MILEAGE BOOK QUESTION.

Interstate Commerce Commission Makes Important Ruling.

Washington April 27.—In an order just issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission in which the commission by unanimous action upholds the opinion of Commissioner James S. Harlan in the case of Bernard Eschner versus the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, et al., the principle of the mileage ticket exchange regulation now in effect on the railroad in the Southeast is upheld. The order is of great importance to railroads issuing interchangeable mileage tickets and to purchasers of such tickets.

In this order the commission says: "The right to use exchange orders and mileage tickets is in the nature of a privilege voluntarily accorded by carriers under their tariffs, and must be accepted by those who use such special fares with all lawful and nondiscriminatory limitations that may be attached to them. Three important points made by the commission are that the issuance of mileage tickets is in no sense compulsory, but is permissible and voluntary on the part of the carriers, that purchasers of mileage tickets may not lawfully be constituted into a special class, but must come under the general law common to passengers, and that purchasers of mileage tickets are bound by the lawful contract features of that form of reduced rate transportation."

The commission goes so far as to hold that purchasers of special reduced rate transportation, such as mileage tickets, have no legal right to demand the same privileges and advantages that are accorded to a passenger who has paid the regular fare at a higher rate. The carriers have never gone to this extent, but while making the mileage ticket regulation for their protection, have afforded the same privileges and advantages to the purchasers of mileage tickets as are given to purchasers of other forms of transportation.

This order of the commission supports the views of State railroad commissions, legislatures, and other tribunals in the Southeast to which the mileage ticket exchange regulation has been submitted.

Let Our People Try This

The reason why some towns grow is because there are men of push and energy in them who are not afraid to spend their money. They erect substantial buildings, organize stock companies, establish factories, work for public improvement and use every means in their power to induce men to settle in their city. Wherever they go they tell of the possibilities and advantages of their town, they write about them in every letter, they send circulars and newspapers to all whom they can get to visit the town, and when any stranger stops they treat him so well he comes again whenever he has the opportunity. It is enterprise and all pulling together that makes a progressive, wide-awake and growing town. Don't let this fact escape your memory. —Sanford Express.

Look Him Up.

The taking of the census in town is about completed. If the enumerator overlooked you, let it be known, as everybody should be counted.

SUPERIOR COURT.

April Term in Session in The City Hall.

The following cases have been disposed of:

Tom Little, assault with deadly weapon, not guilty.
Thomas Gray, larceny, guilty, sentenced ten months on roads.
The fine of $5 imposed upon Nat Lunsford for failure to assist officer in making arrest, was stricken out; also the fine of $20 against Lane Wooten for carrying concealed weapon.

James Staton, selling liquor guilty, sentenced six months on roads.

Solicitor Abernethy announced to the court the death of Stephen C. Wooten, a member of the Greenville bar, and on motion it was ordered by the court that when this court adjourns for the day, it adjourn in honor and memory of said Stephen C. Wooten.

NOTES FROM HANRAHAN.

Hanrahan, N. C., April 28.

Editor Reflector:

Our pen to you has long been still, but we'll resume again, if you so will.

Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, our wide awake superintendent, gave our school a short visit last Friday. He said many wise and encouraging things to the children, and patrons of the school, and made our people think seriously of the great need of an up-to-date school house. We feel sure that ere another school term opens that Hanrahan will have a modern school building.

Miss Lizzie Hines will close her first term here on Friday of this week. She is indeed a teacher, and not merely a school keeper. Her sterling worth to this community can't be estimated. But I fear to say too much in her praise, because there are so many demands for just such teachers as she is, and we can't help from being selfish enough to want to retain her for our next school term.

Prof. Luke Brothers, principal of the Grifton graded school, organized a Sunday school here about the first of February and it is now in splendid working order, and is doing much to elevate this community. We are very sorry that his school term will soon close, and for a few months he will be absent. We trust that he who doeth all things well will lay the burden so heavily upon the heart of some competent man that he will take up the work and carry it forward.

Our farmers are very busy setting out tobacco, and planting cotton, as you know the nights and days have been cold, and much of the tobacco that was planted has died, and cotton that was coming up looks real sick. If that is to be planted over, there will not be seed enough to do it.

Now, Mr. Ed., please correct spelling and excuse scribbling. My oldest brother once said to me, you neither spell nor write, you only think and work. I told him that only a few thought, so I took it as a compliment.

