COURT SUSTAINS STATE.

Bethel Case Set for Trial Tuesday.

At the resuming of court Thursday afternoon, Mr. Gilliam for the defense read a notice from Dr. Nelson that Harmon Wynn is physically unable to attend court. The messenger bringing the notice, a brother of Wynn, further stated that Harmon Wynn has pneumonia. Mr. Gilliam in renewing his motion for continuance, argued to some length his reasons for asking such continuance.

Mr. Fleming for defense, stated reasons why he could not possibly give any attention to the preparation of the case under consideration, being employed in a murder case, to be called Friday, and other cases.

Solicitor Moore still insisted that the case should be set for trial this term. He found himself embarrassed by the absence of Gov. Jarvis and Col. Skinner, who would appear for the prosecution. However, even in these gentlemen's absence, he would prefer to have the case set for this term. A suggestion by the solicitor that the defense had made up his mind to have this case continued if possible, brought a rejoinder from Mr. Gilliam that such is not the case, but he thought justice demands it. Mr. Gilliam said it was evident to him that even the solicitor did not wish to try this case this term, owing to the absence of the distinguished counsel mentioned. This the solicitor denied, and made it very plain as to his wishes.

The court following up the suggestion of the morning discussed the statute relative to the taking of deposition of witnesses who could not attend and stated that the court cannot agree to hold a special term, the time between now and the summer recess being entirely taken.

Mr. Gilliam stated that if the case is continued and set for some other term, he will agree to try the case then without objection, to absent witnesses, provided the State will agree to allow depositions to be taken ten days prior to such trial time, if it is proved that witnesses could not attend.

Judge Long intimated that if the State insisted he would set the case for trial next week. After consultation by the State's lawyers, the solicitor announced that the State would be ready for trial whenever the court would set it. The court set Tuesday next at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Gilliam stated that as the court had announced the day for trial, he did not want anything to come up that would prevent the trial from being had, but could not tell just what may arise to necessitate a postponement.

The following subscriptions for the San Francisco sufferers have been handed in at The Reflector office:

W. S. Atkins	$2 00
H. E. Moore	1.00
G. G. Fineman	1.00

Others wishing to help the sufferers can hand in their amounts.

A Wink to The Merchant.

A farmer is credited in an exchange with the following:

"I've been soaked a good many times since I started in business for myself and I note that it has always been in the article that wasn't advertised. I started into the getting soaked business by buying a lightning rod per foot and settling for it per inch.

"That soaking was followed up by the purchase of a patent gate that wasn't advertised. It was sold to me on such close margin, the agent said, that the firm couldn't afford to advertise it.

"I've bought everything from hedge fences to encyclopedias that wasn't advertised, and if there is a piece of unadvertised furniture in this place that is any account I've not fallen over it. I have gotten so that when an agent calls on me with something I don't understand I ask him where it is advertised. If he can't show me anything but a pocketful of handbills I call the dogs."

Homes Still Standing.

The Oakland, Cal., Tribune says:

An engineer states that the area devastated by fire in San Francisco approximates 10,000 acres, or about 15 square miles. There are few cities in the world where so much valuable property is contained in an equal territory. Within this 15 square miles, were nearly 1,500 banks, some of the finest buildings in the world, thousands of mercantile and manufacturing establishments and more than 230,000 inhabitants, besides 40,000 transients.

Notwithstanding the enormous and widespread destruction the homes of 150,000 people are still standing and practically uninjured. There still remain the great ship yards at the Potrero, the Pacific Mail docks, the stock yards at South San Francisco, the docks, and manufactories along the waterfront from Mission creek to Hunter's point, the mint, the postoffice, and a large retail district on Fillmore and DeVisadero streets.

Governor Urges Forest Reserve.

Washington, D. C., April 26.—Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, was the star speaker today at the hearing held by the house committee on agriculture to hear argument on the bill appropriating $3,000,000 for the creation of forest reserves in the Southern Appalachian region and in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

The North Carolina governor addressed himself to that portion of the measure affecting the Appalachians and he told the committee that the creation of the proposed reserve would exercise a beneficent influence upon the whole country through the Appalachians run. He declared that a valuable timber reserve was being denuded, and if the Federal government did not step in and interfere that forests would be destroyed that were worth millions of dollars in themselves and that were a protection to many rivers in the Southern States.

