THOSE STATEMENTS.
We Hope for Prompt Responses—
Don't Let Your Paper Stop.

For the second time since this year came in The Reflector has sent statements to all subscribers who were far enough in arrears to be affected by the ruling of the postoffice department that goes in effect April 1st. Quite a number who received the first statement responded, but so many failed to do so that during the past week a second statement has been sent. Friends, it has cost us both labor and money to make out and mail these statements, and we hope you will respond to them before April 1st, after which time the law will compel us to stop sending the paper to all who fail to pay as the ruling prescribes. We are trying hard to make The Reflector a good paper, it is well worth the subscription price, and if you pay promptly it will help us to further improve it. We hope you will not force us to stop sending you the paper.

Truth the Great Basis.

Nothing in all human character shines quite so brightly as the truth. One may be endowed with wonderful gifts of mind but if he will not tell the truth his mental endowments count for little. One may have great physical strength so that no task of hand or body seems hard or heavy, but if he disregards truth his great muscular strength is placed on a level with some powerful but treacherous beast. A man may have the capacity to accumulate wealth so that his dollars may pile up like the great Pyramids, but if he proves to be untruthful in his words and practices his character will be questioned and his money will be called "tainted." A disregard for the truth is the index of a false and falling life. Nothing in adults or children so discounts character as untruthfulness. A wise man who has had much experience as a teacher of boys was speaking recently about the kinds of boys he had taught and the various experiences he had had with bad boys, but he said he never lost hope in a boy as long as he would tell the truth. He said that when he caught a boy in a wilful lie he was soon ready to give him up as a hopeless case. While the boy was truthful he had hopes for something good from him, but when he proved to be a liar there was left little ground for hope. And this holds good all through human life. With truth as the guide-star of ones course and purpose there is hope for good, but when truth is lightly esteemed one may not be surprised at any result of such life. Let truth be impressed upon the life of every one under the touch of any and all influences, and hasten the day when it shall reign over all.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Progressive Ayden.

The Reflector feels especially proud of its Ayden department which is in charge of Mr. J. M. Blow, a man who is worth much to our neighboring town. Ayden now occupies an entire page in the weekly edition of the paper, and it is filled with news and advertisements of the progressive business men of that town. Those people believe in publicity and the use they make of The Reflector for that purpose is of great benefit to them as it gives them the advantage of the papers large circulation.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va. March 19, 1908
Bradstreet Saturday will say for Richmond, Va. and vicinity: Trade conditions generally show slight improvement over last week. Orders for dry goods show an increase. The market is well supplied with fruits, produce and early spring vegetables and the demand and prices are fair. Tobacco continues to be marketed in larger quantities and prices are higher than last week when the demand weakened. In North Carolina the prices for cotton are maintained but considerable of the crop remains in the hands of the planter or dealer. Building material in all lines shows increased sales. Considerable construction work has been contracted for or is under way. Lumber continues in only moderate demand, but manufacturers anticipate an increased demand in the near future. Retail trade is only fair and collections slow. Some cotton land is being prepared and tobacco seed sown. Winter wheat is reported in good condition.

East Carolina Training School.

The board of directors for this new institution met in Greenville last week to consider a site, plans for a building and other matters pertaining to the institution. A site was selected which is said to be ideal, plans were decided upon for buildings and architects and landscape gardeners were put to work on plans and bids for the work. State superintendent J. Y. Jeyner was made chairman of the board of directors, and Prof. C. W. Wilson, superintendent of Scotland Neck graded school, was elected secretary. The meeting of the board was a pleasant and satisfactory one and it is thought that work will soon be commenced on the building. Of course the good people of the progressive town of Greenville will do everything they can for the interest of the institution in which they will take great pride. The people of all East Carolina and of the whole state as well will feel a keen interest in this new educational enterprise.

A Fine Section.

Eastern North Carolina is making fast strides and when the present stringency passes over you will see our section moving forward in leaps and bounds. We have had no business failures in the east and our banks are in a splendid condition. Many of our counties and cities are preparing to build roads and pave streets. Greenville gave out a contract a few days ago, Wilson today and New Bern will on the 19th.—Wilson Times, 18th.

The Greasy Pig.

Everyone try after the pig Friday night at the rink. He will be given to the one that lifts him off the floor by his ears. "Who shall catch him?" It will be lots of fun, "you bet." Admission ten cents for everybody. Nothing to skate. 3 19 2td

Mr. Small Monday Night.

