IT WAS MARIAN PERKINS' MOVE.

A Sabbath Day's Journey From the Lockup to the Tall Timber.

Marian Perkins escaped from the guard house Sunday morning, and is now enjoying the liberty of parts unknown. Marian was a member of the chain gang, and is known in official circles as a desperate character. He was supposed to have lodging in jail after his day's work was over; but he was allowed to absent himself Saturday night. About midnight Capt Smith had to arrest him for disorderly conduct. Sunday morning when policeman McGowan opened the guard house door to wait on the prisoners, Marion rushed against him, unawares, took a pistol from the policeman's outside coat pocket and was off before the astonished cop could recover his balance. The negro had every advantage, of course. He was in the darkened room, McGowan in the hall door. The pistol was loose in the pocket, with the handle protruding, and was easily gotten by the negro without a struggle. He rushed against McGowan, hands down, taking the gun as the two came in contact. An effort to follow the trail with dogs was unsuccessful. A crowd having preceded the hounds over the course as far as it was known, it was impossible to give them the right start.

The Christian Sunday school has changed the hour of meeting from 3 o'clock P.M. to 10 o'clock A.M.

W. S. HERBERT PASSES AWAY.

Editor of the Kinston Free Press Died Sunday.

APOPLEXY CAUSED DEATH.

THE REFLECTOR is grieved to learn of the death of Mr. W. S. Herbert, editor of the Kinston Free Press, which occurred at his home in Kinston Sunday afternoon at 3:40 o'clock. He had not been in good health for some time, and last Wednesday night suffered a stroke of apoplexy, from which he never rallied, and never spoke after having been stricken.

Mr. Herbert was just in the prime of life, being nearly 40 years of age, when his splendid career was checked by the monster, Death. He had for many years been editor of the Free Press, assuming control of it when it was but a small weekly paper. By his indomitable energy and perseverance he brought his paper to the front rank of North Carolina journalism and in time changed it from a weekly to both semi-weekly and daily. The ability of the Free Press under his direction was recognized everywhere, and it did more for the advancement of Kinston than any other factor. His death is a great loss to his town, as well as to the press of North Carolina.

Mr. Herbert was an upright man, a congenial companion, a true friend and a good citizen. He leaves a wife and two little girls, and these have the deep sympathy of many friends throughout the state. Their loss of husband and father is the saddest of all.

The funeral will take place at Morehead City Tuesday. A special train will leave Kinston for Morehead Tuesday morning to take the remains and friends, returning to Kinston Tuesday evening.

BLIND TIGER CAPTURED.

Chas. Webb Sold Liquor Without a License--In the Hands of the Law.

Chas. Webb, colored, was before the mayor this morning on a charge of retailing liquor without license. Examination was waived and Webb was bound over in the sum of $100 for his appearance at the January term of the Superior court.

Sunday evening Chief Smith had occasion to visit Webb's room, which is on the second floor of the old Cobb house, on Evans street, near First. In the room was found the equipment of a private retail liquor dealer—jugs, bottles, measures, etc. About two gallons of whiskey was secured. A part of the haul consisted of case goods, in unbroken packages. One jug was empty; another and a number of bottles were partially full.

Mrs. D. E. House returned from Bethel Sunday.

People living on rural free delivery routes can have a copy of the Special Thanksgiving Issue of the Daily Reflector in their houses the same day it is published. Something to please and interest all classes and every member of the family.

PROF. RAGSDALE ON EDUCATION.

He Makes an Eloquent Plea for Rural Libraries.

SUPERINTENDENTS' MEETING.

The following is from the News and Observer's report of the proceedings of the State Conference of County Superintendents in Raleigh last week. Prof. Ragsdale made a fine impression upon all who heard him take part in the conference, and Pitt county may well be proud of their representative.

"Rural Libraries, their Use, Benefits and Extension," was the next topic. It was discussed by Supt. W. H. Ragsdale, of Pitt. He stated in the beginning that he was in hearty sympathy with local tax, good school houses, and with everything that had been suggested; "but you might have all those things, and yet fail to obtain that for which you strive.

"There are two essentials for a school, absolute essentials; you may have a school without a book, without a house. But you must have a teacher and you must have a pupil."

