MORE SIDEWALK IMPROVEMENTS.

Aldermen Act on This and Other Important Matters.

The Board of Aldermen held its regular monthly meeting, Thursday night, with seven of the members present. Several matters of importance were before the board and the meeting was not over until past 11 o'clock.

Only one of the standing committees had any report to make, the street committee reporting that Short street had been repaired and that other streets were in fair condition.

The members of the four fire companies of the town were exempted from payment of poll tax for the year 1908.

Alderman Flanagan was instructed to have the street sprinkler repaired and put in good working condition.

A donation of $50 for the year, payable quarterly, was made to the public library.

The street committee was instructed to put Atlantic avenue, from Dickinson avenue to the bridge near the Imperial factory, in good condition.

R. O. Jeffress appeared before the board with a proposition from property owners on Fifth street, signed by all on the north side of that street between Evans street and G. W. Baker's west line with the exception of two, offering to lay concrete sidewalks on that side of the street along that portion of it, if the town will establish the sidewalk line and build the street crossings. The matter was discussed at some length and the proposition accepted, the mayor being instructed to draw the proper ordinance covering the matter and to require the two property owners not signing the proposal to join with the other citizens on that street in laying the sidewalk.

The board voted to purchase 300 copies of the trade edition of The Reflector, soon to be published, to be circulated with a view of interesting people elsewhere in Greenville, and Aldermen Higgs and Bowen were appointed a committee to look after the distribution of these papers.

A note due the Eureka Fire Hose Co., for hose, and one due F. J. McGuire for street work, were ordered renewed.

A petition from occupants of the market house asking for reduction in rents was presented and referred to the market committee.

The reports of officers for the past month were presented and approved, and the allowing of accounts completed the work of the meeting.

Engineer Assassinated.

Durham, N. C., Dec. 3.—Durham is tonight shrouded in a gloom and mystery of the crime that is the greatest that ever overshadowed this community. Engineer J. A. Holt, generally known as Fred Holt among his friends on the road, one of the best engineers of the Southern road, was foully murdered and assassinated at the coal chute, between Durham and East Durham, this morning about 1 o'clock. He was shot from the back and died in about thirty minutes. More than a hundred shot penetrated his body, most of them entered the cavity.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL CLUB.

Editor Reflector:

Your idea of a "City Beautiful" club meets my hearty approval.

Count me as one of the women of Greenville who will delight to work in this cause. I should be glad to hear, through the columns of The Reflector, of other women interested in making our town lovely and creating more town pride.

We love Greenville and we can work wonders here. Nature, industry and thrift have done much for us, let us take hold of this matter and work until there will not be a town in the State that will have as beautiful lawns or neater, cleaner sidewalks.

We have splendid material to work upon. Who ever heard of the men of Greenville failing to come to the support of our women? Let us take advantage of our opportunity. I am sure all we need is a leader, and we will rally around her and work for the "City Beautiful."

Let us hear from others.

Mrs. H. B. E.
[The Reflector is glad to publish this letter, and hopes, as the writer suggests, that others of our good women will become interested and let themselves be heard from on this subject. It is a work in which our women can and will be valiant leaders, and surely the men will give them all the aid and co-operation possible. All together now, and let's make Greenville truly a "city beautiful."—Ed.]

A Veteran Dead.

Thursday afternoon Mr. G. S. Johnson died suddenly at the home of his son near Grimesland. He was 68 years of age and leaves a wife and six children. Mr. Johnson was a Confederate soldier and lost a leg in the civil war. He was on the State pension list and was one of the few in this county occupying a place in the first class on that roll of honor. For sometime he has been very feeble.

WHAT CONSTITUTES DELIVERY?

Greenville, N. C., Dec. 4, 1908.

Editor Reflector:

This morning the express delivery wagon stopped in front of our place of business. We were called out to get a case weighing about one hundred pounds. As this was a pretty heavy box for a rather frail man to handle (our drayman being absent) we asked Mr. Turnage if it was our business to take the box from the wagon. He stated that it was.

If an instance of this kind should happen at a private residence while only the women and children were at home, they would be in a bad predicament. Of course no blame can be attached to Mr. Turnage, if he is filling his contract, but it occurs to us that the Chamber of Commerce through which body the free delivery of express was secured may be able to go a step further and have packages placed inside the door of consignee. This would be especially desirable cold, rainy or snowy weather. Let our people rally to the support of the Chamber of Commerce and make it a power of good for Greenville and Pitt county.

