NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., Nov. 15. Miss Annie Stocks, who has been visiting relatives in Jones county returned last Saturday.

B. F. Manning spent Thursday night in Ayden.

The public exhibition of "Aunt Polly" Smith's Ohio Steam Cooker at the depot Saturday afternoon was a success. People see for themselves the various articles of food cooked at one and the same time and that too right in the dishes in which each was to be served. The most telling part about it was, the men got to taste of the cooked food. You know the result when you can appeal in a substantial way to a man's palate.

We are again headquarters for the floating gang who now have their shanty cars on sidetrack here.

If every man in Winterville and surrounding country is not well supplied with fruit trees of every description it is certainly not the agent's fault. We learn that more trees are being set out this fall than in many a year before.

Rev. Claud Smith of Upperville, Va., came in last night to be present at the ordination of his nephew Rev. W. E. Cox of Greenville.

Messrs. Leslie Newton and Jim Averett of Greenville spent Sunday afternoon and night in town.

Mrs. Ange of Ayden spent Monday in town visiting her aunt Mrs. Abram Cox who is quite sick.

Jeter Jackson went to Kinston Monday night.

Remember that services will be held at the chapel Thursday night, conducted by Rev. Claude Smith.

Prof. G. E. Lineberry and wife went to Greenville last Saturday.

THE STATE PRESS

News and Opinions.

There is something in the career of John Mitchell, the labor leader, that compels admiration. He lives on $13 a week. He gets a salary of $1,800 a year, but his contributions to the various labor funds cut this down to the figure noted. He advised against the recent coal strike, and it was declared over his head, so to speak, by the insistent miners. He proposed to the White House conference to submit the whole matter to arbitration. And his bearing on the stand as a witness under broadsides of cross examination questions asked by the ablest lawyers obtainable by the coal operators marks him as an unusual man. His readiness in reply, his mental ability in parrying a loaded question, and yet his never withholding an answer to every question, drew forth an expression of admiration from Wayne MacVeagh, one of the greatest lawyers in the country. The battle between labor leader and attorney was indeed a brilliant one. All the world loves a good witness. Sam Weller, who made such a fine showing for the defendant in the famous case of Bardell vs Pickwick, has an undying place in our hearts. We always admire brains, and Mr. Mitchell has shown during the ordeal that he is now passing through that he is equipped with a full set.—Charlotte Observer.

Secretary Wilson recently paid a visit to the northwest, and makes a report on what he saw and heard. He says the republicans are everywhere in "an attitude of inquiry." This report is of interest to those who have kept up with the efforts of the republicans to explain away the tariff revision plank in the platform of the Iowa republican state convention. Mr. Wilson finds the republicans of that section asking such questions as: "Have not the great combinations got beyond the control of the government?" "Could not certain industries survive if present tariff duties were lowered?" Mr. Wilson's observations led him to the conclusion that these people do not believe that the tariff schedules are inspired like the Lord's Prayer or the Golden Rule. The secretary seems to think well of this studios attitude of the republicans of the northwest and he commends it to the attention of the party leaders. If they do not heed it the democrats cannot force them to do so, but can abide their time and reap the benefit of republican blindness or stubbornness, which ever you may choose to call it. The party has control of legislation until December, 1905.—Wilmington Messenger.

Editors, who will have to read it all, look forward with dread to the message which President Roosevelt will send to Congress when it meets next month. It is to be devoutly hoped that the Chief Executive will have mercy and make this message 50 or 75 per cent. shorter than the last one.—Wilson Times.

Since Booker Washington is permitted to dictate to the President as to Southern appointments, why does not the Chief Executive invite Booker to become a member of his official family? As confidential adviser to Roosevelt, Booker would be quite as much at home in the cabinet as he was in the White House dining room.—Charlotte News.

People may disagree with Governor Aycock on education, but they will find some difficulty in proving him wrong. Twenty years from now the task will be still more difficult.—Tarboro Southerner.

