THE TEACHERS' TRAINING SCHOOL

TRUSTEES HOLD FIRST MEETING AND ORGANIZE.

Pleased With Location—Several Architects Competing for Plans.

State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner and several of the trustees of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School, were here yesterday and today organizing, inspecting the site, conferring with the landscaper, hearing architects and examining their plans, and taking such other steps as were deemed necessary in preparation for beginning work on the grounds and buildings for the school.

Those here beside Supt. Joyner are ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis; Supt. I. T. Turlington, of Smithfield; Supt. C. W. Wilson, of Scotland Neck; Mr. J. Z. Parker, of Trenton, and Mr. Y. T. Ormond, of Kinston. Some of the trustees were detained from being here.

Tuesday afternoon was spent mainly in going over the site for the school and discussing plans with the architects.

Mr. H. Buchingham, of New York, one of the most noted landscapers of the country, was here to discuss this feature, and was engaged by the trustees to design the grounds. This means that the grounds are going to be behind those of no other institution in beauty.

There are several prominent building architects of wide reputation competing for the contract for building plans, etc. These are C. E. Hartge, of Raleigh; J. F. Leitner, Stanley Field, Joe Schad, of Wilmington; H. W. Simpson, of New Bern; B. F. Mitchell, of Norfolk; Hill C. Linthicum, of Durham; Charles Hook, of Charlotte.

Tuesday evening Supt. Joyner and the visiting trustees were entertained at supper by ex-Gov. and Mrs. T. J. Jarvis at their home on Fifth street.

From 9 to 11 the trustees and the visiting architects were extended the courtesies of Carolina Club and spent the time most pleasantly in the club room. The enjoyment of the guests was greatly increased by several vocal solos charmingly rendered by Mrs. Travis E. Hooker.

The trustees met this morning in the office of County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale and organized by electing J. Y. Joyner, president; C. W. Wilson, secretary; R. J. Cobb, treasurer; T. J. Jarvis, J. Y. Joyner and Y. T. Ormond, executive committee.

The bond of the treasurer was placed at $100,000.

The board had not decided upon an architect at the time of adjournment for dinner, but expected to reach a decision this afternoon.

The trustees are delighted with the location selected for the school and think it ideal.

A Changing View.

When Napoleon I. left Elba the Moniteur, the official organ of the restoration, marked his progress across France with the following amusing remarks:

The cannibal has left his den.
The ogre of Corsica has just sailed.

The tiger has arrived at Gap.
The monster slept at Grenoble.
The tyrant has crossed Lyons.
The usurper has been seen at Dijon.

Bonaparte is advancing quickly on Paris, but he will never enter the city.

The emperor has arrived at Fontainebleau.

His imperial majesty made a triumphant entry into the castle of the Tuileries in the midst of his faithful subjects.

HELPING ITS SECTION.

Norfolk & Southern Will Send Out Special Train.

The Norfolk & Southern Railway has arranged for a special train of two cars to be known as the corn special, to go over all the lines of that road, leaving here March 22nd. There will be four specialists on board, including Dr. F. L. Stevens and Prof. R. I. Smith. These will talk on the culture of corn and its proper fertilization, the best methods of feeding the crop, the proper way to harvest it, and will give full instructions as to the selection of the right kind of corn for seed. The car will be on the road for a week and will go to twenty places. At four points President Winston, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College will speak on industrial education. This corn special will be a great educator and it shows marked enterprise on the part of the Norfolk & Southern to supply it. The State is prompt to recognize the value of such an opportunity. —Raleigh or Charlotte Observer.

A Remarkable Performance in Wireless Telegraphy.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The navy department has received a message from its wireless station at Pensacola, which had been in direct communication with the Evans battleship fleet.

The most remarkable performance, considering that the wireless impulses were obliged to traverse the Gulf of Mexico then cross overland to the state of Texas, and part of Mexico, and again traverse several hundred miles of ocean.

This particular message was from Admiral Thomas, who asked for any important news from home.—By Associated Press.

DEATH OF MRS. ROBBINS.

Shelmerdine, N. C. Mar. 10, '08.

