SAME DARK STORY.

Negro Brute Attacks White Women at Centralia, Va.

Richmond, Va., July 22.—A negro tramp who attempted to assault Misses Thurston and Clement, at Centralia, a suburb of Richmond, was arrested this morning near here and lodged in jail in Manchester. The whole country was aroused and scores of men armed with shot guns spent last night in pursuit of the assailant. Full particulars of the affair were only learned this morning. The crime was committed within 75 yards of the Centralia postoffice. With one sweeping blow both ladies were felled. A purse containing $5 and letters were taken from Miss Thurston. The ladies screamed lustily and Miss Thurston immediately upon regaining her feet started in pursuit of the negro, who, frightened by the outcry; was hurrying off. The brave young woman followed the brute about 20 yards until he drew a pistol and threatened to blow her brains out. Meanwhile a little negro boy gave the alarm and Centralia's male population was soon hot on his trail.

WHAT STURCK PATTERSON?

A Cyclone Hit the New Jersey Anarchist Stronghold.

Patterson, N. J., July 22.—A tornado struck this city at 2 o'clock this afternoon, traveling from south west to north east across the city, and caused great destruction to property. About 60 families were made homeless, and three persons were killed, so far as known at present. Scores of others are injured.

WILMINGTON TOBACCO MARKET

Opened With 150,000 Pounds of Leaf.

Wilmington, N. C., July 22.—The Wilmington tobacco market was formally opened today with a big break at the warehouse. Over a thousand people were on the floor to witness the sale, which was a curiosity to the majority of them. Major W. E. Springer delivered a short address appropriate to the occasion. It is estimated that 150,000 pounds of tobacco was on the floor and over 75,000 pounds of it was sold by the auctioneer.

$350,000 Fire in South Carolina

Charlotte, N. C. July, 22.—News was received here this morning of a disastrous conflagration at Heath springs, Lancaster county, S. C., which practically destroyed the business portion of the town. The fire was discovered at one o'clock this morning. The origin is unknown. The loss is said to be about $30,000, and was well covered by insurance.

Bland-McGowan.

Wednesday afternoon at 6 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. L. A. McGowan, in West Greenville, Mr. L. T. Bland, of Kinston, and Miss Queenie McGowan, of Greenville, were married by Rev. E. D. Brown, of Kinston.

A few friends of the family were present to witness the marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bland left on the evening train for Kinston and will make their home in that place.

PRINCE - SMITH.

Marriage of a Popular Couple at Ayden - Wednesday.

At 7:45 a. m. Wednesday morning, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Irvin Smith, the Rev. W. L. Bilbro performing the ceremony, Mr. R. M. Prince, of Elloree, S. C., led to the altar Miss Willie Smith, of Ayden.

The bride and groom were attended only by Misses Lula and Nora Smith, Clarence Cannon with Miss Olivia Berry, and J. J. Hathaway, of Battleboro, with Miss Georgia Anderson, of Greenville. Miss Nina Cannon played the wedding march.

The bride was one of Ayden's best, fairest and most lovely daughters, and she carried with her the best wishes of all for a long and happy life in her new home.

The ceremony was witnessed by a large crowd of friends, who vied with each other in showering the happy couple with rice and congratulations. The home was beautifully decorated for the marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Prince left on the morning train for the mountains of West Carolina for their honeymoon, after which they will be at home to friends in Elloree, South Carolina.

RUFUS HOLDER NOT GUILTY.

Gross Injustice Done to an Innocent Man.

Charlotte, N. C., July 22.—After a preliminary examination before a magistrate today Rufus Holder, who was arrested last night on a warrant charging him with attempted criminal assault on two little white girls, was acquitted, there being no evidence of guilt. It seems from all that can be learned that Holder, a good, quiet citizen, has been done a serious injustice by the reports circulated concerning him yesterday. The little girls told straightforward stories and completely exonerated him. The warrant was sworn out by the father of one of the children and it is asserted that his condition at the time is responsible for the injury done a good citizen.

PUT OUT OF THE GAME.

Hedges, Government Grafter, is Shoved Off the Band Wagon.

Washington, D. C., July 22.—Charles Hedges was today removed from the office of superintendent of free delivery for falsifying his diary and loaning his traveling commission. He reported himself at various places on public business, when in fact he was not in those places on the dates mentioned, but elsewhere, in some instances hundreds of miles distant.

Pope Gives All to the Church.