He said that the hardest thing he had to contend with was the education of the people from 21 to 70 years of age. This phase he had not heard discussed yet in the conference. But we can never get local taxation until something is done to educate these grown folks, who do the voting.

In this connection, he said that the use of the books in the libraries should not be limited to the children. Thus means of education of these older people would be placed within their reach, which if used, would do very much toward securing local taxation.

He said he believed the most beneficial thing done by the last Legislature was the inauguration of this movement for the establishment of libraries.

All of the various troubles spoken of, such as ignorance of distances, etc., could be relieved by changing the people, and this could be done only by means of these libraries. They ought to be circulated instead of stationary.

He said that a recent meeting of thirty-five of his teachers, with seven libraries already established, twenty-five have said they wanted libraries in their districts.

These libraries ought to be used so as to create the habit of reading. He believed a skillful librarian or teacher could get the people of the community into the habit of reading. Let them once get a taste of it, and the rest would be comparatively easy.

Another use of the library should be to stimulate a desire for knowledge. Those who were not familiar with the country districts had no idea how little desire there was to know anything more than they already know.

Moreover, the library furnishes opportunity for pleasure and improvement that could not be obtained in any other way. The establishment of these libraries is the only avenue that 80 percent of the people of North Carolina have for getting information.

Still another use of the library was to provide subject matter for wholesome thought and conversation. People do not think and talk about anything else, but what they are brought in contact with. The only way to make people do better is to provide them with something better to do. Nearly

The Swell Young Man

Wants life, dash and ginger in his suit. He wants more coloring, more fashionable curves and kinks than the older and more conservative dresser. We have caught the spirit of the young man's wants and have suits as smart and swell as his heart can desire.

The fabrics are new and not a feature could be added to put more style into the cut, making or trimming of our Young Men's Suits. Prices not high when we furnish all this swell-ness. We want every young man in town to make it his business to see these Swagger Fall and Winter Suits.

CAROLINA-GEORGETOWN GAME AT NORFOLK.

Victory Goes to Georgetown by Score of 12 to 5.

The game of football between Georgetown and the University of North Carolina at Norfolk Saturday resulted in a score of 12 for Georgetown, 5 for Carolina.

all the little contentions that come before the boards of education result from men not being able to live outside of themselves.

Then the reading of good books elevates the moral tone of a community. He had noticed splendid results in this connection. It also stimulates the study of literature and history. A medal had been offered in his county for the best history of North Carolina by a pupil in the public schools, and it had done vast good in familiarizing the children with the history of our State. The public spirited gentleman who had given this medal was Col. J. Bryan Grimes, Secretary of State.

Supt. Ragsdale dwelt beautifully upon the effect on molding character and making high minded citizens of the reading of books. The reading by a boy of a little biography might make another Lee or Washington.

As to the extension of libraries, he believed that the Legislature ought to give each county the privilege of increasing its number of libraries to ten.

Much applause greeted Supt. Ragsdale when he concluded. Every one present felt that he had struck the keynote to the whole situation, and handled it with a master hand.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TO TAKE ACTION.

Will Circulate Petitions to be Presented to Legislature.

At the meeting of the Anti Saloon League held in the Methodist church Sunday afternoon, there was an interesting discussion of what steps should be taken now to rid Pitt county of barrooms. It was decided to begin at once a canvass of the county for signatures to a petition to the next Legislature to accomplish this end. A meeting of the executive and organizing committees was called for this afternoon to devise means for beginning this canvass at once.

The League will meet at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in the Christian church.

And now look out for the chronic kickers who are going to oppose consolidation of country school districts. They are wedded to the shanty-on-the-hill idea.

They are having some trouble with colored brother beneath the shadow of Plymouth Rock. The "ward of the nation" is ungrateful to them as fit, bled and died for him.

"Senator Pritchard has been given the opportunity of gracefully abandoning the position he has taken." That's a neat proposition, and it would be a neat trick to do that sort of thing gracefully.

Readers of the Charlotte News are becoming agitated over the subject of marrying on a salary of fifty dollars per month. It is admitted that this amount is just about enough to provide coal for a month after the honeymoon.

Wu Ting Fang, that old hypocritical palaverer from the banks of the Yangtze Kiang, has departed for his native rice pots in the Celestial Empire. Wonder what heathen will come over here next to tell Americans how to do things!

