ONLY A BABY.

Only a baby, sweet and fair,
With a mass of softest golden hair,
A laughing mouth, a dimpled chin,
A heart that is pure as snow within,
Sent from the realms of heaven above,
To bask in the joy of a mother's love.

Only a baby, who claims your care,
Your daily toil, and evening prayer,
A little soul to train aright—
A heart to learn the meaning of right,
Two little feet to romp and play,
For thee to guide in the narrow way.

Ohly a baby, but oh! so dear,
That the heart is chilled with the awful fear
That the little one may go before,
And tread the paths where it trod of yore,
Before it left its rest above
To bask in the joy of a mother's love.

Only a baby, a little child,
By turns wiful, weak and wild,
But dearly beloved, despite its pranks,
And the care bestowed without word of thanks,
For the baby dwells in the mother's heart,
And not even death the bond can part.
—Woman's Life.

AN OVERWHELMING CONTEMPLATION.

We read and speak of millions of dollars and millionaires as if such were a matter of course and that it need not be considered anything out of the ordinary. And not only do we think and speak of millionaires in a commonplace way, but here and there we have heard of men who commenced life penniless and became millionaires. We read a while ago of millions of money and turned to contemplate a penniless lad and wondered how it could ever be possible for him to become a millionaire. And the more we pondered the more overwhelming became the contemplation that a lad penniless at the age of twelve years should ever be able to amass a million dollars. And as we pondered and wondered at the possibility we could not contradict it, for a few have amassed millions who were practically, if not wholly, penniless at first. So we can not say it is impossible; but some have doubted the justice of it. And in contemplating such a wonderful financial feat some raise the question whether or not one can come into this world with no possession, start the race of life without a penny and wind up a millionaire and be strictly honest at every turn and trick of fortune. It is wrong to think and say hard things about rich folks just because they are rich; but comparing the situation with penury one does not have to possess millions before he is rich. To be sure, God has endowed some persons with the gift of making and saving money, and it is not wrong for them to make and save money in accordance with the gifts and endowments which God has placed upon them; but when we think how much money a million or a hundred million is, the question will spring up now and then whether every cent of the vast sum has been made in a clear-cut unquestionable course of dealing. To make bold, we ask the question, Can a penniless man make a million dollars and be perfectly fair and square from his first penny to the last dollar that caps his million?—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

FLAMES SPENT FURY.

About One Fourth of Residence Section of City Saved.

New York, April 21—Information from San Francisco this morning states that the spread of the fire has been practically checked and the flames are now confined to the already destroyed districts. About one fourth of the residence section of the city has been saved.

The utter devastation of the beautiful city, the magnificent buildings now being only heaps of smouldering ruins, with debris and dead bodies piled everywhere, presents a view that is heart rending. It will be many days yet before anything like a correct estimate of the loss of life and property can be given.

There is much suffering, but measures for relief are being prosecuted as rapidly as possible.

An Underground Lake Creates Excitement

Richmond, Va., April 19.—A Winchester, Va. special says: Great excitement prevailed today at Charlestown, Jefferson county, West Virginia, 22 miles north of here, over the discovery of a subterranean lake and cavern which are being explored this afternoon by an expert with electric lights. Men blasting rock yesterday discovered the lake and cavern when the discharge fell through. They descended and with a small boat rowed around several hundred yards. The lake is full of the purest water. Residents of Charlestown are alarmed, fearing the ground will fall in, burying them and their property, as the subterranean wonder is directly under the town.

The Bath House Matter.

The suggestion in The Reflector a few days ago relative to erecting bath houses and pavilion on the river front as a means of adding to the comfort and pleasure of the people during the summer, has been spoken of with approval by several of our readers. It is a good idea, but must be started to materialize. Mr. O. L. Joyner has some property on the river near the foot of Greene street that could be readily obtain for this purpose. If somebody will move in the matter the bath house can be provided.

Early Closing.

The talk of closing the stores early each evening, except Saturday, during the summer has started among the merchants, and we learn that an agreement for all who will close to sign will be taken around Monday. The custom has prevailed here the last few years and we suppose will be acceded to this summer. Giving the clerks the evenings off will make them better prepared for work next day.

Great Dreaming.

A young lady of Philadelphia, after partaking heartily of scrapple, retired and dreamed that she had lost her watch, a valued present from her father. When she awoke in the morning she recalled her vivid dream, and, looking at the place where she could have sworn that she had placed it, lo, it was gone! She told her father and brother, and they, making no doubt that it had been stolen, reported the matter to the police, and the pawnshops were hunted in vain. On the next night the young woman dreamed again. This time she dreamed that before retiring she had hidden the watch in an old shoe in the bottom of a closet. Upon arising next morning she recalled the dream and out of curiosity explored the old shoes in the closet and found the watch.

