RESOLUTION OF ESTEEM.

Hall of Covenant Lodge No. 17,
I. O. O. F.

Nov. 9th, 1909.

Noble Grand, and Brothers.

Last Friday was a calm, hazy autumn day. Soft golden-edged clouds floated peacefully over the blue vault of heaven and cast their shadows over quiet, peaceful, happy Greenville. A fragrant breeze, so fresh and pure that one felt sure its original home must have been in some far away paradisaical island in a southern sea, was holding sweet communion with the dying leaves as they breathed a sad farewell to the parent oak. A pure stillness was floating through the air, and all nature seemed to have sunk into one grand repose, wherein strife and misery and death appear to have no part.

The glorious king of day had finished his grand parade, and his flaming banner of bronze and gold was waving triumphantly in the western sky, when he tipped his royal cap, and with a low bow bade good night to the nocturnal queen. The distant woods blushed under the good-night kiss of the setting sun, and as if for shame twilight was shutting down her curtain and pinning it with a star, when like lightning from a clear summer sky the news was flashed of a terrible automobile wreck just west of our corporate limits, in which Brother J. L. Fleming had been instantly killed, and Brothers E. G. Flanagan and Stephen Wooten and Mr. Harry Skinner, Jr., had all been dangerously wounded.

Bowed down with grief, with hearts torn and bleeding with sorrow; amid the upheaval of distress of our whole community; your committee appointed to draft resolutions expressive of our loss in the death of Brother J. L. Fleming report:

That in his death our fraternity, our county, and our State have suffered a great loss. His intellectual brilliancy, fine tact, and genial manner made him at once a favorite. Little wonder that his friends grieve for him as one who cannot be replaced.

His career was not near its noon-tide, and it seems almost the irony of fate that one of so much promise should pass away so young. The promise of enlarged usefulness, and of higher service to his profession and his State seemed bright and sure for many years to come; the record of the past seemed the earnest of the future. But without a moment's warning the end came and Jim Fleming has answered the summons of the eternal. The great outpouring of the people at his burial, and the manifestations of grief and sorrow betoken the high esteem, and fond affection in which he was held. And in our hearts his memory will be cherished and embalmed while we live to cherish friendship, to reverence love, and to worship truth.

He leaves a widow and three children, to whom we offer our tenderest sympathy and sincere condolence; and for whom we invoke the compassion, the comfort, and the solace of "Him who holds our destinies in the hollow of His hand" and who "tempereth the wind to the shorn lamb".

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, a copy furnished the widow of our deceased brother, and The Reflector and the North Carolina Odd Fellow with a request for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
D. L. James, (Com.)
D. W. Arnold, (Com.)
J. C. Tyson, (Com.)

IN MEMORIAM.

In Harry Skinner, Jr., God gave to the world a knightly spirit and a brave, unselfish soul. When he passed away a sore bereavement was laid on all his friends, and a character universally beloved was taken from human sight. The memory of his life will ever abide in our hearts as a precious bond to link us to "that dear land," which is "the home of God's elect."

When Harry Skinner went to Chapel Hill, to the University in 1900, he found students there ready to give him a welcome and to receive him as a chosen comrade. The boys that he had known at Horner's School had borne testimony to his character and disposition, so that from the very start his college mates were aware of his sterling worth. Time only served to show this worth more fully to them. This new student had come with the recommendation of his preparatory school friends; but in a short while he had bound many new friends to himself by his own exceptional merit, so that he was received into the lasting bonds of eternal friendship. There in college, men compacted ties with him that were to be life long; and those ties have grown stronger and sweeter each passing year. When we needed a friend to stand by us in our discouragements, or a happy spirit to rejoice in our pleasures, we found Harry Skinner true to every phase of friendship. Go find a University alumnus in any town in the State and say to him "Harry Skinner was a fine fellow," and hear him answer "one of the best I ever saw." Go find one of his fraternity-mates and hear him say, "Harry was one of the best men we ever had in our fraternity."

As we miss him sorely, as we wonder why he was taken, we can find comfort in the thought of his continued usefulness, of the continued beauty of his life. Can we not change Tennyson's lines about Arthur and say:

"So many worlds, so much to do,
So little done, such things to be,
So I know that God has need of thee," in the land of the immortals. As I think of him now, I remember that he was one of the "pure in heart." God has chosen spirits, an elect company, who show unselfish hearts, who exemplify the Gospel of love. To belong to this band of noble souls is life's great accomplishment.