In the opera house next Monday night Congressman John H. Small will address the Chamber of Commerce of Greenville on the subject of water transportation. Everybody is invited to be present and the house should be full.

CONFEDERATE REUNION.

Will Be Held on Tuesday May 12—
Tenth Falling on Sunday.
Memorial day, May 10th, falls this year on Sunday, and in consequence the Bryan Grimes Camp of Confederate Veterans will have its reunion on Tuesday May 12th. Already steps are being taken to make the coming reunion the best in the history of the camp. Senator Lee S. Overman will be the orator, there will be several recitations by young ladies of Greenville, songs appropriate to the occasion, music by the Aeolian band, a big dinner and a good time generally. A drum corps has been organized and this will be ready to lead the procession that day. Every old soldier in the county should be here that day. Make a note of the date, Tuesday, May 12.

Reach's 1908 Guide.

Reach's Official American League Guide for 1908, published by the A. J. Reach Company, of Philadelphia, and edited by Mr. Francis C. Richter, of "Sporting Life," is out, and is as usual, first in the field, thus making it the harbinger of the baseball season. It can be said without qualification that, excellent as all of the editions of the Reach Guide have been in recent years, the 1908 Guide is the best hand book of the kind ever issued by this or any other publisher. The American League Guide for 1908 is in all respects a first class hand book of the National game and a decided credit to the American League and to the publisher's the Reach Company. The Reflector acknowledges receipt of a copy.

Would Not Assist Police.

On Saturday, March 14th, when the N. and S. train arrived, I was at the depot and it was reported to me that some one was playing rough in the train. I proceeded to investigate and found the guilty one and locked him up. After securing all the evidence needed to convict the guilty one I reported the case to the agent, who refused to assist in bringing him to justice. I then gave him a trial for disorderly conduct and now he is free to do the same thing again. I think the negro should have been brought to justice, but do not think the town should prosecute for the railroad.

Big Fire in Dunn.

Dunn, N. C., March 18.—The furniture factory of Newberry Brothers and Cowell, of this place, was totally destroyed by fire of unknown origin to night, together with a large amount of lumber on the yards, entailing a loss of more than $50,000, with small insurance. A gale was blowing and for a time the whole town was in peril. One reel of the local fire department was cut off by the flames and destroyed, the firemen barely making their escapes.

Engine Sets Fire to Bridge.

The A. C. L. southbound freight train set fire to the railroad bridge Thursday, but it was put out before any damage of consequence was done.

It is getting so near the equinox that a change in the weather may be looked for.

BLIND ORATOR SWAYS THOUANDS

The New Senator from Texas has Overcome a Stupendous Handicap.

A man totally blind would hardly seem adapted for modern political life, yet one so afflicted has fought through three exciting campaigns and has just been elected United States Senator from Oklahoma. The blindness of Thomas Pryor Gore was caused by two painful accidents. At eight a boy playmate injured his left eye with a stone; three years later he himself shot a toy arrow into the other.

When his father suggested his attending a school for the blind, he declared, "I will go to school here. A school for the blind will furnish neither the books nor the opportunity I seek." Events justified his choice, says the April Delineator; he gained the highest honors there and at law school and college. At nineteen he was nominee for the legislature; at twenty-two, populist delegate-at-large in Mississippi, and was unanimously selected in 1900 as congressional standard-bearer for the same party in Texas.

He owes his success to his power as an orator. His memory is remarkable. It is recorded that at a meeting with an opposition speaker—Senator Money—Gore asked for a division of time. Disregarding his youth and blindness, Money replied: "I will speak as long as I please; you are at liberty to do the same."

For three hours he harangued, thinking to exhaust Gore's patience. The latter patiently bided his time, and then for four hours more entertained the howlingly appreciative audience. Page after page of the "Congressional Record" he quoted from memory,—quotations that filled his antagonist with rage, but stripped him of every defense. Now Gore's opponents realize that he is not a man to be tampered with or ignored. His career in the Senate will be worth watching.

Fewer Failures In State.

H. L. Grant, clerk of the Federal court, Raleigh, says there have been very few bankruptcy cases during the past six or eight months, in other words during the panic. As a matter of fact North Carolina has certainly done well, much better than other States. Not a bank has failed and there have been very few business failures. Of course there are a number of idle people, but there is not the suffering in the State that there is in other States—Tarboro Southerner.

