TAX WITHOUT REPRESENTATION.

DISTURBING QUESTION AT NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Whites Prefer Disfranchisement Rather Than Put Ballot in Hands of Negroes—Good Place for Constitutional Amendment.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—For several years more and more attention has been attracted to the fact that at the seat of the Federal government there reside something over 300,000 people who pay taxes, directly or indirectly, but who are absolutely without representation in the tax levying body. They have nothing to say as to who shall make their laws nor any voice in the selection of the executive officers of the municipality. As taxation without representation was one of the main grievances leading to the revolt of the American colonies, thousands of people have expressed the conviction that the situation in the District of Columbia was repugnant to American institutions, even though the people of the district have not themselves loudly complained.

It is true there always has been a strong minority sentiment here in favor of the election of municipal officers and representation in congress, but there stands one great obstacle in the way of their making any progress. Nearly one-third of the population of Washington are negroes, many of them among the most ignorant and depraved of their race. As there never has been any chance that congress would confer the franchise upon the white inhabitants of the district and deny it to the negroes, sentiment against suffrage has always prevailed. Although the population of the national capital is cosmopolitan, in sentiment it is a Southern city and it is a fact often commented upon that northern people coming here soon acquire the Southern view point on the race question.

People who have resented being denied the right to vote but who have been unwilling to share the franchise with the negroes have consoled themselves in the belief that the present system gave them the best government of any municipality in America. The purity and excellence of the district government has been a boast for years; and the present president of the board of district commissioners has made it the theme of numerous chautauqua lectures. But now there are open charges of graft in the municipal government, a public hearing having disclosed that the charges were not without foundation. It was a sad shock to those who have declaimed so loudly about the purity of the district government.

Another boast has been that politics never entered into the municipal affairs of the national capital. But now it is disclosed that the Republican commissioner and the Democratic commissioner have quarrelled—though possible not over party politics—and that the minor employers are divided into two hostile camps.

When the advocates of district suffrage made their annual fight in congress next winter they may have a better chance of success.

We appeal to the merchants to support Ashley Horne. No business man has been named by the Democrats of North Carolina in 60 years.

TO MAKE THE LAW EFFECTIVE.

A Charlotte Citizen Draws a Bill that Hits the Drinker.

The following bill, supplemental to the one ratified by the people last week, has been drafted by a citizen of Charlotte, to be submitted to the Legislature next winter, to the end of making prohibition really effective in North Carolina:

A Bill to be Entitled An Act to Prohibit the Drinking or Use of Intoxicating Liquors Except for Medical Purposes.

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact:

Section 1. That any person who shall drink imbibe by suction, hyperdermically inject, or otherwise introduce into his system, any quantity whatsoever, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, or intoxicating bitters, or any fluid which contains a sufficient quantity or percentage of alcohol to produce intoxication, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be punished by fine or both, in the discretion of the court.

Section 2. That the smell or odor of any of the liquors mentioned in the preceding section upon the breath of any person shall be prima facie a violation of this act, and evidence thereof shall be sufficient to sustain a conviction hereunder.

Section 3. That the place where the smell or odor of such liquor is discovered or detected upon the breath of any person shall be conclusively presumed and held to be the place where the said liquors were drunk, and the venue of any indictment under this act may be laid accordingly.

Section 4. That this act shall not apply to any person who is bona fide sick, and uses such liquor upon the prescription of a regularly licensed physician, whose patient such person is at the time; nor to the bona fide patient of any regularly licensed dentist, who uses such liquor upon the prescription of such dentist, the patient being in the dental chair under treatment at the time; nor to the pastor, officers or communicants of any church or religious society while engaged in the celebration of sacrament or ceremony in which such liquors may be used.

Section 5. That this act shall be in force from and after its ratification.

This bill, if enacted into a law, will make it compulsory upon those guardians of Old Jones and the niggers, who voted against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, at the recent election, to drink as they vote, and at the same time they will have the satisfaction of knowing they are observing the law of the land. This law will distinctly meet the argument that "prohibition does not prohibit." It will go to the root of the matter. The real evil to be legislated against is not the manufacture or sale of liquor. Millions of gallons of it may be made and sold and no harm would result if it were used to rub with, or in paints, or in the arts and sciences. It is the drinking of the stuff that makes wives widows and children orphans, and fills up the asylums, poor-houses and jails.