Prof. Carlisle at Ayden.

A great treat awaits our people in the near future. Prof. J. B. Carlisle, of Wake Forest College, is to deliver the literary address at the closing exercises of the graded school at this place on May the 11th. The professor has won a great name in the literary world as a writer and speaker.—Ayden Baptist.

Texas Town Destroyed.

Bellevue, Texas, April 26.—A tornado which swept through this place tonight destroyed everything in its path and as a result practically the entire town is a mass of ruins, only three buildings now standing, at least eleven persons are dead and a number are injured. The tornado was followed by fire which consumed the wreckage.

Twenty Cars Are Smashed.

Asheville, N. C., April 26.—The second section of freight No. 71, west bound, and freight No. 60, east bound met in head-on collision at or near Eberman, just east of Old Fort this evening. Reports received here are very meagre, but it is said the wreck was a very bad one and that both trains were badly damaged. Rumor had it that 20 cars were smashed and that the engines were badly wrecked. The accident is believed to have been caused by the failure of an operator to deliver orders to the crew of the westbound train.

R. F. D. IN REAL DANGER.

Postoffice Department Says One-Third of the Routes in North Carolina Show Lack of Patronage.

Despite the numerous utterances that have come from the postoffice department giving assurance that the rural delivery system in North Carolina would not be abridged, fears on the part of members of congress from the State have been aroused as the result of a letter received by Representative Pough from Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Degraw, in which that official states that one-third of the routes show a lack of patronage, and that inspectors will be sent to the State to make a thorough inspection of all of these old established routes. In fact that Mr. Degraw states that inspectors have already gone to work to see what can be done towards improving the service, where the routes do not come up to department standards. The fourth assistant postmaster general suggests four remedies. First of all he suggests the stimulation of the service to secure greater patronage. A readjustment of routes is another suggestion; and finally, he points to a reduction in routes or absolute discontinuance. The fact that a third of the rural routes in the State are in jeopardy has given much concern to the delegation and the fear is entertained that the result will be to put some of these routes on an every other day or three times a week basis.—Washington Correspondent of Raleigh News and Observer.

Rushing the Work.

Mr. R. Greene is in receipt of a letter from the factory with which he placed the order for machinery to install an ice plant here, advising him that the work is being rushed and will be ready for shipment in about three weeks. The ice plant is going to be a great convenience in Greenville.

Next Reunion at Conferacy's Old Capital.

New Orleans, La., April 26.—The formal business of the sixteenth annual reunion of the United Confederate veterans came to a close this afternoon. One day of the reunion proper is left and that will be devoted to the parade of the veterans.

Richmond, Virginia, was selected as the place for holding the next reunion, the choice being made by acclamation. The only competitor of Richmond was Birmingham, Alabama, but the sentiment in favor of Richmond was so strong that the advocates of Birmingham did not allow the matter to come to a vote and withdrew in favor of Richmond before a roll call was ordered. The fact that the monument of Jefferson Davis is to be unveiled in Richmond next year, was a potent influence for many of the old soldiers.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

The family had just moved into the cottage this morning from Bessemer City. The stroke caused no damage to the building.

Gaston, N. C., 26.—During a rain storm this afternoon lightning struck the chimney of the cottage occupied by Daniel Lowe, causing the death of Mrs. Lowe, who was in a closet by the chimney.

Weldon, N. C. April 26.—A project is on foot to build an electric car line from Roanoke to Weldon. Business men say the stock has all been taken and that it is now considered certain that the line will be constructed within a reasonable time.

Durham, N. C. April 26.—Notice was received this afternoon by the authorities of Granville county of the arrest in Washington, D. C. of Eugene Lyon, who was wanted in Granville county on the charge of the attempted assault on the ten-year-old daughter of James Fleming, near Creedmoor about a month ago.