Shall North Carolina make a respectable display at the St Louis World's Fair? Shall we decide the question in time to do something creditable or wait and chew the rag about it until it is so late that the money spent will be wasted.—Winston Journal.

In looking up business coincidences you will always find that the largest number of customers is found at the store of the most persistent advertiser.—Winston Journal.

If Dr. Kilgo should attempt to prove it it would raise a howl from other quarters.—Durham Herald.

It may take a big man to do big things but it does not always take a little one to do little things.—Durham Herald.

Business is better here since the end of liquor was stopped; the town has grown more, greater wealth has been amassed, property has appreciated in value, and our people are more prosperous and contented. Such too will be the case in our sister county of Cumberland. The property neither of that county nor its capital is to be measured in the money of its liquor revenues.—Lumberton Robesonian.

County Superintendent Clements, of Wake, made a statement on Friday last before the North Carolina Public School Superintendents' conference, which ought to make us town folks do some tall thinking. He said: "Unless a mild compulsory school law is adopted in North Carolina, the day is not far distant when illiteracy will increase more rapidly in cities under the shadow of magnificent schools than it will in the rural districts."—Winston Sentinel.

In the Justice's Court.

Geo. Shackelfoot was before Justice Rountree Tuesday for shooting at James Harrington. George is not up in marksmanship, and none of the bullet holes were in evidence, but the Superior court will look into the case.

Robert Dawson had a hearing for an assault on Stephen Moore with a pitchfork. The weapon used furnished the legal quibble of the case. Mr. James took the position that Tillman's badge was the proper designation of the implement, while Col. Sugg insisted that it was nothing more nor less than Neptune's trident. The opinion handed down by the Justice, however, refers to the instrument as a plain pitchfork, and the matter goes before the Superior court with that understanding.

Stephen Moore came next under an indictment for unlawfully removing, disposing of and otherwise making way with crop, contrary to the wishes of the plaintiff and the statutes made and provided for such contingencies. This was a notable case and attracted a dense black cloud of witnesses and observers. The plaintiff complained of the loss of two barrels of corn and half the garden—collards, squash, and gooseberries, and a sorely fractured contract. He braced this complaint with about nine fingers of old Tom gin, causing a break in the proceedings of two or three hours for sobering up. The case was resumed at the afternoon session but was dismissed without recovery.

So difficult is the art of cutting gloves that most of the principal cutters are known by name and by fame.

Will Senator P. please back water?

If Greensboro doesn't get the paper she will at least get the credit of being willing.

It is a great pity that the "lilly white" situation didn't strike the president until after the election.

"Be sure you are right and then go ahead," says old Davy. For one time Roosevelt seems to have it on hind part before.

And now comes the couple who married on half an hour's acquaintance. Wonder if he could identify her if she happened to get lost.

We are not yet willing to take a position on the advisory board of the ginger-cake gentleman who advises the president, but it does seem that Booker's theory and practice of teaching are somewhat at variance.

"We not infrequently meet little fellows certainly not above six or eight years old alone down town at 10 or 11 o'clock at night. We do not believe it the best way of regulating the movements of children," says the Raleigh Post. N-o, not that exactly; but it does help the cigarette trust and the undertaker.

The pastor of a New York church preached a very pointed sermon on the sin of wearing hosiery of a flashy design, declaring that the women who allowed herself to become addicted to the open work variety of hosiery was flirting with the devil himself. Wonder if that preacher ever heard of the proverb to the effect that to the pure all things are pure?

The seven wise virgins must have gone through the town last night, bless their dear hearts. No body else would have known that in spite of the white flag and the assurances of local weather prophets, it was going to keep right on drizzling. Heretofore the lamplighter has been guided altogether by the almanac in regard to the moon. If it was scheduled for this side of the earth not a lamp was lighted, let the clouds be as thick as the firmament and the darkness black enough to hide the sins of a St. Louis councilman.

Words to that Effect.

