Sate Superintendent Joyner says he finds from reports, the first of the kind ever made to his office, that no less than $166,736 was raised by special tax for city and town graded schools this year. He is much gratified at this showing. He says that the amount raised for and expended on public education in this State this year is at least $300,000 more than it was last year.—Kinston Free Press.

THE STATE PRESS

News and Opinions.

By the way, the coal trust became very submissive when the President started in to enforce the antitrust law. That law intended to relieve the public from monopolistic oppression and, if some of the quack doctors in politics would stop howling for more law and endeavor to enforce what we have, the results would probably be satisfactory.—Winston Journal.

North Carolina is steadily climbing up the educational column, as the result of Democratic fostering of the educational interests of the people of the State. A few years back she was at the foot of the list. Now there are five states, Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina and two territories, Arizona and Indian Territory, below her.—Kinston Free Press.

That the oyster industry is a lost industry so far as North Carolina is concerned, can be seen by an inspection of those State markets where a few years ago, this delicious sea product could be found in quantity and quality.—New Bern Journal.

An Indiana man has struck on a happy device to prevent ghouls from meddling with the grave in which his wife was buried. He buried a large quantity of dynamite with the coffin, and duly announced that fact.—Wilmington Star.

For sometime past G. M. Williams (colored) who runs a restaurant on Gillespie street, has been troubled by a thief, but how the thief got into his establishment and when he came, he was unable to find out until yesterday. In the afternoon he was in the rear of the building when he saw a fat, saucy looking 'possum enter the back door and go deliberately to the larder and commence to help himself to everything in sight. This was two much for Williams, who made for the thief and, after a fierce fight, captured him. It was discovered that the 'possum had made his home under the building and would enter the restaurant by the cat hole in the door. This hole Williams had covered up the night before, so the 'possum getting hungry, had to take his chances in the day time when the door was open, and got caught the very first time.—Fayetteville Observer.

General Webster, the African philosopher and Democrat, who voted for the Amendment two years ago and cannot vote under its provisions, takes a philosophical view of the situation. He says the joke is not on him, but on his Republican friends, who swore in 1900 that they wouldn't support the Amendment and now walk up to the registrar and swear they will. He voted to take the negro out of politics and has no tears to shed over his course.

Grand Secretary Coming.

Covenant Lodge No 17 I. O. O. F. will have work in the 2nd degree to night. Grand Sec. B. H. Woodell is expected to visit the lodge. He will also meet with Helena Rebekah Lodge Thursday night. Friday night he will institute a Rebekah Lodge in Ayden.

The Richmond News, a bright, new and up-to-date newspaper with the associated press reports, and all the news of the day, will be delivered to any address in Greenville for 6 cts per week, leave orders at Hyman's Photograph Gallery. KINCHEN COBB.

Importance of the Legislature.

The point has been made frequently in the campaign now closing, by the Democratic press and speakers, that the election of a Republican to the Legislature means a vote for the re-election of Senator Pritchard. That is not all nor even the most of it. No North Carolina Republican could have made or would make a better representative in the upper branch of Congress than Senator Pritchard, but he and all of them stand for that, on the overshadowing issue of the hour, which is opposed to the best interests of 95 per cent. of the people of the State. But, as important as this appears in the public eye to be, the next Legislature, every Legislature, has to do with things more intimately concerned with the public welfare than even the election of a United States senator. It is hardly too much to say that the Legislature has in its hands for two years the fortunes of the people of the State; it may forward or it may seriously retard their progress and prosperity. The next Legislature has, among other things, a deficit in the public Treasury to deal with. Other matters calling for the best judgment and for absolute singleness of purpose, some of which have not yet been so much as hinted at, many of them delicate, all of them more or less important, will press for consideration. A Democratic Legislature will be safer on all of these questions, will be better qualified to legislate wisely upon them, than a Republican Legislature would be, and it is for this reason, even more than by reason of the senatorship, that the public interest demands a Democratic Legislature at Raleigh this winter.—Charlotte Observer.