Copartnership Business.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of N. Y. is issuing a "Copartnership Policy" on two or more lives at a very low premium rate. It might pay you to investigate such a business contract.

H. Bentley Harris will show you without cost or commitment.

STATE NEWS.

Newsy Items of Interest Condensed for Busy Readers.

Gertie, the six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Smith, who lived on Mr. Halsey Malpass place in Pink Hill township, was horribly burned Wednesday morning and died within a few hours, as a result of the burns. The little girl was left in the house with her ten year old brother, who is an imbecile, while her parents were at work in the field. —Kinston Free Press.

Yesterday a band of Gypsies who were on their way to Greenville, N. C., stopped in the northern part of the city and pitched their tents. There were several people in the party, and from the exterior they certainly belonged to the tribe of "The Great Unwashed." They left last night for their destination. —New Bern Journal, 28th.

Railway Telephone on Southern Roads.

The use of the telephone to dispatch train traffic is soon to be extended over two more railroads in the South. Already the majority of the important lines in this section have adopted this movement, and the latest to join the procession are the Norfolk & Southern and the Virginia Railway.

The Norfolk & Southern expects to have its telephone line from Norfolk to Washington in service early this summer. On this stretch of 136 miles there are to be twenty telephone stations. The equipment is to be arranged so that the dispatcher can call the stations either individually or collectively. There are to be eight siding telephone sets at various points along the line. Two of these siding sets, which are made in heavy weather proof cases, are to be installed at the Mackey's Ferry draw-bridge.

Portable telephone sets for use in case of emergency are to be carried on the more important trains of this road. These instruments may be connected to the telephone lines by means of jointed fish poles.

The Virginian Railway has recently ordered apparatus to equip its first and second sections, extending from Norfolk to Roanoke, a distance of 250 miles. Telephones are now being installed on the third section, between Roanoke and Deepwater, West Virginia, and will soon be ready for service.

On the first and second sections there are to be thirty-one stations equipped with telephones and Gill selectors, and twenty-seven with telephones alone. A feature of this equipment is the latest type of central energy selector, by means of which bells at all stations may be rung from battery supplied over the telephone line from the dispatcher's office. This is a new development in train dispatching. —Raleigh Times.

Reunion May 10th.

The Confederate veterans of Pitt county will have their annual reunion here on the 10th of May. The committee of arrangements is now at work on the program and this will be published soon. Mr. Platé Collins, of Kinston, will deliver the address, and dinner will be served at the conclusion of the exercises. The Bryan-Grimes Drum Corps is getting in readiness to furnish the music.

HAVE FINAL REHEARSAL.

Boys Off to Washington Hoping to Win the Contest.

In the presence of something over a dozen people, the debaters against Washington gave their final rehearsal Thursday night in the chapel of the graded school building.

B. F. Taylor, the first speaker, reviewed the history of the American merchant marine, showing that granting mail subsidies is no new thing with us. That before the civil war we granted heavy subsidies, and we had a strong, active merchant marine, whereas, today we have only few ships engaged in the cross-sea service. He proceeded to show the condition of the army and the navy without transports, declaring that we would be helpless in a foreign war. He then touched on the good features of the Humphrey bill, and quoted from Senator Simmons, who favors the passage of the bill.

The second speaker, Linda Smith, showed the urgent need of an adequate merchant marine. He compared the subsidies granted by the United States with those granted by other countries; he discussed free ships, our navigation laws, government naval and army transports, tonnage and harbor taxes, etc., and declared that if history and experience have ever demonstrated anything freely and completely, it is certain that there is no way to have a merchant marine except by means of subsidies.

Quite a number of Greenville people will go down to Washington for the debate tonight.

It goes without saying that the people of our town hope that its representatives will win the victory in the contest.

Connects With Coast Line.

A connection with the Atlantic Coast Line from Spring Hope to Durham will be established by a new line now in course of construction by the Montgomery Lumber Company. It is authoritatively stated that the new line is a part of the Atlantic Coast Line system.

The terminus of the line, which was recently begun at Spring Hope and has been built as far as Bunn, in Nash county, was recently decided upon at a meeting of representatives of the lumber company and a number of Durham capitalists. The road will go through a splendid lumber and farming territory at present undeveloped, and at the same time will shorten the distance from Durham to Norfolk 40 miles.