[This is a matter that might well be looked into, and see what the duty of the express company is in making delivery of packages—whether it really means to deliver packages, or to simply drive in front of the door and call the consignee out to wait on himself. The express officials should be queried to ascertain where their duty ends and the duty of the consignee begins.—Ed.]

Produces $400,000 in Eight Years.

Mr. J. G. Hackett, of Wilkesboro, chairman of the Board of Directors of the State's prison, and Mr. S. H. Hearne, of Albemarle, a director, left the city yesterday after attending a meeting of the board at which only routine matters were transacted.

Chairman Hackett says that the financial reports of the State's prison show that with eight years of Democratic business methods the State's prison shows a surplus of over $400,000, besides having paid for all the expenses incident to the prison and doing some extra work.

Mr. J. P. Kerr, of Asheville, a member of the board and Mr. J. S. Mann, superintendent of the prison, have gone to the State farm in Halifax to inspect matters there. In speaking of this Mr. Hearne said yesterday that the freshest there some time ago would cause a possible loss of about $30,000, this is the cotton, corn and peanut crop.—Raleigh News and Observer.

The True Life Drama.

We are horrified by the murders, debaucheries, gambling, drunkenness and the black crimes that afflict the lower levels of society, and never think that they are closely related to the follies, sins, deceits, vanities, unkindness, discourtesies and general meanness that prevail, to so alarming an extent, among the respectable, educated, religious people of the so-called upper classes. This suggestion comes to one upon reading Dr. Glad den's discourse on "Christ in Dramatic Art."

The point is here: If the weaknesses, frailties, deceits and sins of the more pretentious society were eradicated, and those who know better did better, and thus move on the plane of a true and real manhood, the blacker vices, immoralities and crimes of the alleged lower social scale would be left without a breeding ground and ultimately, disappear.

So the dramatic art, rightly applied, is made to teach that the Christlike character, expressing itself in candor, courtesy, kindness and brotherly affection that rises to the plane of a man's manhood, gives the man room, opportunity and incentive to assert his better nature and be like his friend.—Ohio State Journal.

THE EXPERIMENTAL ROAD.

Mr. R. W. King, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, took us out for a drive Thursday afternoon to inspect the experimental sand-clay road which the county is having constructed under the supervision of a government road builder. Superintendent Joe McLawhorn has the county convict force on the work and they are building an ideal piece of road. The section of road is first drained, then given an oval grade and covered with a proper mixture of sand and clay. The first section of this piece of road that was completed is almost as hard as the paved streets of the town and all who pass over it are impressed with its excellence. No one imagined that such good work could be done so cheaply as this sand-clay road is proving. The retiring Board of County Commissioners have many things to their credit, among them being new steel bridges and improvements around the court house and jail, but no step they have taken is going to prove such ultimate benefit to the people of the county as the building of this experimental piece of road. Already it is awakening more interest in good roads, and this sentiment will continue to grow until it results in improved roads all over the county. As the roads are improved lands will grow in value and all other farming interests will be advanced. The commissioners are entitled to the plaudits of the people of the county for beginning this great work and we hope succeeding boards will be imbued with the spirit to carry it on without interruption until the entire county has good roads.

THE JUDGE MADE A MISTAKE.

Judge C. M. Cooke is holding Halifax county Superior court, and in speaking of his charge to the grand jury the Scotland Neck Commonwealth says: "Something of a sensation was caused when Judge Cooke said that he had been informed that the commissioners had 'picked the jurors'—that when a man not 'their kind' was drawn his name was thrown back and they continued thus until the ones wanted were drawn, and if it was true—and he couldn't believe that it was—it should be severely prosecuted and if untrue they should be vindicated. "After adjournment many of the county officers and those prominent in county affairs vehemently denounced it as an unqualified lie. The judge was informed of this and he stated from the bench that he was then satisfied that it was untrue. Mr. Travis addressed His Honor and stated that such a flagrant slander of these good men could not go without being vindicated and asked the author of the charge. Judge Cooke declined to give the name of his informant but stated that he was from another

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. county."