A Hopeless Task.

The statement that 16,000 marsh hens and jackdaws were killed last summer in Currituck county, N. C., to supply the demand for feathered ornaments on women's hats, is not encouraging to those who would prevent the wholesale slaughter of birds. But the evil work did not stop here. We are even told that the very buzzards were sacrificed so that their wing feathers might be used to embellish feminine headgear. That it is time to call a halt on this business there is no denying, but the reform—if successful—can come from but one source—the women themselves. And when you touch a woman's hat you get very close to the person in it.—Richmond Dispatch.

Give Up His Country Newspaper.

"I thought you were running a paper up in Vermont," said the old reporter as he bumped into another old reporter in the afternoon crush of Park Row.

When they reached an island of safety made by a subway enclosure the latter replied: "I have been running a paper in Vermont, a daily—I was managing editor, city editor, reporter, business manager, and all the rest of it. But I couldn't make it go."

"Have a row with yourself?" asked the one who had jumped the reportorial traces.

"No, but some of those New Englanders were too thrifty for me. The paper costs $6 a year. One man subscribes for it and sublets it to his neighbor for $3. This neighbor then turns around and sells a third reading for $1. I'd rather be back on 'space,' so I simply 'fired' myself as soon as I found a 'come-on and unloaded the plant.'"—New York Tribune.

F. B. Culp, one of the electricians who have been working on the Imperial, left for Kinston Monday evening.

Newspaper Philosophy.

The way people take a paper and pay for it carries joy to the editor's heart, but the way some people take it and don't pay for it often makes him wonder how they can derive any pleasure from reading a paper that is not worth paying for.

The business man who gives his home printing office the go-by and gets cheap stationery from a traveling fakir ought not to expect a home paper to try to boom his business. Treat your home office right and the paper will help your business, otherwise—nit.—Press & Printer.

Arion Male Quartette.

A series of entertainments arranged for by promoters of the Pitt County Hospital is mentioned in very flattering terms by the press of the country. The Arion Male Quartette which appears at the opera house Wednesday night, will compare with anything of the kind to be seen. You will enjoy the performance, unless the judgment of some of the best critics in the country is seriously at fault.

It has been thought by some that the prices ruling here so far this season are rather higher than circumstances justify, so it has been decided to put the general admission at 35 cents and reserved seats at 50 cents, Wednesday night. The public will doubtless show its appreciation of this concession on the part of the management.

A Marked Man.

Chas. Jones, of Danville, one of the colored brick layers who has been at work on the Imperial building, was at the depot ready to leave for home Monday evening, when he happened to think of owing Moye and Parker $1.20 for some brick. Charles looked around, found a man that he knew, handed him the $1.20, and asked that it be given to Messrs. Moye and Parker. The train was about due; it was dark, Moye and Parker were not at the depot, nor was their collector; Danville was a good way off; Chas. Jones was a negro; the amount was only $1.20; but he didn't jump it.

He did not become a member of the Senate until 1879.—Asheboro Courier.

THE SPLASHING HOUSE.

A French Yarn That Was Printed to Blot the Englishmen.

One of the most extraordinary tales ever invented about Englishmen by foreigners was the "splashing house" story, given to the world by the Paris Journal, Le Figaro, in 1868. An ingenious writer in the paper gravely informed his readers that in the suburbs of London were houses where "earth beaten up into mud is retailed." To these houses men were accustomed to resort in hunting kit for the purpose of being splashed with mud.

"These curious establishments are provided with muds of different counties, but principally of those counties where the hunting is best. The sale of the mud is conducted in the most serious manner imaginable; the attendant inquires, 'From what county, sir, do you wish it to be supposed you have just returned?' 'From the county of Kent,' The pretended sportsman thereupon takes a seat on a wooden horse whose legs throw up the selected mud; after having been well splashed the customer pays his bill (8 shillings), casts an eye of approbation toward the mirror, takes a whip in his hand and goes to exhibit his muddy clothes in Piccadilly, Bond street or Pall Mall, in order that it may be supposed that he has just returned from a grand hunt."