And Not Saying a Word.

After a fight on James island, South Carolina, in 1862, there was among the wounded a young fellow suffering intensely and making an unusual amount of noise. General Williams, in command, when passing through the hospital quarters approached the soldier and in a gruff voice asked, "What's the matter with you?" The soldier, pointing to his foot, replied, "I'm wounded." The general said: "Stop your noise! Stop your noise! There are men lying around with their heads knocked off and not saying a word."

His Soft Spot.

A well known Brooklyn minister has a strong objection to the habit some young men have of parting their hair in the middle. The other day when one of his sons came to the breakfast table he noted that offense was given in this respect and inquired rather sarcastically if parting the hair in the middle was not done to conceal the "soft spots" at the sides.

"Maybe so, father," was the retort. "But then I guess your soft spot is right on top of your head."—New York Post.

She Made a Good Guess.

It was at an afternoon tea, and the girl with a bad memory turned cold as two vaguely familiar women greeted her cordially while she stood chatting with a friend. An introduction was obviously expected, not to say imperative.

"So stupid of me to forget your name," she murmured, smiling sweetly, "but I am sure it begins with an M, now doesn't it?" "Almost," returned the other. "It's Emerson."—New York Press.

How, Indeed?

A speaker at a meeting, referring to the marriage laws, remarked that it was not generally known that a man could not marry his widow's cousin. "Widow's sister, you mean," corrected one of the audience. "No," replied the speaker; "I mean widow's cousin." "I tell you," said the interrupter, "that a man may marry his widow's cousin, but not his widow's sister. I suggest that you should examine the tables of affinity." "But," persisted the speaker, "how can a man marry any one when his wife's a widow?"

Lord! how this world is given to lying. A sentence from the Indiana Republican platform reads: "We indorse the action of President Roosevelt in rigidly enforcing the anti-trust laws placed upon the statute books of United States by the Republican party." The Boston Herald wants to know "whether it is the rigid enforcement of the anti-trust law against the beef-packers, the Standard Oil magnates, the United States Steel Corporation, the coal-carrying railroads, the Santa Fe rebaters, or the wood-pulp and paper trust that the platform-makers had in view." The public is tolerant of the Republican party when it takes to itself the credit for good crops and good weather. But it oversteps the limit when its claims to have enforced, rigidly or otherwise any anti-trust law. —Charlotte Observer.

SENDING MESSAGES IN PARIS

The telephone system of Paris leaves considerable to be desired and meets with constant complaint on the part of the subscribers. One of the latter endeavored to test the speed of the various means of communication of the city, sending messages in different ways from his rooms in the Rue Richelieu, in the center of the city, to a friend on the Avenue de la Grande Armee, near the Bois de Boulogne. He found that a bicycle messenger had made the trip in eleven minutes and fifteen seconds as compared with twenty-three minutes for a cab. A message sent via the Metropolitan railway required thirty-one minutes, by omnibus thirty-four minutes, a telegram thirty-five minutes, a message by the pneumatic tube three hours, while the message sent by telephone did not arrive at all.—Harper's Weekly.

Played Chess and Music Together.

There is perhaps no sounder musician living than Sir Walter Parratt, the master of the king's music, and it would require something of a musical genius to accomplish the feat Sir Walter performed when staying with some musical friends at Tenbury some years ago. To while away the evening chess was suggested, and Sir Walter proposed that he should sit at the piano and play from memory, while he opposed two friends on the chessboard at the same time. The challenge was accepted, and with his back to the board Sir Walter sat at the piano and played Chopin and Mendelssohn, calling out his moves whenever necessary. He won the game in three-quarters of an hour.—London Queen.

SATURDAY APRIL 21st, 1906.

Ex Governor Aycock was not easily put out of the way of the other senatorial candidates.

The man behind the plow is turning over the face of the earth in these days of pretty weather.

The losses in San Francisco have hit fire insurance companies a blow and may put some of them out of business.

Vesuvius is almost forgotten for the time being, especially on this continent, the eruption failing in comparison with the San Francisco disaster.

That was a magnanimous act on the part of the government in promptly appropriating $1,000,000 for the relief of the San Francisco sufferers. Several large donations have been made by wealthy men throughout the country.

The city of Baltimore that suffered so terribly by fire a few years ago, was the first to offer aid to San Francisco in the present awful disaster to that city. Having suffered herself Baltimore knew the value of timely assistance, and it was creditable in that city to be the first to offer it.

Greenville is neither too small nor too far away to render some aid to the San Francisco sufferers. Every little helps, and the best help in such disasters is that which comes quickest. Every town and community in the entire country should do its part in helping San Francisco.