In this we think Judge Cooke made a grave mistake. First, he should not have used his position to cast such a damaging reflection upon public officials of a county upon mere hearsay rumor in another county. Second, after he had given prominence to the slander by referring to it from the bench, and becoming satisfied that it was untrue, it was a matter of simple justice to give the men slandered the name of the author of the charge. Courts should safeguard men's characters, and not be the vehicle of bringing slander upon them.

It is estimated that the taking of the next census will cost the government above $14,000,000. Does anybody believe it will be worth that much? Quite a big sum to pay for knowing just how many there are of us.

There are to be two important religious gatherings next week, the North Carolina conference at Durham, and the Baptist State convention at Wilson. Both begin on the 9th.

Jobs for Life.

President Roosevelt has issued an order to the effect that fourth-class postmasters having been classified in certain States and time being necessarily required before any positions in such offices can be filled by examination and certification from the civil service commission, any vacancy in such postoffices occurring prior to the time at which the civil service commission shall certify to the Postoffice Department that it is able to hold examinations and make certificates to such positions may be filled by the Postoffice Department without examination. There is much significance to this order. The Washington Star says it means that fourth-class postmasters now in office, especially in the States named, will become holders of life jobs so long as their behavior is up to the civil service standard and they do not get to monkeying too openly in politics.—Charlotte Chronicle.

A FAMOUS DEBATE.

How Lincoln Forced Douglas Into the Open at Freeport.

One of the most interesting stories of all American history—that of the forensic contest between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas in Illinois fifty years ago—is told in the Century by Frederick Trevor Hill. In the following extract he describes the meeting and the audience at Freeport:

In this part of the state (Freeport) Lincoln was almost a stranger, and his uncouth appearance and slouchy bearing were not offset by any direct knowledge of his professional attainments. On this occasion, however, he speedily dispelled all doubts of his ability by advancing boldly to the attack. Reminding his auditors that Douglas had seen fit to cross examine him at their last meeting, he announced that he was prepared to answer the seven questions which had been put to him provided his adversary would reply to questions from him not exceeding the same number. "I give him an opportunity to respond," he announced and, turning to Douglas, paused for his reply.

In an instant the vast audience was hushed. Even the fakers and vendors at the outskirts of the crowd ceased plying their trades and strove to catch a glimpse of the platform. It was a dramatic moment and an unequalled opportunity for Douglas. But he merely shook his head and smiled. "The judge remains silent," continued Lincoln. "I now say that I will answer his interrogatories whether he answers mine or not."

No more effective challenge was ever uttered, and the audience, quick to recognize its courage and fairness, responded in a fashion that must have disconcerted and nettled Lincoln's cautious adversary. Certainly Douglas was in no amiable mood when he rose to make reply, and the interruptions of the audience speedily worked him into a passion. Again and again he assailed his hearers as "black Republicans," characterizing their questions as vulgar and blackguard interruptions, shaking his fist in their faces and defying them as a mob. More than once Mr. Turner, the Republican moderator, was drawn into the fray by the speaker's aggressive tactics, and the whole meeting was occasionally on the verge of tumult. Lincoln's closing address, however, had a calming effect, and when his time expired the audience quietly dispersed to spread the news throughout the countryside that this unknown lawyer was actually outmaneuvering his distinguished adversary and forcing him into the open, beyond reach of cover or possibility of retreat.

Why He Hurried.

A lower Broadway business man summoned his diminutive office boy the other day, instructing him to proceed to a nearby establishment.

"Find out the lowest price at which they can give me a cinematograph outfit for parlor use," said he. "A what?" the youngster asked, a bit dazed.

"Cinematograph," repeated his employer. "But you needn't go for an hour. I want you for something else just now."

The boy dashed out and in five minutes was back with the needed information.

"I thought I told you not to go for an hour?" said the boss.

"Hully gee!" the boy exclaimed. "I couldn't remember that word so long, and if I forgot it I might lose me job."—New York Globe.

Telegraphy in China.

The first telegraph line was opened in China in 1872, and there are now about 15,000 miles of line, the whole under imperial control. The Chinese language being syllabic and not alphabetic, many may wonder how a message is transmitted. The method is simple, but ingenious. There are as many characters as words in the Chinese language, and the messages are sent in number cipher. When the numbers are received at the other end a double ended type is used with numbers at one end and characters at the reverse. A message is set up by the numbers and then printed from the reverse end, which shows the characters.—London Globe.

The Register of the Voice.