In addition to the chance of marrying an heiress which this remarkable display of dirty clothes confers on their wearer, says the French newspaper man, the patron of the "splashing house" has another more immediate advantage. "The mud with which he is splashed affords, if not proof, strong presumptive evidence that he is a landed proprietor in the county whose mud bespatters him." And landed proprietors being held in vast esteem as solvent and desirable creditors, the man can obtain anything he likes at any shop on credit.

One wonders whether such a wonderful tale finds any believers among those who read it.—London Live Stock Journal.

JUMPING THE DEER.

A Style of Hunting That Looks Easy Till You Try It.

"Jumping a deer" is a highly attractive phrase, quite apt to make a tingling in the back hair of the tenderfoot who hears it for the first time. It is also intensely satisfactory to the chap who always has to shave before wooing nature. You may, indeed, get a good shot in this way, and it is generally the only way to see the grandest of all the sights of the woods—deer running through a windfall. To see the glossy curves of fur curl over the lofty logs that lie piled on the ground in boundless confusion each other a trip to the woods, while for him who loves the rifle as I do, more for what cannot be done with it than for what can, there is no such target elsewhere. But for the tyro who is dying to get that first deer, "jumping a deer" generally means out of sight and out of hearing both. For the deer that goes off to lie down after feeding does not go to sleep, but to ruminate and take life easy. Once in a great while one falls into a doze, but almost always the head is well erect and all senses keen for danger. And even if one is in a doze it may slip away without your suspecting its existence, for sleep deadens little of the senses of this wary animal. The man who "wouldn't shoot such an innocent creature as a deer" should by all means see one getting out of a heavy windfall, while the man who loves game that can get away can here find the attraction of the woods at its climax.—"Hunting the Virginia Deer" in Outing.

The Ant's Toilet.

A naturalist has been making observations on the toilets of certain ants, and has discovered that each insect goes through most elaborate ablutions. They are not only performed by herself, but by another, who acts for the time as lady's maid. The assistant starts by washing the face of her companion, and then goes over the whole body. The attitude of the ant that is being washed is one of intense satisfaction. She lies down with all her limbs stretched loosely out; she rolls over on her side, even her back, a perfect picture of ease. The pleasure the little insect evinces in being thus combed and sponged is really enjoyable to the observer.—Philadelphia Press.

The Way of the World.

We met the people going one way with their arms loaded with beautiful flowers.

"Whither do you drift?" we asked. "We go," they exclaimed, "to adorn the graves of our dead heroes."

Later on we met them with their arms full of bricks.

"And now, where?" we asked again. "To throw these at our living heroes," they again explained, with pitying smiles at our dumbness.

The Small Brother.

"I heard him call you 'duckie,'" announced the small brother.

"Well, what of it?" demanded his sister defiantly.

"Oh, nothin' much," answered the small brother. "I was only thinkin' maybe it's because of the way you walk, but it ain't very nice of him."—Chicago Post.

The Real Boy.

"Freddy," replied papa, "likes to play whatever games his mother and I decide are too rough for him."—Detroit Free Press.

Stepped Against A Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Kellar, Va. The Best Remedy For Croup.

[From the Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.]

This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and telu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

ECCENTRIC METHODS.

Why Alexandre Dumas Did Not Succeed as a Publisher.

The Mousquetaire, a Parisian journal founded by Alexandre Dumas, grew and flourished for a short time and then became extinct. It was carried on during a brilliant existence with an astonishing disregard of business methods commonly in vogue. Its staff was the largest and most varied ever known. Persons would walk into the office, propose working for the paper and find themselves at once accepted.

"What will you allow me?" a new man would ask.

"Whatever you like, my boy," Dumas would return. "By the way," he would explain to every new aspirant, "we must understand one thing: I mean you to be handsomely paid. You must have 1,000 francs a month, and if you should want a month's pay in advance now, don't scruple to ask for it."