Lightning Fatal.

Statesville, N. C., March 18.—During a severe electric storm last night about 8:30 o'clock Mrs. Sarah Framster, who lived with her son-in-law, Gus Stroud, in Turnersburg township, was struck and instantly killed by lightning.

Miss Irvine's Brother Dead.

Miss Annie Irvine, one of the teachers of the graded school, received a telegram from Milton this morning announcing the death of her brother. Miss Irvine's friends deeply sympathize with her in this bereavement.

Better Be Careful.

The recent nights have been very tempting to sit out on the porch in light apparel or in shirt sleeves. But there is danger of catching cold.

A Handicap of the Sea.

A hale middle aged English sea captain, commanding a big sailing vessel given to long voyages, dropped anchor in New York harbor recently and came ashore to look up a friend or two. One of these, anxious to do what he could for the visitor, sought his company for an evening in a family circle uptown. The captain declined. "I'd like to go in a way," said he, "but I'll tell you how it is, my boy. I'm so little ashore that upon my word I don't know how to act when I get into a family circle—at least I feel that way. I'm uncomfortable all the time for fear of saying or doing the wrong thing. You see, I never carry passengers, and as I have to maintain strict discipline aboard ship I'm pretty much alone for months at a time."—New York Globe.

You will miss a treat if you stay away from the old fiddlers' convention tonight.

CHARITY.

Everybody seems to desire the reputation for being charitable but the luxury has always "come so high" that none except working people could afford it; but this information should place it "within the reach of all"—even the poor and needy rich.

When you know of a family in hard luck just send them some left over food, once or twice, then see the neighbors and mention that this family is really in want and that you have been keeping them all winter and you think it is time other people were doing something.

Of course if you are yourself approached this way you can make the new and original excuse that some of the family drink whiskey or that they keep a dog.

A gentleman sent the above to The Reflector with a note saying he "believes himself the originator of it and that it is well worth 30 cents, but he is conscientious and could not accept the remuneration, fearing people might claim priority to the idea."

The Reflector is also of the opinion that the idea is worth the price, and whether somebody else claims it or not, if the gentleman will call by the office he can get the 30 cents, and if he feels a delicacy in taking it for himself he can use it for charity

The interest Congressman John H. Small takes in affairs looking to the advancement of his district should cause every man in reach to meet him at the opera house in Greenville next Monday night and hear his address to the Chamber of Commerce on the subject of water transportation.

Greenville should adopt Superintendent Smith's suggestion and give the visiting city school superintendents here tomorrow a cordial greeting. Every meeting of this kind will help the town, and the visitors should be made to feel that we have the best town in Eastern Carolina.

Headquarters with a manager is now the proper movement among aspirants for State offices. Mr. Craig has established headquarters in Raleigh with Mr. J. P. Kerr in charge.

Added to its other troubles, the Southern railway is threatened with a general strike among the employes throughout its system. We hope the strike may be averted.

While his victims were looking all over this country for King, he was crossing the pond and has turned up in London.

Every man to the wheel and let's keep Greenville rolling up the hill.

If this keeps up long we ill feel just bound to go a-fishing.

VERY QUEER PEWS.

Amusing Oddities of Some Ancient English Churches.

Some pews in the fine old church at Malpas, Cheshire, possess a most amusing peculiarity. Each one consists of several seats, which are really, though not apparently, detached, and they look easy and comfortable. In this case appearances are deceitful, for should one occupant of any one seat lean forward while "niddid nodding" over he goes on the floor. The seat is so constructed as to easily tip over when any weight is placed on its outer or front edge and was so designed to prevent people from going to sleep in church.

We still find in a few of our ancient churches the high pews, luxurious cushions and curious fittings of former days.

In the good old times, when the squire was lord of all he surveyed in the village, his pew in the parish church was often a kind of sitting room. One such pew occupies the whole of the south transept of the diminutive church at Gatton, in Surrey. It has a fireplace, a low seat which extends around two sides of the room and blue tapestry decoration. Above it is another floor, on which are three or four ordinary pews for the use of the squire's servants, and from it a covered way leads to Gatton Hall, some few yards away. There may be some truth in the story that a former squire used to enjoy a pipe by the fireplace during the sermon and that if he became weary he would go out through the private door for a short stroll in the churchyard.

A similar pew exists in a church at Colwich, Staffordshire. It has a staircase leading to a private door, and it is said that the postman came this way to convey letters and that the servant brought in cake and wine for consumption during the service.