As we go through life, we find a few of these high spirits in each generation: sometimes, a sweet and gracious woman; sometimes a "holy and humble man;" sometimes, a lovely young girl; sometimes, a youth with his face upturned to the light.

"A noble army, men and boys,
The matron and the maid;
Around the Saviour's throne rejoice,
In robes of light arrayed."

They climbed the steep ascent of heaven
Through peril, toil and pain;
O Go!, to us may grace be given,
To follow in their train."

PREPARING FOR CELEBRATION.

Chamber of Commerce and Committees Meet.

Tuesday night in the court house there was a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and sub-committees of arrangements looking after the final plans for the celebration of East Carolina Teachers Training School and inauguration of President R. H. Wright which takes place on Friday, 12th.

The meeting was in charge of President F. M. Wooten, and the reports of the several sub-committees were heard.

A. B. Ellington for the decoration committee reported that the business houses along Evans street and residences on Dickinson avenue will be decorated with the school colors and at several places across the streets there will be large banners bearing Greenville's slogan. The committee also requested those who provide carriages for meeting trains Friday to have the vehicles decorated as far as possible.

E. B. Higgs for the holiday committee reported that the business men had been waited on and practically all had agreed to close their places during the hours of the celebration, from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.

E. B. Higgs for the entertainment committee reported the work of the committee in securing entertainment for visitors.

Dr. R. L. Carr for the reception committee reported that arrangements had been made for meeting visitors at the trains and assisting in looking after them when they reach the school buildings.

Prof. W. H. Ragsdale for the advisory committee reported the work of conference with the school faculty in arranging the details of the celebration. To his committee was also referred the provision of committee badges for the day.

The reports of these sub-committees indicate that nothing is to be left undone on the part of the Chamber of Commerce to help make the celebration the success it is desired to be.

Another matter President Wooten called to the attention of the chamber was the National Deep Waterways convention to be held in Norfolk next week—17th to 19th—and the appointment of delegates to attend this convention was left with the president.

GIN HOUSE BURNED.

Big Fire—Is a Total Loss With No Insurance.

Tuesday night a little before 10 o'clock the gin house of Mr. W. L. Nobles, about 6 miles below town on the north side of the river, was destroyed by fire. In the building were two bales of packed cotton and eight bales unginning, and several hundred bushels of seed burned, and nine packed bales outside the building were badly damaged. The loss was total, as there was no insurance on either the gin house or cotton. Some of the cotton belonged to people in the neighborhood who had carried it there to be ginned.

The gin had caught fire in the afternoon from a match in the cotton but this was put out, or thought to be, and two more bales were packed after this. Out of precaution Mr. Nobles went twice entirely through the gin house before going to bed to see if any fire was there, and finding none retired satisfied, but a little later was aroused by the building being in flames and the fire could not be checked.

The reflection from the fire was very plainly seen in Greenville by people who were on the street.

At the Pastime Theatre.

The Vito Italian Band was well enjoyed by the patrons of this show. The pictures shown last night were also much enjoyed.

Pellegra is about to be crowded off the grand stand by the hook worm.

If laziness is a symptom of hook worm there are remarkably few who do not need treatment.

The farmer who has not saved enough hay has failed to take advantage of the pretty fall weather.

The office seekers will welcome the return of President Taft to Washington. They can pounce down on him now.

Wilmington covered herself with great credit in the magnificent reception and entertainment accorded President Taft on Tuesday.

The farmers from Northern and Western States who have been attending the convention in Raleigh, had many nice things to say about North Carolina.

Great is base ball, at least for the fellow who rises to the rank of the real article on the diamond. It is said that Ty Cobb commands a salary of $25,000 a year.

Charlotte had him first and did the honors with great credit, but we have no doubt that the "Queen City" joins heartily in the feeling of pride that pervades the State over the way the "City by the Sea" took care of the occasion.

The committees are doing their duty in arranging for the celebration of East Carolina Teachers Training School and inauguration of President Wright on Friday. There is a duty also upon the citizens of the town in this connection, and The Reflector believes they will prove equal to the occasion. Greenville has never failed yet, and will not do so this time, even though the community has not yet merged from the shadow of a great grief.

A Model Superintendent.

