"EFF-EFF"
FASHIONABLE CLOTHING

Let us set you straight on the matter of Cravenette overcoats. The most successful process for waterproofing a garment is that of Priestley's, and every Cravenette treated to their process bears their name, and when in addition to Priestley's Cravenette stamp an overcoat is identified with the label of Wilkinson the combination is one that insures not only a waterproof overcoat, but also an overcoat of fine fabric, with all the knocks of fashioning and style that distinguish the "EFF EFF" Clothing people from the ordinary sort.

ANOTHER DAILY TRAIN.

Greenville Soon to Have Better Transportation Facilities.

After three years of waiting, in which time several requests have been made for it and much written in these columns showing the need of it, this branch of the Atlantic Coast Line is to have another daily train. The following letter from General Superintendent W. A. Anderson to Mayor M. Wooten will be read with pleasure by the people of Greenville and other towns interested.

ALBANY, N. C. Dec. 4, 1905
Mr. Frank M. Wooten,
Mayor, Greenville, N. C.

My Dear Sir:

I am pleased to say, in answer to petitions sent us from the citizens at Greenville, Ayden, Winterville and Grifton, that the management has decided to put out, at an early date, a passenger train between Tarboro and Kinston in order to meet the wishes of our petitioners.

In putting on this train we, of course, do so with the intention of continuing it, unless we find the loss incurred by its operation too great to warrant its continuance. We hope, however, it will at least pay expenses, although we are not at all certain that it will.

Yours very truly,
A. W. ANDERSON,
General Superintendent.

While the letter does not say just when the additional train will be put on, the assurance that it is to be at an early date is gratifying. In this move the officials of the road are to be commended, and THE REFLECTOR is sure that the increased patronage will prove that the venture is a profitable one.

The will of the late Mr. Alfred Forbes has been admitted to probate before Superior Court Clerk, D. C. Moore. The will was made in 1891 and names the wife of deceased as guardian for minor heirs and executrix. The only child's name mentioned in the will is the youngest son to whom his gold watch was bequeathed. To his wife was given $2,000 in money, all the household effects of the home, the horses and vehicles used by the family, and a full dower on all real estate, she also to share equally with the children in all other personal property. After her dower the real estate is divided equally among his children.

THURSDAY, DEC. 7, 1905.

Greenville is soon to have another daily train. Then you will see the town moving forward.

In a recent issue of the Progressive Farmer appeared a letter written by Mr. O. L. Joyner on the organization of the Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Company and its work. The REFLECTOR is copying this letter, as it treats of a Pitt county institution and will be interesting to our readers. From its beginning we have had faith in this organization and believe it is going to work out great good to the tobacco farmers.

A TOBACCO FARMERS' CO OPERATIVE WAREHOUSE COMPANY.

O. L. Joyner Describes the Successful Test of a Plan Which He Believes the Best Immediate Scheme of Relief for the Growers of the Weed.

On the 13th day of October, 1903, there assembled in the Farmers' Tobacco Warehouse in Greenville, N. C., eighteen or twenty Pitt county tobacco farmers who by mutual agreement had come together for the purpose of organizing a "tobacco farmers co-operative warehouse company," having for its object primarily the making of money for its stockholders, but ultimately for the purpose of bringing the tobacco growers together into a successful business organization.

Several unsuccessful attempts had been previously made to organize the tobacco farmers, and naturally enough these gentlemen felt that many obstacles would have to be removed before a successful organization could be effected, therefore, in the beginning they moved with caution and prudence. They realized that in employing the long-established warehouse business (a business supported absolutely and entirely by the tobacco farmers) as a means to bring about the organization of the tobacco growers, they were invading a field of hither to undisputed territory. They fully understood that every step they took would be stubbornly contested by the warehousemen and others whose interest it always is to throw stumbling blocks in the way of farmers' movements, and that every effort would be employed to defeat the organization; therefore, it was of the utmost importance that their every move should be carefully studied and that no mistake be made.

After carefully and minutely going over the situation thoroughly in its every detail, a plan of procedure was decided upon.

First of all, it was agreed that the organization was to be a plain open and shut business proposition; no appeal was to be made to the farmers from any sentimental point of view; no prejudice was to be played on. It was simply and purely a business matter.

In adopting this plan, they understood fully that more time would be required and the exercise of more patience would be necessary; but they were deeply imbued with the fact that upon such a foundation and with such machinery, a more permanent and lasting organization could be effected.

In drafting the charter special care was taken to see to it that it was sufficiently broad and liberal to serve the purposes of the votaries, yet sufficiently strong and prescriptive to protect it from designers and schemers who might want to use it for selfish ends.

Under the plan of organization adopted by this small but determined number of farmers, it required a majority of the stockholders to shape its policies, whereas in most incorporated companies it is a majority of the money represented that controls.

While from a strictly modern business point of view this is seemingly an objectionable feature yet for the purpose of the organization it is one of its strongest safeguards. Under this plan it is well nigh impossible for any man or set of men arbitrarily to get control.

Again, under the plan adopted no one person is allowed to own more than a certain number of shares (fifty is the maximum at the par value of $10.) and the largest stockholder is allowed no more voice in voting at the meetings of the company than the smallest one.

If at any time a stockholder should want to dispose of his stock, the organization requires him to notify the directors, and if the intended purchaser is objectionable as a stockholder, then the directors have a right to purchase the stock for the organization. Thus by this means the company is at all times able to protect itself against those who might have corrupt purposes and might buy the stock in order to interfere with or control the policy of the organization.

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Tortoises and Fresh Water.
Tortoises in tropical islands require much fresh water for drinking and have often discovered springs of which the human inhabitants were ignorant. When such a fountain is found the whole surrounding district is soon covered by "tortoise roads" made by these large creatures in their journeys to and from the water. The springs sometimes flow from volcanic rocks at a great elevation, but the tortoises generally discover them.
