WRECK ON ATLANTIC COAST LINE

CARELESSNESS—FAILURE TO NOTICE SIGNAL

Two Engines Disabled—No One Killed
One of the Engineers Painfully, but Not Seriously Hurt.

Friday afternoon a wreck occurred on the Atlantic Coast Line at the log deck, two miles south of Greenville. The log train had come in and taken the siding at the end of the deck. The switch at the south end of the siding was open and an extra train coming from Kinston ran into this open switch and crashed into the log train.

Both the engines were smashed and Engineer Sam Laughinghouse, who was running the extra train was injured. No damage of consequence was done to the track.

Engineer Laughinghouse was brought down to the office of Drs. Laughinghouse & Moye for his injuries to be attended to. It was found that one side of his face was badly burned and one shoulder and hip sprained. After his wounds were dressed he was carried to the home of his parents at Washington.

The two disabled engines were today taken to the shops at Rocky Mount.

WHY JOHNSON COULD.

Could Probably Carry States in Which Bryan Has No Chance.

There are 483 votes in the electoral college, 242 being necessary to elect a president. In 1900 Mr. Bryan had 155 electoral votes. A successful Democratic candidate for President must, therefore, have at least 87 more electoral votes than Mr. Bryan received in 1900.

These figures in themselves fully demonstrate the folly of nominating Mr. Bryan, who is no stronger now than when he was defeated eight years ago. If anybody questions this statement we invite him to answer three questions which Mr. Bryan has dodged for weeks:

"What States did you lose in 1896 which you could carry in 1908?"

"What electoral votes did you lose in 1900 which you could win in 1908?"

"What elements of dissatisfaction and discontent did you fail to arouse then which you could successfully appeal to now?"

Obviously Mr. Bryan could not gain these necessary 87 electoral votes, or any considerable part of them. But how about Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota?

President Roosevelt and all his confidential advisers regard Governor Johnson as the strongest man the Democrats could nominate against Secretary Taft. The world knows of no well-informed Republican who does not concede that Governor Johnson could probably carry Minnesota and perhaps both the Dakotas. These three States have 19 electoral votes.

There are three other States which Governor Johnson's nomination would make debatable—New York, New Jersey and Illinois. These three States have 78 electoral votes. The six States in question have 97 electoral votes—ten more than the necessary 87—for which the Democratic party might have a fighting chance of John A. Johnson were its candidate for president.

On one side is the absolute certainty of defeat under Mr. Bryan's leadership. On the other side is a rehabilitated party and a prospect of victory under Governor Johnson's leadership. Which do the Democrats of the United States prefer?—New York World.

Barber Shop Improvement.

The electric massage machine installed in S. J. Nobles barber shop is an innovation in barber shop paraphernalia here. With this machine the customer can get electric massage or electric shampoo as desired, and it adds to one's comfort as well as strengthens the nerves. Mr. Nobles keeps his shop up to the times.

Arrested on Suspicion.

A man was arrested Friday on suspicion of being connected with the burning of Elder T. H. Barnhill's house and poisoning his team. A preliminary hearing was had at Stokes, but for want of evidence the case was dismissed.

Dr. H. O. Hyatt will be in Greenville at Hotel Bertha March 30th and 31st, Monday and Tuesday, for the purpose of treating diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat. Parties who call to see the Doctor do not have to pay any fee unless they are treated.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C. March 14, 1908

The annual mid-term debate was held by the Vance literary society of Winterville High School last night in the large and tastily decorated auditorium of the academy building. The students and friends of the school always look forward to these debates with no little pleasure. Large audiences are always present to hear these, and last night was no exception. The hall was very near filled and most excellent attention was given each speaker.

At eight o'clock the president, secretary and the eight debaters entered the hall amid hearty applause. After an instrumental solo by Miss Ethel Flowers the debate was called to order by the president W. H. House.