Rome, July 22.—A portion of the pope's will was read today to the cardinals. It was written by his own hand in 1901. It decrees all his possessions to the church, including much donations as were supposed to have been sent to him personally, amounting, it is believed, to a great sum.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 23 1903.

One of the first things a stranger in Greenville notices is the lack of manners—or rather the presence of bad manners, of a great many people who frequent public places. The stranger sees a group of girls just home from college, perhaps, gathered at a soda fountain or walking on the street. He observes with painful disgust that they talk loudly, laugh immoderately and walk and stand in anything but a dignified manner. It is also noticed that Miss and Mr. are rarely used among the younger men and women. "Hayo, Bill," the girl says between a snicker and a giggle; "Hayo, Mary," the youngling answers.

We do not worship "the good old times," but we would like to see the present generation of 18 and 20-year-olds acquire some of the gentility, grace and dignity of other days.

The Wilmington Messenger nominates Ex-Senator Matt W. Ransom for the vice presidency. The Messenger knows he could not be elected, but just the same we would give a year off the tail end of our life for the privilege of voting for him.

We don't believe any man who is familiar with sentiments and conditions in the North will consider Governor Aycock as a vice presidential possibility.

"They" are talking of nominating Romulus Linney as a republican candidate for governor. Well, he is as good a man to defeat as any other.

We are now perfectly willing to allow the pope to remain dead, but some of our contemporaries do not seem to be so inclined.

We don't like President Roosevelt, but we are bound to give him credit for not pardoning Lawrence Pulliam, the bank wrecker.

Bryan says Cleveland is a mill-stone around the neck of democracy. Bryan is something in the mill-stone line himself.

We wish that man Bryan would have some little regard for the feelings of those who whooped it up for him in 1896 and 1900.

Our advice to Durham would be: Hold the Southern railway up and take a depot, and then argue the matter.

How much money has been raised for North Carolina's exhibit at St. Louis? Now don't all speak at once.

So far, we believe, no one has had the cruelty to mention Adlai E. Stevenson as a vice presidential experiment.

If you want a woman to believe what you say, tell her what she wants to believe.

THE STATE PRESS

A federal judge or any other kind of judge has mighty little to do going around the country trying to get criminals out of the penitentiary.—Durham Herald.

A little dog belonging to a man near Charlotte, while his master's house was on fire, found his way in the building through a lattice door, and awoke the inmates.

A Rockingham doctor, going out to see a patient, left his horse hitched near a bee gum. The bees came up and attacked the horse in such numbers as to sting the animal to death.

General Miles did a stunt of riding ninety miles in nine hours to show that he was not really suitable for the retired list. Mr. Cleveland has intimated to a good natured public that his sixty-six years are not significant of senility.—Charlotte News.

As yet the republicans are saying little about their candidates for gubernatorial honors. They are doubtless having some difficulty in finding one of the faithful who is willing to be offered up as a sacrifice on the altar of the "grand old party."—Winston Sentinel.

Frederick Douglass said that in his long association with distinguished abolitionists, Lincoln was the only white person he had ever met who permitted him to forget for a moment in his presence that he was a negro. And he was speaking of Northern abolitionists, too.—News and Observer.

We Want That Road.

The Greenville REFLECTOR is right in saying that this paper will probably aid them in making the fight to bring the road to the two places through which we most want it to run—Greenville and Washington. THE REFLECTOR is taking a proper stand in the matter. This road to the coast has got to come through these two places. They are the best municipalities in Eastern North Carolina. Any competent railroad, who may be interested in this road, would tell you that it would be folly to skip over towns like Greenville and Washington in reaching for the sea. The freight rate from this city connecting with the new road will knock out the high rate monopoly of the Atlantic Coast Line and the new road cannot merge with the A. C. L., because the charter granted by the state prohibits any merger of systems. Washington and Greenville should get this new road and the business men in each place should subscribe liberally towards clinching the contract, but there is this alternative and it should be used if they fail to pass through Greenville and only want a through line to the coast, not having their terminal here, this city should put an exorbitant charge on the road for a through right of way and see if that will not bring them to terms. Yes, we want the railroad and will aid it, but at the same time we want decent treatment.—Gazette-Messenger, Washington.

Unless a man has scored at least one failure he is unable to appreciate success.—Chicago News.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

People who get married for a joke deserve their finish.

