The Personality of this Store

THERE is a personality about this store. You feel it and believe in it if you are familiar with the store. The attitude of this personality toward the public has revolutionized trade in the last few years. You who remember the old shopping methods of years ago can best appreciate the difference now from then, and can realize how many of the inconveniences and unpleasant features of shopping have disappeared in the last half dozen years, since the policy of pleasing people under all circumstances has been established.

But it is not the old attitude of "bowing and scraping" to cajole a customer into a bad bargain which could not be righted afterward. It is an attitude of assurance in the worth of the merchandise presented. An attitude of confidence that establishes the law that every salesperson shall tell the absolute truth always, and reply to all questions asked frankly, pleasantly and intelligently. This store follows the old policy—tell the truth about merchandise. If a piece of dress goods has cotton in it, that is no disgrace. We tell it frankly. Many people prefer a little cotton in a certain class of dress goods. If a customer wants an all-wool dress it is here. If the price is higher, it is right. If some other store has told the customer that a part wool is all wool, and that customer thinks our goods dear, and goes to the other store to buy the deception, we have lost a sale, but kept our reputation, and will probably get that customer back when the cotton begins to show in the cheat.

It is not a question of morals or sentiment. In the cold logic of fact, "Honesty is the best policy." This store's personality presents an attitude of pleasantness, confidence, frankness, helpfulness, anxiety to please and satisfy in every transaction. Whenever this store fails in any of these particulars some human agency has failed in its loyalty to the principles of this store. And where there are many human minds and each with a pair of human hands, with the instincts of human frailty, composing an organization, human weakness will at times fail. But the idea is ever present. The intent is in every pulse-beat, and every error is promptly, pleasantly and, if possible, effectually righted, the flaw in the machinery corrected and endeavor continued. We are trying to deserve the success that has come to our store. If we knew how to serve the whole public better, we would do it. The best that seems possible today we are doing; we hope to do better tomorrow.

Saturday evening, February 21st, from 3 to 6 o'clock, we will sell

Married.

The following announcement has been received:

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cox announce the marriage of their daughter Lucy, to Mr. Mark Mewborn, on Wednesday evening, February the eighteenth, nineteen hundred and three, St. Mary's Church, Kinston, North Carolina.

The bride once lived in Greenville and has a number of friends here who extend best wishes.

So much depends on the way a truth is stated. Senator Tillman made a speech in New York Saturday night in which he attempted to give the Southern position towards the participation of the negroes in politics and government. His language was as usual coarse, harsh and rude and many left the hall in disgust. Yet ten years ago Henry W. Grady, of Atlanta, stood before a Boston audience and presented the same facts far more strongly but in such a gentlemanly, polished manner that his New England audience applauded him to the echo. The day is far more propitious for such discussion from Southern standpoint than when Grady made his famous speech, but there is a brutal rude way of saying things which does more harm than good. Tillman's speeches have never accomplished real benefit for his section or brought the north and south closer together. But John Wise's speech in Boston Saturday when he traduced the South and Virginia, the state of which he is an unworthy son, was even more disgusting than Tillman's tirade.—Raleigh Times.

Married.

Mr. B. F. D. Albritton and Miss Mattie Edwards were married Wednesday evening at Hookerton. Mr. Albritton has many friends in Greenville, where he once lived, and they extend best wishes.

As far as accepting the government's dictum that the United States "is," we prefer to remain unreconstructed. And this is a case where the government can't help itself.

While kissing his fiancée good-night a Brooklyn man fell dead, but any man who wouldn't risk a little thing like death in order to kiss a pretty woman doesn't deserve a kiss.

We presume that the enthusiastic citizens of Pago-Pago, the capital of American Samoa, who cheered the president's greeting so heartily, have never been up against a coal strike or a Rooseveltian negro "policy."

It looks like the house is doing lots of dill-dallying over temperance legislature. Why not come to a vote and stop killing so much time? They ought to know what the people want.

"Whiskey Engages the House" are the startling headlines we read. And it's not the first time, either.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 19, 1903.

THE OUTLOOK.

There are left only a few more days of the present legislature, and already speculation as to its effect on the democratic party, the state government, the governorship, etc., is being indulged in.

The position of the legislature is a peculiar one. If it does not issue bonds the financial affairs of the state will become so involved that the party may well be charged with inability to administer them. If bonds are issued a great howl will go up about democratic extravagance. Of course no administration can please everybody, and some people will howl just for the love of kicking. But, in spite of the fact that the need for bonds was caused by the extravagant incompetency of the fusion regime, the very words "bond issue" will be as a red rag flaunted in the face of a bull to some of our best citizens.