Asheville, N. C., April 26.—Judge Fred Moore, of the Superior court, this evening issued a rule requiring J. B. Morgan, foreman of the grand jury of Buncombe county court now in session here, to appear before him Saturday and show cause why he should not be attached for contempt of court. Mr. Morgan failed to put in an appearance at court this morning because, it is said, he was at the time in an intoxicated or partly intoxicated condition.

J. B. JOHNSTON,

A WILY STENOGRAPHER.

She Landed a Human Shark Who Got Work Done For Nothing.

Having been graduated from a business college, the confiding stenographer advertised for a situation. Her first answer was from a man who had an office in an imposing new skyscraper. He was a young man, gracious in manner, yet apparently not easy to please. His stenographer had been so unsatisfactory in general, he explained, that he had been obliged to make it a rule that before he engaged one he must insist upon a trial of the applicant's speed and accuracy. The young woman prided herself on her proficiency and, supposing such tests to be strictly in the order of business, promptly consented to the arrangements.

The young man brought out a pile of letters and commenced to dictate answers. It was 3 o'clock when her pencil jotted down the first address. When she had laid the heap of neatly written letters on his desk it was 5:30. In that time she had written twenty letters. The young man glanced at her work carelessly.

"I haven't time to examine this tonight," he said, "but I will do so the first thing in the morning. Call at 10 o'clock."

At 10 o'clock next morning she called again. The young man met her with a deprecating smile.

"I am sorry," he said, "but your work has a haphazard look that is not exactly businesslike. I am very particular about my letters. Anyway, I am afraid you are not rapid enough. I believe I shall have to look further. Good morning."

That was nearly a year ago. The confiding young woman has since worked in other places and has learned many things, not the least important of which is a brief history of the young man. Recently she had occasion to advertise for a position, and again she received a letter from the young man. He did not recognize her and dictated thirty letters to be written "on trial." She rattled off the correspondence with the quick touch of a master manipulator.

"I am in a hurry tonight," he explained when she had finished. "Call in the morning, please, and I will tell you what I think of your work."

"Pardon me," she said calmly, "but I never do business that way. I have done your work, and now I want my pay for it. My bill is $10."

"Ten dollars!" he stammered.

"Ten dollars for thirty letters?"

"Yes," she said. "Three dollars for these, $2 for another batch I wrote a year ago and $5 as interest and partial compensation for the trouble and worry you have given me. If I put this matter in the hands of a lawyer it would cost you more than $10, besides unpleasant publicity."

The young man thought hard for a few minutes and then paid the bill.—New York Press.

Sale of Land for Taxes.

A dog one day discovered an organ grinder's monkey seated upon a bank within his master's grounds and at once made a rush for it. The monkey, which was attired in jacket and hat, awaited the onset in tranquillity so undisturbed that the dog halted within a few feet of it to reconnoiter. The animals took a long stare at each other, but the dog was evidently recovering from his surprise and was about to make a spring for the intruder when the monkey raised his paw and saluted by lifting his hat. The effect was magical. The dog's head and tail dropped, and he sneaked off to the house, refusing to leave it until his polite but mysterious visitor had departed.

Ignorance.
"Adam," said Eve after the rabbit had been named, "why does he wabble his nose?"
"How do you suppose I know?" answered Adam, with some irritation. "The New York papers have been tryin' for years to find out, and not one of them has evolved a satisfactory theory even yet."
He condescended, however, to explain that the reason why the animal's tail was so short was that all the spare material had been used in making its ears.—Chicago Tribune.

Misology.
The cook was giving the new housemaid her impressions of their employers. "You'll find them just about the meanest people alive," she said, with confidence. "Regular misers; that's what they are. 'You must be economical!' That's always the cry here. Why, do you know, it isn't more than two days since I see the master and missus both playing on the same piano at the same time! What do you think of that, now?"—London Tribune.

FRIDAY APRIL 27, 1905.

When the "kissing bug" gets in Congress the kissables may be expected to flock to the gallery.

The Gastonia Gazette charges the moon with the responsibility for that cold snap last Monday. First thing you know somebody will want to sue the man in the moon.