The new road will go through Wake, Granville and Nash counties. This will afford a direct Coast Line connection with Durham. —Wilmington Star.

No Sensible Person Gets "Big Head."

The "big head" is a popular way of expressing a common and very frequent ailment, says an exchange. It arises from various sources but the real foundation is lack of sense. A little money develops it in some people; a few good clothes gives it to others; a little office where a chance is given to exercise a little authority, is often the cause of it, while others get it having a little better job than their associates. The truth is no sensible person gets the "big head." The one who becomes stuck up and stiff-necked from sources of any kind, are weak in the intellectual calibre. —Ex.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

S. J. Everett went to Oak City this morning.

J. B. Higgs went to Washington Thursday evening.

R. A. Loyd returned Thursday evening from Philadelphia.

Mrs. R. J. Cobb went to Scotland Neck Thursday evening.

R. T. Evans is quite sick at his home just south of Greenville.

O. L. Joyner left Thursday evening for a trip to Winston.

F. C. Toepelman, of Henderson, came in Thursday evening.

Prof. and Mrs. H. E. Austin are entertaining as their guest Mrs. J. S. Wright, of Baltimore, Md.,

Miss Priscilla Wilford, of Rocky Mount, who was visiting Miss Mae Chuliz, returned home Thursday.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Red Men meet tonight.

Tomorrow will wind up April. Go to the collector and pay your poll tax.

The high water in the river is getting on the shrink.

It is a few degrees warmer with a continued upward tendency on the thermometer.

Several people are off to Washington to attend the debate there between Greenville and Washington.

You can take the 7:45 Norfolk & Southern train this evening and reach Washington in time for the debate.

The J. H. Savage stock of furniture, which was sold Thursday was purchased by Taft & Vandyke and the Taft and Boyd Furniture Co.

The balloon sent up from Munford's store this afternoon made a good ascension. It sailed away northward and was still going when it vanished out of sight.

Greenville Interested in Him.

Recently Mr. R. Lee Stewart returned from a tour of inspection of the watches of the employees of the Atlantic Coast Line and Washington and Vandemere railroads for this division. Mr. Stewart is also the official inspector of the Norfolk & Southern for this district. This position is a most important one and the fact that our young townsman occupies it is but to say that it is filled with ability and credit. —Washington Progress.

Greenville feels interested in this from the fact Mr. Stewart lived here and went to school quite a while, and got the best part of his watch training from Capt. A. J. Griffin.

Dynamite the Thing for Stumps.

At a small cost any farmer can remove the stumps from his land and make the cultivation easy. It is from personal experience that I am speaking, having used several cases this year. I am thoroughly convinced that it is the cheapest and best method of getting rid of your stumps. Any information my farmer friends desire in regard to the use of it will be cheerfully given. It is only for your good that I ask the editor of our home paper to publish this article.

Have you paid it? Poll tax

If you can't run, walk. But keep going.

If you are not doing something to help your town you are not doing your duty.

The Charlotte Chronicle wants a debate on the question, would a comet be a comet without a tail?

Jeffries' latest trouble is boils. Don't know what he will have when Mister Johnson gets through with him.

It does not help matters to stand around and complain of business being dull. Hustle to make it better. Advertise.

Two men to go after are the poll tax collector and the census enumerator. And do not put it off if you want your vote and your name to be counted.

For Greenville's population to show up as large as possible, every nose should be counted. If the census enumerator over looked you, hunt him up and see that he enrolls you.

Some fellows are bragging over the fact that for the first time in fifty years the Madison county jail is empty. We can beat that down here. Pitt county hasn't even got a jail.

If there were many more countries for Roosevelt to visit he might not know what to do with all the honors that are being showered upon him. He certainly ought to be delighted.

Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, made a flight from London to Manchester, 186 miles, and scooped in a prize of $50,000. That was flying some. Who would mind flying for that much money.

E. B. Lewis, of Lenoir county and S. O. Middleton, of Duplin county, are the first candidates we have seen mentioned to succeed Corporation Commissioner B. F. Aycock, recently deceased. No doubt there will be other candidates.

Folks are waking up to the advantages of using North Carolina's magnificent water powers. The Dukes are buying several sites in the western part of the State for the purpose of utilizing the power. There is enough idle power in this State to drive machinery in thousands of factories.