The royal pew of St. George's chapel, Windsor, is peculiar, because it is the largest of its kind in England and on account of its being situated above the choir, down upon which the queen can see the service from a fine oriel window.

In little Benjamin church, Norfolk, is a pew for strangers and wedding parties. It was constructed by a shepherd and bears a cheerful, suggestive piece of ornamentation in the shape of the carving of a skeleton, with the following inscription:

For couples joined in wedlock; and my Friend
That stranger is: This seat I did intend.
But built at the cost and charge of Stephen Crisbee,
All you that do this Place pass by,
As you are now, even so was I,
And as I am so shall you be.
Anno Domini 1660.

A game of whist played in a pew would nowadays cause considerable comment, yet it seems that the square pews at Trowbridge were used for this purpose at the time the "poet" Crabbe was droning away in the pulpit.

Other interesting old pews have names and occasionally coats of arms painted on them thus:

"The Rectory Pew," "The Churching Pew" and, best of all, "The Hall Dog's Pew."

Tennyson's Humor.

There was a playful humor in Lord Tennyson that rarely showed itself unless the poet was within the familiar circle of his friends. John Blackwood, a member of the famous firm of publishers, gave an amusing instance of this in one of his letters:

The Rev. James White, rector of a neighboring parish, and Tennyson were chaffing each other, as their custom was, concerning the merits of their respective houses.

"I believe part of Bonchurch belongs to you," remarked the poet.

"The whole of it," said White.

"You mean," retorted Tennyson, "the hole you live in."

And the Rev. James White was silenced.

The Bitter Truth.

Diogenes slowly entered the pawnshop and placed his lantern on the counter.

"What can I get for this?" he asked.

The pawnbroker picked up the lantern and examined it curiously.

"Rather antique pattern," he commented. "What do you consider it worth?"

Diogenes bowed his head, the humiliation of the centuries upon him. "Nothing," he bitterly admitted; "nothing at all."—Bohemian Magazine.

The Art of Life.

How few of us there are who make our lives into anything! We accept our limitations, we drift with them, while we indignantly assert the freedom of the will. The best sermon in the world is to hear of one who has struggled with life, bent or trained it to his will, plucked or rejected its fruit, but all upon some principle. It matters little what we do; it matters enormously how we do it.—Cornhill Magazine.

Large and Small Matters.

Mr. Nocash—My neighbor, Mr. Olmurse, has built his fence six inches over the line.

Mr. Golde-Bullion—Good morning! My neighbor, Mr. Fatpurse, has built his fence four inches over the line.

Lawyer—He has, eh? We'll fix him. Yes, sir, I'll win that case for you if I have to carry it to the supreme court—yes, sir.—Exchange.

Making Sure.

A man was recently being tried for murder, but the evidence against him was so weak that the judge directed the jury to find a verdict of not guilty and notified the court of his intention to stop the case. But the youthful counsel for the defense wanted the opportunity of becoming famous. He asked permission to address the court.

"Certainly, Mr. Cantspout," remarked the judge. "We'll hear you with pleasure. But first, for safety's sake, we'll acquit the prisoner."—London Chronicle.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Gratitude is the noblest and rarest virtue.

Mr. John Riha, of Vining, Ia., says, "I have been selling DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. All the Gold IN GEORGIA Could not Buy-

Roding, Ga. August 27, 1906.
Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co.,
Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:—
In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia, remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1902 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life savor. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic.
May you live long and prosper.
Yours very truly
G. N. CORNELL.

Under this law daily newspapers cannot be sent to subscribers who do not renew within 3 months after date to which their subscription is paid. WINE OF CARDUI

A Fable of the Future.

In 1920 A. D. the Stingiest Man in Stringtown carted his Household Goods to the Depot and bought a ticket for Millionville, the Metropolis.

"Why are you moving to Millionville?" inquired a Citizen.

"To save postage," replied the Stingiest Man. Whereat the Citizen marveled mightily.

Now, be it known that the Stingiest Man in Stringtown was wise in his Day and Generation, for along back in 1907 A. D. or thereabout it became the Settled Habit of the Stringtown people to purchase Large Sheets of Little Stickers bearing portraits of Washington, B. Franklin, W. McKinley and other Late Illustrious Ones, which Specimens of Art they straightway stuck on envelopes and sent to a Large and Luring Mail Order Concern in Millionville. Wherefore it came about that the Seven Stores in Stringtown Shut up Shop, one after the other, until along in 1919 A. D. the Stingiest Man found it incumbent upon him to begin purchasing these Small Specimens of Art to present to the Maw of the Monster in Millionville, and the Aforesaid was Simply too Stingy to stand for the Same.