If the manufacture and sale of the poison is to continue there must be some body to buy it. The real thing to prohibit is the purchase and drinking of it. If there were no people to drink it its manufacture and sale would die a natural death.

Another important matter

about this law is that it is not affected by inter-State commerce.

Under the law recently voted on liquor may still be shipped into the State from beyond its borders, but if it is made a crime to drink liquor, it matters not where the liquor comes from, inter-State commerce is no defence to an indictment against the fellow who "introduces it into his system."

All who are in favor of this most excellent measure will please hold up their hands.—Charlotte Observer.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., June 2, 1908.

Saturday afternoon while partly dozing and partly with thoughts wandering over what had been, was and what might be with now and then a gentle whirl in our big arm chair, the quietude of our surroundings were broken in upon by the deep bass tones of a man's voice, who asked us in the office. There he invited us to accompany him just beyond the limits of the town where awaited others who would extend a glad welcome. We accepted the invitation, at once donned our coat, put an extra twist in our neckwear, then put forward on our journey. Soon we arrived upon a scene deep down in the dismal forest of Swift Creek swamp where a maiden blushing fair and a gallant youth soon made known the earnest and sincere desire of our presence. Presenting the proper document we in short order in the presence of three young gents, the croaking frog and now and then the hoot of a lonesome owl, united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Mr. Amos McLawhorn and Miss Sarah Braxton. It was an unusual proceeding, something entirely foreign to any similar occasion, yet happy were they in the conclusion thereof and glad they made us with a wedding fee as we all stood beneath the giant oak in that dismal swamp and united two hearts which for all time to come will beat as one.

Miss Marie Burnette left Saturday morning for her home in Rocky Mount after spending sometime in Ayden with her sister, Mrs. O. C. Noble.

A protracted meeting is in progress at the Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Tripp, is assisted by Rev. Mr. Ormond, of Durham. Large crowds attend and much interested is manifested.

Mrs. W. E. Hooks is real sick at her home on Third street. W. S. Blount, G. C. Moore and W. J. Hemby are off to Raleigh as witnesses in the Federal court this week.

Miss Janie Kittrell, of Winterville, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Guy Taylor, for the past few days.

Tom Dawson, of Grifton, is here on a visit to his sisters. Irish potatoes are getting a move on. Right many have been shipped from here during the past few days. It seems a little out of order that potatoes and cotton should both be on the railroad platform at the same time awaiting shipment.

Mrs. Louis Worthington died at the home near here Sunday night.

One of our Greenville visitors the other day was delighted to run up with that clever gentleman, J. A. L. Templeton, whom he had not seen for sometime. The visitor feared that friend Templeton had passed away from his long quietness, but was glad to find him hale and hearty.

HOW THE CANDIDATES STAND.

Later Returns Change Former Figures—Craig Still Leads.

Later returns from primaries held last week makes some changes in the standing of the candidates for governor. The gains for each candidate last week were Kitchin 54.41, Craig 22.29; Horne 16.30; bringing up the total vote of each to date as follows: Craig 259.17; Kitchin 229.80; Horne 89.03. This still leaves Craig in the lead with a fraction less than 30 votes. But there are 27 more counties to speak, and they may do much upsetting to claims.

County Democratic Convention.

At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of Pitt county held this day, it was ordered that Democratic primaries be held on Saturday, the 6th day of June, 1908, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to a county convention to be held in Greenville, on Thursday, June 11th, 1908 at 12 o'clock m., at which delegates will be appointed to represent the county in the State, Congressional and Judicial conventions of the Democratic party.

The several townships are entitled to elect the following number of delegates and alternates, to wit:—

Beaverdam, 3; Belvoir, 2; Bethel, 7; Carolina, 6; Chicod, 16; Contentnea, 17; Falkland, 7; Farmville, 6; Greenville, 20; Pacoletus, 5; Swift Creek, 6.

This 21st day of May, 1908.

How the Wards Voted.

Today the board of aldermen met to canvass the returns of the election held Monday in the several wards. It was found that the candidates had received the following vote:

First ward—J. B. White 36. Second ward—W. A. Bowen 45. Third ward—E. B. Higgs and D. W. Hardee 34 each. Fourth ward—E. A. Moye, Sr., 44, F. J. Forbes 1. Fifth ward—W. S. Moye 41.

The above shows that not two-thirds of the registered voters of the town took part in the election.

All kinds of Democrats will vote for Horne. He has no enemies.

