Death of Mrs. J. B. Yellowley.
A telegram received in Greenville today from Mississippi brings the sad intelligence of the death of Mrs. Jessie Yellowley, wife of Mr. J. B. Yellowley, which occurred Sunday night. Mrs. Yellowley had a great many friends in Greenville, where she lived some years ago, and her death brings sadness to them all. She was a woman of beautiful character and made friends wherever she was known.

The word "gentleman" is as often misapplied as the term "Christian gentleman." There are various types of "gentlemen" but one of the latest is that of the fellow Bishop, who killed the man Wilson in Charlotte Tuesday night. Bishop was drinking and carousing in Wilson's house without the latter's consent, and when Wilson ordered him out Bishop proudly proclaimed himself "a gentleman" and insisted on being "treated as such." The treatment not being to his liking he shot and killed Wilson. This is the type of "gentleman" (save the mark!) that should dangle at a rope's end.—Statesville Landmark.

If you feel ill and need a pill Why not purchase the best? DeWitt's Early Risers Are little surprisers, Take one—they do the rest. W. F. Howell, Houston, Tex., writes—I have used Little Early Riser Pills in my family for constipation, sick headache, etc. To their use I am indebted for the health of my family.

North State News

Mrs. E. L. Jones, of Raleigh, committed suicide by shooting herself with a pistol. Her rash act was due to sickness.

Seven prisoners, two of them charged with murder, escaped from jail at Marshall Friday night, by sawing out the steel bars to their cell.

The Baptist State Convention, in session at Durham the last few days, has adjourned. It was a great gathering and its influence will permeate the entire state.

A British steamer sailed from Wilmington with 17,000 bales of cotton on board. This is said to be the largest cargo of cotton ever shipped on a single vessel from a South Atlantic port.

Governor Aycock has offered a reward of $400 for the arrest of Arthur Bishop, the drummer who last week shot and killed Thomas Wilson in the latter's home at Charlotte. Bishop has been in hiding since the tragedy.

The Southern railway had a bad collision at High Point between a freight and passenger train, Friday. The engines and several cars were ruined, both engines suffered a broken leg, and the firemen and several passengers were slightly injured.

Engineer Plays Tune on Engine's Throttle.

Men have mastered the clarinet and tortured the trombone, fretted a flute and murdered the French horn, but it is left for a Richmond genius to extract the wild, sweet strain of a familiar song from the very throttle of a steam engine.

When the wind is in the south and the train is on time, listen for the soft cadence of "There's a Land That is Fairer Than Day" as the 7-45 pulls out of the Southern depot for her night run.

With his hand on the throttle, as the engine swings into the darkness, the engineer plays, with the skill of a trained musician, the opening bar of the old favorite. Not a false note, not a second out of time or a fraction out of tune, but with a tone as soft and true as the big base horn utters in the grasp of the orchestra man, he sends a farewell across the still night to his sweetheart, who is listening for his tuneful good-bye.—Richmond News.

The Washington correspondent of the Elizabeth City Tar Heel has made two attacks upon Rev. R. C. Beaman, the late pastor of the Methodist church here. We consider them unworthy of reproduction, as much of what is said is false. We shall deal gently with this correspondent at this time but we give warning now if any more of such rot appears from his pen we shall open fire with our heaviest gun and spare him no quarter. The character of Rev. Mr. Beaman is too well known in North Carolina for this correspondent, believed to be backed and egged on by those in sympathy with the saloon, to soil the hem of his garment. Rev. Mr. Beaman is not only esteemed but loved by Christians of all denominations here, and no Tar Heel correspondent can soil his character in the estimation of any of the best element of the people of Washington or elsewhere in the state.—Washington Progress.

Xmas presents galore in a nice line of jewelry just received at Mrs. Higgs. Engraving on purchases without extra cost. Anything desired not in stock can be had by order in 2 or 3 days.

NORTH CAROLINA BAPTISTS

Discussion Ends in a Resolution to Discourage State Aid to Baptist Institutions.

Durham, N. C., December 12.—The second day's session of the Baptist State Convention was of much interest. The main feature of the day's work was the report of the committee on General Education, and an animated debate followed.

