THE N. C. PRESS ASSOCIATION.

A LETTER FROM THE EDITOR.

Says He Thinks Every Editor at the Convention Would Like to Carry Charlotte Home.

Charlotte, N. C., April 23.

The editors of North Carolina, at least a considerable bunch of them, are doing Charlotte to a turn, and the "Queen City" is making the job a very easy one. The Press Association has had no more delightful meeting than this, and they have not been better quartered than at the Selwyn, nowhere received a more cordial welcome than Charlotte is bestowing.

The first day's session of the association was of unusual interest. There were three addresses of welcome, by Mayor Franklin for the city, by Mr. E. R. Preston for the business men, and by Mr. W. C. Dowd for the city press. These were fittingly responded to by Maj. H. A. London, of the association.

Then the association took up its regular program, first hearing the admiral address of its president, Mr. A. Johnson, then interesting essays on pertinent subjects by Rev. J. O. Atkinson, Messrs. J. Z. Green, R. F. Beasley and H. C. Martin. The non-partizan side of journalism in the State was so emphasized in some of these essays that Mr. Josephus Daniels made a short but pointed reply to that point showing that the strictly partizan paper was no less filling a high and important mission than is the non-partizan paper or the religious paper.

An important feature of the day was an address by Hon. A. L. Lawshee, third assistant postmaster general, on the new postal regulation affecting newspapers and general features of the postal law bearing upon it. His address was indeed instructive and the effort he is making to rid the postal department of much abuse of the second class postage privilege will have the co-operation of North Carolina editors. Mr. Lawshee was frequently applauded.

The pleasure features of the day were a car ride in the afternoon over the entire city and suburbs and which Charlotte's splendid development and progress could be seen. At night there was a delightful concert by the young ladies of the Presbyterian college, but these and other interesting things seen and learned about Charlotte will be mentioned more fully later.

Charlotte is a great town and every editor here would carry it home with him if he could, but while that is impossible he will carry with him a memory of a most pleasant sojourn in her borders and a heart filled with pride that we have such a town in North Carolina.

Mr. Edwards has also written a big musical finale for the show which introduces such popular airs as "When Tommy Atkins Marries Dolly Grey," "Good-bye Dear Old Broadway," and the song from Hip, Hip, Hurrah, which created such a sensation in New York "Ivy."

MADE MANY CONVERTS IN AYDEN

GOVERNOR GLENN SPOKE WITH GREAT POWER.

Over a Thousand People Heard Him—Another Tremendous Audience was Addressed at Night.

Ayden, N. C., April 23.—When Governor Glenn spoke at Ayden on State prohibition in Pitt county. More than 2,000 people were present. A horse-back brigade and a large number of wagons, buggies and carriages met the Governor and escorted him into town.

Appropriate music was provided, and after a welcome by Rev. Mr. Phillips, prayer by Rev. W. C. Tyree, D. D., and an eloquent introduction by ex-Governor Jarvis, Governor Glenn made the most powerful address on prohibition ever heard in this county. At the conclusion of his address, he asked all who would pledge themselves to vote for prohibition to raise their hands, and almost the entire audience responded.

Seldom has the Governor had a more royal reception than at Ayden and he made converts by the hundreds.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va. April 23, 1908. Bra'street's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity:

Trade conditions generally continue about as they have for the past few weeks. In shoes, dry goods and notions some filling in orders are noted. Jobbers of groceries and provisions report ordering fair. Slight increase in demand for lumber is noted and sale of manufactured wood-ware shows an increase. North Carolina jobbing centers trade conditions are about the same as at Richmond. Shipments of strawberries to northern markets have commenced, this crop will be well up to the average in quantity and quality if existing weather conditions continue. Retail trade in the large towns and cities shows improvement, but in the rural districts trade is dull especially in manufacturing localities. The planting of cotton continues and farmers are preparing for a full average of tobacco. Building and construction work show more activity. Favorable weather conditions are reported throughout the district. Collections continue backward.

School Closing.

The closing exercises of the school near Mr. O. L. Joyner's, at the Forbes' school house, will take place next Monday night and Tuesday. The friends of the school are looking forward to the event with great pleasure. The program promises a rare treat to those who attend. The community would be glad to see their friends present.