As the Raleigh aldermen found out that the city charter forbid them from donating $500 to the San Francisco sufferers, of course they will be excused from paying it out of their own pockets. It were better, however, to look into the matters of this kind in advance, and not come before the public with the declaration of such beneficence and then have to take it all back.

A BIRD'S PECULIAR HABIT.

The passengers on the mail train from Morehead City due here in the morning are greatly interested in the peculiar conduct of a pigeon which is owned by a man in Wildwood and engages the train in a race from Wildwood to Havelock every morning, a distance of 15 miles. The bird apparently watches for the approach of the train. It always picks out the passenger train and flies along with it, sometimes ahead of it, but never fails to accompany the train. It flies so near the cars that passengers can almost touch it. When the train stops at Newport the bird perches nearby and waits for it to start when it continues its journey to Havelock, then it returns to its home, evidently with an impression on its little brain that it has discharged some duty.

The pigeon is handsome, being white with a black head. No other bird seems to take this freak nor does this one attach itself to any other train and the wonder grows how the bird appears to prefer this train to any other. It will be sadly missed when for by any reason it discontinues its regular flights.

The above is from the New Bern Journal. We print it not as a matter of news or because of any belief that it is true, but only to show the disposition of some newspapers to fake their readers by making up stories to print. It has been only a few days since we read the very same item in another paper as occurring in some other section of the State, about the only difference in the Journal item being that names were changed to suit the location. Newspapers ought to be above this kind of faking.

ORPHAN CHILDREN'S CONCERT.

The Oxford Orphan Asylum singing class will begin a concert tour of North Carolina Monday, May 7th, and, until near the first of July, will travel mostly in the eastern section of our State.

The second, or western, tour will begin about the last of July and will continue until the middle of September.

The class is composed of ten girls, four boys, the teacher and a gentleman in charge.

Our people have learned to expect an entertainment of unusual attractiveness and excellence given by the bright, well-trained girls and boys of this noble institution. No cause appeals more strongly to us than the cause of the orphan child. A children's concert of real merit is the interest of a most worthy cause naturally and rightly elicits our hearty sympathy and support.

Already the singing class has received from Masonic lodges in North Carolina many most cordial invitations. It is quite probable that it will be practicable to include more than eighty of the towns and cities of our State in the itinerary, which is arranged for the class several weeks before the beginning of the tours.

The active, hearty co-operation of all of our people is earnestly sought and, we believe, will continue to be secured.

We express the sincere hope that the tours of the boys and girls this spring and summer will result in greatest success and blessing.

THE BREAD SPECULATOR.

A story is going the rounds that a corporal of the United States troops, who are now guarding the ruins at San Francisco, compelled a merchant there who was charging seventy-five cents a loaf to reduce the price to ten cents by intimating that he would prod him with his bayonet, if he did not do so.

Not many people, perhaps, will disapprove in their hearts of the soldier's act, committed as it was when men, women and children were suffering for the bread of the speculator and had not money enough to pay the speculative price.

The corporal's act has been spoken of approvingly in the editorial columns of numerous newspapers.

Approbation of the soldier's compulsion of the speculator expressed by the New York Sun may not appear to the editor of that great newspaper to be a trifle inconsistent with his newspaper's usual policy, but to some it must seem to be so.

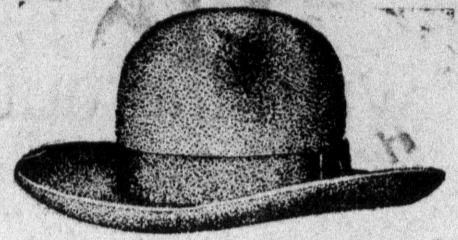

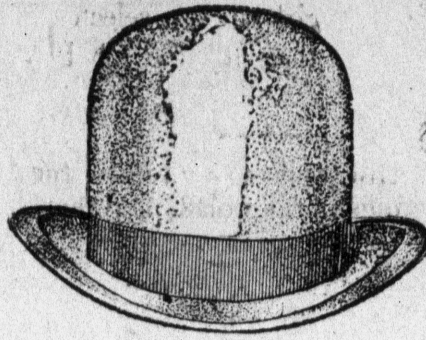

The Sun's expressed views are usually commercially, economically and financially sound.