W. C. Hines is fitting up a new cafe in one store of the Brady building.

C. L. Latham, of Washington City, is here on a visit to relatives at his old home.

E. H. Thomas, E. H. Shelburn and W. H. Dail, Jr., went to Williamston today.

Miss Virginia Hart, of Southampton county, Virginia, is visiting her brother, J. N. Hart.

Rev. J. H. Griffith, of Kingston, who had been spending a few days here, returned home today.

Mrs. C. T. Munford and son Charlie, and nephew Robert Lee, left Monday evening for Charlotte.

Secretary of State J. Bryan Grimes, who was here yesterday, left on the evening train for Raleigh.

Prof. G. E. Lineberry, of Winterville, was in town yesterday on his return from Raleigh where he had been to attend a meeting of the trustees of the blind institution.

As a manufacturer but few, if any, men are furnishing employment to more labor than does Ashley Horne in the cotton factories, fertilizer factories and the various other industries with which he is associated. We Democrats have never nominated a manufacture for Governor.

Democratic Primaries.

The Democratic executive committee have called the primaries to meet at the various voting places in Pitt county, Saturday June 6th, 1908, at 2 o'clock p. m. Let every "Kitchin Man" remember that unless he attends the primary at his voting place he will have no voice whatever in saying who will be the next governor of North Carolina.

E. A. Moye Jr., Pr. s.

Pitt county Kitchin Club.

J. L. Fleming, Sec. y.

If elected, Mr. Horne will be Governor, and he will not use the great office as a stepping-stone to something higher.

Daughters of Confederacy.

The George B. Sigletary Chapter D. C. will meet with Mrs. T. J. Jarvis tomorrow afternoon, June 3rd, from 5 to 6 o'clock, in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. Every member of the chapter is cordially invited to be present.

Stand by your neighbor. Vote for Ashley Horne, the farmer and business man.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2nd, 1908.

A SENSELESS CAMPAIGN.

This is about the queerest, the most suicidal, the most silly campaign within the party we ever saw. Democrats seem to have lost their heads and gone to fighting each other with as much bitterness as they ever fought Republicans or Populists. Men who have been close personal friends and party collaborators all their lives are falling out and saying all kinds of abusive things about each other just because one favors Kitchin and another favors Craig, when both have a right to favor any Democrat they please. If what these Democrats are saying about each other was true, some folks could declare on Democratic authority that there are as many rascals and political thieves in the Democratic party as they ever charged were in the Republican party. For our part we can see no sense in such a campaign and the rank and file of the party ought to rebuke it. The party may be able to stand such internal disruption, but it is enough to make a man who will think a moment tremble for its future. It will be far better for the State convention to put aside both these men and nominate a man for governor over whom there is no such party division.

Governor Glenn had a strong letter in Sunday's Raleigh News and Observer in which he advocated that the State convention instruct delegates to the national convention to vote for Bryan. Now we wonder how many of them will be jumping on the governor for expressing an opinion.

They are having even a warmer time over the race for the gubernatorial nomination in Georgia than in North Carolina. But Georgia will end her contest Thursday.

Charlotte is going at prohibition right. The aldermen have refused fourteen drug stores in that city license to sell liquor on prescription.

Both sides are doing plenty of claiming and whistling to keep up their courage, but all the same both are scared.

Charlotte will do some more entertaining this week when the retail merchants' association meets there.

June is the poorest month in the year—at least the people are poorest. Tax listing time, you know.

The June bug can now have his inning until the boy gets a string tied to him.

June will tell us something from Charlotte.

A COMPLICATED PLOT.

It Would Be Interesting if Worked Out to a Finish.

"I am writing a story," said the budding author to a dear friend, "but I'm rather in a muddle. The plot has grown so complicated that I hardly know how to elucidate it so that my readers will grasp its true outcome or what should be its outcome. Now, listen. There are only four characters, Jack, Charles, Mary and Ethel. Jack is in love with Mary, and Charles with Ethel, but Mary loves Charles, and Ethel loves Jack. That's the commencement. Simple enough, isn't it? But wait. They all intend going to a masked ball. Jack has settled to go as Napoleon, Charles as Richelieu, Mary as Elizabeth and Ethel as Esmeralda. Still simple, eh? Now we're coming to the mixup.