On the liquor question also the legislature seems to think itself between the devil and the deep sea. On the one hand is the powerful influence of the whiskey handlers' organization, threatening to "disrupt" the democratic party, and on the other hand the great mass of the people asking for stringent legislation to rid them of the whiskey curse. The senators and representatives from more than one county, among them Pitt, have been virtually told that their constituents are growing tired of voting for men for no other reason except that they are on the ticket, and that if the present incumbents do not use their influence in behalf of a stringent temperance measure, they will have to be satisfied with private life after this term.

Heretofore the legislature has preferred to keep the opposition in line by keeping them in business, trusting to the democracy of the temperance people to walk up and vote for the nominee in the same old way. But things have changed somewhat. The cry of "nigger" can't be raised now, and the legislators are eagerly watching for the report of those earnest meetings of temperance folks in the church at home.

The time is short, and not a few members are trembling before the alternative.

The outlook at this writing seems to be that bonds will be issued, that some industrial legislation of doubtful value will go through, and the whiskey question will be submitted to a majority vote of the people. The situation is a complex one.

From accounts in the Winston-Salem papers it appears that that city is suffering for the lack of lynching facilities. A few weeks ago a negro assaulted a young white girl, and on Monday was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary. Now comes the revolting story of another criminal assault upon a poor friendless orphan by a black savage. This last is one of the most horrible crimes ever committed in the South, the details of which are unprintable. If this is not a case for lynch law there never was one. The negro will probably get a 15 year sentence, and the county will have him to support. Law and order is a good thing, but nothing less than hanging would be justice in this case. We hope Forsythe county will hang the brute by due process of law—if not this way, any other way.

Great gadzooks! suffering obengabhobhens! The editor of the Duan Guide prints his picture at the head of the paper's editorial column, and then sends it through the mail as second class rates. It ought to go free with such a work of art attached to it.

Let a man shift his politics just to get a job, and in nine cases out of ten he will turn out bad. The postmaster at Sparta, Alleghany county, has gone wrong and is a defaulter, being found short in his accounts in the sum of $800. He started out a democrat and went over by easy stages until he got in the republican ranks and was made postmaster.

The article in this paper a few days ago referring to Dr. Kilgo has been construed by some to be an attack on that gentleman, but nothing was further from the intention of the paper. Of course we are sorry that the article could have been so construed and make this explanation to disclaim any such intention.

Lost, strayed or stolen—One senator and one representative, both males; no marks; supposed to be wandering around Raleigh under the hallucination that they were sent there to represent Pitt county. Information as to their whereabouts should be forwarded to "its representative," Raleigh, N. C.

At last Vick is about to be pried off the Wilson postmastership. It may be that the reason of the president is trying to scramble back on her throne, but she will find that the nest eggs have grown cold.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold off from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A Weak Stomach.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.

BATTLES WITH SNOW

HARD FIGHTING FOR RAILROAD MEN IN THE ROCKIES.

Rotary Snowplows and the Men Who Run Them—Bucking the Monster Drifts That Pack the Mountain Passes.

Every western railroad is equipped with a large force of snow fighters. Rotary snowplows and men who know how to run them can cut their way through drifts that in the early days of western railroading would have resulted in complete blockades. The rotary snowplow is one of the marvels of the railroad of today, and it is a liberal education in the art of snow fighting to see one of them eating its way through a white drift that threatens to cut off communication between the east and the west. There are several passes in the Rocky mountains which for six months in the year or more form a constant menace to train crews. These passes are situated at the top of the Great Divide, where the elements have full sway. Boreas pass, in Colorado, is a fair example. The snow begins falling at Boreas late in August or early in September, and it does not cease until well into May and sometimes June. There will be intermittent snowstorms in the midsummer months, but these are trifling affairs and are not to be mentioned in the same breath with the tremendous snowfalls of January and February. Few men make their homes at Boreas. It is nothing for them to get up in the morning and find themselves completely buried in snow. The one store is usually at the end of a tunnel cut through an immense snowdrift. The population of Boreas during these snowy months consists, for the most part, of the railroad men who are engaged in the strenuous work of fighting constantly changing drifts. Snow at Boreas does not fall; it rages. It is blown about in swirls and eddies and is forever forming new drifts as treacherously as a river that is constantly shifting the sand banks of its mouth. These drifts are not little affairs that will barely cover a "stake and rider" fence. They are piled ten, twenty and thirty feet high, and they spring up in a night.