To Play Return Engagement.

The theatre goers of Greenville are glad to learn that "When Smith Came Home" is to play a return engagement here Monday night. This company was here two months ago and everyone who saw it was delighted. It is said a great many new winning features have been added.

Even if you do not usually attend and enjoy concerts, attend the orphan children's concert on 29th. You will enjoy it, and you will at the same time be aiding a good work.

JOHN SMITH.

Transferred to other languages, the plain name "John Smith," seems to climb the ladder of respectability. In Latin it is Johannes Smithus; the Italians smooth it off into Giovanni Smithi; the Spaniards render it Juan Smithus; the Dutchman adopts it as Hans Schmidt; the French flatten it into Jean Smeets; the Russian turns it into Jonloff Smittowski; at Canton John Smith becomes Jihon Shimiti; the Icelanders say he is Jon Smithson; among the Tasaroras he becomes Tom Qa Smitia; in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmittiweiski; among the Welsh mountaineers they call him Jihon Schmidt; at Mexico his name is written Jontli F'Smitri; in Greece he turns to Ion Sinikton, and in Turkey he is almost lost in Yoc Seef.

Rare Stamps.

In stamp collecting the thing that counts is the rarity and not the age of a specimen. It frequently happens even nowadays that a stamp has an exceedingly brief "life" or is for some reason suddenly "called in," and the result is an unexpected scarcity of specimens, followed by a rapid rise in market value. Many a cute stamp collector has enriched himself by a patient study of market probabilities and by acting promptly on discovering a "good thing."

Dr. B. F. Dixon.

FRIDAY APRIL 22, 1908.

A glance at the editorial pages will convince you that the editors are away.

Just think what a difference it would make if we were without the dust every day.

Look out tomorrow for some of the ideas which the editors get at the association.

This is a good day for spring poetry. If you have the desire to write do not make your poem too long.

Bryan drew large crowds to hear him in New York this week. He is preaching on the Brotherhood of man.

According to estimates the trip around the world will cost twenty-seven million dollars. That is quite an outing for Uncle Sam's boys.

We may expect many laws concerning forestry now. But did you ever stop to think that most of the forests are already in the hands of the wealthy?

Raleigh papers did not get here till last night. Perhaps a complaint would do some good as there is no reason why they should not get here on the early train.

Now President Roosevelt declares that he will veto the Naval bill unless it suits him. The fly sat upon the axle of the wheel and said, "What a dust I do raise."

According to the Charlotte papers the addresses at the Association are excellent. That is just what we expect of newspaper men. Charlotte is giving them a royal time.

Two reasons are given for the failure in Raleigh to carry the recent election: The liquor element, and those who oppose the city government. There is a good suggestion in this for those who want to make advancement in county improvements.

Prohibition and the Grand Jury.

As an illustration of the way effective prohibition operates is fit for comment the recent experience of Schley county, Georgia, one of the oldest and most prosperous counties in the State. When its Criminal Court met the other day the Grand Jury met in due form only to return with the following report:

"We congratulate the citizens of Schley county upon the fact that not a single case has been presented to us at this term of court that would warrant a bill, and that we attribute same largely to the effects of State prohibition."

Here is concrete evidence of the fact that taxes that are paid by liquor have to be balanced by the taxes paid for crime, as well as being in themselves a tax upon the citizenship, the industry and the happiness of the community.—Exchange.

HOTEL WAS NOT HAUNTED.

But a Defect in the Heating System Made It Appear So.

One of the great apartment hotels in New York was opened with much enthusiasm some twenty years ago, every room being taken for a year or term of years. After a little while every room was vacated, owing to the uncanny noises that pervaded the entire building night and day. Investigation revealed nothing.

Pretty soon the janitor and his family began to talk of "hants" and "ghosties." The tenants took up the yarns, embellished them, spread them abroad, and the fate of that house was settled. Rents dropped amazingly. Flats worth $100 a month were offered for $45.

Everybody moved out, and the house (the best at that time in the city) was put on the market by its disgusted proprietor. Nobody cared to live with ghosts.