A $4,000,000 tobacco concern is talked and whispered in Winston-Salem. Out in Kansas they affix the initials "A. L. T." to the name of such towns as Winston-Salem whenever it is written, printed or spoken. They stand for "A Live Town," and Winston-Salem surely deserves the distinction. We would suggest to our friends, the Journal and Sentinel, that they tack on the sign "A. L. T." at once.

The Golden Rule in Politics.

A certain citizen of North Carolina was not long ago promised the office of postmaster at a certain place. He was poor; had a large family and no means of support save his daily labor. Delighted with the prospect, he went to the place. When he got there he found that the man who had the office and whom he was to supersede was also a poor man with a large family. Seeing this, he sent word to those who had offered him the office that he would not take it. "The present incumbent," he said, "is a poor man and a good one. I will not take his place from him. It would condemn me before God." And he went to work. This is the best example of the Golden Rule that we have found in North Carolina political life.—Biblical Recorder.

Don't build up any false hopes on the dissolution of the Republican party. As Grover Cleveland recently remarked, "they have a wonderful faculty of getting together at convenient times." They always manage to settle their difficulties in time to vote the same ticket and to vote it solid and straight on election day.—Winston Journal.

Has Held His Job For 66 Years

The oldest clerk in the employ of the government at Washington is Richard White, of Kentucky, with the single exception of a postmaster in New York State, who has held his position for 74 years. Mr. White is believed to be the oldest man, in years, in the Federal employ.

He was appointed in 1839, and has therefore spent 66 years in the government service. He was a personal friend of Henry Clay and the letter of that statesman to Andrew Jackson recommending the appointment of "my dear friend, Richard White," is on file in the Treasury Department. Mr. White was born in 1814, and is therefore 88 years of age.

In addition to his remarkable record of continuous service Mr. White holds another that is decidedly unique. Nearly every government clerk takes the 30 days' annual leave allowed, and in many cases exhaust his 30 days' sick leave. In all his experience Mr. White never has exceeded 10 days in his yearly absence from work. He has been employed throughout his government service in the office where the accounts of Post-office Department are audited. He was appointed at a salary of $640 a year. For a brief period he received $1,000 annually, but in 1897, on account of his increasing feebleness, was reduced to $840. Auditor Henry A. Castle, his superior officer, says Mr. White does his work to the satisfaction of his chiefs.—Washington Dispatch.

Hint to Business Men.

Says an exchange: "No town will become a good business center as long as the majority of its business men rely upon a few merchants to make the efforts to bring trade to town. Too often the men in the clothing and drygoods trade are about the only ones to reach out after customers. Other merchants wait until these enterprising business men induce the people to come to town and content themselves with the trade that naturally drifts to their places. A public-spirited man should ask himself if he is doing his part to attract people to town. He may be holding his trade well, and even by fair dealings and popular ways, getting his full share of the trade that naturally belongs to the place, but he is not doing his part as a member of the business community, if he is not helping to extend the business of his town. Any merchant who induces people to trade is helping the entire business community, and is not a success unless all lines are working to extend the trade as far as possible and trying to bring a larger territory in the circle of which the town is the business centre."

Educational.

(Dr. Wallace Buttrick at Educational Conference in Raleigh, Nov. 13th.)

In passing I ought to say that while we believe it to be our duty to give our first attention to aiding the people of the Southland in establishing free public schools for all the people to be supported by taxation, we yet appreciate most highly the great contribution to the cause of education made by denominational and other private schools. Their work has been and still is, and long will continue to be of priceless value to the State. I, myself, am a trustee of three such school in whose mission I heartily believe. We, for the present, limit our work to public schools because we believe that adequate educational facilities for all the people can only be secured by a system of schools founded and supported by taxation.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Kellar, Va. Pain balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The first bottle brought relief; several cured me. I am back to my old weight, 148 pounds. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, relieves the cough at once, draws out inflammation, cures croup. An ideal remedy for children. Jno. L. Wooten.

The Best Remedy For Croup.

[From the Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.]

This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and teln, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A Thanksgiving Dinner.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, expose the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Jno. L. Wooten.

For a Bad Cold.