We infer from the comments of the Greenville REFLECTOR that the average legislator is enfeebled by a lack of sand. This is perhaps true and explains the fact that the average legislator serves about one term and then falls back into obscurity. Sand is a great ingredient of success.—Winston Journal.

BIG HOAX BY INSANE MAN.

Advertises Himself As Rich Vassar Girl Wanting to Wed.

Poughkeepsie, Nov. 15.—Letters addressed "Miss May Gayner" have been coming into the Post-Office in this city from all parts of the country for several weeks. Nobody called for them, and the letters were advertised in the Poughkeepsie papers.

In the Hudson River State Hospital there is an incurable patient who has delusions of grandeur. He has been in custody for twelve years, having been sent to prison from Ulster county for grand larceny. He saw the letters for "May Gayner" advertised. He said that she was his sister and that he was commissioned to receive her letters. Dr. Landon sent for the letters and had them opened. They proved to be love missives written by men in many different towns, all begging to have "May Gayner's" photograph and to become better acquainted with the beautiful girl. A paper published in Oakland, Cal., printed the following advertisement:

1625, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—I am a graduate of Vassar College, age 20, 5 feet 2 inches, dark brown hair and pleasant disposition and a daughter of a millionaire. I am in earnest and will answer all letters and exchange photos.

The crazy man laughed heartily when the doctors read the advertisement. He admitted that he sent the advertisement to the paper.

Tobacco Growers to Re-Organize.

Colonel John S. Cunningham, of Person county, and others of the largest tobacco growers, are behind a movement to organize an entirely new North Carolina Tobacco Growers' Association, the old organization having practically died out. The plan for the new association is to divide the State into three tobacco districts, with Rocky Mount, Raleigh and Greensboro as central points or headquarters for the respective sections. The first organization will be in the Rocky Mount district, for which a call is to be issued very soon.—Winston Sentinel.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Kellar, Va. Pain balm is an anti-septic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The Best Remedy For Croup.

[From the Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.]

This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hives syrup and tolu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Armor plates are probably the best on which to serve hot cannon balls.

A Thanksgiving Dinner.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, exposes the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Jno. L. Wooten.

A man with money is generally a capital fellow.

For a Bad Cold.

If you have a bad cold you need a good reliable medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to loosen and relieve it, and to allay the irritation and inflammation of the throat and lungs. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

One Minute Cough Cure.

Is the only harmless cough cure that gives quick relief. Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Pneumonia, Asthma, LaGrippe and all Throat, Chest and Lung troubles. "I got soaked by rain," says Gertrude E. Fenner, Muncie, Ind., "and contracted a severe cough and cold. I failed rapidly; lost 48 pounds. My druggist recommended One Minute Cough Cure. The first bottle brought relief; several cured me. I am back to my old weight, 148 pounds. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, relieves the cough at once, draws out inflammation, cures croup. An ideal remedy for children. Jno. L. Wooten.

WHY INDIANS PAINT

A Legend of the Red Men Explains the Strange Custom.

Once an old Apache Indian was asked the question why his people painted their faces told this little legend:

"Long ago when men were weak and animals were big and strong a chief of the red men who lived in these mountains went out to get a deer, for his people were hungry.

"After walking all day he saw a deer and shot at it, but the arrow was turned aside and wounded a mountain lion, which was also after the deer. When the lion felt the sting of the arrow, he jumped up and bounded after the man, who ran for his life.

"He was almost exhausted, and when he felt his strength giving way he fell to the ground, calling on the big bear, who, you know, is the grandfather of men, to save him.

"The big bear heard the call and saw that to save the man he had to act quickly, so he scratched his foot and sprinkled his blood over the man.

"Now, you must know that no animal will eat of the bear or taste of his blood. So when the lion reached the man he smelled the blood and turned away, but as he did so his foot scraped the face of the man, leaving the marks of his claws on the blood smeared face.

"When the man found that he was unharmed, he was so thankful that he left the blood to dry on his face and never washed it at all, but left it until it peeled off.

