BOAT LINE ON RIVER.

Important Meeting to be Held Monday Night.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to look into the proposition of establishing a freight boat on Tar River has taken up the work assigned them in an eminently proper and thorough manner. The committee has visited Washington, N. C. where they had a conference with the North Carolina and Virginia Steamship Company the outcome of which may be the development of a boat line that will prove of inestimable value to our town in that it will give us freight rates as cheap as can be had.

It is reported that the North Carolina and Virginia Steamship Company is a corporation chartered under the laws of North Carolina with an authorized capital stock of $125,000. This company owns a boat of 175 tonnage capacity. The company has made satisfactory arrangements for wharfage in Norfolk, and for connections with railroad and boat lines coming into that city from all points North and West.

There will be a committee from this company to address our chamber of commerce at its meeting next Monday night. This committee comes by invitation and it is to be hoped that every man interested in the welfare of our town will make it a point to be present.

The establishing of water transportation means a saving of thousands of dollars each year to the town and surrounding country. It is a matter of too great importance to be neglected and it is to be hoped that it will be given attention by everybody.

Tax Notice.

Taxes for the year 1907 are long past due. All persons delinquent are notified to come forward and pay promptly, as the law requires me to settle with the State treasurer in January.

The Cowboy's Girl.

This attraction had a large audience in the opera house, Friday night, and the performance was fully up to the company's reputation. The play was full of vim and humor, with "clothes splitting" situations that kept the audience in a roar of laughter. The company is composed of people who know what they are doing on the stage, and they do not fail to please.

MOVE TO ABOLISH TRAINS.

Greenville Should Put in an Objection.

The Raleigh News and Observer says that on Thursday officials of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad appeared before the State corporation commission asking for permission to discontinue one round trip train on five of its branch lines, as follows: Fayetteville to Bennettsville; Weldon to Kinston; Tarboro to Plymouth; Parmele to Washington, and Rocky Mount to Spring Hope.

These branch lines now have double daily passenger service, and if the request of the railroad is complied with it will take off half the trains and leave the towns effected with only one round trip passenger train a day on the A. C. L. It will mean for Greenville taking off the train from Weldon that passes here at 11.25 a. m. and from Kinston at 4.25 p. m. This train is of much benefit to Greenville, and its discontinuance will prove great inconvenience to business and the traveling public. It brings important mail here by noon that otherwise could not get here until night, and this difference of six hours means much.

It took two or three years' effort to induce the railroad to put on this train, and The Reflector never worked harder for any one thing than it did to secure it. Greenville and the other towns effected should put in a strong objection to the corporation commission to the discontinuance of this train. The chamber of commerce should take some action in the matter at once.

Dr. Harper Dead.

Dr. J. J. Harper, president of Atlantic Christian College, at Wilson, died in that town Friday. He was an able minister of the Christian church, and as president of the denominational school was conducting it with marked success.

Death.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Mobley, on Wednesday, Jan. 15th, 1908, at 8, 15 a. m. the angel of death appeared and took from them their infant child, Bertie May, aged 11 months and 13 days. The little one had been a sufferer for seven long months. All was done for it that loving parents and kind friends could do. But God doeth all things well. The remains were taken to Haddock's X Roads Thursday for interment in the family burial ground.

No Conflict.

Because two meetings are called for Monday night and both very important, there will be no conflict between them. The temperance mass meeting will be held in the opera house at 7 30 o'clock, and immediately following this the chamber of commerce will meet. Our people can attend both meetings without inconvenience, and the attendance at both should be large. Everybody go to the temperance mass meeting and then remain to the chamber of commerce meeting.

How to Tell Good Pork.

The greatest care should be exercised in buying pork, whether fresh or salted, says The Delinicator for January. Pork should be white and fine grained in the lean; the fat of a pinkish white and free from kernels or specks, the skin thin and the bones small. When pork is stale it is not fit to eat.

Its quality and digestibility depend so entirely upon the feeding and the keeping of the pig, that it should never be bought unless from sellers who can be relied upon.

It is strange how some people who favored the Watts law which forced prohibition on the country districts of the State, are now opposed to the same thing being done for the towns.