If you have a bad cold you need a good reliable medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to loosen and relieve it, and to allay the irritation and inflammation of the throat and lungs. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

THE PROVIDENTIAL MULE

[Copyright, 1901, by T. C. McClure.] "That mule is a clear gift of Providence," said Aunt Rachel stoutly, her eyes twinkling.

The children by common consent turned their faces toward the open kitchen window, through which a docile looking mule had poked his head, watching the breakfast table expectantly.

"It's a stray," her brother Jonas answered gloomily, "and b'long to some of the neighbors. We'll have to feed him several days and be out that much."

"Well, he don't b'long to any of 'em," Aunt Rachel disputed emphatically. "Don't we know the stock for miles around? There's Smith's blaze face mare, Davis' speckled ox and old man Potts' government mule, besides Morris' colt."

"Well, you just wait till you see in the county paper in the 'Stray' notices: 'Lost—Medium sized dark bay mule, with black ears and mane and a brand on his left side'—"

"There!" his sister interrupted triumphantly. "Who's brand is it?"

This being a flash of almost masculine sagacity, her brother was silenced for the time. If the mule was not a clear favor of Providence, at least he seemed such to this humble family. It was just at cotton planting time that their only ox died, that standby of the poor farmer of the south—gentle, patient, long enduring, poorly fed and tended, yet reluctantly laying down the yoke worn so long. This was a very serious matter to them, for on their cotton crop depended their livelihood.

In the darkest hour, which is said to precede dawn, the mule had come. Aunt Rachel saw him for the first time at the kitchen window, blandly looking in, and, as the yard gate was shut and the palings were high, it seemed to her simple soul that he had been dropped from the clouds.

Aunt Rachel and the children stood around while the mule was being put into the shabby harness. He seemed to take it all as a joke, and he started off toward the field at a gay, mincing gait that kept the farmer staring at the lines, and when he reached the end of the first row he shook off the frail harness and vaulted neatly over the fence. Then, with a wise grin at the farmer, he knelt down slowly, rested his head on the ground and turned a complete somersault.

Suddenly the mule vaulted back into the field and, rising later on his hind feet, advanced on the farmer, and when he defensively raised his whip with a bright look of relief the mule retreated, still upright, and began circling around in excellent waltz time. He seemed to become excited with the motion and indulged in polkas and two steps of all kinds and wound up with a spirited gallop twice around the field, then came cantering up to the dumfounded farmer and looked trustfully into his face. But, finding he was only wanted as a plowing implement, he turned about and loped to the house. Arriving at the closed gate, he stretched his neck and, nosing up the latch, sauntered in. So when Aunt Rachel, washing dishes, looked up she saw the providential mule smirking amicably at the window.

Though her brother Jonas had completely soured on him that first day, with a woman's persistence Aunt Rachel still looked on the mule as a gift. On succeeding days matters were no better. The mule did everything imaginable that was useless and very little that was useful. The children, with the pathetic inconsequence of childhood, were delighted at his tricks. He was a constant source of amusement to the poor little chaps. Living as they always had lived in a small, dull neighborhood, never having seen a circus and deprived by poverty of the usual childish playthings, they soon learned to love the good natured, clever animal. Even Baby Joe toddled fearfully at his heels, though the mule had nearly frightened him out of his senses the first day by picking him up by his dress and seating him on his broad back. But this was now understood to be a mark of special favor, limited only to the baby, and with the little fellow on his back the mule would trot around the yard while Joe shrieked with delight.

Their father, with the rancor of poverty, endured impatiently the added expense. Certainly the mule, considered materially, was no profit. He would not work. This had been proved beyond a doubt. His favorite trick when harnessed to the plow was to pick the harness to pieces at the knots, then shake it off playfully, looking around for the approval which never came.

He was eating up the fodder provided for his predecessor, the ox, and there would be no cotton crop for want of proper attention. The mule had been a week with the family when the county paper came. The farmer looked eagerly for the "Stray" notices, but found instead this astonishing insertion:

One hundred dollars reward for information leading to the recovery of dark bay mule, medium size, curiously branded on left side, black ears and mane. Fifty dollars more will be added if this valuable trick mule is returned by the finder in good condition. Address J. Oldham, manager circus "Greatest Thing on Earth."

And when the mule had been turned over in excellent condition to his proper owners and the money promptly paid to the farmer Aunt Rachel said: "I told you so, Jonas. Now, wasn't that a clear gift of Providence?"