"Where the claws of the lion scraped it off there were marks that turned brown in the sun, and where the blood stayed on it was lighter. Now all men paint their faces that way with blood and scrape it off in streaks when they hunt or go to war."

THE CARIBS OF DOMINICA.

Fierce Savages Who Have Dropped Their Man Eating Ways.

A recent colonial report on the Caribs of Dominica is interesting. Very mysterious is the origin of the fierce savages, now almost extinct, who were in possession of the smaller West Indian islands when the first white man burst "into that silent sea." They showed a distinct Mongolian character, and it would be hard to distinguish a Carib infant from a Chinese child. Some twenty years ago a Chinaman who had drifted to Dominica declared the Caribs to be his own people and married a pure bred Carib woman. The resultant child showed no deviation from the native type.

Today they have dropped their man eating ways, but in the sixteenth century they scoured the Spanish main in search of human food, and from Porto Rico alone are said to have taken more than 5,000 men to be eaten. Though Spaniards, Frenchmen, Dutchmen, negroes, or Arrowaks, were all meat to them, yet these Caribs seem to have shown preference for certain nationalities. Davis, for instance, in his "History of the Caribby Islands," tells us that "the Caribbeans have tested of all the nations that frequented them and affirm that the French are the most delicate and the Spaniards are hardest of digestion." Laborde also, in one of his jaunts in St. Vincent, appears to have overtaken on the road a communicative Carib who was beguiling the tedium of his journey by gnawing at the remains of a boiled human foot. This gentleman only ate Arrowaks. "Christians," he said, "give me the bellyache."

Queer Qualification.

The enthusiasm of the thoroughgoing lover of Browning takes some surprising turns. The author of "In a Tuscan Garden" tells a story concerning Dr. Furnival, one of the founders of the Browning society.

A young relative of the Englishman in London was looking out at one time for bachelor chambers in a block of flats. The secretary of the company to whom they belonged intimated that the testimony of two householders as to his rent paying capacity would be required. The applicant gave the Englishwoman's name as one and Dr. Furnival for the other.

Dr. Furnival's reply, after a glowing panegyric on the merits of the applicant, wound up by congratulating the company on getting as a tenant a man who "was not only a gentleman and a good fellow, but a member of the Browning society."

It Grows Feeble.

The attraction of a man's character is apt to be outlived, like the attraction of his body, and the power of love grows feeble in its turn, as well as the power to inspire love in others. It is only with a few rare natures that friendship is added to friendship, love to love and the man keeps growing richer in affection—richer, I mean, as a bank may be said to grow rich, both giving and receiving more—after his head is white and his back weary, and he prepares to go down into the dust of death.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Gorkh's Early Struggles.

Maxim Gorkh, the Russian novelist, had an early career that in many ways recalls the early struggles of Jacob A. Riis. He ran away from home when a lad and for years found life mighty hard grubbing. He worked as a day laborer, a sawyer, a cook and a lighterman. Then he heard that free instruction could be obtained at Kazan, and, having no money to pay for his journey, he walked there, a distance of over 600 miles. Then he found he had a head.

A CANINE BURGLAR

[Original.]

Andrew MacAllister, who lived in his handsome place on the bank of Lake Michigan north of Chicago, came home late one night after being detained in the city on business. He was somewhat astonished to find the front door standing ajar, and, passing through the hall to the dining room, what was his surprise to find everything turned topsy turvy and the butler bound and gagged. Releasing him, MacAllister darted upstairs, and, discovering no evidence of the family having been disturbed, he went below again and listened to the butler's account of the robbery. The man had been forced at the point of a revolver to open the silver safe, and its contents had been rifled.

"Who's dog is that moaning in the yard?" asked MacAllister, and without waiting for an answer he went out into the grounds. There at a side gate was a dog scratching to get out. It at once occurred to MacAllister that the beast had come with the burglars and in their haste to depart they had shut off his exit. Perhaps if he were permitted to go he would follow them. At any rate, the experiment was worth trying. MacAllister went to the stable and got out a saddle horse, armed himself with a revolver and then released the dog, which ran off toward the city.