The greatest stride at a single bound we have known in North Carolina newspaper to make has just been accomplished by the Durham Sun. From a four page paper of six columns to the page, it changed to a large twelve page paper. The Sun was recently incorporated into a stock company, a new press, two type setting machines and entire new equipment installed, and in its new form is the equal in appearance and excellence of any city paper. J. A. Robinson, who has run the Sun for twenty-two years, continues the leading light on the paper, and has as his co-workers a corps of experienced newspaper men. The new Sun is bound to do much for Durham and North Carolina.

Rotten Eggs Made 'Good.'

The seizure in New York, a few days ago and the dumping into the river, of 160,000 powdered and frozen eggs, calls attention to the dessicated egg industry, now quite an extensive one in Chicago. In this instance, dessication simply means a process for making a bad egg smell good. The rotten eggs, after being either frozen or dessicated are rendered free from bad odors. The frozen eggs are put through a refrigerating process after the removal of the shells, and are made into hard blocks in much the same way as ice cream bricks are made. When the blocks are thawed the odor indicates whether or not the eggs were fresh when frozen. We are told that the health authorities are having much trouble with the dessicated eggs, as a chemical analysis is often required to determine if the dry powder was made from good or bad eggs. Both frozen and dessicated eggs, the authorities say, are sold largely to bakers, confectioners, hotels and restaurants. Thanks be, there's no market in this part of the country for the stuff. Charlotte Chronicle.

The aldermen have passed all kinds of laws, but there is one left off the books they should hasten to get on, viz; an ordinance preventing a man from wearing a straw hat until June, for the sight of a straw hat makes the weather man mad and he proceeds to do business at least he sends cold weather and we suppose the straw hat must be responsible. Bronchial Tubes all Stuffed Up.

"While a resident of Washington, D. C., I suffered continually and intensely with a bronchial trouble that was simply terrible to endure. I would have sworn that I could hardly breathe, I would choke up, fill up in my throat and bronchial tubes, and the doctoring that I did and the remedies used were of no benefit to me whatever. I heard about Booth's Hyomei being so beneficial in catarrhal and bronchial affections and procured an outfit. I received relief from the first by its use. I continued with it and received a cure. It is about two years since I have suffered at all from my former trouble.—Mrs. R. L. Pannell, 404 N. Augusta street, Staunton, Va., March 26, 1910.

Hyomei is guaranteed by Coward & Wooten to cure catarrh, croup, bronchitis, coughs, colds and sore throat or money back. A complete Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mei) outfit costs $1 at drugists everywhere. This includes a hard rubber pocket inhaler and bottle of Hyomei; extra bottles of Hyomei cost 10c.

STEALING THE STYLES

London Millinery Pirates and Their Methods.

TRICKS OF SMART WOMEN.

Use Their Position to Get a Look at the Advance Models and Then Sell Their Information in Berlin—One Case Where There Was a Slip.

The object of the modern millinery pirate is by some means to get hold of the new fashions well in advance of the coming season, and, however jealously guarded the new models are, she—most pirates are women—very often succeeds, and the real owner has the mortification of seeing his novelty anticipated by some firm of infinitely less importance than his own.

Last spring the proprietor of one of the smartest shops in the west end of London noticed a lady walking in the park attired in a dress almost an exact copy of a brand new model of his own, a model which not half a dozen people had seen besides its inventor and himself. The design had been registered, but the copy was just sufficiently altered to steer clear of legal difficulties.

A most searching inquiry revealed the fact that the culprit was a lady who had always been considered one of the firm's smartest and best customers.

Her birth and position were less impenetrable than the state of her finances, and she had accepted the offer of a Berlin firm to dress her on condition that she supplied it with the very latest creations that found their way from Paris to London.

Having the entrée of the innermost sanctum of the London firm referred to, she had taken advantage of its confidence in her to draw its designs from memory and post them to Berlin.

The London firm had no legal remedy whatever. All it could do was when the autumn styles were due and the lady called again to inform her that her patronage was no longer desired.

Another lady detected in a similar trick by the manager of a Regent street firm was very cleverly punished. Upon her next visit she was received with the same cordiality as ever and taken into the showroom, where the latest models were usually displayed.

She never suspected until too late that the room had been specially arranged for her reception. The models exhibited were anything but new, and the too smart firm which employed her was put to vast expense to work up dresses from patterns resurrected from those of years before which proved absolutely unsalable.

It is by no means exclusively for the purpose of stealing other people's original designs that "pushing" firms enlist the services of well dressed recruits.