One day a man who made a hobby of air, water and steam circulation (he was a son of one of the marshals of France under Napoleon) said to the owner, "Give me half and I will fill your house with refined tenants in less than five months."

A contract was drawn up. M. Creque (for that was his name) found that an error had been made in the "return" system of the heating plant, which caused a surging and cracking in the pipes and a violent water hammer in the radiators. This was remedied in a week.

The neighbors were called in. The story was passed from one to another, and as visions of "hants" disappeared and rents were very moderate the house was quickly filled. Thus by a little knowledge a great loss was turned into a big profit.—New York Press.

Tipping.

"If people only used common sense about tipping, everybody would be better off," said the head waiter in a Walnut street hostelry. "Now, I believe that waiters should be tipped, but the man who over-tips is just as much to blame as the tight wad who doesn't cough up a cent. The proper amount of a tip is 10 per cent of the amount of the check, with a minimum of 10 cents—that is, if the meal comes to less than a dollar give the waiter 10 cents, but otherwise stick to the 10 per cent rule. The man who tips a half dollar on a ninety cent check is known to the waiter as a man who doesn't know the social ropes, and he is consequently looked down upon by the waiters, who do not serve him as well as they do the man who gives up but 10 cents. The waiters know but two classes of people—'stiffs' and 'God's people'—and you can easily guess who the tip-pers are and which class gets the service."—Philadelphia Record.

That Held Her.

"The most eloquent speech I ever heard contained only four words," said Sociologist Snodgrass. "Ginger Magonigle had brought his best geyl to the grand civic ball of the east side gentlemen's sons terpsichorean coterie, ticket admitting lady and gent, including hat check, 50 cents. The geyl, fascinated by a better waltzer, abandoned her escort and danced three times with the stranger. As they were beginning their fourth waltz they were stopped by the hand of Ginger Magonigle, which clutched the arm of the geyl. Gazing deep into her eyes and with a voice in which were mingled surprise, self pity, reproach, resentment and menace, he exclaimed:

"Sa-a-ay, who brung yer?"—Harper's Weekly.

Washington's Shyness.

The Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale in his "Memories of a Hundred Years" says: "Our dear old Josiah Quincy, college president when I was an undergraduate, told me that he was one of John Hancock's aids when Washington came to Boston in 1789. When he was ninety years old Mr. Quincy told me that in one way and another he frequently saw Washington in the days when he was in Boston. Quincy had to render him fitting courtesies of the state. He said that, although Washington had then had very wide experience in life, there appeared, mixed in with the manners of a perfect gentleman, a certain shyness such as you might see in any man who lived a good deal without the society of other people."

Your Politico-Historical "If."

A pig, as the most voracious historians relate, really caused the war of 1812. A peaceably inclined Rhode Island farmer lost so much time in extricating the said pig from a fence where it was caught on election day that the town chose a war representative to the legislature by one vote. The legislature in turn elected a war senator by one vote. The United States senate contained a majority of one for war and hostilities began.—Exchange.

BORN WITHOUT FEAR.

Yet Minds of Children Are Made Bogy Houses by Parents.

"My little boy is naturally so timid." "My little girl is so easily frightened. We are trying to cure her of it," but she was born with that sensitive nature, and we have to be very careful." So fond parents are sometimes heard to say when a child shows some special form of fear.

Yet, according to Clara Louise Burnham, who writes in Appleton's Monthly on "How to Keep Your Child From Fear," almost all children are born without fear, and fear is carefully instilled into them by parents and nurses.

Nature, she says, generally hands the child to the parents physically perfect, and still more often she hands him over full of optimism and faith. "Nothing is too good for me," is his natural attitude. Then comes perhaps his first fall. Straightway the anxious mother rushes to him with a cry and picks him up "with such manner and words that he screams with terror," and so the instilling of fear goes on.

"I'm afraid," begins too many of the remarks parents make to their children, says this author. Christian parents constantly disobey the Bible, which is full of commands to "Fear not," "Rejoice always," and while professing to believe the Bible undermine the child's native confidence by teaching it that the world is beset with "snares and pitfalls to health and happiness." So the child becomes, as it were, mentally slouching and stoop shouldered instead of facing life, as he was born to do, with an upright, joyous carriage.