The query was "Resolved, That the South will acquire greater national influence during the next half century than the North." The affirmative was ably supported by Messrs. Paul Taylor, of Lenoir; G. G. Dixon, of Pitt; C. F. Perry, of Jones, and R. T. Cox, of Pitt; the negative by Messrs. Paul Strother, of Wayne; J. D. Rogers, of Onslow; W. A. McGlohon, of Pitt; and D. R. Jackson, of Pitt. Each speaker acquitted himself well and the high reputation of the society was fully sustained in last night's debate. The judges were Prof. H. B. Smith, of Greenville; graded school, Prof. Jahneke, of Winston-Salem, and Mr. A. W. Ange, of Winterville. After some minutes, the judges rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative by a vote of two to one.

The girls of the Philo-Altean society were present to cheer the boys with several very appropriate songs.

At the close of the debate Prof. G. E. Lineberry announced that Dr. Chas. E. Brewer, professor of chemistry in Wake Forest college, would lecture to the school next Friday night, March 20. All were cordially invited to be present then.

We now turn our eyes to the commencement, which is a little more than two months off. We are glad to announce that Dr. B. F. Dixon, State auditor, will deliver the literary address on that occasion, May 15.

Among the visitors to the debate from a distance we note Mrs. J. O. Bobbitt, of Shermine; Mrs. Jacob Parrott, of Kinston; Mrs. J. J. Croon, of Kinston; Miss Nannie House, of House; Joe Tyson, of House; Clyde Stallings, of Oriental; Leon Smith, of Greenville; L. R. Buck, of Grimesland; Misses Gussie Lawrence, of Grifton; Emma Hardy, of Greenville; Nonie Davenport, of Pactolus; Susie Moore and Miss Galloway, of Grimesland.

Rev. T. H. King delivered an address last night at Miss Bonnor Kittrell's school closing. He reports a large crowd and an interesting program.

Mrs. Agnes Blount, of Ayden, was in town yesterday.

F. A. Edmundson, who had been on the road for several days for the A. G. Cox Mfg. Co., returned Thursday.

Quite a number of our people went to the teachers' association at Greenville this morning.

Rev. N. C. Duncan left this morning to fill his regular appointment at Farmville.

We have just established a brokerage business for general merchandise. Car load lots are made a specialty. Special attention will be given to phone orders. Office next to post office.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION

CONSUMES SHORT TIME OF ONE-HALF HOUR.

No Speech Making—Delegates Appointed to State and Congressional Convention.

The Republican county convention held here today was a smooth and quick affair, the entire proceedings occupying less than half an hour. There was no speech making whatever, everything running along as if by clock work.

R. C. Flanagan chairman of the county executive committee, called the meeting to order. Harry Skinner was made permanent chairman of the convention and H. T. King secretary.

The first business after organization was the adoption of a resolution endorsing the administration of President Roosevelt as "wise, honest, courageous and progressive"; endorsing the candidacy of W. H. Taft for president and instructing the delegates for him; also endorsing S. B. Adams as State chairman and instructing the delegates to vote for his re-election.

A committee of five was appointed to retire and recommend delegates to the state and congressional conventions. This committee reported the following list of names which was approved by the convention:

Delegates—E. E. Dail, W. R. Dixon, W. J. Manning, Gray Moore, Fred McLawhorn, R. C. Flanagan, Harry Skinner and A. J. Moye.

Delegates to congressional convention—B. M. Whitehurst, S. I. Fleming, H. T. King, Harry Skinner and R. C. Flanagan. The convention adjourned as soon as this was done.

There were about twenty-five within the bar of the court room participating in the convention and a few spectators. Not a colored man was anywhere in evidence about the meeting.

SURVEY TO GREENVILLE.

Raleigh, N. C., March 13th. Editor Reflector:

In your issue of March 13th I notice a communication calling upon the Chamber of Commerce to act in the matter of asking Senator Simmons to amend his bill, providing for a survey looking to the establishment of a ten foot channel to certain points on the various rivers emptying into Pamlico and Albemarle sounds, so as to include Tar river as high up as Greenville.