J. W. Bailey, editor of the Biblical Recorder; Dr. D. Hufham of Henderson, and Dr. Calvin S. Blackwell, of Wilmington, engaged in a discussion that waxed warm at one time. It was settled by the convention passing a resolution reaffirming the purpose of the convention to discourage State aid to Baptist schools, this being the position taken by Mr. Bailey.

The question of State aid to the university, which has been a bone of contention for years, came up for discussion and Dr. Hufham, and Dr. Blackwell made talks practically in favor of State aid. Mr. Bailey expressed himself as believing that a crisis was at hand and that much depended upon what was done now. He is opposed to the aid.

At a meeting last night the pledges for foreign missions were increased from $13,000 to $20,000.

Today the pledges for home missions were increased from $6,000 to $10,000. Tonight the main feature of the convention work was discussion of the Baptist Female University.

LETTER TO J. L. SUGG.

Greenville N. C.

Dear Sir: Your business is, when a house burns down, give to the owner some money to build a new one. It is a good business. Queer that the world got on so long without it.

We paint the one that burnt down and the new one too. What is better, we paint the houses that don't burn down.

You insure the houses that burn; we insure the houses that don't. You have the ashes and smoke; all the houses are ours.

We paint Lead and Zinc; Devoe. We sell the paint to painters; we don't paint.

Lead and oil is the old-fashion paint. Devoe is zinc ground in with the lead and linceed oil: the best paint in the world; and the cheapest, because it takes fewer gallons than mixed paints and it wears twice as long as lead and oil. Nobody wants poor paint; there's lots of it, though, in the world.

A. M. Griffen, Plainfield, N. J., writes:

Mr. Aaron Higgins, of Plainfield, always used 15 gallons of mixed paint for his house. Last spring he bought 15 gallons of Devoe and had four gallons left.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & Co.,
New York.

P. S. H. L. Carr sells this paint.

We have just opened the prettiest and most useful line of goods in silver, china, pictures &c that we have ever shown, see them before they are picked over.

MONDAY DECEMBER 15, 1902.

Is President Roosevelt suffering with a case of color blindness?

The grasshopper who hasn't got in his winter supply of grass is in a bad fix.

And Postmaster General Payne writes a letter to Senator Simmons in which he says he didn't say it. That's satisfactory.

An unlucky thirteen students of Virginia Military Institute, at Lexington, Va., were expelled and sent home for disorderly conduct. Served them right.

The Baptist State Convention at Durham took high ground when a resolution was adopted declaring against accepting state aid for any of their denominational schools.

By the time the fight is over Wilson will be one of the widest advertised towns this side of the herring pond. Even the Greensboro date line will drop into insignificance.

While we are all willing for Greenville to turn over a new leaf, it is to be hoped that the New Year will not catch the best business town in North Carolina in the act of turning over for another year's nap.

The Richmond minister who condemns the misuse of the pulpit where preachers discourse upon "current events" and "timely topics" can eradicate the evil when he digs up the congregation which does not care for that sort of thing. High-priced preachers are generally careful to deliver the goods they sell.

South Carolina is about to redeem herself. An exhibition of bull fighting, dog fights and chicken fights were advertised to be pulled off at Rock Hill, and the governor sent a sheriff down there to stop the whole push, if he had to call out the military to do it. The sheriff took a company of militia at his back—and there wasn't any fighting.

President Eliot, of Harvard University, is credited with saying in a recent speech: "To look over the literature devoured by apparently respectable people; to listen to the plays that crowd the popular theatres; to inspect the amusements and entertainments of high society—this does make one wonder at the small respect which multitudes have for their own intellects."

The Wilmington Messenger, in writing of a potato so large that a hen and her brood of chickens ate their way into it and made it their home, says:

Mrs. Jeff Bullard should preserve the shell of the potato and send it to the state museum and that old hen and her chickens should be exempt from the bake oven and the frying pan and be allowed to pass the full measure of life nature allots them in ease and comfort because of their remarkable feat."

And the party responsible for that yarn should be stuffed and mounted and exhibited as the biggest liar born since the dissolution of the late Annanias.