Mrs. Catherine Robbins died at her home in Shelmerdine Feb. 26th, 1908 in her seventieth year of age. She is survived by an aged husband and many children. She was a devoted wife and mother for fifty years. Her remains were taken to her old home near Rocky Mount for interment. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved family, and trust that our Heavenly father will comfort and bless each of them as He alone can do.

The quartette in the opera tonight is alone worth the price of admission.

ELDER BARNHILL'S LOSS.

Further Particulars of the Fire at His Home.

Elder T. H. Barnhill, whose home near Bethel was burned Sunday night, was in town today and told us he had $500 insurance on building and $150 on furniture, which did not more than half cover his loss. Two beds, a washstand and a gun were all that was saved from the building.

Mr. Barnhill also told us that his team were all sick from eating the poisoned fodder that had been put in their stall by some one trying to poison them. He says he will give $100 reward for information showing the guilty party.

Regulating Them to Death.

It would seem that a man of average good sense, having money to invest, would about as lief have anything else as a railroad investment. Here we have the general superintendent of the Seaboard Air Line applying to the corporation commission for permission to discontinue what is known as the shoo-fly train between Raleigh and Weldon, on the showing that the company is losing $24.75 a day on it, and the people interested rising up in protest against its discontinuance. Under the law, we believe, the commission can compel the running of the train whether it makes money or loses it. Some months ago the Southern discontinued a convenient train on the Western North Carolina railroad, for the reason that it did not pay to run three double-daily passenger trains on that line and the commission ordered it restored. This has not been done as yet but we suppose it will be. When the law can fix the rates that railroads shall charge, and compel them to continue to run non-paying trains—the presumption is that if they paid the roads would not want to discontinue them—there seems nothing left to do to them except to make schedules for them and to own them. Regulation within reasonable bounds is proper and necessary but regulation may run to seed.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The fire loss of the United States and Canada for the month of February, according to the records of The New York Journal of Commerce, amounted to $18,489,900. The figures for the same month of the three years 1906, 1907 and 1908 run strangely near together, those for the two February's preceding the last having been $18,249,350 and $19,876,600 respectively. The fire loss of the year 1906 amounted to $459,610,000 and of 1907 to $215,671,250—an encouraging decline of 50 per cent. But at best what staggering totals! The loss by fire last year was approximately one-fourth the value of the cotton crop, of the year before, approximately one-half its value.—Charlotte Observer.

Opera Tonight.

The Colonial Opera Co., arrived on the morning Norfolk & Southern train from Wilson and will present "Fra Diavolo" in the opera house tonight. The advance sale of seats has been very large. The company is well recommended by the press wherever it has appeared in the State.

SIX CLUB LEAGUE FORMED.

Greenville Did Not Get In Eastern Carolina League.

Baseball enthusiasts from several eastern towns held a meeting in Wilson Tuesday afternoon to organize a league. While nine towns were represented at the meeting, a league of only six towns was formed, these being Wilmington, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro, Raleigh and Kinston.

The other towns wanting to be in the league but left out were Greenville, Fayetteville and New Bern.

Mr. E. G. Flanagan was at the meeting representing Greenville.

Not Two Hundred, but Seventy Six.

The commissioners of New Hanover county sent a correction to the Raleigh News and Observer of the statement furnished that paper by Mr. W. E. Hocutt, of Wilmington, that there were two hundred prisoners in the county jail there on March 3rd. The correction sent by the order of the commissioners states that the number of prisoners were 76 and not 200. The Reflector copied the article from the News and Observer, therefore we also give the correction made by the commissioners.

SOMETHING AHEAD.

Just look at what is ahead for Greenville and Pitt county, and see if you ought not feel good at the prospects. In a very short while work is going to begin on the buildings for the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School, and that school is going to be a help to all of Eastern North Carolina. Then the steel bridge across Tar river is soon to be built, and the commissioners of Pitt and Lenoir will also jointly build a bridge at Grifton.

Then Greenville is getting ready for steet paving and that work will be started soon. The Cabinet Veneer Co. is pushing right ahead on its plant, and other enterprises are not far behind.