"Before the masked ball takes place all the four in some way find out what costumes each of them is going to wear, so just for fun the men hit on the idea of exchanging their costumes—that is, Jack will wear the costume of Richelieu which Charles was going to wear, and Charles will wear the costume of Napoleon which Jack was going to wear. The girls don't know Jack and Charles are going to do this, but they, funnily enough, hit on the same idea themselves—that is, Mary will wear the costume of Esmeralda that Ethel was going to wear, and Ethel will wear the costume of Elizabeth that Mary was going to wear. Well, that's not half the complication.

"Jack, who was going as Napoleon, makes love at the ball to Ethel, who was going as Esmeralda, but who now is in the costume of Elizabeth, while Charles, who was going as Richelieu, but now appears as Napoleon, devotes himself to Mary, who changed her costume from that of Elizabeth to Esmeralda. See the point?

"Just before they unmask the same idea strikes the men and the women, and they change dresses back again—that is to say, Jack, who was going as Napoleon, but who now is in the dress of Richelieu, appears as Napoleon, and Charles, who was to have appeared as Richelieu, now assumes that dress instead of being Napoleon, which was Jack's original idea. Well, Mary and Ethel—Why, what's your hurry?"—New York Press.

An Unpalatable Dish.

In "The Gourmet's Guide to Europe," by Lieutenant Colonel Newham-Davis, there is an amusing anecdote of Manolito, the proprietor of a famous Madrid restaurant:

Manolito is a small, gray haired Spaniard, who has a twinkle in his eye. He says little, but what little he says is always to the point. A young Spaniard who owed him a large sum for dinners fossed so much over the ordering of the meal that he annoyed Manolito. "I will bring you a dish, a most extraordinary dish, a dish that you have never seen before," said Manolito and disappeared to return immediately with a large dish capped by a great cover. The dish was put before the overparticular Spaniard and the cover whisked off. On the dish lay the very long and much overdue bill.

Slightly Absentminded.

"Does your husband ever help you about taking care of the baby?" was asked the wife of a young professor in a neighboring city.

"Not often, though sometimes he does. Last evening he said he'd take Willie for an airing, as he was going to walk down to the postoffice. Half an hour later I saw my husband sitting in the parlor reading a scientific magazine, but I could see nothing of the baby.

"Where's Willie? What have you done with him?" I asked.

"Why," said the professor, "I forgot all about him. I think he is sitting in the postoffice."

Brunettes Are Lucky.

"You are lucky," said the first mother to the second, "in having a brown eyed baby."

"Where does the luck come in besides that of his being good looking?" inquired the second.

"Because brown eyed babies are immune from many of the infantile ills that blue eyed children always have. I've seen it work dozens of times and heard doctors admit it. Blondes catch everything, but brunettes get off easy."

He Knew.

It was afternoon, and thus spoke the teacher of the village school:

"Now, boys, the word 'stan' at the end of a word means 'place of.' Thus we have Afghanistan, the place of the Afghans; also Hindustan, the place of the Hindoos. Now, can any one give me another instance?"

"Yes, sir," said the smallest boy proudly, "I can—umbrellastan, the place for umbrellas!"—London Scraps.

What Is the First Law of Nature?

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," answers Johnny Jones.

Correct, Johnny. Go right up to the head of the class. This law applies to a community as well as to an individual. Under the severe operation of this law a town that does not take care of itself, that does not look after its own interests first, that does not look out for Number One, soon falls into a bad way.

That's just as sure as shootin'—It's the law.

We must obey the law or take the consequences.

If we in this town and community do not work together for our own good, the mutual good of all of us, in all lines of business, we have only ourselves to blame if the place slides down the inclined plane instead of climbing the golden ladder of prosperity and progress.

For instance, if we do our retail trading with big city stores that have no interest in us except to get our money and keep it, local trade must suffer and shrink, town property values and farm land values must decrease—and there you are!

Johnny Jones, who knows the law, is a wise lad, but how about his papa and mamma?

Do they obey the first law as applied to the old home place? If they don't, Johnny may have to apply the law to himself when he grows up. He may have to go to the city to make a living.

Let's all think it over.

MAKES THEM ANGRY.

How a Skunk Captures Yellow Jacks with His Tail.

