ANOTHER TRAIN.

A Through Freight Train Now Operating.

The Atlantic Coast Line is showing a disposition to do something to further the business interests of this section. In December the additional passenger train, the "Reflector special," was put on to run daily between Tarboro and Kinston and return and gives an admirable service. Now an additional freight train has been put on to leave Tarboro early in the morning for Kinston and return the same day. This is known as a through freight, handling only solid cars to and from the different towns along the route. This will relieve the regular local freights of a lot of work and will cause shipments to be handled with much more promptness and dispatch.

This through freight is put on with the view of running it through the fertilizer season when large shipments of this character are being handled, but we hope there will be so much business as to warrant its continuance. The truck season will come on soon after fertilizer shipments are over and this will make need for the through freight. Then another tobacco season comes close after the trucking season to be followed by a new cotton crop. Whoop things up and keep the through freight going.

NOT SO MANY CASES.

But the Court is Kept Busy.

Cases are not being run through quite as fast this week, because most of the smaller ones are out of the way, but the court is kept busy over the harder problems, the capital cases coming this week.

The trial of Sylvester Barrett, against whom with Jerry Cobb the grand jury returned a true bill for the killing of Constable Lovitt, at Farmville, was set for Thursday morning and a special venire of forty ordered. Only Barrett will be tried now as Cobb has not been caught.

Judgment was taken in several cases against the Atlantic Coast Line arising from the wreck at Bruce, last August, and which had been compromised with the plaintiff.

The trial of Lon James Donald for burglary that was begun Monday afternoon did not get to the jury until late Tuesday. A verdict had not been reached at noon today.

Solicitor Moore made a break in the illegal selling of whiskey at Bethel. There were several cases against W. J. James and John W. Carson. James was convicted in two cases and three others were continued. Carson was also convicted. A number of prominent people of Bethel summoned as witnesses testified that the illegal sale of liquor there had been notoriously bad. Carson was sentenced to jail for six months. James was also sentenced to prison for six months. Over both of them judgment was suspended in the other cases.

Hall's Tour.

One of Hall's Conductors was in Greenville last week and gave traveling instructions to Mrs. F. W. Clare and Mrs. Chas. O'H. Laughinghouse. He expects to conduct a party from this section about the first of April and any one wishing to take the trip can see these ladies regarding it.

The Shadow Last Night.

The Corinne Runkel Stock Co. was the attraction again last night at the opera house in the comedy-drama "The Shadow" and sustained their reputation of the night-before. The specialties were good and of the highest order. They present tonight the all American play "The Old Homestead" and all should see it.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Henry Kobre, a Russian Jew, was murdered and robbed in his room at Winston.

A negro tramp arrested in Raleigh proved to be the robber of the postoffice at Elmore, in Scotland county.

William Russell, a young white man imprisoned in the guard house in New London, Stanley county, set fire to his cell and was fatally burned.

GENERAL NEWS.

Happenings of Interest Over the Country.

An explosion on the Brazilian turret ship Aquidaban, near Rio Janeiro, killed 212 out of a crew of 350.

Kentucky has caught the fever and a negro was lynched at Hopkinsville Sunday night.

Miss Pauline Webster, claiming Gaffney, S. C., as her home, was arrested in Kansas City for going around disguised as a man.

Greenville, S. C., is excited by the discovery of a rich gold vein in the mountains near that city.

A Plymouth Rock hen at a poultry show in Boston sold for $750.

Where Lynching Would be Excusable.