Fear, disaster, sickness should not be talked of in the presence of children. Even though they may not seem to understand it at the time, it sinks into their little minds. It is a disturbing, a distorting influence. Even worse in its influence is the mistake of the anxious mother who is always imagining that her child is ill. "Are you sure you feel all right, dear? Haven't you a pain anywhere?" It need not take much of such insistence to make the healthiest child, if not physically ill, at least nervously upset. The unwise nurse does no end of harm. "She may be kind and loving," says Mrs. Burnham, "and yet consider the mysterious bogy man and the obvious policeman her legitimate allies in enforcing a paralyzed obedience." And so fresh elements of fear are introduced into the child's horizon.

Another thing this writer strongly denounces is the "strange tradition" that into every pantomime or play for the entertainment of children monstrosities must be introduced—cardboard giants, weird figures with goggle eyes and awful grins—which strike terror into the baby hearts. She makes a special remonstrance concerning Captain Hook and his pirate band in "that otherwise charming play, 'Peter Pan.' No child under twelve should have his nervous system shocked by these gentlemen and their awful captain," she says, and she describes how at one performance she saw a child with its head buried in its mother's lap, begging piteously to know if "the pirates had gone."

A Little to One Side.

"You think you have unusual presence of mind?" said Mrs. Jenks to her husband in a tone which was somewhat tinged by the recollection of her recent wrongs connected with a forgotten basket of kindlings.

"I do in reason," said Mr. Jenks boldly, turning his back to the wood box.

"Humph!" said Mrs. Jenks. "Well, while you've been two hours and a half at the store getting me a yeast cake I've been reading the paper a few minutes to rest my back after doing a lot of work no woman ought to have put on her, and I've been reading of a man that really had presence of mind. What should you do first off if you saw a man fall out of a balloon way up in the air?"

"First off," said Mr. Jenks, turning a calm gaze on his inquisitor, "I should wait to see where he landed, meanwhile standing from under if possible."—Youth's Companion.

Bills and Coins.

All kinds of guesses have been made as to the number of one dollar bills that would be required to equal the weight of a five dollar gold piece. The guesses range, as a rule, from 50 to 500, and when a humorist in the subtreasury asks a visitor which he would prefer, all the five dollar gold pieces he could lift or the same weight in one dollar bills, the visitor immediately votes for bills, imagining, as he does, that the proportion will be about ten to one in favor of one dollar bills as against the gold. As a matter of fact, there is very little difference between the weight of one five dollar gold piece and five one dollar bills. To be exact, just six and a half bills will balance the five dollar gold piece.

Deafness Cannot be cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CREENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Kodol for Dyspepsia has helped thousands of people who have had stomach trouble. This is what one man says of it: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen—In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. I could not digest anything I ate and in the spring of 1902 I bought a bottle of Kodol and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic. May you live long and prosper. Yours very truly, C. N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., Aug. 27, 1906. A woman seldom laughs at a man's jokes unless she has an ax to grind.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup—the cough syrup that tastes nearly as good as maple sugar and which children like so well to take. Unlike nearly all other cough remedies, it does not constipate, but on the other hand it acts promptly yet gently on the bowels, through which the cold is forced out of the system, and at the same time it allays inflammation. Always use Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Philosophy gets a jolt when you try to use it on yourself.

To have perfect health we must have perfect digestion, and it is very important not to permit of any delay the moment the stomach feels out of order. Take something at once that you know will promptly and unfailingly assist digestion. There is nothing better than Kodol for dyspepsia, indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas and nervous headache. Kodol is a natural digestant and will digest what you eat. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

A LESSON IN ECONOMY

A STENOGRAPHER in a prominent business house, who operated a typewriter where the carriage had to be raised to see what was written, wasted eight minutes in one hour in lifting that carriage.

She was employed eight hours per day. On this basis she lost 64 minutes that day.

She would lose in one year of 300 working days 320 hours.

She was paid $2.50 per day for eight hours' work, 35.7 cents per hour.