To the "tenderfoot" it would seem impossible to plow a way through these drifts at Boreas, but when a huge rotary snowplow comes whirling up the track with three or four engines pushing vigorously behind it the "tenderfoot" reserves his decision. He is still inclined to favor the snowdrift, but he prefers to await developments before committing himself. With a rush and a plunge the big rotary is hurled into the white mass of snow. Black smoke pours from the engines, and the huge blades of the snowplow eat relentlessly into the drift. The snow shoots out of the orifice at the side of the plow, forming a huge, white semicircle constantly moving forward. One can keep track of the progress of the plow by following the advancement of this rainbow of snow. Foot by foot the rotary eats its way forward, and finally it and the engines are buried in a huge trench of white. Only the stacks of the engines can be seen, belching their blackness on the virgin garb about them. But the great white semicircle never fails to go forward until finally the "tenderfoot" knows that the drift is being conquered. When the regular overland limited comes along a few hours later, the passengers do not know of the battle that has just been fought. They travel through a canyon of snow as they pass Boreas, but they have no idea of the tremendous force required to cut this white path over the ridge of the continent; so they go on, all unconscious in their Pullmans, while the railroad men at the next siding ahead oil the rotary and gird up their loins for the next battle, which they know Boreas will be prepared to give them in a few hours.

The experiences at Boreas pass during a hard winter are duplicated at many other railroad passes in the Rocky mountains, to say nothing of great stretches at lower altitudes which have always been the favored haunts of snowdrifts and which have always given railroad men great trouble. It is the unexpected element at these points that brings a serious aspect to the situation. At the passes over the Great Divide railroad men are prepared for trouble, and consequently serious blockades are few, but when word comes that a train has failed to fight its way through the drifts 100 or perhaps 200 miles from the nearest available rotary plow there is consternation. To get a rotary plow to the blockaded train takes time, and in the meantime the drifts are accumulating on the unused road, and each hour brings new menaces to railroad men and passengers alike.

Sometimes even the rotary plow has been known to be caught in a snow blockade. One instance occurred in Wyoming. An engineer who had a rotary plow on ahead and who was making good progress during a fierce snowstorm was compelled to run back a few miles for water. Instead of taking the rotary with him he uncoupled and ran his engine back, and in the meantime the snow gathered so fast over the tracks that he was unable to fight his way back to the plow. Such instances are rare, however, and are only owing to the oversight of some trainman, for a rotary snowplow with sufficient power behind it can eat its way through almost anything in the shape of drifts. —New York Tribune.

HEAT IN THE OVEN.

How the Bakers Determine It by the Mere Touch of the Hand.

"Bakers have a curious way of telling just what the temperature of the oven is," said a baker who has been in the business for more than a quarter of a century, "and they can tell, too, with almost marvelous accuracy. You take a man who is an expert in the business, and he can tell what the temperature of the oven is by simply touching the handle of the oven door. In nine cases out of ten he will not miss it to the fraction of a degree. Bakers have other ways, of course, of testing the heat of the oven. For instance, when baking bread they sometimes throw a piece of white paper into the oven, and if it turns brown the oven is at the proper temperature, or, when baking other things, they will throw a little cornmeal flour into the oven in order to test the heat. But the baker's fingers are the best gauge, and when you come to think of the different temperatures required in baking different things it is no small achievement to even approximate the heat of the oven by touching the handle of the oven door.

"Bakers figure that during the rising time of a loaf of bread, after it has been placed in the oven, it ought to be in a temperature of 75 degrees F. During the baking process, in order to cook the starch, expand the carbonic acid gas, air and steam and drive off the alcohol, the inside of the loaf must register at least 220 degrees. In baking rolls, buns, scones, tea biscuits, drop cakes, fancy cakes, New York cakes, muffins, puff cakes and things of that sort the oven must show a heat of 450 degrees or higher. When the oven is at 400 degrees, it is fit for cream puffs, sugar cakes, queen cakes, rock cakes, jumbles, lady fingers, rough and ready and jelly rolls. At 350 degrees wine cakes, cup cakes, ginger nuts and snaps, pies, gingerbread, spice cakes, such as raisin, currant, citron, pound, bride and so on, may be baked. It requires a still lower temperature to bake wedding cakes, kisses, anise drops and things in this class. But, whatever temperature the old baker wants, he can tell when he has it by simply touching the handle of the oven door." —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE COOKBOOK.

To boil cream the day before enhances the richness of the coffee into which it is poured.

The remnant of stewed or preserved fruit left from tea will improve a tapioca pudding the next day.

To cook carrots quickly add a small piece of soda to the water in which they are boiled. This will improve the flavor of the vegetable.