Thomas P. Grasty, staff correspondent of the Manufacturers Record, writing to his paper from New York city, advocates the creation by the president of a commission to investigate the race problem in the south. If Mr. Grasty is a northern man we can forgive him for this, on the score of ignorance, but if he is from the south or conversant with the sentiment and conditions of the south, he ought to have better sense than to suggest this thing. What has President Roosevelt to do with the way North Carolina or South Carolina attends to his own affairs? Absolutely nothing. The constitution does not give him the right to interfere and common sense repels the idea. We are glad to note that the Manufacturers Record does not agree with its correspondent.

Twenty-one years ago the state of Kansas passed a law prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicants within its borders. Strife, bitter feuds and bloodshed followed. It was the law against the lawless, and the latter sometimes triumphed. But Kansas won in the long run, as truth and right must win. Instead of wavering the state stood firm for prohibition. It built schools and colleges for the education of coming generations. It knew that the old drunks would never be cured. But the coming race might be saved. It took twenty-one years to do it, and the task is not wholly accomplished yet, but there are thousands of young people in Kansas who never saw a drop of liquor. What matter the cost? Could the cost ever be equal to the good achieved? If the coming session of the legislature of North Carolina would pass a law prohibiting the liquor traffic in every form in this state and then adjourn, it would go down in history as the greatest and wisest law-making body that ever sat in the Halls of Congress of North Carolina.

The Greenville DAILY REFLECTOR has just celebrated its eighth birthday. It has made steady progress from the first and shows what energy and clean journalism will do. It has the confidence of the people of its section and deserves their support. May it continue to progress.—Wilmington Messenger.

And it has been faithful to its community and its every interest every day since it first saw the light. How to Prevent Croup.

It will be good news to the mothers of small children to learn that croup can be prevented. The first sign of croup is hoarseness. A day or two before the attack the child becomes hoarse. This is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the rough cough appears, and it will dispel all symptoms of croup. In this way all danger and anxiety may be avoided. This remedy is used by many thousands of mothers and has never been known to fail. It is, in fact, the only remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Silence may be golden, yet the product of the still makes men noisy.

A Cold Wave.

A forecast of a sudden change in the weather serves notice that a hoarse voice and a heavy cough may invade the sanctity of health in your own home. Cautious people have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure always at hand. E. H. Wise, Madison, Ga., writes: "I am indebted to One Minute Cough Cure for my present good health, and probably my life." It cures Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis, Pneumonia and all Throat and Lung troubles. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes the mucous membranes and strengthens the lungs.

It is easy to prove that the gun isn't loaded immediately after the accident.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful house wife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be warded off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

All met may be free and equal, but it is impossible to demonstrate it.

To improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion, try a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. H. Seitz, of Detroit, Mich., says, "They restored my appetite when impaired, relieved me of a bloated feeling and caused a pleasant and satisfactory movement of the bowels." There are people in this community who need just such a medicine. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville. Every box warranted.

Many a man is considered a hopeless fool on account of his hopefulness.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.

Digests all classes of food, tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs. Cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, and makes rich red blood, health and strength. Kodol rebuilds wornout tissues, purifies, strengthens and sweetens the stomach. Gov. G. W. Atkinson, of W. Va., says: I have used a number of bottles of Kodol and have found it to be a very effective and, indeed, a powerful remedy for stomach ailments. I recommend it to my friends. J. L. Wooten.

A lot of unimportant happenings are postponed on account of the weather.

What's in a Name.

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for piles. For Blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. J. L. Wooten.

The Persistent Passenger

(Original.)

"Tickets!" The lightning express had just moved out of the Union station, and the conductor had emerged from the baggage car and begun to take up tickets. Coming to a gentleman with a pale complexion, red hair and gold spectacles, he punched his ticket, handing it back with the remark, "Don't stop at Blimton."

"Don't stop at Blimton? Then what did the agent sell me a ticket on this train for?"

The conductor passed on without a reply, clicking his punch, turning from right to left and left to right, like the president bowing to a crowd.

"See here, Mr. Conductor. If you don't put me off at Blimton, I'll make it hot for you."

"And if you don't shut up I'll put you off in a swamp."