Upon seeing that this bill was introduced by Senator Simmons I wrote him on March 5th asking him to have the survey made as high up as Greenville, instead of stopping at Washington on the Pamlico river as his original resolution provided. I have received a letter from Senator Simmons, under date of March 9th, saying that he would have his bill amended as requested, so now the survey for a ten foot channel leading into Pamlico sound will probably be made as high up as Greenville.

Paying Taxes With Boys.

By Rev. O. R. Miller.

Some people never can see anything but the dollar argument in everything presented. Their first thought always is, Will it pay in dollars and cents? We believe that the prohibition of the liquor traffic would greatly reduce court and pauper expenses. But even if it could be proved that prohibition does increase your taxes are you not willing to pay something to protect your boys?

It increases your taxes to maintain a police department and a fire department to protect your homes, but do not object to this increase of taxes. Why, then, should you object to a small increase of taxes, if necessary to protect the boys who live in those homes?

If you vote for license in order to get the saloon's revenue to reduce your taxes, then you should be willing for your boy to patronize the saloons for the saloons cannot run without boys any more than a saw mill can run without logs.

If to get the saloon's revenue, you vote for license, will you contribute a boy to keep them running?

Would you rather pay your taxes with your money or with your boy?

Which?

Members of the Christian choir will meet for practice tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Travis E. Hooker.

Not much is being said yet, but in about two weeks the prohibition campaign will open sure enough.

Uncle Sam's fleet is getting back on home soil, or water, as the boats have reached lower California on their voyage.

Even if the ground hog does get an extension of time, it can be for only ten days. So he cannot hurt us much if he should decide to turn loose his worst effort.

Some over three hundred of the students of the A. & M. college have joined the peace society. That reminds of the dorky who went from the hen roost to a revival.

Governor Glenn is listed for seventy five speeches in various parts of the State during the prohibition campaign. The governor can always be counted on to do his part in any good movement.

A Washington City man shot and killed his wife, and said when arrested that he mistook her for a burglar. Such a claim must be taken with plenty of salt, even if his mother does corroborate it.

The fellow who annually gets up the story of a pigeon following a train, has broken out in the western part of the State. He now has the bird flying along beside a train running between Lenoir and Hickory.

Ex-Governor Jarvis.

As I was chatting with ex-Governor Jarvis on the street here a few days ago and seeing in what splendid health he looked, with his fine carriage and bright eye and good complexion, the thought came back of what a remarkable man he is. He has been a power in North Carolina for 45 years. He came into prominence in the reconstruction days, when he was a tower of strength, amid the minority on the floor of the House of Representatives. Then he was a prominent figure as Lieutenant Governor, during all the interim having been consulted as a sound man and then when he came in as Governor he took hold instantly, and his administration is the talk to this day; six years of it, full of results, and so he has come to succeed Vance as North Carolina's "great commoner". Besides him how few ex-Governors are left; only two, Russell and Aycock; the former retired absolutely to private life, and the latter half in and half out of it, since he has loomed quite large during the past eight months in the railway rate case, as one of the foremost of the State's counsel. Most of the Governors since the war have gone, passed away forever—Worth, Holden, Caldwell, Brogden, Vance, Seales, Fowle, Holt and Carr. What a list of dead chief magistrates in 41 years!—Charlotte Observer.

A USEFUL BUSYBODY.

It Tells Philadelphians Who is at the Front Door.

If you were to ask the average person what a busybody is the reply would probably be "one who does not mind his or her business." Such a definition would be laughed at in Philadelphia. A "busybody" in Philadelphia is an inanimate object which reveals animate objects. No where in the country are busybodies employed so extensively as in the Quaker City. They are to be found on almost every house, at least on every house of any pretensions.

Unless you have lived in Philadelphia such an explanation would not prove satisfactory, however. A busybody is composed of three pieces of mirror set at three different angles, so that the light reflected from either one of the two angles is reflected into the glass set at the third or opposing angle. The three glasses are arranged on a piece of iron rod so bent and fastened to the lintel of the window in the second story of the building that any person on the second floor of the building can by looking into the topmost piece of glass see what is going on in the street below or who or what may be passing up and down the street without opening the window to look out. The mirrors take the place of bay windows.