Her employer, therefore, would have paid her $114.24 in one year, for which he received no equivalent.

There were ten stenographers employed in this office, and if they all lost the same amount of time, he would have paid in one year $1,142.40 for which he enjoyed no benefit.

In ten years he would have paid $11,424.00 for nothing.

Every business man using a typewriter that does not write in sight, but on which you have to raise the carriage to see the writing, is losing money in the same proportion.

WHITMAN'S WILDRIDE

It Was Worth Three Stars to the American Flag.

SAVED US VAST TERRITORY.

The Perilous Journey of Four Thousand Miles From Oregon to Washington Made by a Brave Man and the Results Which Followed in Its Wake.

The ride of Marcus Whitman was over snow capped mountains and along dark ravines, traveled only by savage men. It was a plunge through icy rivers and across trackless prairies, a ride of 4,000 miles across a continent in the dead of winter to save a mighty territory to the Union.

Compared with this what was the feat of Paul Revere, who rode eighteen miles on a calm night in April to arouse a handful of sleeping patriots and thereby save the powder at Concord?

Whitman's ride saved three stars to the American flag. It was made in 1842.

In 1792, during the first administration of Washington, Captain Robert Gray, who had already carried the American flag around the globe, discovered the mouth of the Columbia river. He sailed several miles up the great stream and landed and took possession in the name of the United States.

In 1805, under Jefferson's administration, this vast territory was explored by Captains Lewis and Clark, whose reports were popular reading for our grandfathers, but the extent and value of this distant possession were very slightly understood, and no attempt at colonization was made save the establishment of the fur trading station of Astoria in 1811.

Strangely enough, England, too, claimed this same territory by virtue of rights ceded to it by Russia and also by the Vancouver surveys of 1792. The Hudson's Bay company established a number of trading posts and filled the country with adventurous fur traders. So here was a vast territory, as large as New England and the state of Indiana combined, which seemed to be without any positive ownership. But for Marcus Whitman it would have been lost to the Union.

It was in 1833 that Dr. Whitman and a man of the name of Spaulding, with their young wives, the first white women that ever crossed the Rocky mountains, entered the valley of the Columbia and founded a mission of the American board. They had been sent out to Christianize the Indians, but Whitman was also to build a state.

He was at this time thirty-five years old. In his journeys to and fro for the mission he soon saw the vast possibilities of the country, and he saw, too, that the English were already apprised of this and were rapidly pouring into the territory. Under the terms of the treaties of 1818 and 1825 it was the tacit belief that whichever nationality settled and organized the splendid territory would hold it. If England and the English fur traders had been successful in their plans, the three great states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho would now constitute a part of British Columbia. But it was not destined to be.

In the fall of 1842 it looked as if there would be a great impouring of English into the territory, and Dr. Whitman took the alarm. There was no time to lose. The authorities at Washington must be warned. Hastily bidding his wife adieu, Dr. Whitman started on his hazardous journey. The perils, hardships and delays he encountered on the way we can but faintly conceive. His feet were frozen, he nearly starved, and once he came very near to losing his life. He kept pushing right on, and at the end of five terrible months he reached Washington.

He arrived there a worn, bearded, strangely picturesque figure, clad entirely in buckskin and fur, a typical man of the prairies. He asked audience of President Tyler and Secretary of State Webster, and it was accorded him. All clad as he was, with his frozen limbs, just in from his 4,000 mile ride, Whitman appeared before the two great men to plead for Oregon.

His statement was a revelation to the administration. Previous to Whitman's visit it was the general idea in congress that Oregon was a barren, worthless country, fit only for wild beasts and wild men. He opened the eyes of the government to the limitless wealth and splendid resources of that western territory. He told them of its great rivers and fertile valleys, its mountains covered with forests and its mines filled with precious treasures. He showed them that it was a country worth keeping and that it must not fall into the hands of the English. He spoke as a man inspired, and his words were heeded.

What followed—the organization of companies of emigrants, the rapid settlement of the territory and the treaty made with Great Britain in 1846 by which the forty-ninth parallel was made the boundary line west of the Rocky mountains—are matters of history.