A man who will curse over the phone is exceedingly short on manners. He is a misfit and worse—from a moral standpoint. The public would be surprised at the number who do this. It is bad enough to swear over the phone when talking to another man, but when one pitches in and curses the operator at the central office there should be some law to fit the case. He might rig up some kind of an excuse when talking for instance, in a jocular vein to a friend, but when he gets mad because he cannot get the proper connection, even when it is known that it is not the fault of the operator, and goes to cursing her it is about time he was taken out and shot. To show how unreasonable a man can be, we recall an instance that happened one Sunday some time ago. A man called up a certain residence; central rang the 'phone and no one answered. The man yelled at her to ring again and still no one answered; then he cursed her and not satisfied with this called up the chief operator and cursed her for failure to get the number he wanted. Next day it was ascertained that the residents or the house he wanted were not at home during the entire day. Right here is where he needed killing. We can prove it by everyone of the ladies at the central office.—Greensboro Record.

A Shower of Wheat.

In the year 1693 or thereabouts it was a report in Bristol and thereabouts that it rained wheat about this Town and six or seven Miles round, and many believed it. One Mr. Cole being curious to find out the Truth of the odd Phaenomenon procured several Parcels of it, and upon diligent Examination of them with magnifying Glasses, judged from the Taste, Figure, Size and Smell that they were seeds of Ivy berries, driven by a strong Wind from the Holes and Chinks of Houses, Churches and other Buildings, where Starlings and other Birds had laid or dropped them, but if so it's strange that they should fall in so great Quantities in so many Places.—Cox's "Magna Britannia."

Couldn't Smell in the Dark.

An old gentleman too impatient for his hot water and a light to be brought rushed into the kitchen, seized hold of the first pan on the stove and dashed away with it to his dark room. On plunging his hands into the wash hand basin he was amazed to find that it contained something thicker and stickier than water—that he had, in fact, spoiled the first course of his dinner by trying to wash in the soup.

Boiling over with passion, he began to upbraid his wife, and on her suggesting that he might have smelled it was soup he thundered, "How in the name of fortune could I smell in the dark?"—London Answers.

Got His Money's Worth.

King Milan of Servia once went to the hotel of a distinguished lady who was giving a bazaar for the benefit of the poor children of Paris. As soon as the king appeared upon the scene she advanced toward him with a splendid silver salver in her hand on which was beautifully emblazoned the family arms. On it lay a pretty little bunch of violets. "How much, madame?" asked the king. "Twenty-four louis, sire," was her soft response. Milan paid her the sum she had asked, with a courteous bow, took the salver from her hands, placed the bouquet in his buttonhole and walked off with the tray under his arm.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 24th, 1906.

Greenville now has eight regular trains a day That is coming on.

No doubt the ground hog is laughing at the weather prophet and says wait until his turn comes.

A regular blizzard is raging out West and the tail end of it may be expected to switch down this way.

Another train added to the transportation facilities of the towns down this way increases that much more their advantages.

The slump in cotton futures does not seem warranted by the ginners' report, but the fellow who puts up his money has to take chances on the other fellow's game.

The officers promise that the next State fair shall be clean, in regard to fakirs and side shows. We have heard that promise before, in fact it comes annually about this time of year.

The President is going at the thing right when he ordered the correction of the abuses in the government printing office, provided he does not let the order fall short of execution. If there ever was a place where extravagance runs riot, it is in that same government print shop. Enough money is wasted there every year on unnecessary printing to run several good size printing establishments.

This talk of the government cutting off the rural free delivery routes where the people do not show "appreciation of the service" is something those served by the routes should be thinking about. To the people of the rural districts these mail delivery routes are the greatest convenience of modern times, and where they have been put in operation it would be a serious inconvenience to discontinue them. The plan of the government is to discontinue such routes as handle less than 2,000 pieces of mail per month. The people can help increase the business of the routes by getting all who do not already have them to put up mail boxes and then subscribe to newspapers and write letters so as to make more pieces of mail to handle.

There's Danger In It.

Says the Norfolk Landmark: "The Southern Cotton Growers' Association has resolved to reduce the cotton acreage 25 per cent. and hold the product until the price reaches 15 cents a pound. It is a question whether the individual members are willing to do the first or able to do the second. If they should succeed in their effort, the result would be a tremendous stimulus to the movement to raise cotton on a large scale in other parts of the world."