The register of the voice is sometimes confounded with the range. There are two registers to the voice, whatever its quality. These are termed the register of the chest and the register of the head. The chest notes are given in full, even tones and with the natural voice. The tones may be either open or closed. They are given from the chest and the back of the nose. Head tones come from the bridge of the nose and if untrained are apt to develop an unpleasant shrillness. In a trained voice it is impossible to detect where the chest register ends.—New York World.

THE ALASKA RAVEN.

A Scavenger That Is Highly Esteemed by the Natives.

In Alaska the raven is highly esteemed, and the natives regard it as a very unfortunate event should one be killed.

In Unalaska ravens fly around the beach and village unmolested, and were it not for their scavenger work the fish offal that lies around the shore and houses would soon engender disease.

The Alaska raven is a fine looking bird, as large as a turkey and upon closer acquaintance a real handsome fellow. His coat is indeed black, but of a black glossier and more rich than silk and softer than velvet, while in a semishade the feathers are tinged with that peculiar color so often seen on well preserved blue black bronze.

It is very funny to see these birds holding, as it were, a conclave. Ten or a dozen alight on the ground and walk to the meeting place with a stately, erect step, their every movement cool and assured.

Then an old bird steps gravely into the middle, and the meeting begins with a series of guttural and harsh croaks, which gradually swell in volume until the entire lot of birds have joined in the debate.

Along comes a dog, and for him they scatter, resuming their positions when he passes, until the meeting again terminates, and they fly off to the beach and hills.

If you examine the bills of these ravens the peculiar construction is remarkable. They are a combination of a chisel, scissors, dagger and gimlet.

The bill forms an important factor in the raven's existence, for he has to dig on the beach for clams, bore the hard shell by repeated chipping, and again in pure mischief he will tear and break anything that his bright and unerring eye lights upon.

Just as soon as the bright sunlight appears the ravens leave their roosting places on the hilltops for the beach line, and over the village and shores of the bay they fly and wander until sundown invites them to rest.

The raven is a fine flier. On the wing his movements are well under command. With strong, decided beats he winnows the air fast or slow, never seeming in a hurry. But if occasion requires the raven can travel at express speed, and, when he sees another bird feasting on some delicate morsel of offal, down he comes from midair with his discordant caw, ready to share or steal the prize.

The same characteristics are visible all along the southern coast of Alaska to Sitka. The natives from Yahutat bay through the network of islands as far as British Columbia have an ancient legend that the raven was the bird that brought light from darkness when the world was created. On this account they venerate it, and the totem of a raven is regarded as denoting the most illustrious descended family.

The raven does not appear to migrate, as the residents all over that portion of Alaska where the birds are found state that they remain throughout the winter.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Never Again.

It was a pitiful mistake, an error sad and grim. I waited for the railway train. The light was low and dim. It came at last, and from a car there stepped a dainty dame, and, looking up and down the place, she straight unto me came. "Oh, Jack!" she cried, "oh, dear old Jack!" and kissed me as she spoke, then looked again and, frightened, cried, "Oh, what a bad mistake!" I said, "Forgive me, maiden fair, for I am not your Jack, and as regards the kiss you gave, I'll straightway give it back." And since that night I've often stood upon that platform dim, but only once in a man's whole life do such things come to him.

Wise Tommy.

Tommy was a very sound sleeper and wouldn't get out of bed earlier than 10 o'clock, no matter what his mother said to him. So one morning she tried coaxing and said to him:

"You have heard of the little boy who got up at 6 o'clock in the morning and when he went out he found a purse of gold?"

"Oh, yes," said Tommy, "but what about the little boy who got up before him and went out and lost it?"

Always Dublin.

An Irishman and an American were talking about their own countries one day when the American said:

"America is the richest country in the world today."

"Shure," said Pat. "Oireland will soon be the richest."

"How's that?" said the American. "Shure," answered Pat, "isn't the capital always Dublin?"

Only a Watchdog.

A man was excitedly relating to a friend the harrowing details of a burglary in his house the night before.

"A most daring robbery," exclaimed the outraged man. "It was still early. My wife and I had not retired, and Susie and her young man were in the parlor. Our dog was in the dining room. Despite all this that crook had the nerve to enter the dining room and rifle it of every bit of silver we had. Not satisfied, he even stole the clock off the mantelpiece. What do you think of that?"

"Well," said the friend, "I don't see what else you could expect. Fido is only a watchdog, you know."

Nothing Doing.