Last summer a lady arrived at a smart seaside hotel, the sort of place where people stay for the whole season. She was pretty, smart and perfectly turned out—so well dressed, in fact, that other women, filled with envy, did their best to find out who was her dressmaker.

But though she frequently boasted that the people were perfect treasures and that her bills amounted to next to nothing, she steadfastly refused to disclose the name.

One day, however, she accidentally dropped an envelope inclosing a bill from the mysterious dressmaker, a bill artfully "faked" so as to show prices of startling cheapness. Within a week the firm that employed this clever lady welcomed a dozen new customers.

Hotels, too, find the lady tout most useful. Last autumn a very pretty girl arrived at a certain Scotch health resort establishment with her mother. She was smart, well dressed, a clever musician—just the sort of girl to be thoroughly popular with both sexes. At once she became the center of a large coterie of admirers.

Then after a few days her vivacious expression gave place to a look of unutterable boredom. "I can't stand this place. It's so deadly dull," she said over and over again. Finally one evening she announced that she could not endure it an hour longer. She was going.

"Where?" was the question. "Back to Blithelington," was the decided answer. "It may be a little dearer, but you get your money's worth there. One has such a good time there!"

Next day she left, and before the week was out a large proportion of her friends had followed her.—London Grand Magazine.

A Fine Mixup.

"What do you mean by this, sir?" demanded the angry advertiser.

"What's the matter?" inquired the publisher of the paper.

"This advertisement of our delicious canned meats from the best colonial houses—you're made it read 'horses.'"

—London Tit-Bits.

Cynical.

"Do you think there is really any such thing as platonic love?"

"Yes. It exists between most husbands and their wives."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Re-enforced.

"What is an ossified man, pa?"

"I'm not certain, but I think that is what they call one who has turned to concrete."—New York Press.

He is a wise man who wastes no energy on pursuits for which he is not fitted.—Gladstone.

STARTING A FASHION

The Way a New Style in Ladies' Hair Was Born in France.

TOUCHED A QUEEN'S VANITY.

Marie Antoinette's Hairdresser Was Confronted With a Serious Situation, but His Gascon Diplomacy Proved Equal to the Occasion.

At the end of the year 1781 Leonard, hairdresser to Queen Marie Antoinette, was confronted by an alarming situation, and with the fulfillment of this dread event would fall his credit. But with his native "Gascon quickness"—as Leonard puts it in his "Recollections"—he proceeded to save his reputation.

"Madame," said he one day to the queen when he saw that the fall of her hair was imminent. "The high headdress is becoming very common. It is long since the bourgeoisie has taken possession of it, and now it is the turn of the common people."

"Good gracious, Leonard, what are you telling me? Do you know it grieves me to hear it? Those headdresses were so becoming to me!"

"And what headdress would not become your majesty? I have carefully thought over a total revolution in your majesty's headdress. I have even had your portrait drawn with the new arrangement. I have in view, and as I expected, my august sovereign by adopting my innovation would be made younger by six or seven years."

"Do you mean it, Leonard? The headdress you have in mind would make me look younger?"

"I do not see what your majesty could gain in that, for many women of the court would take on years to resemble the queen of France."

"Oh, I do not deceive myself, Leonard. I shall soon be twenty-seven, and at that age a style which makes one look younger is always favorably received."

"Well, madame," Leonard continued quickly, while placing a miniature before her majesty's eyes, "see this portrait. It is a striking resemblance. It is your majesty, but ten years younger."

"What do I see—the hair cut a few inches from the head?"

"Yes, madame, it will be, if you are pleased to consent to it, a coiffure a la enfant, and you will see it taken up with as much enthusiasm as all those that I have created for your majesty."

"You are right, Leonard. It is charming. In truth, I am but eighteen with my hair dressed like that. But to sacrifice my beautiful hair!"

"Your majesty will have the satisfaction of seeing all the ladies of the court, all the ladies of France, sacrifice theirs."

"But if the style changes?"

"Who would dare to adopt a new one without your majesty's having first set the example? If some ambitious hairdresser and the myriad of weaklings who swarm in Paris should dare undertake such a change I would have him reduced to atoms by the Journal des Dames. He would be a ruined man."

"But I prize my hair very much," said the queen, with an air of hesitation, still looking at the portrait. Yet I am dying to have my hair dressed a la enfant."