A SURGICAL OPERATION

is always dangerous—do not submit to the surgeon's knife until you have tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It will cure when everything else fails—it has done this in thousands of cases. Here's one of them: I suffered from bleeding and protruding piles for twenty years. Was treated by different specialists and used many remedies, but obtained no relief until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Two boxes of this salve cured me eighteen months ago and I have not had a touch of the piles since.—H. A. Tisdale, Summerton, S. C. For Blind Bleeding, Itching and Protruding Piles no remedy equals DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Salve by Wooten's Drug Store.

It's no credit to a man to be good at the point of a gun.

JUST ABOUT BEDTIME

take a Little Early Riser—it will cure constipation, biliousness and liver troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are different from other pills. They do not gripe and break down the mucous membranes of the stomach, liver and bowels, but cure by gently arousing the secretions and giving strength to these organs. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store.

A tourist without money is a tramp, and a tramp with money is a tourist.

Valuable Time Saved.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poison. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

More than physical culture is required to make a man strong-minded.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food taken into it that fails to digest it decays and inflames the mucus membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secrete mucin, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For years I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. R. Rhea, Coppell, Tex. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store.

A woman isn't necessarily a dream because she happens to be contrary.

THE FOUNDATION OF HEALTH.

Nourishment is the foundation of health—life—strength. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the one great medicine that enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest, assimilate and transform all foods into the kind of blood that nourishes the nerves and feeds the tissues. Kodol lays the foundation for health. Nature does the rest. Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and all disorders of the stomach and digestive organs are cured by the use of Kodol. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store.

AYDEN ITEMS

AYDEN, N. C., July, 22, 1903. Misses Freddie Tucker and Helen Cox returned Saturday from a visit to Bruce.

Mrs. Chas. E. Flynn, of Fort Totten, New York, arrived Saturday to spend the summer here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Early.

Miss Lena Anderson, of Greenville, came Saturday to attend the Prince-Smith marriage.

C. H. Jones, general agent for the Fidelity Mutual, is in Ayden for a few days. He is of the firm of Jones and Wallace, Goldsboro.

Misses Ida W. Edwards, Lena and Lizzie Hines, May Anderson and Daisy Munford left Monday morning for Winterville to attend the teachers' institute now being conducted at that place for the teachers of Pitt county.

Rural Route Carrier Coward informs us that on Friday he was compelled to stop twice on his route by the burning of tobacco barns along the road. We have heard already of six being burned and the season not half over. Carelessness is usually the cause of tobacco barn fires.

A. J. Manning and Geo. Prescott went to Winterville Tuesday to attend the institute for teachers.

Miss Emma Brown came home from Scotland Neck on Monday.

Enoch Ludford, of Plymouth, came Tuesday evening and is at the home of D. G. Berry.

R. M. Prince, of Elloree, S. C. the groom-elect, and Enoch Davenport and J. J. Hathaway came in on Tuesday evening to attend the marriage of Mr. Prince Wednesday morning.

Misses Carrie and Henrietta Wesson returned to their home in Winterville Monday.

Miss Rosa Bland left Monday afternoon for a visit to her sisters, Mrs. Riddick and Mrs. Lee in Kinston.

Miss Carrie Edwards, of Fremont, is in Ayden visiting the family of J. J. Edwards.

Mrs. Dr. Dixon and children left Tuesday evening for a visit to LaGrange.

Mrs. R. C. Cannon and two of her children left Monday for a stay at Seven Springs.

GRIMESLAND ITEMS.

Grimesland, N. C., July 20 1903. We have feasted on spring chicken till we are tired. Now for a change to watermelon and peaches and milk.

Two things we need badly in our town—one almost attained, the other hopefully wished for. That is a saw mill and a good school.

Sam Holiday has taken a position with W. M. Moore & Co. He looks after the outside business of the firm.

W. S. Galloway and family spent Sunday visiting in the country.

J. J. Mason, of Washington, was in town a few hours Friday. He is in the livery business there and we are glad to hear that he is doing well.

Misses Lucy and Helen Galloway, accompanied by their friends, Misses Ward and Langley, were in town Friday.

J. J. Satterthwaite, of Pactolus came over Sunday, and spent the day with Dr. Jones. Mrs. Satterthwaite, who has been staying a few days with relatives and friends here, returned home with him.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Proctor took a party of small children out riding Sunday afternoon. The ride afforded them some relief from the extreme heat, and the little fellows seemed to enjoy it very much.