All agree that the skunk is the natural enemy of insects, and it is for this reason that the farmers in a great many agricultural districts have secured legislation for his protection, but did you ever think what ingenuity is employed by the little fellow in the capture of his prey? Does he charm like the snake? Does he lie in wait, or does he provoke them to assault? It is the latter. A skunk can catch any insect that he can get to fight him. On one occasion I went to the woods in quest of squirrels. It was a warm, cloudy afternoon in September. While standing on a log waiting for a squirrel I saw a large object moving through the woods toward me, which I first took to be a gray fox. I raised my gun and prepared to shoot, but as the animal advanced I noticed that it was not a fox, but a skunk, the largest I had ever seen, his color being much like that of a gray fox. When he first saw me he was about twenty steps away, but instead of making an effort to retreat he rose on his toes, fluffed up his hair and tail and jumped up two or three times, alighting on the ground stiff-legged, after the fashion of a sheep on the entry of a dog to the barn lot, as a mad house cat will do. I kept him covered all the time with my gun.

In a few minutes his anger seemed to subside. He then walked a few feet away, and with his left paw he made a few quick digs in the leaves and then, turning around, began to slowly switch his tail over the place where he had scratched. At each movement I became more and more interested, and, watching, I saw a swarm of yellow jackets emerging from the ground. Hot and furious they darted at the little fellow's tail, which was kept constantly in motion, each one sticking tight to the long fur and doing no damage. I never shall forget his keen black eyes as he looked at me, as if to say: "Watch me. I have done it before."

With a tail covered with jackets, like so many burs, he walked a few feet away and began to pick them off and eat them as a hungry boy would so many berries. This act repeated once more, the little yellow warriors were gone, and their home, left defenseless and desolate, was dug out and carried away by the visitor, who left apparently without any fear that I would do him harm. And I, then a boy, now grown to manhood, am glad that I did not shoot.—Forest and Stream.

Landseer's Valet.

Sir Edwin Landseer, the famous animal painter, had an old servant—his butler, valet and faithful slave—named William, who was particularly assiduous in guarding the outer portal. No one could by any possibility gain direct access to Sir Edwin. The answer would invariably be, "Sir Hedwin is not at home." The prince consort himself once received this answer when he called, amplified on that occasion by the assurance that "he had gone to a wedding," an entire fiction on William's part, as the prince found out, for on walking boldly in and round the garden he noticed Sir Edward looking out of his studio window. This was the faithful attendant who, one day, when a lion had died at the zoo and his corpse came up in a four wheeled cab to be painted from, startled his master with the question, "Please, Sir Hedwin, did you horder a lion?"

Thackeray and Archdekn.

Thackeray got into trouble by copying some of his characters too closely from life, notably when he put his friend, Arthur Archdekn, into "Pendennis" as the ever delightful Harry Foker. Although Thackeray meant no unkindness, Archdekn never quite forgave him. One night, just after Thackeray had delivered his first lecture on "The English Humorists," Archdekn met him at the Cider Cellar club, surrounded by a coterie who were offering their congratulations. "How are you, Thack?" cried Archie. "I was at your show today at Willis'. What a lot of swells you had there—yes! But I thought it was dull—devilish dull! I will tell you what it is, Thack—you want a piano."

A Triumph of Science.

"I have been taking some moving pictures of life on your farm."

"Did you catch the hired man in motion?"

"I think so."

"Ah, science kin do anything these days!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Popular Act.

Mr. Grampus—Here, dear, is $10, and it has bothered me a little to get it for you. I think I deserve a little applause. Mrs. G.—Applause? You deserve an encore, my dear.—Pathfinder.

A Cult.

"Pa, what's a cult?"

"A craze in its infancy."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A HEAVY SWORD.

The Way the Dignit "Super" Handed It to the Actor.

H. J. Byron was once engaged in stage managing a "show" in the provinces and had, if possible, an even denser lot of supers to deal with than usual. One of these had to hand him a sword at the wings, the exigencies of the part requiring that he should leave the stage for the purpose of fetching such a weapon.

On the first evening Byron was considerably annoyed at the super's want of manners in handing him the sword by the blade instead of politely proffering the handle.

"You evidently do not know how to hand a sword to a gentleman," said the actor-manager when the curtain was down. "I'll show you. You hold it by the blade, with the handle over your shoulder, and when you have to transfer it you lean forward with a polite bow and bring the handle gently down into the recipient's hand—thus."

The super averred that he understood and that Byron might count on him the following night.

Sure enough, when that came around, there he was, a quarter of an hour before it would be required, with the sword duly poised and its handle well over his shoulder. Thus he stood at the wing waiting the actor's advent; totally unmoved by the laughter his precaution—and something else—gave rise to in others of the company.

When Byron at length came excitedly for the weapon our friend showed he had learned his lesson well. With a polite bow he brought the handle down into the actor's outstretched palm.