They are not in this instance. The speculator in bread was merely doing what the Wall street operator does every day and the trusts do day and night; get all they can, no matter how hard it may be for the needy who yields to their exactions.

The bread speculator's exactions, though onerous, were trifling, and therefore, contemptible. —Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch.

The President has been altogether too smart about the San Francisco matter. It was in as bad form to have declined foreign contributions, voluntarily tendered, as it would have been to have solicited them. Besides what business of his was it, anyhow? Now he proposes to divert the domestic contributions from the hands of the local State and military authorities to those of the Red Cross Society. A President who is too smart is more apt to do the wrong thing than one who is not smart enough. —Charlotte Observer.

TO THE TOBACCO FARMERS OF EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA.

At a meeting of the directors of the Farmers' Consolidated Tobacco Company held in the office of the Star warehouse, Saturday, April 21st, 1906, I was instructed by said board of directors to announce to the tobacco farmers through the public press of the county that there was only a limited amount of the Farmers' Consolidated Tobacco Company stock for sale the coming year, and that it was the desire and policy of the company that this stock be sold only to tobacco farmers.

And further, the company desires to have the interest and support of every tobacco farmer in the land, and with this end in view we hope that the tobacco farmers tributary to the place of business of this company will take the remaining stock that is now for sale, even though it be a small amount.

It is needless to add that stock in this company is good property, and under this corporation farmers have the very best opportunity to organize on strict business principles.

Let us all come together and speak louder than we have thus far spoken in annually increasing dividends and thus disprove those who say that you can't do anything with farmers.

No "Breaking In"

ONE characteristic of the "Queen Quality" Custom Grade Oxfords is their flexible fit. Too many shoes are like the wooden lasts over which they are made—stiff and unyielding. They have to be "broken in." When a shoe is broken to conform to the foot, the original lines must be changed. The shoe thus becomes loose and shapeless. "Queen Quality" Shoes "keep their shape" because they fit perfectly with a flexible fit. The shoe yields to the foot as does a glove to the hand. We have over fifty styles of these superb shoes to show you.

C. S. FORBES,
 THE MAN'S OUTFITTER.

Cowed the Natives.

Professor Drummond tells in his "Tropical Africa" that on one occasion four of his carriers ran away. There were three of the same tribe in the company, and, though the professor knew nothing of their dialect, he determined, being in danger of losing his life, to teach them a lesson. Beginning with a few general remarks on the heathen, he briefly sketched the geology of Africa and then broke into an impassioned defense of the British constitution. The three tribesmen trembled like aspen leaves. He concluded his reprimand by solemnly enunciating the forty-seventh proposition of Euclid, and the result of the awful admonition was that the men became the most faithful that he had ever had.

Human Qualities.

One result of the new census will be to determine the number of people speaking the old provincial languages. Flemish is no longer spoken except in a small part of the Pas de Calais. Catalan exists alone in the eastern Pyrenees. Mistral, the poet, has revived Provençal as a literary language, but the peasants scarcely understand it. The two languages which are best preserved are Basque and Breton, spoken respectively by 100,000 and by 1,000,000 mouths.—Petit Parisien.

Human Qualities.

A person's eyes are out of line in two cases out of five, and one eye is stronger than the other in seven persons out of ten. The right is also, as a rule, higher than the left. Only one person in fifteen has perfect eyes, the largest percentage of defects prevailing among fair haired people. The smallest vibration of sound can be distinguished better with one ear than with both. The nails of two fingers never grow with the same rapidity, that of the middle finger growing the fastest, while that of the thumb grows slowest. In fifty per cent out of a hundred the left leg is shorter than the right.

Work Ahead.

With the number of able bodied recruits Judge Long is sending Guard Joe McLawhorn's camp, there will be something doing on the roads.

An Old Fish Story.
Here is an eighteenth century fish story. It is told in a letter written by a traveler in Russia to a woman in England. A vessel laden with the latest fashions from Paris was run down in the channel of St. Petersburg. "The next day," the writer says, "a salmon was caught in the Neva dressed in a white satin petticoat, and in the same net were found two large cod with muslin handkerchiefs around their necks. The sharks and porpoises were observed in gowns of the latest taste, and hardly was there a fish that did not display some of the freshest Parisian fashions that ever visited the north."