J. F. Stokes and W. O. Wooten, of Winterville, are here today working insurance. These are clever gentlemen, know their business, and represent good companies. We bespeak for them success in this community.

We have an up-to-date news-boy in Grimesland in the person of Master Roy Venters. Roy is a smart little fellow and succeeds in selling papers where others have failed.

THEIR LAST DAY

[Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure.] "But I may write?"

Gordon watched the bright face anxiously.

She turned her shining eyes to him. "You missed it, after all," she said resentfully. "That last wave completely covered the giant's shoe. It was just like getting a great, cool drink when one is very thirsty to see it."

He gave a discouraged shrug. "What was it you asked me? I could not help it—about the rock, you know. We had waited so long to see the tide reach it."

"Can I write to you?"

He turned to her eagerly, his late appointment forgotten, one hand closing over hers. Miss Barrington withdrew the perceptibly tanned member.

"You can," she said suggestively.

"But may I?"

"I think not."

"Why?"

"Because—oh, because I should have to answer."

"And would that be such a task?"

Nan Barrington's eyes twinkled between narrowed lids.

"Mr. Gordon, you don't know what you are trying to bring upon yourself," she said gayly.

"Let me be the judge of that."

"Oh, spare me any more expert opinions on the matter. My family decided that point long ago. I once wrote to Jack while he was at Harvard. His answer came to mother: 'Nan's latest effusion to hand. I gather that some one is dead, but whether one of the family, Jim's fox terrier, your pug or her canary I'm blest if I know.' And it was none of them!" she added, inwardly convulsed at the recollection. Gordon, watching the sparkling face, could only laugh with her.

"I think you should feel distinctly flattered," she said presently.

"Why?"

"Don't you see how I value your good opinion?"

He looked off over the sea with gloomy eyes. Nan's gaze followed his and her face sobered suddenly.

"I wonder where we shall be a week from today at this time," she said speculatively.

"The Houghtons have asked me to join their party in the White mountains," he volunteered, "but—it doesn't matter about me. Where shall you be?"

She had given him one quick look. A pleased smile lifted the corners of her mouth as she leaned back against their own particular rock.

"I—I scarcely know yet."

"You need not be afraid to tell me. I shall not worry you," he said quietly.

Nan rose.

"Let us get down close to the water—for the last time," she said slowly.

Gordon followed her in silence while she climbed a ridge of rock which ran out into the ocean and ended in a large table-like slab, worn smooth by the storms of many winters.

Sky and sea were a bewildering of opal tints, with one fleecy, rose colored cloud near the horizon. The half a dozen sails in sight were touched into pale pink by the setting sun.

The girl's eyes swept it all. Then she stretched out her arms to the beautiful scene.

"Goodby," she whispered, and the eyes which Gordon could not see grew wet.

"Don't!"

His hand had closed over her arm with an intensity which hurt. To him these summer weeks had been as the birth of all things.

She turned to him, but backed from what she saw in his eyes. Then a shuddering breath broke from her. Her feet had slipped on the smooth rock. Wide, piteous eyes sought Gordon's as she felt herself sliding down the glass-like surface, where there was no hold, toward the ten foot depth of water, with its dreaded undertow.

The one glimpse he had of them went through Gordon like a physical hurt ere he threw himself, face downward, on the rock with both arms flung out. His hands touched her shoulders and fastened on them like a vise. There was a breathless moment when it seemed as if her weight must drag him over. Then, lightly as she would have lifted a pebble, his splendid arms drew her up beside him.

"Were you terribly frightened?" His voice vibrated with tenderness.

The girl shivered and swayed against him. Gordon picked her up and carried her to the cliff path above.

"I have not thanked you," she said then, but her eyes did not meet his.

"I am sorry you thought it necessary."

He walked beside her to the door of the pretty summer villa and stood with uncovered head. His heart held within him as he took the hand she silently held out and watched her white, troubled face. It was goodby then, after all.

He had reached the end of the path when her voice came to him: "Mr. Gordon?"

He turned.

"I think I do know, after all, where I shall be a week from today."

Gordon came a step nearer.

"I have decided"—she paused deliberately and the look which she sent straight into Gordon's eyes went to his head like wine—"within the last half hour to accept the Houghtons' invitation to visit them next week in the White mountains."

He took the steps at a bound, but she had escaped him.

"Au revoir!" she called from half way up the staircase.