With a yell the latter dropped it and then proceeded to vent his wrath on the astonished subordinate. The handle was nearly red hot, for in his anxiety to make no mistake about having it properly over his shoulder the unconscious super had been holding it for at least ten minutes in the flame of a gas jet.—London Tit-Bits.

Weak on Mathematics.

In a recent trial a judge made arithmetic a test of mental soundness. But if this test had been applied to certain great men they would have been declared imbeciles. Dean Stanley, eminent author and divine, for one, would have been set down as hopeless had he been judged by his incapacity to do a sum in simple addition or multiplication. Had Keble, writer of famous hymns, depended upon his arithmetic Oxford would not long have known him. When bursar he found, to his horror, that certain accounts came out nearly $10,000 to the bad. In vain did the learned and pious men of the college go over the figures with him. Not until an expert was summoned was it discovered that Keble in casting up a column had added the date of the year to the college debts.

Sunday in Old Virginia.

The family life was so religious in the week that it was necessary to have Sunday quite completely given up to devotion to distinguish it, says Thomas Wilson Page in the Old Dominion. Family prayers, with a hymn sung by the whole family, were always had twice a day and after the beginning of the war, when the president of the Confederacy asked in a proclamation for special prayers every day for the soldiers, they were held also at 1 o'clock, a custom which has been kept up in the household ever since, though some one characterized it as a Mohammedan custom. Whenever a clergyman came to the house he was always asked to have prayers before he left. Thus occasionally "prayers" were had four times a day.

Salt Is a Necessity.

"Salt is a most necessary article of food," says a well known scientist. "All races of mankind, either civilized or in a savage state, have the same regard for salt. In parts of central Africa the natives regard salt as a luxury and will willingly do much to obtain it. So much do they like the taste of salt that the ashes of the burnt veldt grass are used to season their meat. These ashes contain saltpeter, which imparts the coveted flavor to food. Animals, too, are fond of salt. In a wild state they will readily go to a spring the water of which has been salted. Sportsmen know this and use it as a bait."

The Cotton Plant.

So far as we know, the cotton plant originated in India, probably in Mandalay. The earliest writings of that country, dating back as far as 600 B. C., speak of the manufacture of cotton cloth. Herodotus speaks of "trees in India that bear a white fleece like wool." He had in mind the cotton plant. Cotton was cultivated by the Peruvians and Mexicans before the discovery of America, as the records clearly show.—New York American.

A Grand Trip.

Capt. Ola Forbes will run an excursion to Morehead City next Friday, on account of the grand opening ball to be given at the Atlantic Hotel Saturday night, June 6th, returning at the pleasure of the party. This is a grand trip, as it covers the most beautiful sheet of water along the Atlantic coast. The scenery along Pamlico river from Washington to where it enters the sound is not surpassed by any river in the United States. Then after crossing the mouth of Neuse river you enter Core sound, and with the towering sand hills that divide the ocean and sound on the left, and the little bays and villages that dot the mainland on the right for 60 miles to Morehead City, presents a most beautiful picture.

Those wishing to take the trip will please give their names to Captain Forbes on or before Wednesday night, as the party will be limited. Fare for round trip $5. 12td

Mr. Horne knows the farmer's life and his needs, and is pre-eminently the farmer's friend.

Help the Band.

The Aeolian Band Monday started a subscription list to raise a fund to purchase white duck pants for uniform, and to erect a suitable band stand for giving open air concerts. We are glad to know that the boys are meeting with much encouragement in the way of liberal subscriptions. The open air concerts from a stand would give the people much pleasure during the summer, and the stand would also afford a good place for public speakings.

A vote for Horne is a vote for political freedom from ring rule. Don't be fooled.

Mr. Horne is a constructive man. He believes in building up, not in tearing down.

Now is the opportunity to make a successful farmer a successful governor of North Carolina.

President of one bank and closely associated with others Mr Horne knows, also, a few things about financial affairs.

We Democrats have never nominated a merchant or business man for governor. Now is the time and Horne is the man.

Hon. W. W. Kitchin

Democratic Candidate for governor, will address the voters of Pitt county at Ayden, N. C., Friday, June 5th, at 1:30 o'clock p. m. and at Greenville, N. C., Friday night, June 5th, at 8:30 o'clock in Masonic opera house.

Music will be furnished on both occasions by The Aeolian Brass Band. Let everybody come out and hear the people's candidate for governor.
