrison (now Mrs. M. A. Rouse); Bettie Perkins (now Mrs. H. A. Sutton); Adelaide Clark (now Mrs. A. J. Johnston).

We have heard several of these speak most pleasantly of Dr. Wallace, and they all remember him well. That he has received honors in life and made for himself a name that stands high on the ladder of fame shows what North Carolinians can do, and we are proud that he was once a citizen of Greenville.

The friends of Dr. Wallace and also of Mr. Davis would be glad to hear more from them through THE REFLECTOR.

"Those who live in glass houses must not throw stones," they say; and yet it has been observed that a good deal is said about lawlessness in the South by those who are surrounded by a pretty thick atmosphere of it. For instance, it has been given out that New York City has had a grand jury this year which had to investigate thirty-five cases of homicide. Meanwhile some people up in that part of the country talk glibly about lawlessness in the South.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

The fairs that have so far been held in the State this fall report the largest attendance in their history. The State fair at Raleigh will be held next week and a record breaking attendance is also expected there.

Rev. George Stuart, an Evangelist, recently held a meeting in Elizabeth City. He aroused the churches and the people on the subject of whiskey drinking, with the result that the Board of Aldermen of the city have been petitioned to issue no more whiskey licenses when those now in force expire. There are many more towns in North Carolina that could be benefited by a similar visit from Evangelist Stuart.

Japonica Fruit.

Mr. J. H. Cobb, of Beaver Dam township, brought THE REFLECTOR a piece of fruit and put us to guessing what it was. It was as large as a big pear, shaped like a "lady finger" apple, and the appearance resembled both, but in odor it was like neither. We guessed almost every species of fruit that it at all resembled only to be told each time that the guess was wrong. Mr. Cobb then told us that the fruit grew on a Japonica bush in his yard, though he could not tell us at the time the species of Japonica it was, having forgotten the name. We never saw anything like it before.

Much has been spoken and written from time to time in the way of advice doubt debt. Many persons will tell you never to go in at all, while others will tell you that it is all right to go in debt just so you think you can get out at the proper time and in the proper way. Well, perhaps both these positions should be regarded with some caution.

The truth is, going in debt has made some men and ruined some—and the latter class is by far the larger. It depends upon a man's ability to do certain things as to whether or not he ought to go in debt. It is a good master for some and a bad master for others.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

The average woman is generally too busy talking to stop and think. Even the most expert equilibrist can't always balance a set of books. The girl who marries to please her family assumes an awful responsibility.

The Best Prescription for Malaria Chills and Fever is a bottle of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure, no Pay. Price 50c.

CONDENSED STORIES.

How Senator Mason Recognized a Man That Interrupted.

Senator William E. Mason of Illinois is a good campaigner and a great stump speaker, relates the New York Times. His wit and eloquence are not of the most refined order, but they are just the thing to catch a crowd. Mason is never at a loss for a retort and enjoys being interrupted in a speech.

During one of his campaigns he was getting his usual share of interruptions in a speech he was delivering at Springfield, Ills. Mason was enjoying himself and was making a great hit with the majority of the crowd. There was one man, however, who tangled Mason up somewhat. This man had imbibed more alcohol than was good for him. He was on the outskirts of the crowd, and he was asking Mason questions in a thick voice. The senator could not catch the questions, and as he did not at first know what was the matter with the fellow he stopped and attempted to catch the question each time. He always failed and this led to several awkward pauses. At last Mason became irritated. The next time an interruption came from the intoxicated one Mason asked:

"Who are you?"
"Don't you know me, Billy?" came the answer in maudlin and swaying tones.
Mason paused. "My friend," said he in a measured and metallic voice, "I don't recognize your face, but your breath is familiar."

Sandow and the Robbers.

A good story is told of how Sandow's strength stood him in good stead among the bullies who have lately been infesting the Bois de Boulogne in Paris, relates London M. A. P. Their method of action is to have one of the gang follow

USED HIM AS A SORT OF CAT O' NINE TAILS, the proposed victim. At a given signal several others approach, and close in on him, rob him, sometimes seriously injuring him. An additional 300 police now ride about the Bois on bicycle and keep a sharp lookout. But, despite this extra vigilance, the outrages continue.