Willing to Prove It.
Ethel Gotrox—Oh, Vladimir, they say you are a fortune hunter and are only marrying me for my wealth. Tell me it is not true.

Lord Dedbroke—Why, my dearest, I would marry you if you were penniless.

Ethel Gotrox—Prove this, my own Vladimir, and I shall be absolutely happy.

Lord Dedbroke—Settle the whole of your vast fortune upon me, leave yourself destitute, and I will wed you in the face of the whole world!

When Jowett Smoked.
Dr. Jowett, the great master of Balliol college, Oxford, hated tobacco, but he smoked a cigarette once under the following circumstances: There had been a little quarrel between the master and the other Balliol dons, and Jowett celebrated their reconciliation by dining in hall on the following Sunday. After dinner he noticed a certain awkwardness and guessed its cause. So he said, "I think I should like a cigarette." Every one joyfully lit up at once, and Jowett gently blew down his cigarette until enough was consumed to save appearances.

Funny.
The stranger paused before the hall and smiled. The great shrieks and screams of laughter that came from within were contagious.

The billboard announced an amateur performance. He approached the box office and said:

"They seem to be enjoying themselves in there. I heard their shouts and guffaws three streets away."

"Yes," said the attendant—"yes; that's right."

"What are they playing?" asked the stranger.
"Hamlet."

THE SMILE MUSCLES.

A Keyboard on Which We Play With More or Less Skill.

Smiling has been studied from a physical standpoint by George Dumas, a French physiologist, and his conclusions on why we smile are published in the Literary Digest, translated and condensed from the Revue Scientifique. M. Dumas produced artificial smiles by applying an electric current to the nerves under the lobe of the ear.

"The muscles concerned in smiling were made to contract, and the opposing muscles remained quiescent, but the action of the members of the smiling group was unequal, so that most of the 'electric smiles' that the experimenter obtained seemed to indicate grief rather than joy, particularly since the contraction around the eye exceeded that around the mouth. Nevertheless he considers the result a triumph for his theory and exhibits with pride a photograph of a 'unilateral smile' caused by electric excitation of only one side of the face."

He says a smile may appear without any psychologic excitation and in itself has no expressive value. "And man," he says, "has formed the habit of associating the muscular sensations and the sight of these movements with an agreeable impression, so that he regards them as a sign expressive of this state of pleasure. To manifest it he has formed, by association, the habit of smiling and considering the smile of others as an evidence of their satisfaction. . . . We have learned to smile in different ways to indicate irony, indulgence, etc., and the accentuation of the movements of different muscles has assumed the same value as a shrug of the shoulders, the raising of the head or the pronunciation of certain syllables or words. It is thus that psychologic progress has made of the smile a keyboard on which we play with more or less skill."

"The oriental, especially the Japanese, always smiles out of politeness, even when he is sad, because it is a social fault to sadden a stranger. He has reached the maximum of self mastery and, in a sense, a superior state of psychologic progress and of civilization."

M. Dumas says animals do not smile with their faces because their facial muscles are not, as in man, the most mobile. Those of his tail are a dog's most mobile muscles, therefore "he smiles" by moving his tail, and this movement has a tendency, even in his case, to become a real gesture. Cats also smile with the tail and perhaps also birds. The erectile muscles of the feathers and tail are, with the magpie for instance, real smiling muscles.

Consolation.
An English minister was called to the bedside of a dying parishioner to offer him such final consolation as was possible.
"Opkins," said the dominie, "you're a sick man."
"I am," replied Hopkins.
"You're going to die, 'Opkins," continued the other.
"I am," groaned Hopkins.
"You've been a bad man, 'Opkins."
"I have."
"You can't expect to go to heaven."
"I know it," said Hopkins.
"Then, 'Opkins, you'll have to go to the other place."
"Yes," said Hopkins, sighing deeply.
"Well," concluded the consoling pastor, "you ought to be thankful that you've got somewhere to go."