Then if the foreigners began to raise cotton and the South would put in a big acreage and run prices down to 5 cents, it would be awful on the foreigners. It takes the proper climate, suitable land, plenty of labor and ample transportation facilities for cotton production. There are no doubt many countries that have the climate and land but we've got them skinned to a finish on labor and transportation. Until there is some cotton country with the area of the South and traversed with railroads and waterways like the Southern "Cotton Belt," we don't think there is any need to fear competition. At any rate there is no need for the South to raise cotton at cost to scare competition.—Wilmington Star.

BAD IMMIGRANTS.

Junior Order is Opposed to Them.

Local Councils of the Junior Order of the United American Mechanics throughout the State have adopted stirring resolutions in regard to immigration, which will be sent to Washington.

The following is a copy:

"Whereas, we recognize the leading upon our shores of the ignorant, the vicious, the lawless, the aged, the embeile, the weak-minded and of poor physique, and the paupers of the old world as a constant menace to our institutions, and believe that it should be viewed with alarm by all loyal and patriotic citizens of the entire country, and,

"Whereas, notorious abuses have resulted from careless and unlawful granting of citizenship to aliens.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that we urge upon Senators and Congressmen the importance of the enactment of laws to restrict immigration by an increase of the head tax, the educational test, a thorough physical examination and a more rigid inspection at the port of embarkation, and,

"Be it further resolved, that we urge upon Senators and Congressmen the importance of a revision of our system of naturalization certificates, confine the jurisdiction of naturalizing aliens to United States Courts, and permit no alien to be naturalized or entitled to the privileges of an elector until he shall have resided within the United States two years at least, and is able to read intelligently and write."

It is often that the man who fails to succeed in life attributes the other man's success to "luck." He sits around and thinks of what great things he could accomplish if that mysterious thing called "luck" were only on his side. In the meantime, the other fellow is going ahead and succeeding by hard work and ability, furnishing evidence of the fact that pluck and not luck is what counts. It is very easy to attribute our shortcomings to lack of "luck" and to feel that life is a great game of chance but in doing this we make a great mistake. In the majority of cases the man who has the most "luck" is the one who also has the most ability and is the hardest worker. However, there are exceptions to all rules. Of course, there is no doubt but that fortune at times seems to favor one man more than another but to say that one man's career is made by "luck" and that of another man seriously affected by lack of "luck" is to deny the efficiency of the very elements that make success. "Luck" is a little word but it is used to cover a multitude of deficiencies sometimes.—Winston Sentinel.

Newspaper Decision.

The Supreme Court of Tennessee handed down an important decision regarding the rights of newspapers to publish any fair and truthful reports of the proceedings of courts of justice. This matter was considered by the court in connection with damage suit filed against the Nashville American, in which case a verdict was rendered against the American for $5,000. The Supreme Court reversed this judgment of the lower court and the case was remanded. The Supreme Court ruled that unless a court has prohibited a publication or unless the proceedings are unfit for publication, the proceedings may be published, the owners of the newspapers occupying the same status as other persons. Publication of suits must be fair. They must not be mingled with comment, the place for comment being the editorial column. Reports of lawsuits need not be verbatim, but no undue prominence must be given to prominent damaging facts to the exclusion of facts which explain or modify the former. Extraneous matters must not be introduced. In briefs, news reports of the proceedings of courts of justice must be fair and accurate.

Representative Maynard, of Virginia, introduced in Congress a bill authorizing the government to participate in the Jamestown Exposition, providing an appropriation of $1,340,000 for buildings, etc., also providing for the coinage of a million two-dollar silver pieces as souvenirs, the exposition company paying the cost of the bullion and receiving the face value of the pieces. The profit would be $800,000 and it is believed the coins would be very salable.

SCENES IN NAPLES.

Some of the incidents of the Street Life of the Neapolitans.