MacAllister mounted and followed. The dog soon settled into a steady trot down a street that eventually led him to the north end of Lincoln park. Getting through the park appeared more puzzling to him than following a straight street, but at the south end he struck an avenue and after that seemed to know his route perfectly. Coming to the street running next parallel with the river he turned to the right and after traversing a few blocks struck a region given over almost exclusively to manufacturing.

Meanwhile MacAllister had picked up a mounted policeman in the extreme northern part of the city, to whom as they rode along he explained what he was about. The cop was rather skeptical as to the outcome of the adventure till the dog entered a tenement house which had for some time been held in suspicion. Throwing themselves off their horses as quickly as it could be done, they followed the dog into the building, but they were too late. Their guide had disappeared. Mounting a rickety staircase with as noiseless a tread as possible, they searched every landing. On coming to the top story and seeing nothing of their guide they concluded that they had had their pains for nothing and were about to give up the chase when they heard the sounds of a dog barking as if in great delight. It occurred to MacAllister that the dog had found its friends and was rejoicing at the meeting.

"In that room," he said, "I shall find my silver."

"Stop here," said the cop, "while I go for help."

"Help? What help do you want? Aren't we two armed men? While you are away they might take it into their heads to move on."

MacAllister knocked. There was a shuffling about inside, and after much delay the door was opened. Facing three revolvers stood a mite of a girl. Within was a woman with a baby in her arms. The dog the men had followed stood in the middle of the floor looking at them.

The story told by the woman was that she had been up with her baby, who was ill, and on hearing the knock had delayed in order to huddle on some clothes. As to the dog, he was a part of the family. When told of his having doubtless been in the company of burglars, all the information she could give on this subject was that he had been off occasionally with a man who had recently rented a room on the opposite side of the hall.

Turning their attention to the door opposite, they knocked, but receiving no response, broke it open. Striking a match, they made a search, but found nothing and concluded that the plunder had not yet been brought in. The lock to the door had been only injured and that not so badly but they could close it as before. Having done so, they took position in the room of the woman opposite and waited.

Just before dawn there was a step in the hall below, and some one came stealthily up the staircase, paused at the door opposite, took out a key, unlocked the door and entered. MacAllister was about to move against him when the cop stopped him.

"Perhaps there are more below waiting to see if the coast is clear."

They waited awhile, but no one else came. MacAllister made another move, but was again held back.

"He may not have the swag with him, and we'd have a poor case against him. Let the dog go."

Opening the door, they put the dog in the hall, and he was soon scratching at the door opposite. On being admitted the words could be plainly heard:

"Hello, Zip! I thought you'd been left behind."

"That's enough," said the cop, and they proceeded to make the arrest, which was effected without resistance.

The silver was not in the room, and without the evidence of the dog there would have been little chance of a conviction. They, however, made the case so strong that the man confessed under promise of a light sentence and restored the plunder.

MacAllister paid the owners of the dog handsomely for him and put them on the list of those whom he befriended. Zip is now the guardian of the house he was once implicated in robbing and at the slightest sound in the yard barks fiercely.

The keeping of canaries seems to be a fairly expensive luxury. To start with, a really good bird will cost $30. You can easily spend more, but $30 will buy a fairly good Norwich bred bird. The food the bird requires consists of various delicacies in the form of rye, bread, rice, meal and vegetables. Canaries are liable to all sorts of ailments, and this, of course, necessitates further expense, for the treatment of these complaints is anything but cheap. Of course, no fancier of canaries would be content with one bird; he must have at least a dozen, and the cost of some of these will certainly run to $75. Fifteen hundred dollars per annum could easily be spent in this manner without a very big show for the money.—London Tatler.