Prof. Jos. E. Avent, superintendent of the Morganton graded schools, evidently has a proper conception of his work and calling. He takes the trouble to publish the year's history of his schools in pamphlet form, giving the whole in detail. Attracted by the merits of this idea, Editor Marshall says in North Carolina Education that if all the superintendents in the State would take as much pains to record the administration of the city schools, it would be an easy matter to study the city school problems. We might with perfect propriety, ask why all the schools of the State do not publish as full reports as Superintendent Avent has? Is it for lack of funds? Superintendent Avent has doubtless paid for his with advertisements. This is to be commended. Is it because all the energies are directed along some other lines? North Carolina Education argues that it would pay educationally to divert a part of the energy along this line. The newer schools would then have something very definite to study. Is it because one superintendent is afraid of the criticism of another? This bespeaks a low standard of professional ethics. But the truth still stands that many of our largest city systems are conducting schools, whose equipment, contents, methods of promoting students, internal organization, teachers' meetings, methods of employing teachers, methods of studying children, are a sealed book to the world, and in many instances, to the patrons of the school within the city limits. - Charlotte Chronicle.

PUBLIC DRINKING CUP DANGER

Movement to Abolish Them Rapidly Gaining Headway.

The question of supplying individual drinking cups in public places is receiving a good deal of consideration from medical men at present. In this connection the international Journal of Surgery says:

"It is said that at one of our colleges, in 1907, the graduating class of eighty young ladies at a final gathering all drank from one loving cup; among them was a girl who had recently had diphtheria. Reports are said to show that after the young ladies had gone to their homes a large number of them were affected with some sort of throat trouble.

"As a result of drinking from the chained cup in a large New York department store last winter, several clerks were inoculated, and it is said that the store has now installed small automatic vendors of individual paper paraffine cups.

"Realizing the danger in the use of the public drinking cup, the management of the Norfolk & Western Railway Company has recently installed in each of the coaches employed in its service devices from which individual drinking cups may be secured by all passengers on the penny-in-the-slot plan."

SANITARY SUNDAY.

Thomasville, N. C., Nov. 6.—"Sanitary Sunday" is announced by the tuberculosis and health authorities for Sunday, November 28th. Dr. Charles A. Julian, assistant secretary for tuberculosis for the State Board of Health, has issued the following open letter to the churches and church people of North Carolina.

There is now being conducted a campaign of education for the study and prevention of tuberculosis in this State. Scientists now believe that the disease can be checked, and not only checked but obliterated and effaced from the earth, if a well organized attempt is made in the direction of assistance, and with keen sighted educational measure and supervision. But the fact remains that this battle against disease must be perpetuated by the people. Its success depends upon the organization of a fighting force in every community devoted to its object and inspired to a constant and unabated activity. Tuberculosis is a preventable disease and must be prevented. Tuberculosis kills more people and costs more money than all other communicable diseases combined. But it will take a combined effort on the part of the entire people to prevent it. This campaign on tuberculosis is clearing up the whole local health situation. We cannot get control of tuberculosis without making it practically impossible for any of the fifth or needless diseases to exist. In getting rid of this disease we will raise the whole standard of living for the average people. The prevention of the disease rather than its cure, the removal of the causes and conditions conducive to diseases is a primary object of this effort.

We would like this information to be brought to the attention of the ministers of North Carolina in view of a request to make Sunday, Nov. 28th a sanitary Sabbath. On that day we hope that every minister in the State will preach a special health sermon, explain the little Red Cross Christmas stamp and its mission, explain the fight against diseases, explain the warfare against consumption and appeal to the people to save themselves. We desire the service of the minister for our first "sanitary Sabbath."

What Schoolboys Should Know.

The public school is intended to give the boy and girl of today the groundwork of an education. Every boy or girl who spends five or eight years in the public schools ought to come out with a practical knowledge of mathematics, United States history and the English language. No one would expect them to be experts in any one of these branches, but they should be thorough in what they do know. They ought to be able to determine how many tons of hay there are in a stack or how much a wagonload of corn will bring at 53 cents per bushel, and be able to write an intelligent letter to the local paper.—St. Joseph Gazette.

SUMMER IS GONE

And now is a good time to have your summer suit nicely cleaned and pressed, so it can be put away and kept for months. It is time to bring your overcoat and have it cleaned and overhauled for winter, perhaps it needs a new collar or re-lining. A little work on it may save buying a new one. I am ready to do this work for you as it ought to be done.