The commonest people of Naples seldom buy anything from the stores or shops, but patronize peddlers and street hawkers almost exclusively. At the portable kitchen booths a bill of fare is offered to the hungry wayfarer that is laughingly reasonable in price and varied in kind. Besides the ever present macaroni, the principal articles of food are the fruttu di mare, "sea fruits," including mussels, polypi and sea spiders, all regarded as most tempting delicacies by the ever hungry lazzaroni.

Then there are roasted fishes of all kinds, maize dumplings, so called spighe, and finally the national meat food, called braccinole, which is really a dumpling or cake made of lamb meat and lard. Small soup is another delicacy, as well as cheese with bacon (la pizza). Like all southerners, the Neapolitans show a marked fondness for sweets of all kinds, and they would be quite lost without their portion of struffoli, a rather tough cake made principally of honey. Then nothing appeals to the lazzaroni appetite so insidiously as the famous Easter cake of Casatello, which is sprinkled most temptingly with fluid pork fat and in which whole eggs are baked, shell and all, a questionable dainty to uneducated palates.

The lazzaroni women are seldom beautiful and generally not even pretty. They are usually poorly built, with swarthy complexions and irregular features. Now and then one finds a lustrous pair of eyes of great beauty, but rarely. The Neapolitan women are not to be compared with the women of the country as seen in Rome and in the Campagna, whose trim figures, graceful movements and frequently charmingly fascinating faces so often greet the eye of the traveler. Their fullness of form, proud bearing and fine profiles are all conspicuously absent in the wives of the lazzaroni. And how could it well be otherwise? Are they not "beasts of burden" for "beasts of burden"? Are the facchini, by reason of their occupation, much more than this?—Home and Country.

What He Was Worth.

This story is told about Robert Burns: Burns was standing on a long pier on the water front of Edinburgh. A well known and wealthy merchant, walking by, stumbled and fell into the water. He could not swim and so sank. When he arose for the third time nobody dared to save him, but an old weather beaten sailor, at the risk of his own life, ran up the pier and, jumping in, rescued the man.

The gentleman had been worked over quite a while before he became conscious, and when he realized the situation he rewarded his rescuer with what in our money would amount to 25 cents. At this the crowd which had gathered, knowing his wealth, hooted and jeered. But Burns, who was standing by, quieted them and said:

"Surely the gentleman knows what his life is worth!"

Testing a Horse's Wind.

While talking about horses the other day an old farmer said: "Well, I'm a pretty good judge of horses and can always tell whether a horse is short winded or not. Before I buy a horse," he continued, "I just borrow it for about an hour or so, and then I get out on some lonely road and see what kind of stuff he is made of. I first let him choose his own gait for a couple of mile posts and finally give him plenty of rein, making him go for all he is worth. All the time I just keep my eye on his haunches, and if I see any rotary motion there it's a sign he's thick winded, and of course every one knows that kind ain't much good."

Better Taste.

The oriental monarch amused himself by giving a hungry guest a phantom banquet. Squire Hamilton, says the Boston Herald, one of the best known members of the Maine legal profession many years ago, once sat at a meagerly laden board, and in this case the starving guest was the humorist. The dining room had been newly and splendidly furnished, whereas the dinner was very slender. While some of the guests were flattering the host on his taste in decoration Squire Hamilton said:

"For my part I would rather see less gilding and more carving."

The Art of Answering.

"The Mohammedans," said a Japanese Buddhist priest, "answer inquirers' questions with smooth lies. These lies are only on the surface plausible. The slightest reflection shows their tremendous falsity. The Mohammedans answer questions as I once heard a middle aged man answer a boy. The two stood before a steamship office, regarding the globe that revolved in the window.

"Do you mean to tell me," said the boy, "that the world is as round as that?"

"I do," the man answered.

"Then," said the boy, "I can't understand why the people on the other side don't fall off."

"The man sneered.