But the children, little impractical mites that they were, wept at the loss of the providential mule.

LITERARY TREASURES.

Some Which Have Been and Some Which May Be Lost to View.

The world, we have been assured time and again, knows nothing of its greatest men. Perhaps it is equally ignorant about its greatest books. Are we quite sure that the idols in our literary pantheon are arrayed in their due order of precedence? The rules of precedence change, and who shall assert that those prevalent at any given time are the final ones? But, above all, are we quite certain that there may not be a notable work of genius lying unnoticed and unknown amid the wrecks of the river of time, waiting only for some lucky accident that shall reveal it in all its beauty to an astonished world?

Such accidents with such results have been frequent in the history of the past. Indeed such accidents have preserved or have revealed to the world no insignificant proportion of its now acknowledged masterpieces.

The books of the Bible themselves have experienced the narrowest escapes from what might have resulted in their total loss. The most notable example is that of Deuteronomy, which disappeared from the Jewish world for over a century. The story of its rediscovery by the high priest Hekziel during the reign of good King Josiah is set forth in the Old Testament.

Shakespeare was practically forgotten in the days when Addison wrote his "Account of the Greatest English Poets," with never a mention of the name of the very greatest, yet it was shortly afterward that Shakespeare was resuscitated.

Fitzgerald's "Omar Khayyam" and Blackmore's "Lorna Doone" dropped stillborn from the press and later won a sudden popularity by accident.—William S. Walsh in Era Magazine.

Patience With Eccentricity.

Many of the leading people in English society regarded Thomas Carlyle with a feeling almost akin to reverent delight when he chose to behave like an ignorant boor in their drawing rooms, even taking his seat, it is said, unbidden in the presence of the queen. This generation, however, has little patience with such eccentricities.

It was an English bishop who, when the historian Freeman had worn out his patience with his rudeness, introduced him to a waiting audience, as "the distinguished scholar that so admirably describes and illustrates the savagery of our ancestors."

Treating Burns.

Cold water with ice in it is the thing to use when an accidental burn from acids or alkalis is encountered. Nitric acid gets split at times, or even vitriol may. A limb burned with acids must be plunged in cold water and kept there, so that the water may dilute the traces of the acid in the skin as much as possible. When acid burning causes injury, the water should be rendered alkaline by adding soda to counteract the acid.

Botanical Note.

A fern in a jardiniere and two little sprouts in tin cans if put in a window are sufficient to give the woman who owns them the right to use the word "fernery."—Atchison Globe.

Some men are like telescopes—you draw them out, see through them and then shut them up.

Thumb Nail Pictures.

In collections, centuries old, to be seen in both China and Japan are specimens of the most remarkable drawings in the world, pictures of all kinds drawn with the thumb nail. The nails of the thumbs on the left hands of the artists of these are allowed to grow to an enormous length, sometimes to a foot or eighteen inches, and are then pared down to a pen shaped point. Dipping this oddly constructed pen in beautiful vermilion or sky blue ink, the only kinds of ink used in these sacred thumb nail drawings, the artist gracefully outlines his work.

Occasionally the bold touches from the studio of a master in this department of "high art" are life size and are sketched by a few sweeps of the artist's arm. Like other pictures and sketches of the orient, these sacred thumb nail pictures are mounted and rolled up like scrolls.

Some Words.

According to the late Richard A. Proctor, says the London Chronicle, the phrase "I guess," to English ears so ridiculous, is really identical with the old expression, "I wis," meaning "I know." The word "guess" has changed its meaning entirely in England, but has partly preserved it in America, where of course the native says "I guess" when he is more or less in a state of certainty. There are many other examples of words that have played fast and loose with "e" and "w," such as "guardian" and "warden," "guard" and "ward," "gulchet" and "wicket."

A Conscience Jar.

"Did you ever stop to think, my love," said Mr. Micawber, gazing at his plate of lobster salad, "that the things we love most in this life are the very things that never agree with us?" "Will you be so kind, Micawber," said Mrs. Micawber, straightening up, "as to tell me whether you are speaking of the salad or of me, sir?"

Mrs. Laura S. Webb,

Vice-President of Women's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio.