"Say, I hear somebody in this crowd said I was a liar!" blustered the village bully, approaching a group of men he thought he knew.

"Where's the guilty party?" "I guess maybe it was me," quietly rejoined a husky stranger, who measured fully six feet and looked to be stronger than an ox, as he pulled off his coat and proceeded to roll up his sleeves.

"Oh, that's all right," continued the bully as he hurriedly backed away. "Keep your clothes on. I didn't say I wasn't."—Chicago News.

TIME TO ACT

Don't Wait for the Fatal
Stages of Kidney Illness
Profit by Greenville
People's Experience.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect this ill. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Greenville prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. J. F. Stokes, Cor. Twelfth and Evans Sts., Greenville, N. C., says: "For some time I suffered severely from kidney complaint. The kidneys were very irregular in action and at times caused me great annoyance. I had bearing down pains through my abdomen and sharp shooting twinges through my loins causing me untold misery. There was a tender spot across my kidney regions and at times my limbs pained intensely. I finally read of Doan's Kidney pills and was so much impressed that I procured them at Wooten's drug store. They soon relieved the pains in my side and limbs, restored the secretions to a regular and normal condition and at present I am feeling a great deal better in every way. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for the great improvement in my condition."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

LAND OF THE CROSSBOW.

The Deadly Poisoned Arrows of the Lissoo Sharpshooters.

On the wild frontier between China and British Burma is a barbarous tribe which has no civilized supervision. George Forrest, an English traveler, thus describes the chief weapon of these people: "If I had to suggest a title for a book on the upper Salween I should call it 'The Land of the Crossbow,' which is the characteristic weapon of the country and the Lissoo tribe. Every Lissoo with any pretensions to chic possesses at least two of these weapons—one for everyday use in hunting, the other for war. The little children play with miniature crossbows. The men never leave their huts for any purpose whatever without their crossbows. When they go to sleep the 'nukung' is hung over their heads, and when they die it is hung over their graves. The largest crossbows have a span of fully five feet and require a pull of fully thirty-five pounds to string them. The bow is made of a species of wild mulberry of great toughness and flexibility. The stock, some four feet long in the war bows, is usually of wild plum wood. The string is of plaited hemp and the trigger of bone. The arrow, of sixteen to eighteen inches, is of split bamboo about four times the thickness of an ordinary knitting needle, hardened and pointed. The actual point is bare for a quarter to one-third of an inch, then for fully an inch the arrow is stripped to half its thickness, and on this portion poison is placed.

"The poison is invariably a decoction expressed from the tubers of a species of aconitum which grows on those ranges at an altitude of 8,000 to 10,000 feet. The poison is mixed with resin or some vegetable gum to the consistency of putty and is then smeared on the notched point. The 'feather' is supplied by a strip of bamboo leaf folded into a triangular form and tied in a notch at the end of the arrow, with the point of the angle outward. The reduction in thickness of the arrow where the poison is placed causes the point to break off in the body of any one whom it strikes, and as each carries enough poison to kill a cat horse, a wound is invariably fatal. Free and immediate incision is the usual remedy when wounded on a limb or fleshy part of the body, but at Chengka the uncle of the Laowo chief showed us a preparation which resembled opium dross and which he said was an effective antidote.

"With few exceptions the Lissoo seemed to us to be arrant cowards, but the crossbow and poisoned arrow are certainly most diabolical weapons. An arrow from a war bow will pierce a deal board an inch thick at seventy or eighty yards. Some of the Tsekou natives were so expert that they could hit a mark four inches in diameter repeatedly at sixty to eighty yards. As no one goes anywhere without his crossbow and his bearskin quiver full of poisoned arrows and as every village is at feud with every other village mutual suspicion is inevitable. In open fight the Lissoo are usually careful to keep at a respectful distance from each other and behind oxhide shields which protect the whole of the body. But if battle is rare, murder and sudden death by ambush in the jungle are common."

Rather Ambiguous.

When Weber and Fields were playing together a couple of husky western visitors, seeing New York for the first time, dropped into the Weber-Field Museum of Drama to see the show.

"Which is Weber and which is Fields?" asked one, who forgot what a programme was for.

"Darned if I know," replied the other. "But whichever is which, I'd rather be the other one."—Bohemian Magazine.

In infants levity is a prettiness, in men grown a shameful defect, but in old age a monstrous folly.