Of course with all this work going on public enterprises, individuals will catch the spirit and go in for building and improving. The Reflector has set the figure at not less than a quarter million dollars to be spent here this year in improvements and new buildings.

With such a prospect everybody should quit growling and get ready to reap the benefit of the good thing things coming.

Even now you cannot get houses in Greenville as fast as people want to occupy them. This raises the inquiry as to what the condition will be a few years hence when the demand for houses will be even greater than now. It is hard to tell, but The Reflector believes that the best and safest thing for every new comer to Greenville to do, is to buy a lot and build a house on it as early as possible after getting here. There is a good building and loan association here to lend a helping hand to this end.

Raleigh has thrown up the sponge and decided she can't build, Greensboro is making promises to build, while Charlotte has already built. The committee should see which one is able to deliver the goods.

The ground hog's next appearance will be next Sunday. If he is to do anything rash with the weather in the meantime he must be in a hurry about it.

Mark this right down: The percentage of Greenville's growth for the next five years is going to be larger than any town in North Carolina.

We actually heard a man talking about street cars in Greenville. Better watch this town! Nothing is impossible if the folks take the notion.

It strikes us that some of the papers are giving more attention to Republican doings than there is any need of.

Governor Hoke Smith, of Georgia, says he wants it again, and he has begun his campaign accordingly.

The most stirring thing of the present day is the plow. That is just turning the earth upside down.

Many people spoil the enjoyment of what they have by worrying over what their neighbors have.

Raleigh has given up the idea of getting a large auditorium and will quit the effort.

THE COW AND THE GATE.

Animal Ability to Associate One Thing With Another.

When I was a bucolic treasury clerk in Washington the cow of an old Irishwoman near by used to peep through the cracks in my garden fence at my growing corn and cabbage till her mouth watered. Then she saw that a place in the fence yielded to me and let me in, so she tried it. She nudged the gate with her nose until she hit the latch, and the gate swung open and let her in. There was an audible crunching of succulent leaves and stalks that soon attracted my attention. I hustled her out and sent a kick after her that fell short and nearly unjointed my leg. But she was soon back, and she came again and again till I discovered her secret and repaired the latch so that nudging or butting the gate would not open it.

How surely such conduct as this of the cow's evinces reason to most persons! But shall we not rather call it the blind gropings of instinct stimulated into action by the sight and odor of the tender vegetables? Many of the lowest organisms show just as much intelligence about their food as did the old cow.

Even the American auger dew, according to Mrs. Treat, will move its leaves so that it can seize a fly pinned half an inch from it. The method of the old cow was that of hit and miss or trial and error. She wanted the corn, and she nudged the gate, and, as luck would have it, when she hit the latch the gate swung open. But shall we conclude that the beast had any idea at all but the sense impression made upon her hunger by the growing vegetables?

Animals do not connect cause and effect as we do by thinking the "therefore." They simply associate one thing with another. Your dog learns to associate your act of taking your hat and cane with a walk or your gun with the delights of the chase or with its report, if he is afraid of it, and so on.

Without this power of association the birds and beasts could not get on in life. The continuity of their experience would be broken. It is a rude kind of memory—sense memory. A sense impression today revives a sense impression of yesterday or of the day before, and that is about all there is of it.—"Animal and Plant Intelligence," by John Burroughs, in Outing Magazine.

What He Would Shy At.

In a certain recent case a groom was being cross examined by a barrister more famous for talent than beauty of features. The clever advocate was endeavoring to find out about the temper of a horse, which had an important bearing on the case, but the witness was not very lucid.

"Does he shy?" he was asked. The groom said he did. "At what?" was the next question.

"At lots of things," was the answer. And for long no better or further particulars could be got. But Mr. Witt, determining to get a clearer answer, went on.

"But tell me," he said in his most suave tones, "of any particular thing he would shy at."

"Well, 'e'd shy at you," was the unexpected answer. And every one seemed to wonder whether that was evidence.—London Answers.

With Knife and Fork.