Senator Jeff. Davis, of Arkansas, has been heard from again. He made a speech at a club banquet in New York, Thursday night, that was about as rattling as the one soon after taking his seat in the Senate.

In the opera house Monday night will be held a temperance mass meeting. Every advocate of prohibition should be present and a large delegation should be sent to the convention in Raleigh Tuesday. All over the State sentiment is aroused for prohibition and the forces will move on the special legislature to have a law enacted prohibiting the sale or manufacture of liquor in State. The time is ripe for such a law.

Another crazy fellow has bobbed up. He hails from Ohio and says he is an exact counterpart of Harry Thaw. He has offered for the modest sum of $3,000,000 to take Thaw's place in the trial and set the latter free, he himself agreeing to undergo any punishment that might fall to Thaw, even if it should be execution. The plan proposed for making the exchange is to go disguised into Thaw's cell, ostensibly to visit the prisoner, and when inside swap clothes and disguise so Thaw can come out in his stead. The note in which this offer was made was written to Mrs. Thaw and covered only six hundred pages. The country has all kinds of freaks in it.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.
It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

Teddy Bear's New Year Resolutions.

RESOLVED—
That throughout this year 1908 I will try to be good and do good; that I will try to help myself and help others; that I will stand by the old town and the home people and help to boom the burg.

RESOLVED—
That from January to December, inclusive, I will quit dissipating—quit dissipating my dollars by taking them out of circulation here around home and sending them to the big cities to buy the things that I can buy and ought to buy right here in town.

RESOLVED—That I will stop smoking—stop smoking pipe dream dope suggesting big bargains to be had, unsight unseen, from the gigantic stores in the gigantic cities, and go around among the stores here at home looking for bargains that are there to be seen with the naked eye.

RESOLVED—That I will patronize, by preference, the stores that advertise in the home paper and therefore have enterprise enough to tell the people what they've got in stock.

AFRICAN NEGROES.

These Unschool'd Natives Take Special Care of Their Teeth.

The whiteness and beauty of the teeth of the African negroes have, through a mistaken idea, been generally ascribed to the food which they eat and to favorable climatic conditions. But according to a German medical journal, the Muenchener Medizinische Wochenschrift, these unschooled natives take special care of the teeth and are familiar with many remedies for the treatment of dental diseases.

From the observations of officials in German colonies it appears that the natives exercise more care in preserving the teeth than do most Europeans. They may owe the possession of sound teeth of ivory whiteness partly to the influence of environment and habits, but in addition they employ many herbs, barks and juices as prophylactic and curative agents.

Thus in Negombo it is customary when a child has finished teething to rinse the mouth with an infusion of the leaves of a native tree with the object of tightening the teeth. The action of the infusion is probably due to the presence of a styptic constituent in the leaves which causes the gums to shrink. The natives living near the source of the Nile employ the roots of a leguminous plant, Dalbergia melanoxylon, to relieve toothache, while the natives to the west of the source of the same river use an infusion of the seeds of kasso, a climbing vine, for the same purpose.

It is interesting to notice that the use of the toothbrush is not restricted to the so called civilized peoples. The African negroes fashion toothbrushes out of the wood of a species of adansonia and other trees. In this respect the natives probably have an advantage over those who use an ordinary bristle toothbrush, which is frequently used for six months or even longer, indeed until it becomes too offensive to be tolerated longer. The sticks of wood such as the natives employ are, on the other hand, easy to make and cost nothing, and they are probably used for only a short time. And they possess the additional advantage of offering less opportunity for particles of food and other debris to be retained mechanically than is the case with a bristle brush.

Tales of Celebrities.

In the Duke of Argyll's "Messages From the Past" the author presents this picture of Tennyson declaiming his verses: "He would take us into the very center of a large field at Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, to be sure that he could not be overheard by any one lurking in the hedges, before he would stand and declaim in a deep, running bass voice any piece on which he was at work at the time or one that had been specially asked for. I remember his thus declaiming the whole of his poem of 'Boadicea' with hardly a pause for breath."