Everybody was dazzled, and Dumas himself more than all the rest. No business enterprise, however, could exist on such a basis, and the journal began to languish. Then a man named Boule proposed taking the speculation out of Dumas' hands. He offered the great man 100 francs a day, which meant more than $7,000 a year.

"Here," said Boule, is a checkbook full of those little tinted leaves you are so fond of. Every morning you have only to write your name at the foot of one, send it into the office and touch your 100 francs.

Dumas loved money, and his face beamed with delight. "But suppose," said he, "that some day I should want 300 or 400 francs?"

"Well, all you have to do is to send in three or four of your checks. Nothing is more simple."

The book lay on the author's desk, a delightful and ready resource. Did a creditor call? A slip of paper, and he was paid. A poor woman was about to be turned out into the street. A few more slips, and she was relieved. At the end of the week nothing was left of the book but the cover. Then Boule changed his mode of procedure—Youth's Companion.

Old London Street Names.

A writer in the London Argus gives the following peculiar old street names, with the modern substituted:

Adam-a-Digging-yard—St. Peter street.

Aggat's passage—Cutler street, Houndsditch.

Alphabet court—Clare Market.

Baalzophon street—Long lane, Bermondsey.

Bully Rag row—Bethnal Green.

Jealous row—St. George's-in-the-East.

Antigallican passage—Temple Bar.

Lally Pot lane—Foster lane.

The derivations of these names, continues the writer, would be an interesting study, but I think it would be found that in a large number of instances the love of eccentricity had led to the selection.

Origin of a Popular Myth.

People are expected to believe history when such things as this happens. In 1892 a man living on a small farm east of Wichita ran out of coal one evening. He was getting supper, and he took an armful of corn and dumped it in the stove. Corn was 10 cents a bushel, and the Wichita reporter fired the story out over the country that Kansas farmers were burning corn. The history burning story has passed into history as a fact. If Julius Caesar had no better foundation than the corn story he never existed at all.—Wichita Eagle.

Saving.

"My wife has a saving disposition," said Hicks. "When we got our upright piano, she made a red plush cover for it, so that the rosewood wouldn't get scratched. Then she covered that with a sort of linen duster arrangement, so as to save the plush. I tell you, women have great minds."

Real Exertion.

"Do you believe that odd numbers are lucky?" "Well, I'd rather be the father of twins than triplets."—New York Times.

THREE QUEER DISEASES.

Two of Them Abide in the Congo Region and One in Peru.

There are two remarkable diseases, either or both of which may attack you if you elect to reside within the Congo basin, but you need have no dread of them if you live in any other part of the world. One is the sleeping sickness, a terrible, mysterious and invariably fatal malady. The patient is at first only drowsy, but ends by sleeping almost continually, waking only for meals or when forcibly roused. Finally the torpor becomes complete. He cannot be roused even to take food, and dies of starvation.

The other disease alluded to is even more curious, although fortunately not nearly so deadly, and is known to specialists in tropical diseases as albinism, from a negro word meaning a saw, a very apposite name, for the typical feature of the ailment consists in the slow amputation of one or more of the victim's toes by means of a serrated bony ligature which grows around the joint of the affected member just where it joins the foot. As soon as the ligature is completely formed it begins to contract, and off comes the toe as effectually, if not quite so quickly, as if it had been severed by the surgeon's knife.

In the province of Cerro de Pasco, in Peru, may be contracted a strange malady which consigns its victim to certain and lingering death. The ailment in question is termed verrugas (Spanish, a wart), and it occurs only in certain deep valleys in the highlands of that province. There, however, it is endemic and frightfully fatal, especially to the unacclimated white man. The whole surface of the body in bad cases becomes entirely covered with spongy, wartlike excrescences, varying from the size of a raspberry to that of a pigeon's egg, and from every one of these the patient's life blood oozes out continually until he perishes of inanition.—Chambers' Journal.

FIGHT SICKNESS.

Fear Will Harm and Courage Help You When Disease Comes.