To prevent gravies from becoming lumpy remove the pan from the fire while the thickening is being stirred in, after which set the pan back on the fire and cook thoroughly.

Several green coffee beans left to soak in the unbeaten white of an egg will color cake icing a delicate green. The beans should be removed and the egg whipped and used for the icing.

If bread has been baked too brown or if the crust has been blackened in an oven made too hot, do not attempt to cut off the black with a knife. As soon as the loaves are cold go over them with a coarse grater.

Divorce in Japan.

A traveler recently returned from Japan tells of some of the queer laws in that country concerning divorce: "A divorce on the part of the husband is easily obtained. One of the legal causes of divorce is 'if the husband find the wife too loquacious.' Yet in all my long experience in Japan I have met only one man who discarded his wife, and I never met with a family where dissension existed, nor have I ever heard of a husband treating his wife with severity, although the same cannot be said of some parents-in-law, who consider their son's wife a mere chattel. As a general rule, the appearance of girls and women testifies of a lightness of heart not always found in other climes where their sisters have more abundant means of happiness."

The Weight of a Trifle.

In the journal of the celebrated English preacher, Frederick Robertson, occurs the following singular passage: "If I had not known a certain person, I never should have given up soldiering to become a minister; if I had not met a certain lady, I never should have known that person; if my dog had not disturbed that lady's invalid child at night, I never should have met her. It is true, then, that if my dog had not barked on that particular night I should now be in the draughts or fertilizing the soil of India."

Fashion in the Garden.

It is the passion for fashionable novelties—a passion of modern existence—which prevents us from enjoying our gardens as our grandparents used to enjoy theirs. We allow our hired gardeners to drive thence all the simple old flowers that our fathers loved and called by pet names which were familiar to us all in nursery days.—London Garden.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Kodol

Digests What You Eat

Mrs. Loring Nichols of Penn Yan, N. Y., writes: After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders, and gives the heart a full, free and untrammelled action.

Small Fire in Washington.

Wednesday afternoon Washington had a small fire, three front stores on main street being burned. The occupants of the stores were H. Wabstig, J. S. Campbell and the Cousins Harness Co. The fire originated from a defected flue in the first named store. Total loss was about $5,000.

Still the Great Question.

The temperance question is still the greatest question before the North Carolina legislature. Half the time of the session has passed and yet no temperance bill has been made a law. Bills and bills and bills have been drawn, discussed and printed in the papers but yet nothing has been done. Many of the members of the legislature say that they do not know the wishes of their people, but we think they must be dull of perception. Say what you may, liquor man or temperance man, every man in North Carolina who will make an admission without prejudice would be compelled to admit that if ever a legislature in the state of North Carolina has known the will of the people on any subject the present legislature is that body. And the question on which they have learned the will of the people is the temperance question. If they have not learn it yet from the multitude of petitions and delegations they are surely dull of perception.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

LETTER TO GREENVILLE MFG. CO.

Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sirs: It is all very well for us to say that it takes fewer gallons of Devoe Lead and Zinc to paint a house than it does of mixed paints; but you want to know why. For the same reason that it takes less good cow's milk to feed a baby than it does of skimmed milk.

Most mixed paints are fifteen to eighty per cent. adulteration—inconceivable, but true. Water isn't paint. Barytes isn't paint. Whiting isn't paint. Benzine isn't paint. Petroleum isn't paint. Fish oil isn't paint. None of these are a right part of a good paint. None of these do the work that belongs to paint.

All they do is to fill the can. Devoe Lead and Zinc is one hundred per cent. paint. The adulterated mixed paints are only twenty to eighty-five per cent. paint.

Mixed paint ought to be from fifteen to eighty per cent. cheaper than Devoe Lead and Zinc—no; the worst of them oughtn't to be anything. They waste your money; you not only must buy more gallons, but you must pay the painter for spreading the extra number of gallons; and painting costs three times as much as the paint.

Yours truly,
 F. W. DEVOE & Co.
 P. S.—H. L. Carr sells this paint.

The Wilmington Star throws out this suggestion:—"Instead of Pink teas, why doesn't some one give a Yopon tea. The leaves of yopon were used as a substitute for tea during the Civil War, and for decorative purposes the branches, with their lovely berries, would be most attractive."

If the ladies want to give something really historical and at the same time have a tea with a real pinkish cast, why not hold Sassafras teas? With a little dash of sorghum to sweeten it, they would have something that would give the younger set a taste of the refreshments used in Virginia during the time of the war between the States. The old Confederates would recognize an old friend.—Durham Sun.

No, it's Rooseveltian.