We approach the subject almost with fear, for the scripture saith "Judge not that ye be not judged." But who can say that this great calamity upon San Francisco is not a rebuke to the exceeding wickedness that prevailed in that city? Its record for evil was hardly second to any place on the continent. The same God reigns and rules today as in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah, and with the peoniness of the nation at the present day to violate His laws such visitations might well be regarded as a warning.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., April 20.—No one wants to accuse Congress of undue hard heartedness, but if there is anything that would tend to reconcile the "conservative" leaders of both houses to the awful disaster that has happened in San Francisco it would be the fact that it had come to an opportune moment to distract some measure of public attention from the radical and, as the same leaders would have the public believe, the dangerous utterances of the President. The "safe and sane" leaders of the majority have been trying for almost a week to explain that the President meant something other than what he said in his income tax speech. This is not likely as the President is given to thinking what he says, and saying what he thinks with a distressing regard for consequences.

But as if he had not caused the conservatives trouble enough for a time, the President breaks out in a fresh place with a special message to Congress on the subject of the beef combine and the judicial idea of the "immunity bath." He says that the pronouncement of Judge Humphrey may be good enough law, but that if it is then the law ought to be changed. He points out that such a ruling as was rendered in the packers cases "comes measurably near rendering the law a farce and "I therefore" say the President, "recommend that Congress pass a declaratory act stating the real intention."

Another move on the part of the administration that is not at all to the liking of many of the large vested interests in the announcement through the Department of Justice this week of the appointment of Chas. E. Hughes, of New York, and Alexander Simpson, Jr., of Philadelphia, as special counsel for the government in the prospective proceedings against the coal roads and the oil carrying roads of the country. Mr. Hughes, it will be remembered, was the inquisitor of the committee which investigated the life insurance companies of New York and there made a reputation as the champion investigator of the country.

Washington is full of conventions at present, and the D. A. R. vies with Congress in noise, pseudo-parliamentary procedure and journalistic space. The pictures of the daughters—most of them journals, and the smirk of satisfaction on the faces of those that are beautiful and less beautiful would indicate that they think that the end for which woman was created has at least been achieved.

Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Company.

The board of directors of the Farmers' Consolidated Tobacco Company met in the star warehouse here today to complete the business left over from the annual meeting of the stockholders on the 18th. Every member of the board was present.

The principal business of the directors was the election of officers which was as follows:

O. L. Joyner, president.
W. H. Dail, Jr., secretary and auditor.
R. J. Cobb, treasurer.

We understand the directors adopted some very important new measures to govern the business of the coming fiscal year. The affairs of the company are in excellent condition. The election of officers was simply a re-election of the old officers, which speaks highly in praise of their efficient management of the company.

Taken Out Alive After Three Days.

San Francisco, April 20—Eleven postal clerks, all alive, were taken from the debris of the post-office today. All at first were thought to be dead, but it was found that although they were buried in the stone, every one was alive. They had been for three days without food or water. All the mail in the postoffice was saved.

No "Breaking In"

ONE characteristic of the "Queen Quality" Custom Grade Oxfords is their flexible fit. Too many shoes are like the wooden lasts over which they are made—stiff and unyielding. They have to be "broken in." When a shoe is broken to conform to the foot, the original lines must be changed. The shoe thus becomes loose and shapeless. "Queen Quality" Shoes "keep their shape" because they fit perfectly with a flexible fit. The shoe yields to the foot as does a glove to the hand. We have over fifty styles of these superb shoes to show you.

He Has the Grip.

When a fellow tries hard to tell you That hard times are on the way, When just knocks make up his answer To whatever you may say, And when each complaint is followed By a cross word from his lip, Simply smile and let him grumble, For the fellow has the grip.

That's the way you'll always find him When his back begins to ache, When his ears begin to tingle And his knees begin to shake. Then it is he'll swear the devil Has this old world by the hip; Simply smile and let him grumble, For the fellow has the grip. —Denver Post.

Passing of "Yours Truly."

In commercial correspondence the tendency nowadays is to eliminate the conventional declaration of "Yours truly" and like expression preceding the writer's signature. The inclination toward doing away with "Mr." in addressing envelopes in mercantile communications is also gaining adherents. In many instances the "Yours truly" habit has necessarily been only empty form, as is the case in letters passing between strangers. Advocates of this reform cite the fact that in the sending of telegrams both the points quoted are conspicuously absent, and nobody attributes lack of courtesy or violation of propriety in the premises.—New York Press.

The Last Cargo of Slaves.