The foresight and the heroism of one man and his gallant ride had saved three great states to the Union.—Omaha World-Herald.

Jack—in the oriental world a girl never sees her intended husband until she is married. Floss—How odd! In this part of the world she seldom sees him afterward.—New York Globe.

WOODEN COLLAR BUTTONS.

Produced in Enormous Numbers For Special Uses.

Collar buttons are made not only of various metals, but also and in great numbers of wood.

Round sticks of wood are fed into machines which turn the buttons and cut them off automatically. Taken from the turning machines, the collar buttons thus made are placed, thousands of them at once, in a barrel shaped receptacle containing japan varnish, in which they are rolled and tumbled until each is completely coated.

To be dried they are placed, thousands at a time, in a similar drying apparatus, in which they are rolled and tumbled again to keep them from sticking together until they are thoroughly dry, and then they are the finished buttons, which have never been touched by hand.

Wooden collar buttons are sold to the trade by the great gross, but they are not counted out in such numbers, for even machine counting would take some time and cost money, so the weight of a great gross being known, discovered by actual counting and weighing, they weigh out the buttons for packing, such and such a weight of them making a great gross. In this way they practically count out 1,728 buttons at a time, that number being in the trade the wooden collar button unit.

These collar buttons of wood are sold to dealers in laundry supplies and to manufacturers of shirt waists. Altogether the number used for these purposes is enormous, amounting to many millions annually.

Wooden collar buttons are one of the minor products of factories making a specialty of turned wood goods.—New York Sun.

Appearances Deceitful.

It was high noon when he entered the crowded restaurant. He stood fully six feet three inches in height, was built in proportion and must have weighed at least 250 pounds. As he strode down between the rows of tables he looked as if he could eat up the house. He took a seat beside a diminutive, fussy little man with a bald head and chop whiskers, who was bravely and successfully polishing off a sirloin steak, with onions. The little fellow, with his napkin tightly wedged under his chin and his mouth full of dinner, looked up in wonder at his gigantic side partner and then down at the frail cane bottomed chair, which creaked and groaned piteously under its immense weight. But the big fellow took no notice of the little one. When the waitress approached him he gave his order in businesslike fashion.

"Bring me," he said in a falsetto voice, "a cup of weak tea and a couple of doughnuts." — New York Times.

Highest Lake In the World.

On the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains is a lake known to tourists as Lake Tahoe. It is the highest body of fresh water in considerable volume known to this or any other country, for the geodetic survey reports its level as nearly 8,000 feet above the level of the sea. Its temperature never rises higher than 40 degrees F., and it runs off into the Truckee river, which discharges itself into the lakes of Nevada, that have no outlet, but whose waters are drunk up by the thirsty alkali soils of the Great American desert. While it is a favorite resort for fishermen, its waters offer but one kind of fish, the lake trout, as locally known, but in fact the Salmo fontinalis of eastern streams, only larger, stronger and more prolific in their development.—Exchange.

Not Only Could, but Did.

Sometimes there is a drop of regret in the cup of joy served by fate to the husband of a brilliant talker. "I should think it would be a privilege to sit at the table with your wife three times a day," said one of Mrs. Grandon's ardent feminine admirers.

"Only twice a day," said Mr. Grandon, with a bow. "I do not go home at noon."

"Too bad!" said the admirer. "We could not get on without her at the club, I am sure. Why, I believe she could talk intelligently on a thousand topics!"

"She can—and does," said Mr. Grandon, and with another bow he slipped out just as his wife appeared.—Youth's Companion.

If You Doubt It, Try It.

A man once backed himself for a large amount, which he subsequently lost, to move an ordinary brick attached to two miles of cord along a level road outside Chichester. He failed to move the brick, and it may roughly be estimated that the friction of the cord on the road increased the weight of the brick (about seven pounds) and cord to a dead weight of not far short of a ton.—Fry's Magazine.

What Is the First Law of Nature?

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," answers Johnny Jones.

Correct, Johnny. Go right up to the head of the class. This law applies to a community as well as to an individual. Under the severe operation of this law a town that does not take care of itself, that does not look after its own interests first, that does not look out for Number One, soon falls into a bad way.