THERE ARE MANY sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 and 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes: "As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Wine of Cardui is the remedy to re-inforce a woman against the shock that comes with the change of life. It re-establishes healthy functions after years of suffering. In doing this it has saved thousands of sufferers just in time. Do not wait until suffering is upon you. Thorough preparations should be made in advance. Begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today.

WINE of CARDUI

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

Slow Starvation

is the fate of sufferers from dyspepsia and indigestion. If your food remains undigested it can't build up the body. In fact, it does actual damage by decaying in the stomach and poisoning the system.

KODOL Digests What You Eat.

Kodol is the sensible remedy. By digesting what you eat it strengthens the body and at the same time rests the stomach. This rest soon restores perfect health. Cathartics and stimulants only reach the symptoms. Kodol cures. It is Nature's tonic.

Five years ago a disease the doctors called dyspepsia took such a hold on me that I could scarcely go. I took quantities of pepin and other medicines, but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grasps at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. I felt an improvement at once, and after a few bottles am sound and well. GEORGE S. MARSH, Attorney-at-Law, Nacogdoches, Tex.

It can't help but do you good. The $1 bottle contains 2 1/2 times as much (actual measurement) as the trial size which sells for 50c. Prepared by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. Sold by all dealers.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve a soothing, healing application for piles, sores and skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits.

The Fat Man.

Caesar feared the lean men,
For of treasons they were full:
They were dangerous and mean men,
Which was worse than being dull.

But the fellow fat (in reason)
With the emperor stood pat,
For one cannot deal in treason
And be fat.

There is death in football foray;
On the gridiron there's a roast;
There's a hero, lean and gory,
Who has given up the ghost,
And his leanness is prophetic
Of a fate as hard as that,
For one can not be athletic
And be fat.

Though the fates have handicapped him,
Still the fat man runs life's race,
And ere cruel death has trapped him
You will find he's won a place,
And his ran will be requited
In a life that's calm, though flat
For one cannot grow excited
And be fat.

—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Does Farming Pay?

Mr. Editor: Allow me space in your Agricultural Department to write up a little crop that has been raised and sold in Widders township on the land that was the old home place of the Tuckers in Raleigh. This land was in cultivation when the two great merchants of the family were boys and lived on the farm, and was cultivated after they left the farm until about 12 or 15 years ago. Then it was allowed to grow up in old field pines, which were cut down last November by S. P. Shadwick, a Granville man, who I think is one of the best tobacco growers I ever knew. Broke the land in November; rebroke it in February then bedded it up in April, rows 3 1/2 feet apart, patted hills 3 feet apart. The amount of home raised manure used was from one horse stable only. Guano 800 pounds; cotton seed meal 100 pounds; acid 175 pounds per acre, all distributed in water furrows and two furrows thrown on it. Set out plants on the 5th day of May finished on 7th; plowed tobacco twice, worked with hoe twice. Commenced curing on the 9th of July and finished on the 6th of September. Sold the entire crop without grading to pinhookers at Raleigh at $877.38, there being 7,416 pounds on six acres. Now, Mr. Editor and readers, this looks like exaggeration, but several of his neighbors know the above to be true.—J. R. Barnes in Smithfield Herald.

Look Out for a Fakir.

The Observer cautions the public against a fakir who was in the city yesterday and tried to sell mail boxes to residents; declaring that he was the representative of the United States government and had been commissioned to sell mail boxes to all persons who received mail by carriers. A number of Charlotte people received visits from the stranger, but it doesn't appear that any of them were beguiled into advancing money for boxes. Postmaster Mullen says that the man has no authority to sell or solicit money for mail boxes.—Charlotte Observer.

To Florida by Private Conveyance.

Mr. Newton Farris, a Mecklenburg farmer, pulled up stakes in this county yesterday and departed for Florida by private conveyance. He was accompanied by his six small sons and Ed. Houston, of this city. The party traveled in a covered wagon and a hack, and Mr. Farris stated that he expected to travel about 30 or 35 miles each day and would reach Sandifer, Fla., his destination, in five weeks.—Charlotte Observer.

Macon county at the recent election voted out the dispensary by a majority of 623 and voted in prohibition. Prohibition carried also in Cumberland, by a very large majority. The county had the dispensary, following the license system. These facts are noted as matters of human interest. There seems to be a drift in North Carolina toward local prohibition. Charlotte Observer.