Illness is most like a cowardly cur which gives chase if you flee from it, but goes on about its business, that of seeking the fearful ones, if you pass on unnoticing, but courageous. The reasons for the ability of brave men to go unharmed through pest hospitals, as did Napoleon and as physicians do every day, are not only psychological, but physiological.

The quality of mere courage seems to have a sort of pickling and hardening effect upon the tissues of the body, like the plunge in brine, steeling them against infection, while fear, by "unstringing" the nerves, weakens the whole resisting power of the body, inviting the very evil feared most.

The scientific health journals have been discussing this potent fact in hygienic laws to a great extent and urging its recognition by the masses. "Fear weakens the heart's action," says Health in an article on this subject, "induces congestion, invites indigestion, produces poison through decomposing foods and is thus the mother of autopoisoning, which either directly causes or greatly aids in the production of quite 90 per cent of all our diseases."

In recognizing this law, however, it is just as well to carry in a small pocket of one's memory the old adage, "Discretion is the better part of valor," and to avoid running needless dangers. But it is a well known fact that small-pox and like contagions will attack first those who are trembling for fear of it, often leaving unscathed the brave ones who are in the thickest of it nursing, tending and even burying the plague stricken.

With an armor welded of equal quantities of precaution and courage one stands a good chance of immunity from the attacking hordes of disease microbes.—New York Herald.

She showed me everything except the man she is going to marry. I suppose she forgot about him.—London Answers.

Lake Colors.

Some lakes are distinctly blue, others present various shades of green, so that in some cases they are distinguishable from their level, grass covered banks, and a few are almost black. The Lake of Geneva is azure hued, the Lake of Constance and the Lake of Lucerne are green, and the color of the Mediterranean has been called indigo. The Lake of Brienz is greenish yellow, and its neighbor, Lake Thun, is blue.—London Spectator.

Alternative of Education.

"Education," said the impassioned orator, "begins at home." "That's where you're off," said the calm spectator. "It begins in the kindergarten, is continued in the boarding school, football field, Paris, London and Wall street and ends in either Sing Sing or Newport."—Life.

His Case Not So Bad After All. "Ah, it's a sad old world," sighed the man who had been cheated out of $20.

His Revenge.

M. Colombes, a merchant of Paris, had his revenge on a former sweetheart, a lady of Rouen, when he left her by will a legacy of $6,000 for having some twenty years before refused to marry him, "through which," states the will, "I was enabled to live independently and happily as a bachelor."

Entertained Her.

"Did Miss Gaddy entertain your proposal?" asked the close friend. "No," was the sad answer. "It seemed to work just the other way."—Exchange.

SERVANTS IN JAPAN

A LAND WHERE DOMESTIC SERVICE IS CONSIDERED AN HONOR.

The "Boys" That Wait on Table in Hotels and How They Work. Household Servants That Are Equal to Birth to Their Masters.

They have some curious notions about servants in Japan. Instead of its being considered a disgrace to go into domestic service in that country it is an honor, writes Mr. Douglas Slagden.

Jinrikisha boys and grooms may not have the honor of being servants at all, but are tradesmen, which is the lowest thing of all in Japan short of being an eta, or member of the class of outcasts. Grooms are excluded as a betting, gambling, cheating lot (the Japanese think it impossible for a groom to be honest) and the rickshaw boys as rough people without any manners.

There are two classes of servants, personal and kitchen. Kitchen servants need have no knowledge of etiquette. They are sometimes rough creatures from the country, no better than rickshaw boys. They are dull, contented drudges, but Cook San (Mr. Cook) is held in a very different estimation. In a small household he does the catering and keeps the accounts as well as superintends the ridiculous little bird's nest of charcoal ash which cooks the meals in Japan.

The personal servants show a humility to their employers which would paralyze an Englishman with any sense of humor, and their masters assume an etiquette air of command. But from every one else these servants expect a considerable amount of politeness.

Hotel servants are male and female. Hotels for Europeans generally have men housemaids as well as men waiters and call them all "boys."