JELLYFISH.

One of the Peculiar Forms of the Animal Life of the Sea.

Upon the sand at the water's edge there lies a particle of Jelly-like substance, inconspicuous and almost invisible. But in early spring one moves in such a world of wonders, the merest atoms of tissue are seen to be informed with such varied and vivid life, that I lift the particle carefully upon a shell and drop it into a jar of water to see a strange unfoldment, a beautiful transformation. The central mass expands into a double chambered bell of pure and transparent vesture, and these gossamer globes begin to contract with regular rhythmic motion, lifting the creature upward and softly urging it forward by their quickly repeated pulsations, while from below four gradually lengthening tentacles trail backward with graceful undulations. This beautiful medusa, the Sarsia mirabilis, is the earliest of our jellyfishes to appear in spring. By its pleasing and graceful form, by its eager and tireless movements, it seems to visit our shores at this season almost like an Ariel of the deep, voiceless, it is true, but throbbing with its message that the ocean's submerged shores and its dark abyssal chasms are all alike awakening to the spirit that transforms the upper world. One is at a loss to comprehend these creatures, so different in form from any that we are wont to associate with animal life, for, although without a head, they are yet capable of sensing the light and auditory vibrations. Without hands, arms or antennae, they are yet responsive to tactile impressions and, although of such fragile and gossamer texture, are yet the vehicle of vivid and intensive life. The movements of the body and the contained impulses that prompt them seem one and indivisible. The desires of its being seem themselves to urge it forward. Like a thought it seems momentarily embodied or an emotion precipitated into the visible as it impulsively mounts upward in eager quest or in apparent disappointment relaxes its efforts and subsides with all its drifting appendages a-stream, only after a moment to palpitate again with refreshed intention and slowly pulse on its softly insistent way.—H. J. Shannon in Harper's Magazine.

Doubling Up.

Speaking of "doubling things" reminds me of a story I once heard of a little girl whose name was Suzie. This particular Suzie had a habit of saying "g-o-o-d, good," and "w-o-o-d, wood," and she used to look so funny when she spelled words in that fashion that, like Mary's little lamb, she always caused a commotion in the school-room.

So one day the teacher said: "Suzie, dear, you mustn't say g-o-o-d. Say g-double o-d. Try to remember, my child."

Just then they came to the old familiar phrase in the regulation first reader: "Up, up, Jane! The sun is risen!" It was little Suzie's turn. Looking up with a cute smile to catch the look of sympathy and approval she felt sure she merited for remembering the rule of "doubling things," said she, without even a sign of hesitation: "Double up, Jane! The sun has risen!"—London Answers.

A Notable Performance.

A member of the school board of Philadelphia describes a unique schoolhouse in northern Pennsylvania, where the schoolmaster keeps his boys grinding steadily at their desks, but sometimes permits them to nibble from their lunch boxes as they work.

One day the pedagogue was instructing a class in arithmetic when he noticed that one pupil was devoting more attention to a piece of pie than to his lesson.

"William," commanded the stern mentor, "will you pay attention to the lesson?"

"I'm listening, sir," said the boy. "Listening, are you?" exclaimed the master. "Then you're listening with one ear and eating pie with the other!"—Harper's Weekly.

Sheep as Beasts of Burden.

In the northern part of India sheep are put to a use unthought of in European or American countries. They are made to serve as beasts of burden. The mountain paths along the foothills of the Himalayas are so precipitous that the sheep, more surefooted than larger beasts, are preferred as burden carriers. The load for each sheep is from sixteen to twenty pounds. The sheep are driven from village to village, with the wool still growing, and in each town the farmer shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheep with the grain which he receives in exchange. After his flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each sheep having on its back a small bag containing the purchased grain.

A SHREWD LITTLE GIRL.

Prompted a Question Which Saved an Old Woman's Life.

Elizabeth Janfield, afterward Lady Falkland, was called an "odd child." Sometimes her father, who was a judge, took her with him to court. On one of these occasions a woman was brought before him on a charge of witchcraft. It was said that she had bewitched two or three persons to death. The frightened creature when asked if this were so fell on her knees and, weeping, confessed that the accusations against her were true.