The Mouse and the Rabbit.
A mouse endeavored to convince a rabbit of the advantage of wearing a long tail.
"You," said he, "are not admitted to the best society, like myself, and I do not doubt this is the sole reason. Certainly a long tail does give one an air."
While the two friends were arguing a kite swooped down upon them, and each betook himself to his hiding place. The rabbit was fairly hidden, but the mouse was easily discovered and drawn from his place of refuge, into which he had not time to draw his boasted badge of society. As the kite bore off his prey the rabbit remarked quietly, "My friend, the mouse, would have been better off had he not been quite so distinguished."

THE POWER OF ATTENTION.

When Exceptional It Results in Great Accomplishments.

The fact that the mind of man is easily distracted from any subject in contemplation accounts for the slowness of the development of most minds and for the extreme slowness of the development of the human mind collectively. There are historical periods when general enlightenment seems to have advanced by leaps and bounds. But when one takes cognizance of the tens of thousands of years that man has been at play in the kindergarten of creation one is aware of the very gradual and deliberate character of human progress as a whole, and this deliberateness of growth and the remains of ignorance and superstition even in minds regarded as educated come largely from the inability of men to keep their thoughts employed steadfastly on the various objects and problems of matter, mind and life. The faculty of attention is strikingly lacking in the savage man. It increases as civilization increases and is a large factor in the advance of civilization and of culture.

When the power of attention is exceptional in the individual he is set apart from his fellows. He is a genius in the business world or perhaps a poet, artist, inventor, discoverer, philosopher, reformer, statesman or conqueror. When the power of attention in a community has been stimulated by one attentive mind or by a group of attentive minds the world passes through periods of great mental activity. Great reforms take place. There is great material or intellectual advance, or there are revivals in letters and in the plastic arts.

The supreme object of the teacher is to cultivate attention in his or her charges. When a child has learned how to pay attention he has learned how to study and to learn. "Object lessons" are favorite devices for fixing attention. According to the orthodox theologians, religion has been taught to mankind largely through object lessons, in the form sometimes of "progressive revelations," and the systems of symbols in all religions may be called simply devices for fixing the wandering attention of souls for their sustenance and lasting benefit.

We see year in and year out the coming and going of beliefs, customs, popular heroes or mere popular pets, best sellers among books, sports, movements and fads of all kinds, which figure prominently only as long as they are able to claim the attention of large groups or of the entire community. The whole system of business advertising and the infinite number of publicity departments—publicity as to all sorts of wares and all manner of causes—are nothing but means of securing attention, of spreading information and inducing action through suggestion.—Century.

A Thrifty Irish Woman.

An Irish castle was once built at a cost of fourpence, or only 8 cents of American money. It took a woman to accomplish this, and she lived more than 200 years ago. She was Anastasia, the wife of John Archdeacon. Her husband having gone to war, she determined to surprise him on his return. She hired a large number of workmen, stipulating that while employed by her they should buy all their clothes and provisions from her. She managed the business so skillfully—and tradition does not accuse her of any unfairness or of taking any mean advantage—that the castle was completed, and her accounts showed that it had cost only the amount named. The castle now stands on the estate of Lord de Vesci, near Cork.

The application of cobwebs to stop bleeding from a wound on his finger, received while feeding a chaff cutter, caused the death from lockjaw of William Philpott, sixty-five years old, of Minster, Sheppey. A verdict of "accidental death" was returned at the inquest.—London Mail.

In the Grocery Business Again.

I have purchased the stock of groceries formerly owned by J. H. Starkey and will carry on the business at the same stand in the Realto building, next door to Greenville Banking & Trust Co. I will carry a complete stock of the best to be had in the grocery line and invite all my old friends to call on me. The accumulated stock on hand, though it is comparatively new, will be sold at reduced prices in order to make room for new goods. It is to your interest to take advantage of these low prices. 2 t d. James Long.

Back in Business.

James Long has purchased the grocery business that was formerly conducted by J. H. Starkey and has taken charge. He will continue the business at the same stand. Mr. Long was formerly engaged in the grocery business here for many years and is familiar with every detail of it.