"Well, madame, since I have been so fortunate as to find a style which pleases your majesty I must tell you all. For the last two weeks all my waking hours have been devoted to the service of my sovereign in the attempt to make an agreeable thing of an imperative necessity."

"What do you mean, Leonard?"

"Your majesty was saying a little while ago that she prized her hair, and I can easily understand it; but, unfortunately, her hair does not prize her. Before fifteen days it will have entirely fallen out if this very day we do not apply the infallible remedy—the scissors."

"What's that you say?" exclaimed the queen with veritable fright.

"The least painful of truths, madame, since what I propose to your majesty, while forestalling a great misfortune, is entirely to her taste."

"Come, Leonard; no more deliberation. Cut it, but do not cut it too short."

"Just enough, madame, to give back to the roots of the hair the vigor it was beginning to lose."

The queen's beautiful hair fell under Leonard's regenerating scissors, and two weeks afterward all the ladies of the court had their hair dressed a la enfant.

Let no one say there is no diplomacy outside the king's cabinet. It is at the bottom of all human combinations.—Youth's Companion.

A Losing Game.

"I lost $2,000 last night," observed the noted lecturer, who charged 50 cents a word for his oratory.

"How was that—poker?" inquired the man who didn't care much for lectures anyway.

"No. Talked in my sleep," replied the lecturer, wiping away a tear.—Puck.

Suspicious.

"John," she said after dinner.

"Yes, my dear."

"Is the drinking water at your office flavored with cloves?"—Buffalo Express.

Anger is a pure waste of vitality. It helps nobody and hinders everybody. It is always foolish and always disgraceful.

Why the Audience Laughed.
At a public entertainment recently a conjurer had an experience which was highly comical, though quite disastrous from a professional point of view. Having produced an egg from a previously empty bag, he announced that he would follow up this trick by bringing from the bag the hen that laid the egg. This little arrangement he left to his confederate to carry out. He proceeded to draw the bird from the bag, but what was his surprise on finding that the alleged hen was an old rooster, which strutted about the stage with ruffled feathers and offended dignity and set up as vigorous as a crowing as if it had just awakened from its nocturnal slumbers. The whole audience shrieked with laughter, and the unfortunate conjurer made a bolt for the dressing room.—London Mail.

Have a purpose in life and, having it, throw such strength of mind and muscle into your work as God has given you.—Carlyle.

Forgetful.
Absentminded Annette belongs to a club of young women in the west end of town. She went to a bridal shower, given by the club and left her present at home.
"I'm so sorry that I forgot it," she said.
"Never mind," the other girls told her. "You can send it around later."
A few weeks later the club gave another bridal shower, and again Annette left her gift at home.
"Do you know what I've done?" she said when she discovered her mistake. "I've forgotten my present."
No one felt disposed to help her out.
"But, then," she added, "didn't one of the girls forget her present last time, and didn't we say it would be all right if she sent it around later? I'm sure that happened to somebody."
—Newark News.

Hampered by Conventionalities.
Washington was crossing the Delaware river at Trenton.
"Of course," he said, "I don't mind standing up in this boat and gazing sternly in the direction of the unsuspecting foe, since the artists insist on depicting me in this absurd attitude, but the blithering chumps ought to know better than to paint these blocks of floating ice projecting a foot above the water. Any man with an ounce of gumption knows that the ice in this river isn't eight feet thick."

Angered by these reflections, he fell upon the Hessians shortly afterwards with extreme ferocity.—Chicago Tribune.

Easy.
"Sir Arthur Conan Doyle," said a writer, "sat at dinner on his last visit here beside a lady who asked leave to consult him about some thefts."
"My detective powers," he replied, "are at your service, madam."
"Well," said the lady, "frequent and mysterious thefts have been occurring at my house for a long time. Thus there disappeared last week a motor horn, a broom, a box of golf balls, a left riding boot, a dictionary and a half dozen tin plate plates."
"Aha," said the creator of Sherlock Holmes, "the case, madam, is quite clear. You keep a goat."—Exchange.

Suffers For Her Belief.
"There are no martyrs these days."
"Oh, I wouldn't say that."
"Do you think there are any people today who would suffer tortures for their beliefs?"
"My wife believes that an eighteen inch waist looks better than a twenty-two, and I think she suffers a lot of genuine torture because of that belief."—Houston Post.