One day Sandow walking in a rather remote avenue of the Bois suddenly realized that he was being followed. He grasped the situation and apparently took no notice. As he had expected, a signal called two or three fellows from the shrubbery. As the first approached Sandow stooped down as if to tie his bootlace, grasped the robber by the ankle, and used him as a sort of cat o' nine tails, lashing his astonished confreres, first one and then the other, before they had a chance even to think of escaping, staying in the ribs of one, smashing the arm of another, and leaving the whole gang maimed and strewn upon the ground. Then Sandow leisurely went on and remarked to the next policeman he met:

"You will find two or three men up there more dead than alive. You'd better go and have a look at them."

Summer Salad.

Select six fresh cucumbers all the same size. Pare, cut in halves lengthwise, scoop out the centers and lay in water till wanted. Dry and fill with mixture of sweetbreads and peas dressed with mayonnaise. Set on a green lettuce leaf on individual plates. Serve with dainty plain bread and butter sandwiches and baked apples.

A TRUE DEER STORY.

Mr. R. C. Carson writes a very exciting account of an encounter with a deer last week, in the middle of Lake Waccamaw. Mr. Carson and his mate, Friday, were crossing the lake in a small boat to make preparations for a camping party. A small house is used for such purposes on the southern side of this beautiful sheet of water.

When Mr. Carson was out about a mile from shore he saw an object in the water, but could not decide what it was. He immediately ordered Friday to steer straight for the object which was then about 300 yards distant. As the boat got nearer it was seen that it was a fine buck swimming in the water, which was 15 feet in depth at this point, and that the buck was making straight for them. What to do had to be decided at once. If the buck was shot he would immediately sink, and that would be the last of him. If he attacked the small boat it was likely to be capsized and all would perhaps be lost.

At last it was decided to steer straight at the buck's antlers and quickly. The bow of the boat struck the buck on his antlers and he sank, but soon rose again, continuing his attack. A second time he was struck by the boat. This weakened him sufficiently to allow a personal encounter, which, though a very stubborn one, eventually resulted disastrously for the deer.

Mr. Carson used his knife, cut his assailant several times in the throat, as opportunity would allow, and finally the buck was landed in the boat. This is the eighth deer Mr. Carson has killed at the lake in two years, and he is now known as the "Deer Slayer of Lake Waccamaw." He said that in all his experience this was the most exciting chase of his life, and that he would not have missed it for anything. The deer was three years old, and, as Mr. Carson described it, was a beauty. Mr. Carson says that a large buck was seen last week within a stone's throw of the depot at Waccamaw station.—Charlotte Observer.

No People's Party Ticket for the Fall Campaign in Kansas.

The time for filing nominations for the coming election has expired, and there is an opportunity to see the drift of the Populist organization. By a law passed last winter no name can appear on an official ballot more than once, thus making fusion on the old basis impossible. For several years two complete tickets, one headed "Democratic" and other "People's Party," have appeared on the ballots, each having exactly the same names as the other, the object being to deceive the voters. This being ruled out, the two parties have been endeavoring all summer to agree on a basis by which both could unite in working for the same ticket. The Populists proposed to go into a new party, preferably the "Union" or "Allied" party, but the Democrats refused to give up their organization. They seem to have won, for in many counties of the State the county ticket will be called "Democratic" and the Populists have failed to make any nominations. The result will be that the latter cannot get on the ticket next year except by petition, and will probably go into the Democratic camp without any reservations except a division of the nominations.

The middle of the road element of the Populists still refuses to be taken into the Democratic ranks, and while it is making no nominations for the election this fall is preparing to wage warfare on the larger portion of the party next year in the hope of compelling the Democracy to come into the Populist ranks. The Kansas City platform is made the basis of the agreement between the two parties, but the eagerness of the Democracy to keep in touch with the national organization will hold its leaders in line. Next year's election will be of much interest, as owing to changes in the election laws, all county officers as well as the State and congressional officers will be chosen.—Kansas City Dispatch to New York Evening Post.

"Marriage," says the Cynical Bachelor, "is a game of chance in which there are a lot of booby prizes."

The girl who refuses an offer of marriage is usually very much surprised when the young man takes her at her word.

There is nothing underhanded about lovemaking. You can't kiss a girl behind her back.

The Coupons are in the hands of the committee and the little stove will be given away tonight at 7 o'clock, October 16th, 1901.