MISS ROSE OWENS,

No. 720 Seventeenth St.,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

"If every suffering woman has the same experience with Wine of Cardui that I had, your medicine will be most popular. About a year ago I began to have a worn out tired feeling with lassitude, pains in the back and head which kept increasing every month. I felt that I needed something, but to get the right medicine was the trouble. I finally decided on your Wine of Cardui and only needed to take three bottles when I was fully recovered."

Miss Rose Owens.

If you are a suffering woman we would say to you that Wine of Cardui seldom fails to completely cure any case of female ills. We say emphatically, it never fails to benefit. Every day hundreds of sufferers are writing to our Ladies' Advisory Department. The letters are opened by persons competent to give advice. Mrs. Jones was cured by following the advice which was freely given her by the Ladies' Advisory Department. Miss Owens was cured without advice by just buying a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from her druggist and taking this great medicine in the privacy of her home. No doctor's examination, treatment or advice is necessary. You have read what these two cured women have written. Is this not enough to lead you to determine to be rid of suffering?

August 13, 1900, Mrs. W. H. Jones, of Cameron, Mo., writes:

"I suffered terribly at monthly periods for three years. I would sometimes go for seven months with no flow at all. Now I have my health back again and am expecting to be confined in January. I cannot praise your medicine enough."

WHEN Miss Rose Owens, who has a responsible position in the Government service at Washington, D. C., decided to try Wine of Cardui, she made a wise choice. Over a million women have been relieved of female weakness by this same Wine of Cardui. It is not a strong medicine but may be taken every day in the year by any woman with benefit. It does not force results, but corrects derangements of the menstrual organs. It strengthens the nervous system, gives tone to the bodily functions, acts directly on the genital organs, and is the finest tonic for women known to the science of medicine.

FOUR LETTERS AND A POSTSCRIPT

[Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson.] Miss Patricia Douglas to her dearest friend, Miss Nellie Taylor:

Longhurst-on-the-Sea, July 12. Dear Girl—To think that just one year ago you and I were having such times here together and now you are actually working in noisy, dusty New York! Perhaps you are somewhat consoled by the fact that every one thinks you tremendously clever and good to help your father in his hour of trouble, but I should think, my dear, that business and all that sort of thing would be such a bore to a woman.

Of course you want to know about everything and everybody. Well, it's the same old place and very nearly the same old crowd, particularly the men, who are distressingly few and far between. You remember that stupid little Jimmy Barton we enjoyed snubbing last season? He's quite the go this year. Even the shape of his nose has changed a bit, and he has a perfect love of an automobile. I've had several spins with him already. I'm so glad I bought that red coat. It makes a stunning contrast to his dark green auto.

It was lucky I brought my golf clubs and suit, for the links are in splendid form, and Jack Ferris, the crack golfer, is here. He says my shots are very clever for a woman. I am not sure about the shots, but I know that little frilled sun-bonnet is so becoming. And Jack Ferris has eyes for something above golf balls.

I found that out last night when we sat out two waltzes in the turret corner of the porch. Remember the turret corner, Nell? I thought you would. You've been there often enough, dear knows. I wore my green crape. It might have been the soft green against my white shoulders, or the moonlight on the water, or the Mexican waltzes the orchestra played, but Jack certainly did lose his head. I was so shocked, for of course he knows of my engagement to Ned. But, then, men who are perfectly sane in town during the winter season will do such things under a summer moon, especially if the moon goes behind a cloud.

By the way, in his letter today Ned says that he cannot take his vacation this month. I know the dear fellow is so disappointed. He had planned on being here with me, don't you know. Well, be as kind to him, Nell, as you can be and console him in my absence. You'll find him the best of company on all occasions. Devotedly, PATTY.