In the same volume appears an anecdote of Prince Bismarck at the Berlin conference: "At dinner the prince drank only beer, saying that he used to drink wine, and too much of it, but that now he could not stand anything stronger than beer. In obedience to Princess Bismarck he made a good dinner, but not enough of it in her opinion, and when she wanted him to take more he turned to me and said the whole object in life of a Pomeranian hausfrau was to ruin her husband's stomach."

The Honor Appreciated.

Some years ago when Head Consul Boak of the western jurisdiction, Woodmen of the World, was traveling through the south the train stopped for some time in a small town, and Mr. Boak alighted to make a purchase. The storekeeper could not make the correct change for the bill which was presented, so Mr. Boak started in search of some one who could. Sitting beside the door, whittling a stick, was an old darky.

"Uncle," said Mr. Boak, "can you change a ten dollar bill?"

The old fellow looked up in surprise. Then he touched his cap and replied, "Deed an' Ah can't, boss, but Ah 'preciates de honor, jest de same."—Saturday Evening Post.

She Might.

"There is one thing you don't have to do anyhow," growled Mr. Wipedunks through the lather that covered his face as he proceeded to strop his razor. "You're always complaining about your hardships. You ought to be mighty thankful you haven't got a beard to bother you."

"I don't know about that," replied Mrs. Wipedunks. "If I was a bearded lady, I believe I could make a better living for this family than you're making."—Chicago Tribune.

A QUEER PEOPLE.

Manners and Customs of the Hairy Ainus of Yezo.

Among the least known people of the world today are the hairy Ainus of the island of Yezo. A traveler says of them: "The men grow great beards, of which they are excessively proud, and their bodies are thickly covered with hair, almost like members of the monkey tribe. The women grow no hair on their faces, but seem to find a solace for this imaginary defect in tattooing mus-taches on their lips and often primitive designs on their hands and arms and also across their foreheads. Young unmarried women have very little tattooing on them, but once a woman is married her husband seems to take a pride in decorating his bride with representations of hirsute adornment. The modus operandi is one which requires considerable fortitude on the part of the patient, since the crudest form of tattooing is adopted. This consists of making a number of incisions in the skin with the point of a knife. A characteristic of the Ainu race is the color of their skin, which is of a deep bronze or copper color, and in nowise resembles any other of the oriental races, but is more like that of the American Indians.

"The Ainus have no records, written or otherwise, of their former history nor of how and whence they came to inhabit the island of Yezo. Legends, however, exist among certain of the Ainus to the effect that many years ago Yezo was inhabited by a race of diminutive people who were conquered and apparently exterminated by the Ainus. These people were called by the Ainus Koro-pok-kuru, or pit dwellers, owing to their habit of living in huts constructed over a form of rectangular, circular or oval shaped pit, many traces of which are still found in Yezo and the Kurile islands. A few years ago the present writer also discovered on the Bering sea-coast of Alaska some perfect remains of a pit dwellers' village, which is quite unlike any settlements made today by the Eskimo or Aleut natives of Alaska.

"The Ainus claim that at some remote period they were themselves the inhabitants of some far northern country, and as evidence of this they cite their hairy bodies. They say, 'Why, if we did not come from a cold country, should we need to have skins like a bear?' It is possible that they did migrate southward from the shores of the Bering sea either by the way of the Aleutian islands or along the coasts of Kamchatka and the Kuriles.

"Like certain other northern races, the Ainus have no religion. They have no knowledge of a supreme being and no belief in a future state. Mr. Landor, who questioned many natives on various subjects, was once scornfully told by one of them that 'the Ainus are taught nothing and they know nothing.' This exactly describes the state in which they live."—Chicago News.

The Old Masters.

Prices which run to five figures are frequently given for paintings by what are called "the old masters." But what of the original cost? A collector who has been making inquiries quotes the following startling figures:

Michael Angelo, he found, was paid only about $40 a month while he was at work on his cartoons of the battle of Pisa. Leonardo, who acted as his assistant, received the same wage.

Correggio received less than $10 for his "Christ In the Garden," while Carracci's "Resurrection" brought its painter still less. Albert Durer was seldom paid in cash for his pen and ink portraits. A bag of flour, a pair of boots, or some such equivalent satisfied him.