"You fatigue me," he said wearily.

"Well, why is it?" the boy persisted.

"Heaven," the man answered, "has given those people common sense, and they hold on."

Why the Actor Smiled.

Joseph Jefferson used to enjoy telling in his quaint way of the sad case of a player in the old days. A company had been sent out from New Orleans to visit the towns along the Mississippi river up to St. Louis. Business had been anything but good, and the meager receipts at the box office had resulted in a heavy reduction of salaries before the company had been out for many weeks. One night after the performance the stage manager, who was also the leading man, took exception to the manner in which one of the players had interpreted a certain "death scene." "Why," exclaimed the stage manager indignantly, "you actually smiled in that scene!" "Yes," replied the player who had been rebuked, "in view of the salary that you now pay me, death seems a pleasant relief."—Success Magazine.

HONEY LOVING BIRDS.
 They Often Have Battles With Bees
 For the Sweet Booty.

The love for sweet things is a craving of nature in all living creatures, and birds will sometimes run great risks to satisfy it. Bears in their eagerness to get at the honey in a hollow tree will sometimes wedge themselves into so small a hole as to endanger their lives, and many forest birds, such as woodpeckers, blue jays and thrushes, will run the danger of being stung to death in their endeavors to obtain the sweet honey that the bees store in the hollow trunks of trees. Sometimes they will attack bees on the wing and snap them up for the tiny speck of nectar contained in their sacks. Blue jays often take a position near beehives and fish all day for honey. Every returning bee is caught, but not devoured, for birds will kill the bee only that they may sip up the honey. Unless driven away a few such bird robbers would soon depopulate a hive.

Occasionally the bees organize and fight the birds. They issue in a body from the hive and make a bold attack upon the assassins. In the quick, sharp conflict that follows
 the birds invariably get defeated.
 Indeed they do not attempt to resist the onslaught, but seek safety in flight. If the bees surround one of the birds quickly enough, there is little hope for the robber. They settle down upon him and sting him to death. He may fly away, but the bees cling to his back and sides tenaciously. His flight soon becomes less energetic and more and more uncertain until at last he drops to the earth and gasps out his life among the leaves and bushes, while the bees return triumphantly to their home.

In the wild forests the honey loving birds sometimes make an organized attempt to drive the bees away from their home in the hollow trunk of a tree. They first discover the place of the hidden treasure by following the bees on a warm, sunny day, and if there be an opening in the tree large enough to admit them they plunge down the hole in a body.

Then there follows a sharp conflict inside the tree, the birds snapping at the bees and cutting them in two at each snap. The only chance for the bees is to light on the backs and sides of the birds.
 If they fail to do this, they are soon routed, and the rich treasures of sweets are captured by the enemies.
 These battles terminate in various ways, sometimes the bees and sometimes the birds coming out victorious.—Our Animal Friends.

Prof. Matlock, of Hookerton, came over Saturday.

Miss Nina Frizzelle, who has been visiting at the home of J. T. Frizzell, returned to her home in Washington today.

Dr. T. M. Jordan, of Raleigh, spent a few hours here last week. He once lived in Hookerton and practiced in this community and his many friends and old patrons were glad to see him again.

Misses Eva Waters, of LaGrange, Palmetta Taylor, of Hookerton, and Nannie Taylor, of Grifton, paid Ormondsville a visit last Saturday evening.

Elder R. I. Corbett filled his regular appointment at Bethany last Sunday.

J. T. Frizzell went to Ayden today.

State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, of Raleigh, gave an interesting educational lecture here last Saturday evening in the interest of a graded school. An election has been called for in February on the question. Mr. Joyner is a very earnest, reasonable and forceful speaker and did much to instruct our people on the educational movement of the State. He pleaded very earnestly for the people to come together and make our schools in the country equal to those in the towns so that parents will stop going to town to educate their children. We feel his advice has and will prove helpful to those who heard it.