The passenger was very angry, muttering to himself about the tyranny of railroad men. When the train reached Blimton, he pulled the bellcord and made for the door. The conductor, who happened to be in the car, seeing the act, gave a signal to go on, but not before the train had slowed down and the passenger had jumped. Then the conductor gave a terrific stop pull on the cord and made for the door himself. In a few minutes the train hands were carrying the lifeless body of the passenger into the baggage car, where it remained till the train reached its first regular stop.

Six months after this event the night express carried a passenger who presented a ticket to Blimton and was informed that only local trains stopped at that station. When the train reached Blimton, the passenger went to the door and gave a leap in the dark. A brakeman who saw him gave a stop signal, and the remains of the passenger, mutilated beyond recognition, were found lying beside the track.

The next day the conductor of the lightning express made application to be transferred to a local train that stopped at Blimton.

"What do you want that for, Towler?" asked the superintendent. "I will cut off $20 a month of your pay."

"I know it will," replied the conductor, "but I'm getting nervous about fast trains. I don't think I'm well."

The conductor of the local ran his train for several months when a new time table was issued cutting off its stop at Blimton. When the first train had passed that station, a brakeman stopped the train, hurried to the conductor and announced that a passenger had jumped and had undoubtedly been killed. The conductor sank into a seat and directed the brakeman to go back and find the body. A search was made with lanterns, but the remains were not found. Some said the brakeman had been mistaken, others that the passenger had not been killed. This was not likely, as the train was moving at the rate of forty miles an hour.

"Towler," said the superintendent one morning, "Williams is sick in bed, and you must take the lightning express."

Towler turned pale. "I'd rather not if you can get any one else."

"But there's no one else to be spared. I can put an inferior man on your train, but the lightning express needs one of our best conductors."

Towler knew that to decline positively would be to lose his position and assented. It was fully fifteen minutes after the train moved out of the station before he mustered courage to go through the cars for tickets. However, occupation is good for the nerves, and he was forgetting his superstitious dread when a ticket was handed him for Blimton. Starting, he looked up. There sat a pale man with red hair and wearing gold rimmed spectacles. Towler stood with his punch in one hand and the ticket in the other staring at the passenger. He tried to speak the words, "This train doesn't stop at Blimton," but his tongue would not utter them. A brakeman who was following him up as assistant saw him stagger, caught him in his arms and assisted him to the baggage car. After the train had passed Blimton a passenger came hurrying into the baggage car to announce that a man had jumped from the train. The conductor groaned and in a faint voice ordered that the train be not stopped.

Conductor Towler had one more meeting with the troublesome passenger who insisted on getting off at Blimton. His health was failing, and he had been assigned the easiest job on the road, a night local that stopped at every station. The hours, however, were very short. One night Towler was sitting in a car without a single passenger. He had been suffering all day from depression of spirits consequent upon bodily ailment and sank into a troubled slumber. He was dreaming over a time table which did not give Blimton as one of his stops, and yet he was sure that he stopped at all points. He heard the train come to a halt, and when it moved on a brakeman put his head in at the door and called:

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

DILLON, S. C., Aug. 18th, 1902.
Gentlemen:—In September, 1899, I took rheumatism in a very bad form. In a month after the disease started I had to give up my work and go to bed. It continued to grow worse until my arms and hands were badly drawn, so much so that I could not use them. My legs were drawn back until my feet touched my hips. I was as helpless as a baby for nearly twelve months. The muscles of my arms and legs were hard and shriveled up. I suffered death many times over. Was treated by six different physicians in McColl, Dillon and Marion, but none of them could do me any good, until Dr. J. P. Ewing, of Dillon, came to see me. He told me to try your "RHEUMACIDE." He got me one bottle of the medicine and I began to take it and before the first bottle was used up I began to get better. I used five and a half bottles and was completely cured. That was two years ago, and my health has been excellent ever since. Have had no symptoms of rheumatism. I regard "RHEUMACIDE" as by far the best remedy for rheumatism on the market. I cannot say too much for it. I have recommended it to others since and it has cured them.

Will say further, that I began to walk in about six days after I began to take "RHEUMACIDE," with the aid of crutches; in about three months after I began to take it, I could walk as good as anybody, and went back to work again.
Very truly,
JAMES WILKES.