The last vessel to bring a cargo of African slaves to this country, according to Colonel William Youngblood of Alabama, reached the coast of Georgia in 1860. It brought between 500 and 600 negroes and proceeded up the Savannah river to Augusta, where the auction was held. The slaves sold at prices varying from $300 to $800 each. Colonel Youngblood, who was a schoolboy, remembers seeing some of the new negroes in the possession of his neighbors.

Unexpected Honesty.

"The other day," said the clubman, "I came across a case of pure honesty and downright conscientiousness. One of the members of our club gave the janitor, a colored youth of about seventeen, a quarter for some personal service and said, 'Take this and go to the theater.' Next morning, to his great surprise, the boy returned the money to him, saying he had not been able to use it. Pressed for an explanation, the boy said he had asked his mother about it, and she advised him not to go to the theater, and as he had not used the money for the purpose it was given he felt that it did not belong to him. I do not know what followed, but I am sure the boy will lose nothing by his conduct."—Washington Star.

Tact.

Tact is born with some men and women, like the supple, delicate fingers of the artist's hand, and those who have it use their gift instinctively. It is not measured alike to those who have it. Men possess it in different degrees, while others again are wanting in it altogether. It is the outcome of intellectual and temperamental qualifications and implies the possession of clear perceptions, quick imagination and delicate sensibilities. It is these that give the tactful person his subtle intuition of another's mental processes and modes of feeling and in the same moment exactly the right method of dealing with these.

What She Remembered.

"Now, Mrs. Jones," said the prosecuting attorney to the witness, "will you tell us what Mrs. Smith said just before the shooting?"

Mrs. Jones—Oh, that was so long ago that I can't remember what she did say. But she wore a plum colored dress, with a bolero coat and applique on the revers. And she wore a turban hat with a pompon on the left side, and as I am under oath I tell you now that it was a fright. Her skirt was made in seven gores, with a long flounce—

But here the prosecuting attorney succeeded in breaking in on the line.—Detroit Free Press.

HAUGHTY CHINA.

Once Called England an "Obscure Corner in the Wilderness."

In the message sent by the empress of China to King George III. there appears this passage:

"The stores of goods at the Celestial court are plenteously abundant. There is nothing but what is possessed, so that there is really no need for the produce of outer barbarians in order to balance supply and demand. However, as the tea, silk and porcelain produced by the Celestial court are indispensable objects to the different states of Europe and to thy kingdom, for this reason we have in our grace and commiseration established the foreign hongts at Macao in order that all daily needs may be duly supplied and every one share in our superfluous riches. But now thine envoys have made considerable demands over and above what is provided by fixed precedent, in such wise as to run seriously counter to the principle of recognizing the bounty of the Celestial court to distant men and its nurturing care of the different barbarians. Moreover, the Celestial court exercises a controlling supervision over all countries and is benevolent to each in an equal degree. For instance, those trading in Canton province do not come from the kingdom of England alone. If they were all to come clamoring in the same way and wantonly to pester us with requests impossible to concede in this style, is it to be supposed that we could always go out of our way to grant them?"

"Remembering, however, that thy kingdom occupies an obscure corner in the distant wilderness and is far removed from us by ocean upon ocean; also that thou art naturally unversed in the political etiquette of the Celestial court, we for this reason commanded our ministers to make all this plain to thine envoys, instruct their minds and dismiss them back to their country. But, fearing that thine envoys on their return home may fail to present matters thoroughly to thee, we again take up their requests, one by one, and prepare these further commands for thy particular instruction, opining thou wilt be able to grasp our meaning."

Willing to Compromise.

An Englishman at a dinner once told a tale of a tiger he had shot which measured twenty-four feet from snout to tail tip. Every one was astonished, but no one ventured to insinuate a doubt of the truth of the story. Presently a Scotchman told his tale. He had once caught a fish which, he said, he was unable to pull in alone, managing only to land it at last with the aid of six friends. "It was a skate, and it covered two acres." Silence followed this recital, during which the offended Englishman left the table. The host followed. After returning he said to the Scotchman: "Sir, you have insulted my friend. You must apologize." "I dinna insoult him," said the Scot. "Yes, you did, with your two acre fish story. You must apologize." "Well," said the offender slowly, with the air of one making a great concession, "tell him if he will take ten feet off that tiger I will see what I can do with the fish."

Why Swimming Beginners Fail.

You try hard to keep your mouth closed, but the water somehow will find a way into your mouth and nostrils. A beginner always draws in his breath just at the moment he strikes out. This insures the getting his mouth and nostrils full of water at once, and a collapse is inevitable. If you will remember to take breath between the strokes all will be well. Quite naturally, when you draw your knees outward for the kick, you will inhale, and just as surely as your feet are thrust from you will you expel the air from your lungs. Knowledge on the management of the breath will come with practice and can only be acquired in that one way.