To go to a Japanese hotel for the first time is like going to a farce. It is impossible to keep serious. In the dining room you are surrounded by pantomime imps dressed in indigo cotton doublets and hose, who run about shoeless and are called "boys" and look like boys until the day they die. Half of them know no English except the numbers. Each has a number to himself, and each dish on the menu has a number, even down to the potatoes.

"No. 5," you say if you are new to it, "I'll have some 2, and I'll take some 7 and 9 with it, please." He catches some numbers and brings them, but you would have a far better chance of getting what you want if you simply said 2, 7, 9.

You can hardly hear yourself speak for the scuff, scuff across the floor. You think it is lucky they don't wear boots. At very grand hotels they wear blue serge suits like ship's stewards and had imitations of foreign shoes, and they don't run, and then they don't wait so well, because it is not natural for a Japanese "boy" not to run.

A Japanese "boy" has one good quality. Though he cannot understand English, before you have been in the house three days he will know your tastes, and if you like the breast of a chicken better than the leg you will get it, and you will have your steak to look purple or burned under when it is cut, as you prefer.

If he saw you using a teaspoon after your wife, he would very likely bring you a used teaspoon with your next morning's tea. His motto is that there is no accounting for the madness of foreigners and the forms it will take.

But your bedroom boy is a very different person. He has intelligence and often a fair command of English.

There is nothing that a Japanese room boy cannot do. I would trust him to mend my watch. I have tried him on such varied problems as luring a frightened canary back to its cage, fishing up a small coin that had fallen through a crack in the floor and mending the lock of a portmanteau. One of them even said that he could take in a felt hat which I gave him so large for him that his ears did not stop it.

The Japanese like their hats to rest upon their ears. They can mend your clothes or put a button on and are handier than sailors. They expect you to show them all your purchases and always tell you how much more or how much less you ought to have paid.

In the transient life of a hotel you see the farcical side of Japanese servants. The pristine and sentimental side you only get in a private family, where the servants, like the pages of the middle ages, may be equal in birth to their masters, but willing to do service in his household because he is a famous poet or noble or man of science, so as to gather the crumbs of education which fall from his table.—Exchange.

Economy.

Fudge—Yes, Spinks has a splendid system of economy.

Judge—How so?

"No economy in that."

"Isn't there? Well, by the time he has the money saved he always finds out he doesn't want the thing—and then the money is saved."—Baltimore Herald.

An Annoying Insinuation.

"I don't suppose he meant anything unkind," said the young woman, "but it was a very startling coincidence."

"What do you mean?"

"Just before Harold and I got married his friends persuaded him to join a 'don't worry' club."—Washington Star.

One of the worst things that can happen a young man is to get the notion that he can't have a good time without wasting his money.—Atchison Globe.

Wreck At Elm City.

The Atlantic Coast Line had a bad wreck at Elm City Sunday morning, the vestibule train and a freight train being in a collision. An engineer was killed and a mail clerk injured.

John Swing, one of the bosses in the machine room at the cotton mill, was arrested Sunday morning on the charge of attempting rape on the persons of Lena and Ina Nunn, operatives in the mill. He was placed in jail that day and given a hearing before Justices Cox and Lewis yesterday morning. The testimony showed that Swing visited the girls' home Saturday night while under the influence of whiskey, that he began to tease and pull at Lena and she left the room and went to her own room and retired. That Swing followed her and tried to pull her out of bed. She called her brother-in-law, Luther Craft, and he ordered Swing from the house, but he didn't go. Lena is about 11 years old. Ina Nunn testified that Swing asked for water and she gave him the dipper, and after helping himself, asked her to kiss him, and she refusing, he attempted to throw her down and used ugly language to her. She ordered him from the house but he would not go. Swing said he had no intention of attempting anything criminal. He said he was drinking and did try to induce the girls to kiss him, but nothing more. After hearing the evidence the prosecutors withdrew the warrant and Swing was taxed with the costs.—Kinston News.

A Thanksgiving Dinner.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, expose the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Jno. L. Wooten.