The primary object in setting up a busybody is to see who is at the front door or who may be approaching from either side of the building to the door. The topmost piece of glass is tilted so that it will show the front doorstep. One piece of glass is set at an angle to catch a reflection of all that is going on at the right side of the street and another to reflect the approach to the left.

In Philadelphia, where ninety-nine out of every hundred houses are built out to the sidewalk and all houses are built in a line, busybodies become great time savers for housekeepers. If undesirable callers come to the front door the busybody gives timely notice of their approach, and the person sought need not be at home. By keeping an eye on the busybody the woman at her sewing machine can detect the caller the moment he comes within range of the mirrors, and plenty of time is given for prinking.

The busybody is useless on a house which has its front covered with a porch or which sets back from the street.—New York Tribune.

Out of His Life.

Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, lay down your paper a minute.

Mr. Chugwater—Well?

"If a bolt of lightning should start to travel round the globe from—Josiah!"

"Well?"

"Lay your paper down just a minute and listen. If a bolt of lightning should start to travel round the globe from east to west and another should start and travel from west to east—the way the earth revolves, you know—would there be any difference in the—Josiah!"

"Well?"

"I say would there be any difference in speed? Which bolt of lightning would get around the earth first?"

(Picking up his paper again) "Samantha, do you take me for a lightning calculator?"—Chicago Tribune.

The Chewers.

"Tobacco isn't the only thing chewed," said the cigar store man. "I wish it was. In the far east they chew the betel. They wrap the nut in a bit of leaf, and for seasoning they add a little lime. It's a tart tasting chew, not bad, and it has, like tobacco, a soothing effect. Coffee experts and dealers chew coffee beans, and tea dealers chew tea. Very exhilarating, both chews, but ruinous to the nerves and digestion. Jockeys and trainers chew oats, hay, straw—anything horse. Horse feed makes a cheap and harmless chew. In the spice trade the hands often get the habit of chewing ginger or cinnamon or a clove, but spices are bad for the teeth. Seamstresses chew bits of thread, and athletes chew gum."

Vegetable Ivory.

The plant yielding the vegetable ivory is known to botanists as Phytelphas macrocarpa. It is a native of South America, found chiefly along the Magdalena river, in Colombia. It is a stemless, palmlike plant, the top of which is crowned with from twelve to twenty very long leaves. The fruit consists of a conglomerated head in six or seven sections, the whole being inclosed in a woody covering, forming altogether a globe as large as a man's head. A single plant sometimes bears six or eight of these heads, each weighing from twenty to twenty-five pounds. When young they contain a milklike fluid, which with age hardens until it becomes valuable as a substitute for real ivory.

How Many Bricks Have You Sent Away?

That sounds like a funny question, addressed to every citizen of this town and community, but it's really a serious one. Listen: There is now just completed a magnificent building of red brick exterior and concrete interior right in the business heart of one of the biggest of American cities. It occupies a whole block and calls itself in a large lettered sign "The Largest Monolithic Building In the World." It has many floors, with about a hundred acres of floor space. The entrances are of solid marble. The floors are beautifully tiled. Altogether it is a credit to the big city in which it stands. Oh, it's a Jim Dandy!

Now, how many bricks have you sent to the city to go into this big building? Honest, how many?

Of the hundreds of thousands of bricks put into the walls of this building the city where it stands has contributed not a single red brick. Country people, the people of small towns and cities far away from the big metropolis, have sent in the bricks for the construction of this splendid edifice.

You may have sent in a few hods of bricks yourself without knowing it.

Listen: This magnificent structure, which ornaments a city you probably never will see yourself, is built of bricks bought with the dollars of people living in towns just like ours—towns that would like to have some new brick buildings themselves now and then. Every dollar contributed to the city building fund means a nice, hefty hod of bricks for this big, beautiful skyscraper, "largest in the world" of its kind. This building was put up, through the kind donations of their unknown country cousins, by a firm that ran a small store in that city a few years ago.

But this firm conceived the cute idea of having thousands of strangers contribute bricks to build its fine, large, new store.

And the building is a Mail Order Store. See?