In the middle ages people knew not knives and forks, but ate with nature's implements—their fingers. Later they held the bread or meat in a napkin in their left hands and cut off pieces with a dagger held in the right hand, the food being carried to the mouth on the knife, even in the most polite society. The next development was to have a special eating knife instead of using the dagger, which might have been used for the dispatch of an enemy. Each person kept an eating knife, and when he was invited out to dinner he brought his knife along with him. Forks were used in Venice in 997, but it was not till 1608 that a Venetian traveler, one Thomas Coryate, introduced them into Britain.—London Standard.

About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. A Fable of the Future.

In 1920 A. D. the Stingiest Man in Stringtown carted his Household Goods to the Depot and bought a ticket for Millionville, the Metropolis.

"Why are you moving to Millionville?" inquired a Citizen.

"To save postage," replied the Stingiest Man. Whereat the Citizen marveled mightily.

Now, be it known that the Stingiest Man in Stringtown was wise in his Day and Generation, for along back in 1907 A. D. or thereabout it became the Settled Habit of the Stringtown people to purchase Large Sheets of Little Stickers bearing portraits of G. Washington, B. Franklin, W. McKinley and other Late Illustrious Ones, which Specimens of Art they straightway stuck on envelopes and sent to a Large and Luring Mail Order Concern in Millionville. Wherefore it came about that the Seven Stores in Stringtown Shut up Shop, one after the other, until along in 1919 A. D. the Stingiest Man found it incumbent upon him to begin purchasing these Small Specimens of Art to present to the Maw of the Monster in Millionville, and the Aforesaid was Simply too Stingy to stand for the Same.

AN IMPRESSIVE MOMENT.

When the Ship's Bell Tolls at Night in Midocean.

The party was made up of travel lovers, and the conversation turned on impressive experiences. One spoke of standing at twilight among the ruins of the great temple at Karnak, another of a visit to the Acropolis by moonlight and a third of his first glimpse of rock bound Bethlehem, with the tender spring sunshine falling on the historic walls. The fourth member of the group paused a moment before making his contribution to the observations.

"The experience in travel which affected me—or shall I say affects me—the most," he said, "does not come strictly in the class of those of which you speak. It is not a view in any place, with all the associations that such a vista may summon up. Indeed, there is no place to it, except the general place that we call the ocean. But it is of impressions that we are talking, and my most vivid impression in all my journeyings is connected with an incident of shipboard life, an incident that constantly repeats itself and always, I hope, with deeper meaning. You see now why I speak of it in the present instead of the past, because any one who goes down to the sea in ships can appreciate it if he is so disposed.

"After nightfall let the seafarer go forward. If you haven't a companion who understands things you had better go by yourself. Let your thoughts dwell on the deep, on the remoteness of all else from the little world comprised within your vessel. Think of her sure progress across the dark wastes to her destination. Think perhaps of the lands you are to see or of those left behind. And, so musing, wait till the hour is sounded on the ship's bells and the voice of the lookout falls upon your ears with its 'All's well!'

"I care not what the language—the chord that it strikes in the mind—is instantly comprehended. That's a moment when, if you are with one who can truly be called a friend, hands seek each other, and a pressure tells that two spirits on life's sea have knowledge in their common thankfulness for benefits received, in their hopes of what the future may hold and in their memories of the past of a mutuality of interest—a brotherhood, if you may so call it—that knits heart to heart and makes each heart the stronger.

"If you are alone at such a time you cannot fail to summon to you at least one spiritual presence, and who knows that the bond of sympathy you feel under such circumstances is not fully as enduring as when clasp answers clasp in recognition of the message of the time honored words?"

A silence fell upon the men. At last one spoke—the one who had talked of Karnak at twilight. "I think you're right," he said simply, and the other two nodded.—New York Press.

It Reminded Him.

The sick tragedian lay on his couch, staring with widely opened eyes into vacancy. The doctor who had been summoned first had just arrived, and while he was removing his gloves the second doctor came into the room.

"He mutters," said the first. "His mind wanders."

"N-no, I think not," replied the attendant, bending over the patient. "He spoke quite slowly and distinctly."

"What did he say?" inquired the second.

"He said, 'One woe doth tread upon another's heels, so fast they follow!'