Miss Nellie Taylor to her dearest friend, Miss Patricia Douglas:

Platt Building, Wall Street, New York, July 15. My Dear Patty—Your newsy letter did make me think longingly of old times for a minute or two; but, after all, New York's not half bad in summer. For me it is like looking at a new side of life. The offices during the day are breezy and cool, and at night mother has all sorts of ridiculous surprises concocted for me. She has turned the roof into a miniature summer garden after the household column of any old ladies' journal. There are easy chairs, tables, shadowy cosy corners, palms and rubbernecks—and I mean plants! I am becoming shockingly slangy since I came down on the street. We spend most of our evenings on the roof. Ned has been up several times, and we like him. He brings his guitar—you never told me he played—and what with his music and my singing the popular songs of the real roof gardens and mother mixing delicious punch we imagine we are quite stylish.

Last evening Ned took mother and me to one of the continuous houses. Such a lark! And tonight we are going to Manhattan Beach. It is great fun, after all, to feel that you are a part of the great masses, as the politicians put it, and cannot leave town the whole summer long. Of course I will do my best to console Ned while you are away. But you must remember this is not Longhurst-on-the-Sea. I have only evenings, Saturday afternoons and Sundays at my own disposal. Write me all the news. I do enjoy it, and so does mother. Yours lovingly, NELL.

Miss Patricia Douglas to her fiance, Mr. Ned Goodfellow:

Longhurst-on-the-Sea, July 24. Dear Mr. Goodfellow—I am sending you today your letters, ring and photographs. I am convinced that our engagement has been a mistake. I have always held that people to be happily married must have congenial tastes—in fact, must be perfect affinities. Clearly you and I do not come in the above class. You will believe that I am breaking our engagement for your happiness as well as my own. There are so many charming girls, and men are so easily consoled. Yours sincerely, PATRICIA DOUGLAS.

Sent by messenger from Mr. Ned Goodfellow to Miss Nellie Taylor:

Room — Bowling Green, Aug. 1. My Darling Nell—My Nell! How jolly good that sounds! I'm sending you a few roses. Put them on your desk, where they will remind you of me every minute in the day. I shall be up early this evening to bring—can you guess what? It's a suitcase, dearest, the best I dared to buy, but not half good enough for the bravest, sweetest girl in the world. Over and over I catch myself wondering how I could ever think any other girl's worth noticing. Bless this happy summer in town! It has brought me the greatest treasure in the world, my affinity. Imagine finding one's affinity in Wall Street! How ridiculous—and how delightful! Yours always, NED.

Special correspondence to the Comet from Longhurst-on-the-Sea:

Aug. 4. The golf links are responsible for the romance of the season at this popular resort. Today every one is talking of the engagement of Jack Ferris, the crack golfer, to Patty Douglas, who for two seasons has been a belle at Longhurst. Jack Ferris holds not only some enviable golf scores and trophies, but he also has the inside track for the Roxsome millions on his mother's side. Miss Douglas, though an enthusiastic golfer, has made no particularly good scores until she executed this brilliant little stroke in the game commonly called hearts.

JANE MEDEDITH.

Waterproof Glue. To make waterproof glue, soak it in water until softened thoroughly, but preserve the shape. Heat slowly in lincsed oil until dissolved, then mix thoroughly. To make fireproof glue, pour water over good glue and let it remain over night, then slowly melt and add white lead to make the right consistency. This will withstand fire, but not boiling water. To fasten labels to tin, take good yellow glue, break it into small pieces, cover with water and leave three or four hours. Pour off the water; place the glue in a wide mouthed bottle or pint-can and cover with acetic acid. Set in warm water until dissolved and incorporate the two by stirring.

The Difference.

An eminent corporation lawyer was privately quoted the other day as saying something like this: "Five years ago my clients used to come to me and say: 'We want to do such and such a thing; is it legal?' I would then examine the matter carefully and give an opinion on it, and not until they had my opinion would they go ahead with their plan. Nowadays, they come to me and say: 'We have done thus and so, make it legal.'" —The Wall Street Journal.

He had the right sort of stuff in him, and by the exercise of stern frugality was enabled to gain admittance to the bar. He rose rapidly in his profession, and, the Republicans recognizing his merit and ability, nominated him for Congress, to which he was elected by a majority of 9,000 votes." —Washington Post