A lady slipped on some orange peel in School street yesterday and broke her leg.

THE STACCATO STYLE.

It was a job for a surgeon. Orange peel did it. There was a slide, a scream and a dull thud. The atmosphere was full of lingerie, frou frou, hairpins and bric-a-brac.

It was laughable. But only to a few. A dozen men rushed gallantly to the rescue.

It was a woman who had fallen. Horror! A nether limb broken. She was in agony. And all because of somebody's carelessness.

Saul has slain his thousands. Orange peel has slain its ten thousands.

THE FLORID STYLE.

Tripping lightly down School street yesterday afternoon, her face all aglow with health and every muscle, nerve, vein and artery in harmony with the invigorating atmosphere, a representative of the softer sex was suddenly to deflect from the perpendicular, and in another instant this one of heaven's fast and best gifts to man came with crushing force to the hard, unyielding pavement. The immediate cause of the unfortunate lady's downfall was the greasy envelope of that tropical fruit, the orange, which some thoughtless, if not malicious, individual had cast upon the public pavement. The victim of this carelessness or worse had sustained a fracture of a limb, and it will be many weary weeks ere she will again be able to walk erect and stately as heretofore.

THE FACETIOUS STYLE.

She will be careful how she treads on orange peel hereafter. She didn't know it was loaded. But it shot her off. It is only a broken leg. Not much comfort to her, but a good thing for the surgeon. There's money in it. People who throw away orange peel should be careful to throw it so that it will land with the slippery side down, unless they are in league with the bone setting profession. In that case, of course, it is different.—London Tit-Bits.

English Legend of Tailed Men.

When a Hollander wants to show his contempt for an Englishman he refers to him as a "steert man"—in other words, "the man with a tail." The old legend says that Thomas a Becket cursed the Kentishmen who spitefully cut off his horse's tail and that the entire generation of Kent which followed wore tails like horses. John Bale, Edward VI.'s bishop of Ossory, mentions the legend, but gives some variations as to the cause of the punishment. He says on the authority of John Capgrave that "for castyne yshe tayles at St. Augustine Dorsetshyre men had tayles ever after that." Polydorus, however, applies the legend to the Kentish men of Stroud "forecutting off Thomas Becket's horse's tale." One account says that only those living in Kent at the time the curse was pronounced "were afflicted with large drooping tayles like brutes, their posterity heying not so affected."

Might Have Been Worse.

In a foursome competition at Machrihamish one Scotchman of the party, a man of optimistic temperament, always remarked, "It might have been waur," whenever he put the ball into a peculiarly difficult bunker.

His irritated partner determined to rouse Macnab from his imperturbable serenity and said to him when next they played, "Macnab, I dreamed last night you were in hades."

"It might have been waur," came the reply, pat.

"How waur?" said the Englishman. "It might have been true," replied Macnab. "I might have been there."

The Scotchman ended at least "one up."—London Globe.

The Size of Alaska.

Alaska contains 550,000 square miles of mainland, 7,000 square miles of the Aleutian islands and 22,000 square miles of other islands, a total of 579,000 square miles, or one-fifth of the area of the rest of the United States. It requires the areas of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and New York to equal this. The area of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Virginia and West Virginia equals only one-half of Alaska. It equals the combined area of Great Britain and Ireland, France, Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands. It stretches from latitude 51 degrees to 71 degrees and from longitude 130 degrees to 168 degrees.

Where Four States Meet.

It is odd to reflect that it is possible for one to be in four states at the same time. Yet there is one such spot in the United States. Glancing at a map of the United States, one finds an intersection between two straight lines, where Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona meet. The place is not often visited, as it is not easily reached. The stone erected by government surveyors is on the top of a spur in the Carriso mountains. The nearest railway town is Mancos, Colo., nearly a hundred miles from the "four corners." The region about was once densely populated by cliff dwellers, but there are now no human beings within miles. Some years ago the Indians destroyed the boundary shaft. It was not replaced until 1904, probably because a long time elapsed before the authorities knew the old one had been wrecked.

Appropriate Sentiment.