Rembrandt, "the mightiest genius," received as his highest price under $500 for his "Night Watch." Valesquez worked chiefly for the Spanish government. He was paid on an average $35 a picture.

Street Cars in Mexico.

"Street car conductors in the City of Mexico," said a tourist, "give a receipt to each passenger on taking a fare. The pads are numbered and show as quickly as a cash register how many fares each man must return to the company, provided that the passengers accept the receipts. The Mexicans never forget to demand a voucher, for each is a numbered ticket in a monthly lottery with many rich prizes, and the gambling zeal of the passengers acts as a check on every fare taken in."—New York Sun.

FEIGNING DEATH.

A Trick Resorted to by Animals to Shun Their Enemies.

The feigning of death by certain animals for the purpose of deceiving their enemies and thus securing immunity is one of the greatest of the many evidences of their intelligent ratiocination. This simulation is not confined to any particular family, order or species of animal, but exists in many, from the very lowest to the highest. It is found even in the vegetable kingdom, the well known sensitive plant being an interesting example. The action of this plant is purely reflex, as can be proved by observation and experiment, and is not therefore a process of intelligence.

An experimenter, writing in Wisconsin fur Alle, says that he has seen the feigning of death in some of the lowest animals known to science. Some time ago while examining the inhabitants of a drop of pond water under a high power lens he noticed several rhizopods busily feeding on the minute buds of an alga. These rhizopods suddenly drew in their hairlike filaria and sank to the bottom, to all appearances dead. The cause was found to be the presence of a water louse, an animal which feeds on these animalcules. It likewise sank to the bottom and after looking at the rhizopods swam away, evidently regarding them as dead and unfit for food.

This was not an accidental occurrence, for the observer has seen the same wonderful performance twice since. Through the agency of what sense, he asks, did these little creatures discover the approach of their enemy? Is it possible that they and other microscopic animals have eyes and ears so exceedingly small that lenses of the very highest power cannot make them visible, or are they possessors of senses utterly unknown to and incapable of being appreciated by man? Science can neither affirm nor deny either of these suppositions.

Most animals are slain for food by other animals. Most of the carnivora and insectivora prefer freshly killed food to carrion. They will not touch tainted meat when they can procure fresh; hence when they come upon their prey apparently dead they will leave it alone and go in search of other quarry unless they are very hungry. Tainted substances are dangerous to get into the stomach. Certain ptomaines render it sometimes very poisonous. Long years of experience have taught this fact to animals, and therefore most of them let dead or seemingly dead creatures alone.

Toast to Laughter.

Here's to laughter, the sunshine of the soul, the happiness of the heart, the heaven of youth, the privilege of purity, the echo of innocence, the treasure of the humble, the wealth of the poor, the bead of the cup of pleasure. It dispels dejection, banishes blues and mangles melancholy, for it's the foe of woe, the destroyer of depression, the enemy of grief. It is what kings envy the peasants, plutocrats envy the poor, the gilty envy the innocent. It's the sheen on the silver of smiles, the ripple on the water's delight, the glint of the gold of gladness. Without it humor would be dumb, wit would wither, dimples would disappear and smiles would shrivel, for its glow of a clean conscience, the voice of a pure soul, the birth cry of mirth, the swan song of sadness.—Life.

Clothes and Seasons.

Like the blessed wild goldfinch, who sometimes stays with us all winter, I feel a stirring ere February is out to shed the gray outward disguise my soul has all along been wearing and to come forth in bright aureate splendor of full summer plumage. I wish to wear a green kirtle when the grass burns emerald and even the sunset skies assume chrysopease. In the winter were it not for startling the good folk I would go everywhere in the hibernal attire of the wise little ermine. In autumn—no; there the analogy stops—I would not array me in carmine or imperial orange, though nature is thus minded to do. In the autumn, even in the late summer, a psychic revulsion from this rule of sympathetic or protective coloring is experienced.—Atlantic.

A Timely Warning.

Mr. H. was recently presented with a handsome revolver, whose qualities he was testing by firing blank cartridges into the air, when his daughter, Natalie, aged six, appeared upon the scene. "Oh, papa," she exclaimed in great distress, "don't shoot at the sky! You might kill an angel!"—Circle.