Abracadabra.

It is said that Abracadabra was an Assyrian deity, but all that is known definitely of the word is that it was used as a charm. A Latin writer recommended the use of the word as a remedy for toothache. The word was written on parchment in the following form and hung around the neck:

ABRACADAER
ABRACADAB
ABRACADA

Flowers and Weeds.

The pretty teacher was trying to explain the difference between good conduct and bad. "Good actions," she explained, "are the lovely flowers. Bad ones are the weeds. Now can any little boy or girl tell me the difference between flowers and weeds? What are flowers? What are weeds?"

"Weeds," said Walter, who had been struggling with the sorrel in his mother's garden, "are the plants that want to grow, and flowers are the ones that don't."

AN INNOCENT HOAX.

Canon MacColl's Letters, For Which Gladstone Got Credit.

The late Canon MacColl was a tiny man with a tiny voice, yet he was regarded as a giant among controversialists, and his voice reached to Europe. His voice proceeded from behind a mask, which men thought concealed the features of a greater man. His letters to the Times denouncing Germany in general and Bismarck in particular over the Franco-Prussian war, were signed Scrutator. They were read with the closest attention, for everybody outside Printing House square seems to have believed that they were the letters of Gladstone. In this belief European statesmen poured missives upon the author of the letters, letting light into the strangest official secrets and treating him with the profoundest deference. The letters were sent to the office of the Times, and great was the enjoyment of the canon as he read them.

Possibly Gladstone did not know that he was regarded as the author of the letters. Be that as it may, he was as much in the dark as the rest of the world. Max Muller was among those most deceived and in one of his letters during the controversy quaintly apologized for any seeming deficiency in his argument, pleading that, while he used "only a wooden sword," he was called upon to withstand in argument "one of the most powerful athletes of our time," one who "wielded the very brand Excalibur." The "most powerful athlete" whom Muller had in mind was, of course, Gladstone. The German emperor was as effectively puzzled and caused a letter to be written suggesting that the time had come when the writer might raise his visor and reveal his identity. The canon still lay low, enjoying the fun. Bismarck had contemplated suing the author of the letters for libel, but when he was eventually let into the secret anger had disappeared, and he sent him a cordial invitation to Friedrichsruh.—St. James' Gazette.

Just a Difference in Sound.

The difference between English and American methods of pronunciation often produces misunderstanding. The other day an Englishman who had just arrived here went to the Waldorf-Astoria. He was a bit lost for a minute just where to find the register book, the Waldorf office being divided into several departments, one for the "information bureau," another for "letters" and so on. The Englishman finally stopped at one of the departments and inquired whether it was the desk of the hotel "clark." "No," was the reply; "this is the Waldorf-Astoria hotel." Through saying "clark" instead of "clerk" the young man at the desk had taken the Englishman to mean Hotel Clark.—New York Times.

His Dream.

"There is some money, my love," said the husband. "I don't want any," replied the wife. "Come, now, darling, take this five pound note and go out shopping." "Thank you, dearest, but I really don't care to. I would rather stay at home and see to the housework." Then the husband awoke and found that he had been dreaming.—Liverpool Mercury.

Poems Offered.
A correspondent writes:
"On reading your paper this morning I find a pretty little poem signed Leigh Hunt. I have one or two at present I would like to have you consider. Hoping for a favorable reply, I am," etc.
That's the way it goes. We just knew that if we let Leigh Hunt contribute some verses a lot of others would want to. Send your poems to Lady. But, understand, we didn't pay Leigh a cent for his, so don't expect any pecuniary advantage. Hunt is satisfied with the honor he got. You must be the same—Cleveland Leader.

The Toad the Friend of Man.
There are no better friends to have in the garden than the toads. If they could be protected and encouraged to live there they would eradicate many of the grubs and cutworms that do so much damage to plants. The great enemy of the toad is the small boy. Bands of schoolboys have been known to go out and in a single day kill as many as 300 of these useful animals. Boys regard this as innocent sport, being unaware and not knowing that the toad is a most valuable insect destroyer. Teach these young barbarians to avoid cruelty.—American Farmer.