Many years ago the energetic Professor Schwarz was conducting a musical society. They were studying Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and had reached the chorus, "Hear us, Baal; hear, mighty god."

The men's voices were booming out sonorously when the conductor cried out: "No, no! De dreadful vowel! Don't say B-a-l-e. Soften a leetle. Give de more musical sound—Baal!"

Whereupon the chorus took up the strain again, "Hear us Bawl—hear us Bawl!" But they quickly realized the peculiar fitness of the sentiment and broke down in laughter, to the great amazement of the little German, who never saw the joke, but who returned reluctantly to the old pronunciation.

Egg Dishes.

An odd combination of breakfast codfish balls and eggs is prepared in this way: Make the fish balls flat and fry them brown. Poach some eggs in rings, and when done slip one on each ball.

Egg balls are an attractive breakfast or luncheon dish. The eggs are boiled hard and the whites removed. Some minced ham is mixed with white sauce and seasoned with a little dry mustard and spread on rounds of toast, and one ball is put on each slice, and more white sauce, mixed with the chopped whites, is poured around.—Harper's Bazar.

No Liberties.

"Well," said Edith's mother when the child arrived home from the tea party, "did you have a good time?" "Yes, thank you, mamma." "And did you play nice games?" "Yes, mamma." "And did you have a nice tea?" "Yes, mamma." "I hope, Edith, that you behaved yourself like a little lady. You did not take any liberties, did you?" "No, mamma. There wasn't any on the table."

BOBBY'S CHANCE.

He Returned From the Party Bringing His Shaves With Him.

Little Robert, aged four, presented his mother with a large sized shock the other day. It was a case of sowing a mild little breeze and reaping a full grown whirlwind.

Robert is Mrs. B.'s first and has always had a large front seat in her affections. Even when Mrs. B. attended parties she remembered Robert and would slip a bit of candy into her handkerchief to carry home to him.

Not that Robert did not have as much candy of his own as was good for him—and more, too—but he took an awed delight in anything which came from a party. So his mother always produced some souvenir of her modest social dissipations with which to satisfy Robert.

A few weeks ago Robert himself went to a party, his very first. A maid brought him home and left him, together with a large paper bag, in the eager arms of his welcoming mother. The first rapture of description had scarcely begun when Mrs. B. became conscious of the bulky bag.

"Why, Robert, what's this?"

"It's for you. I brought it to you from the party."

With some misgiving Mrs. B. opened the bag. It contained a large orange, nuts, candy, grapes, cakes—in fact, a very respectable assortment of refreshments suited to the juvenile taste.

Robert had supposed it was quite the usual thing to take little consoiling items to the uninvited members of one's family, and he had taken a generous delight in securing a truly noble collection for his mother.

That lady faced the double problem of explaining the situation to Robert's hostess and of presenting to Robert a clear reason why what was sauce for the goose, so to speak, was a totally different thing for the gander. The explanation, which simmered down, of course, to a question of size or quantity was far from being clear to Robert, who is low in his mind and thinks he does not care for society at all.—New York Sun.

What David Said.

A country clergyman kept a young servant lad. One Sunday morning before service he gave him his orders about the dinner and said:

"Go to neighbor David and ask him for me to let you have some tripe on credit, and then prepare me a nice plateful."

The lad did as he was told, and the clergyman went to conduct the service. As he stood in the pulpit he called out in the middle of his sermon:

"And on this subject, brethren, what does David say?"

At that moment his little valet stepped into the church, and, in the belief that his master was addressing him, he replied:

"Please, sir, he says, 'No money, no tripe!'"—London Answers.

Lightning and Thunder.

It is said that lightning may be recognized at a distance of 200 miles when clouds among which it plays are at a high altitude, but that thunder can seldom be heard at a greater distance than ten miles. The sound of thunder is also subject to refraction by layers of different density in the atmosphere as well as to the effects of "sound shadows," produced by hills and other interposed objects. These are among the reasons for the existence of the so called "sheet," or "summer," lightning, which seems to be unattended by thunder.

Better Than Spanking.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summerville, Box W. Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her success full home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.