That's just as sure as shootin'. It's the law.

We must obey the law or take the consequences. If we in this town and community do not work together for our own good, the mutual good of all of us, in all lines of business, we have only ourselves to blame if the place slides down the inclined plane instead of climbing the golden ladder of prosperity and progress.

For instance, if we do our retail trading with big city stores that have no interest in us except to get our money and keep it, local trade must suffer and shrink, town property values and farm land values must decrease—and there you are!

Johnny Jones, who knows the law, is a wise lad, but how about his papa and mamma?

Do they obey the first law as applied to the old home place? If they don't, Johnny may have to apply the law to himself when he grows up. He may have to go to the city to make a living.

Let's all think it over.

A WONDERLAND.

New Zealand's Belt of Geysers of Boiling Water.

If one can imagine a furious and active volcano with a crater a thousand miles in extent, sunk level with the earth and thinly covered with a screen of soil, one has some idea of the awe-inspiring "wonderland" of New Zealand's north island. You cannot poke a stick into the ground without starting a boiling spring, and wherever you turn the ground is fairly alive with geysers of boiling water—steam jets and blowholes, with quivering volcanoes and gurgling "mud pots," all colored fantastically with rainbow hues, ranging from brilliant sapphire to vivid scarlet. Strauger still, the entire face of this region is constantly changing in shape and color, and there are hot springs here stretching in a continuous chain for 300 miles. The ground throbs and quivers with volcanic activity, and set in the midst of it all are native Maori villages of surpassing interest, a strange race of magnificent savages, who, although they have been cannibals within the memory of man, are now a highly intelligent race and actually send representatives to the parliament in Wellington.

The native women, gorgeous in garments of crimson, green and purple, are forever puffing stolidly at big pipes and going blither and thither about their household work with the quaintest of babies slung across their backs. This reminds me that domestic work in this strange region is made light indeed for white housewives as well as the Maori women. Every garden and back yard has its hot water provided by nature.

And when these easy going people grow hungry the mother prepares a meat pudding or a joint and drops it into a convenient pot of natural boiling water in the earth, and in a few minutes it is cooked. The same conveniences are still more in evidence on washing day. Stepping carefully through a tangle of boiling geysers and gurgling mud pots, one suddenly comes upon a great collection of native women and girls doing their washing in a vast smoking lake big enough to have steamers on it.—W. T. Fitz-Gerald in St. Nicholas.

LIVING PROOF OF IT.

How Marriage Develops the Best Traits in a Man.

"By the way, Mary," said Mr. Winterbottom, "young Ascot asked for my advice today about getting married."

Mrs. Winterbottom looked up from the pile of socks that she was darning. "And what advice did you give him, John?" she said.

"Er—hand me them matches, will you? My pipe's out," said Winterbottom.

She transferred the mound of mending from her lap to a chair, rose and, taking the matches to her husband, quietly resumed her work again.

"Well," continued Mr. Winterbottom, wallowing in his big chair, "I told Ascot to go ahead and marry at once. I told him what I have always believed—namely, that nothing develops the best traits in a man's character like matrimony. Nothing, I told him, so splendidly brings into blossom those seeds of unselfishness, of self sacrifice, that lie dormant in even the best of bachelors. The bachelor thinks only of himself. The married man forgets himself in the protecting care that he must eternally lavish upon wife and babes. Coarse, selfish brutes of bachelors I have seen transmuted by marriage into a fine gold of such self forgetfulness and tender consideration, such delicate solicitude and courtesy—er—er—"

Mr. Winterbottom had been slapping his pockets and frowning. Now he stopped abruptly. "Here's my pipe out," he said, "and I forgot to bring down that pouch again. Do you mind, Mary? It's on the dressing table in the fourth story front."

Mrs. Winterbottom, with pleasant alacrity, hastened from the room.—New York Press.

Her Eloquent Glance.

On February 6th. my kiln was burned and the prompt adjustment made by you on February 17th. enabled me to quickly begin operating my mill again.

The handling of my loss by you was pleasing to me.

Please write another policy on my new kiln, and send it to me by return mail.

Yours truly,