And the tender face which looked down held the promise of all that made life worth while for Gordon.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder. If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

A Woman's Winning Method

(Original.) The term "buccaneer" is associated in most people's minds with that of "pirate." The buccaneers were at first privateers authorized to prey on Spanish commerce, but afterward degenerated into sea robbers. On one of these buccaneer ships more than a century ago among the crew was a woman dressed in man's clothes. She had worn this attire for several years as a soldier and had taken part in a number of battles. When peace came she concluded to try the sea, and, shipping for the West Indies, joined the buccaneers. The secret of her sex was well preserved, and not a person knew that she was a woman.

Anne Prestwich, or Peter Prestwich, as she was known on the buccaneer, fell desperately in love with one of the sailors, Percival Whitford, a large, blue-eyed, flaxen haired, devil may care fellow, who, though he treated Anne in as friendly a manner as any one else, not knowing that she was a woman, had no thought of the tender passion.

Anne concealed her love, not daring to reveal it with a confession of her sex for fear that Percy would be repelled by the knowledge. For months she worshipped him in secret. Then an opportunity arose for revealing her love under the most favorable circumstances. Percy became involved in a quarrel with a sailor named Millikin, and a challenge passed. Whitford and Millikin were in different watches, and the duel could not take place until after eight bells in the afternoon. Shortly after dinner a number of the crew were loitering on the fore-castle, among them Anne Prestwich and Millikin.

"You'll make short work of the blue-eyed fellow," remarked one of the men to Millikin.

"If he does," said Anne, "it'll be by foul means."

"What!" cried Millikin, starting up, while the others looked thunderstruck.

"Didn't you hear me?" replied Anne.

"Cowards don't fight fair. They always manage to get some advantage."

"You dare say this to me!" shouted Millikin, standing on his feet and putting his hand to his knife.

"I say nothing except what's true."

Millikin made a rush for Anne, but those present stood between.

"I'll have your life for this!" cried Millikin.

"As soon as I get through with Whitford I'll attend to you."

"Why wait for that?" asked Anne coolly.

"This is as good a time as any, and you'll have to wait till eight bells for Whitford."

"Agreed. I'll fight you now. Draw!"

"I have choice of weapons, and I choose swords," said Anne.

A ring was formed, a couple of ordinary swords were brought up from below, and the two opponents set to work. Anne, the ex-soldier, who had been drilled in sword exercise in barracks, from the first showed her superiority to Millikin, whose only practice had been in action with the cutlass. She received a few scratches which her opponent intended for mortal wounds, and, watching her opportunity, ran him through the heart. Millikin dropped dead, and Anne, wiping her sword on her trousers, turned and went down the companionway.

When Whitford came off watch he had been told that there was no quarrel on his hands since Peter Prestwich had removed his antagonist. He went straight to Anne, whom he found in the fore-castle.

"Pete," he said, "what do you mean by taking my quarrel?"

"I had as good a right to fight him as you."

"But they say you insulted him without cause. Then you proposed to fight him before I had my turn with him."

"Yes; that's true."

"Well, it's plain that you stepped in between him and me. Millikin never injured you. Tell me why you have interfered to shield me?"

Anne turned away, but there was something in the glance she gave him that sent a thrill through him, though he did not know why.

The next day the buccaneer touched port at one of the coast towns, and when the first batch of shore leaves were granted it happened that Peter Prestwich and Percy Whitford were among the number who went ashore.

When they reached the quay Anne went off by herself, while the others sought the nearest saloon. Later they drifted into the San Louis tavern, and while they were standing at the bar a waiter stepped up to Percy Whitford and whispered that a lady wished to see him in a parlor upstairs. Not aware that he knew any woman in the place, he hesitated a moment, then, without speaking of his going, sauntered out.

When he entered the room there was but one woman in it. A trim figure stood before the window robed in a plain but neat gown, cut in the fashion of the times, while on the head was a cap which entirely concealed the back hair. Percy advanced, and as he did so the woman turned, but while his face was in the full light of the window hers was not. There was something very familiar in the rather attractive face. Percy was sure he knew the girl, but could not place her.

"Lassie," he said, "you've got the better of me. What? Pete Prestwich in woman's clothes?"

He started back. Something came rushing over him like the moving of a great flood.

"Not a man; a woman," said Anne, looking down at the floor.

The revelation to Percy that a woman had stood between him and an even chance between life and death resulted in a complete conquest. They left the buccaneer service, married and lived the life of planters.