"Did you bewitch — to death?" asked the judge.

"Yes," was her reply.

"Did you come in the form of a black cat and breathe on him so that he languished away?"

"I did."

And then the judge heard a whisper at his ear, and his little daughter—she was only ten years old—begged him to ask the woman if she had bewitched John Symondes to death.

The question was put and immediately answered in the affirmative. How had she done it? Then she told one of her former stories, at which all the company laughed. The reason of the merriment was that John Symondes was the judge's brother-in-law and at that moment was standing near him in court. The judge then asked why she had made such a statement.

"Alas, sir, I knew him not," replied the woman. "I said so because you asked me."

"Are you no witch?"

"No. God knows I'm not."

"Nor did you ever see the devil?"

"No; never in all my life."

On further examination she said she had been told that if she did not confess she would be tortured until she did, but that if she admitted all the accusations mercy would be shown her. She was thereupon acquitted, and she owed her release and probably her life to the shrewdness of a little girl.

SPECULATION.

How It Acts as a Brake on the Fluctuation of Prices.

Speculation makes the change in prices gradual. There is not a sudden drop. It is impossible to secure absolute stability of prices, and speculation accomplishes the next best thing by putting a brake on fluctuations. It is the theory of those who denounce all forms of speculation that there is no relation between speculative prices and the law of supply and demand. But the main function of the exchanges is to make an absolute free market, with free competition between buyers and sellers. This compels minute regulation of prices. There is no speculation in potatoes, and the housewife will tell you that the expectation of a bad crop will put the price up so quickly that she will have suspicion of the honesty of her dealer. When a speculator on the cotton exchange sells July cotton at 10 1/2 cents a pound he is registering his belief based on a close study of conditions at the present time that before July 1 next cotton will not be worth 10 1/2 cents a pound. He and hundreds of others try to discount nature and anticipate events, and, as we have seen, the user of actual cotton utilizes this situation to his own advantage and security.

During the seventeenth century, one Edward Lloyd kept a coffee-house in Tower street, London, where several of the big merchants used to meet. Many of them would have ships at sea with rich cargoes facing the many uncertainties of voyages to and from the east, involving great loss if they did not arrive safely. These merchants developed a plan of each assuming a part of the other's risk. Each would write his name under the names of the ships of the other merchants, and it is here we find the origin of the modern system of underwriting, which is nothing more than a division of risk. Lloyd's has become a familiar name in every corner of the earth, but in 1768 it was denounced as a gambling house that ought to be suppressed.—John Paul Ryan in Metropolitan Magazine.

A Change of Name.

"Father," said Tommy Bardell of the William Henry Harrison grammar school, "you want to come next Saturday afternoon and see us play a game with the Oliver Wendell Holmes football team. We're going to do 'em up."

"Do you belong to a football team?" asked his father. "It is new to me."

"Do I?" exclaimed Tommy proudly. "Well, I reckon! I'm the quarterback of the 'Tornadoes'."

"The Tornadoes? Who are they?"

"That's the name of our school team."

"Humph! And you are going to play a game next Saturday, are you? Well, I'll go and see it."

The game took place according to announcement, and the Tornadoes were beaten by a score of 26 to 0.

"Tommy," said his father, overtaking him while he was on his way home, "what did you tell me was the name of your team?"

"The Tornadoes," answered the boy, "but we're going to change it to something else. We ain't even a fog!"—Youth's Companion.

Heart Power.

The weight of the blood expelled at each contraction of the left ventricle of the heart is about four ounces. The multiplication of this number gives us two and a quarter foot pounds—that is, a force capable of raising that number of pounds one foot high—as the work performed at each contraction of the left ventricle. In an adult person in good health there are performed some seventy-five such contractions per minute. Adding the work done by the right ventricle, which is about one-third that of the left, we find that the force expended by the human heart in twenty-four hours would suffice to raise 120 tons weight one foot high.—New York American.

For Your Sunday Dinner.

try the following delightful desert:
1-2 cup English Walnut meats.
1-2 doz. figs, cut up fine.
1 10c. package JELLO-O, any flavor.
Dissolve the JELLO-O in a pint of boiling water. When cool and just commencing to thicken stir in the figs and nuts. Served with Whipped cream. Delicious. The walnuts, figs and JELLO-O can be bought at any good grocery. This makes enough desert for a large family and is very economical.
